FIFTEENTH REPORT.

FIFTEEN years have now passed, since the voice of Providence called this Institution to assume the character and undertake the labors of a National Home Missionary Society. The startling rapidity with which its successive anniversaries have come and gone, reminds us, that some of the laborers who began the day with us, have been called to their rest ; while those who remain have but a brief space for action, before "the night cometh in which no man can work."* But though many a noble spirit that prayed and labored in this cause, has ceased from the earth, THE SOCIETY STILL LIVES. It lives in the churches it has planted, and in the souls it has saved. It lives in the confidence of the good ; in the long enduring need of its further labors ; in the vigor of its principles, and in its adoption of those unobtrusive but mighty instruments, by which God is accustomed to bless the world. It finds its analogy in the still small voice, rather than in the earthquake, whirlwind or fire. Other enterprises may borrow, if they choose, their emblems from the field of battle, and speak of the charge, the conflict and the shout of victory. This cause is more like the work of the husbandman, who diligently opens his furrows to the dew and sunshine ; and labors, and has patience, while the seasons, in their noiseless course, bring forth food for man and beast. Thus, the agency of this Society is silent, amid its greatness ; yet great, even in its silence ; and, we trust, it will continue to be used as Heaven's instrument of unmeasured good, when the hands that now wield it, lie nerveless in the grave.

This confidence is confirmed by the history of the past year. From the pressure of the difficulties under which the cause of benevolence has labored, the good hand of our God has slowly, but steadily, raised the Home Missionary enterprise. And before proceeding to the particulars of their report, the Committee feel it to be their duty to call upon the Society to join with them, "in sacrificing the sacrifices of thanksgiving" and in "declaring the works of the Lord with rejoicing."

* During the past year, three of the Vice Presidents of this Society, viz. : Rev. Asa Hillyer, D. D., of New-Jersey ; Rev. John H. Church, D. D., of New-Hampshire, and Rev. E. W. Baldwin, D. D., of Indiana, have been removed by death.

The details of the Society's operations are embraced in the following

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

From the foregoing enumeration, it will be seen that the whole number of missionaries and agents in the service of the Society, the past year, is 690; being 10 more than the number employed the preceding year. Of these, 512 were in commission at the time of our last anniversary, and 178 have been since appointed.

The sum of missionary labor performed is equal to 501 years, or an advance of 15 years above the amount stated in our last report.

These labors have been bestowed on 862 congregations and missionary districts, in 21 states and territories of the Union, and also in Canada and Texas.

But the mere numerical increase of missionaries and years of labor, above stated, is by no means a just measure of the actual advance made by the Society in the work assigned it. It would have been easy for the Committee, without additional expense, to swell the apparent results of the year, by multiplying appointments in the older states, where missionaries are easily obtained, and the sums appropriated are small. But they have chosen rather to enlarge that part of the Society's work, which has respect to the uncultivated portions of the country. Accordingly, as fast as the missionary churches at the East are strengthened, so that they no longer require assistance, their places are supplied by other churches in the West. In this way, while the number of missionaries and congregations presents but a small apparent increase, the last year, there has yet been such a transfer of the Society's operations from the older and abler, to the newer and more needy portions of the field, as to make a gratifying increase of that kind of labor, which it is peculiarly incumbent on this Institution to perform.

This policy of the Society is required by the great fact, that the new states and territories of our country, are the field of conflict on which her salvation is to be won or lost. It has also been ratified by the evident approval of the Great Head of the church, in the bestowment of his Spirit on that portion of the country, which is now the subject of so much interest and effort—the number of hopeful conversions, and additions to the churches by profession, being there much larger, in proportion to the number of laborers under whose ministry they have occurred. Thus, not only the Providence of God, as recognized in the opening of wide and effectual doors, and in the cries of the needy; but, also, the Divine Spirit seems to point the Society to the fair field of promise in the West.

The past year, like that which immediately preceded it, has been graciously distinguished by the reviving influences of the Holy Spirit. In 80 of the missionary churches, seasons of special refreshing have been enjoyed; and the number of hopeful conversions reported is 3,285. Not far from 2,860 have been added to the churches, by the public profession of their faith in the Redeemer. There have also been added, by letters from other churches 1,758; making the total of additions 4,618.

The number of pupils instructed in Sabbath schools and Bible classes under the direction of the missionaries, the last year, has been about 54,100.

In the communities aided by the operations of the Society, there are now reported 64,500 subscribers to temperance pledges. The correspondence of the missionaries gives pleasing evidence that, during the last year, there has been a revival of interest in reference to this branch of reform.

The effect of charitable aid, bestowed on right principles, is not to diminish the liberality of those who receive it; but, on the contrary, it invigorates and evolves a spirit of active benevolence. This is illustrated in the fact, that the "deep poverty," which, the last year, has oppressed the missionary churches beyond the experience of any former year, has, nevertheless, "abounded to the riches of their liberality." Of these churches, 246 have reported their contributions to the cause of benevolence, amounting in all to $11,604. These benefactions prove, that the day is not distant, when these infant communities, having themselves known the embarrassments of poverty and the blessedness of relief, will bring the strength and wealth of their maturity to send the gospel to others. To the support of these 246 congregations, $28,600 had been previously appropriated. The amount returned by them into the treasury of benevolence is, therefore, more than 40 per cent on the sum which they have received—a return, that shows how productive to the cause of christian charity, even in a pecuniary point of view, are investments in the Home Missionary enterprise.

GENERAL INFLUENCE.

But the labors of the Society are not to be estimated by the results of a single year, nor yet by the visible fruits of a series of years. There are a thousand, unseen, collateral effects, flowing from the springs of salvation opened at so many points, which no report can detail nor human sagacity fully discover. What arithmetic can compute the value of those gentle, unnoted, yet mighty influences which have gone forth through the land, from all the congregations to which, in the period of its operations, this Society has extended aid? How much blessing has been dispersed abroad, how much evil prevented, by the timely occupancy of posts, which now exert a controlling influence on the rest of the land! Start from this metropolis, and trace, in imagination, the great lines of communication with the interior—the rivers—railroads and canals,—and you find, that the chief points of social and commercial power are more or less indebted to the labors of this Society, and those from which it sprung, for whatever good they diffuse around them. Ten of the churches in the city of New-York, have been planted or fostered by its aid. Nine in Philadelphia, are similarly related to it. So also Troy, Utica, Syracuse, Rochester, and other places on the Erie canal; Buffalo, Cleaveland, Sandusky, Toledo and Monroe, on Lake Erie; Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Tecumseh, and White Pigeon, on the great land route across the peninsula of Michigan; Chicago, Racine, Milwaukee and Green Bay—the gates to the country beyond them—have, at some period, been indebted to this Society, for a portion of the means which have blessed them with the Gospel. It has also passed, by various points on the national road, through Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, to the Mississippi. Starting at Pittsburgh, it has followed the windings of the Ohio, pausing to leave a blessing on either shore, at Parkersburg, Gallipolis, Portsmouth, Newport, Cincinnati, Madison, Louisville, New Albany, Evansville, and other points of vantage. It has preached the Gospel on the Missouri, from St. Charles on the East to the Osages on the West. On the bluffs of the Mississippi, at St. Louis, Alton, Quincy, Fort Madison, Galena, Dubuque, and other prominent points, its missionaries have early planted the banner of the cross. Leaving these great thoroughfares, it has penetrated into the interior, and at more than 2,400 other stations it has preached salvation through Christ, and persuaded men to lead “a quiet and peaceable life, in godliness and honesty.” Its influence has thus mingled with the vital current that circulates through all the arteries of the social system, infusing moral health into the constitution of this great people, adding authority to the laws; fostering education in all its interests, from the infant school up to the college; sustaining the Sabbath; promoting temperance in the enjoyment of the blessings of this life, and preparation for that which is to come.

FINANCES.

The balance in the treasury, at the time of the last anniversary, was $2,278 51. The subsequent receipts have amounted to $85,413 34; making the total sum at the disposal of the Committee, during the year, $87,691 85.

The amount due to missionaries at the beginning of the year was $6,705 33; and there has since become due the further sum of $88,345 26; making the liability of the Society for the year, $95,050 59. Of this, $84,864 06 have been paid; and there remains $10,186 53 of present indebtedness; towards discharging which, there is a balance in the Treasury of $2,827 79. For the remainder of what is due to the missionaries, and for whatever else may be needed for the prosecution of this work, our only reliance, under God, is on the free offerings of those who esteem it more blessed to give than to receive.

The receipts above reported, are $7,068 14 more than the income of the year preceding. That the Committee are able to announce such an advance, in a year of so much difficulty in making charitable collections, they regard as an occasion for devout thanksgiving to the Great Patron of the missionary enterprise. When, four years ago, the first sea of commercial distress broke over us, an extensive sympathy was awakened; and the christian community hastened, by a common impulse, to rescue the drowning interests of the missionary cause from destruction. It was felt, that the church must sustain her operations for the salvation of the world, whatever might be the sacrifice it should cost. But the emergency proved to be a protracted one. Something more has been necessary to meet it, than a mere romantic and impulsive sympathy. And thus, our cause has been thrown, more and more every year, upon that benevolence which is intelligent, and well grounded in love and obedience to Christ. The resources of the Society, the past year, may therefore be regarded as eminently the tribute of principle. Contributions made under such circumstances assure us, that Home Missions are, hereafter, to form a leading feature in the policy of those, who are thoughtful for the great interests of the nation and the church.

PROPOSED OPERATIONS FOR THE COMING YEAR.

With such a guaranty of permanent support, the Society has issued its pledges to missionaries for labor to be performed in the coming year, amounting to $24,697. This, with what is already due, and liable to be drawn for, makes the sum of $34,883 of responsibility under which the Committee will commence their annual labors. This amount is indeed larger, by $5,714, than the same item in the preceding report; but some increase of expenditure was demanded by the voice of Providence, which the Committee could neither misunderstand nor decline to obey. The western communities have been so overwhelmed by the complicated embarrassments of the times, that it has been found impracticable, in many cases, to sustain the missionaries on the reduced scale of appropriations which was observed the previous year. There has seemed, then, to be no alternative, but that the labors and expenditures of years on that portion of the field be lost, and the salvation of our country retarded, or that the Society must throw itself into the breach, and, by its pledges of assistance, rescue from impending ruin the institutions of piety, with their associated blessings, in those infant settlements. At the same time, new facilities of usefulness have been opened, in the more recently settled portions of the West. The rush of emigration to those regions, and the critical importance of the present moment of their history, demand that missionary operations there be urged on a liberal and efficient scale. To this end, the Committee need, for the coming year, a revenue of at least $50,000, above the receipts of the last. And is this a great thing to ask in behalf of such a work as ours? There is not on the globe, another object of equal value, so much in jeopardy, and yet so little appreciated, as the welfare of that magnificent basin, in which the congregated sovereignties of the West lie spread out, side by side. Point the Christians of America to a similar region any where in Asia or Africa; show them such a soil, in all its original freshness, towards which such a population as ours is crowding, wild in the consciousness of strength and freedom—convince them, that for the possession of that region, there may be but ten or twenty years in which to struggle, and the church would rise up as one man, to claim and occupy it for Christ. Tell her of expense; she would scorn to compute it; talk to her of obstacles; she would wade through seas, and dig down mountains to reach her object. And shall this same church remain unmoved, when she is shown such a field of unparalleled interest, lying even at her own doors—a field, too, which is six times as large as both France and Britain, and equal to the whole of Europe, exclusive of Russia? The Committee ask for the amount above specified, not because it is fairly proportioned to the work that needs to be done; but, because it is the lowest point, at which the conscience of the Society may rest for another year. They dare not—on their responsibility to the christian public, who wait for them to announce what the signs of the time demand; as servants of the Society which appoints them to this trust; and, especially, as those who must give account to Christ—the Committee dare not ask for less.

AUXILIARY SOCIETIES AND AGENCIES.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

At the last anniversary of this Society, it had been in existence one third of a century—its number of members had increased from 32 to more than 2000—its number of missionaries from 1 to 72—more than four fifths of the Congregational churches in the state had been aided from its funds; and about three fourths of the ministry, then resident in the state, had been in successive years in its employment. The year then closed had been one of great spiritual prosperity to the churches. Seven hundred and thirty-seven had been reported as hopefully converted under the labors of the missionaries—a greater number, in proportion to the services rendered, than in any year since the Society was instituted.

The generous contributions, received at the last annual meeting, relieved the Society from its immediate embarrassments, and enabled it to redeem all its pledges. Its receipts, the remainder of the year, have not, however, been adequate to its necessities. But we trust the year will not close, ere its warm-hearted and liberal patrons, shall have furnished it with the means of rendering unto its devoted and faithful laborers their stipulated hire. There had been paid into the treasury, during the year, ending April 1st, $6,338 17, and expended $7,082 06, leaving the treasury overdrawn $679 52.

The number of missionaries in commission, during the year, is 73; and the amount of labor performed, is several years greater than in the preceding year. "Though revivals of religion," says the Secretary, Rev. Dr. GILLET, "have not been so multiplied and extensive as in some former years, and especially the last, yet there is no abatement of interest in the churches, in securing the stated means of grace, or diminution of zeal and labors in those that cultivate the destitute fields; and the calls for continued and increased effort were never more pressing and importunate."

And that the immediate patrons of this Society, do not limit their views of the importance and relations of the work in which they are engaged, to the vast, uncultivated, and inviting field, which, in their own state, is spread out before them, nor to the broad extent of our common country, is seen in the sentiment with which the last report of the Trustees concludes: "The cause of Home Missions, has an important bearing upon all other benevolent institutions of the day. It is necessary to their successful operation. Let this flourish, and every thing, far and wide, flourishes around it; let this die, and all kindred efforts die with it. If we would plant the standard of Christ in farthest India, or wave the banner of the cross over the Aborigines beyond the Rocky Mountains, or shed the light of Heaven upon the dark coasts of Africa, or cause the Isles of the sea to wait for the Divine Law, we must kindle up a light at home. It must be like the altar fires, that never go out. It must be progressive and wide spreading; and it will throw its influence to the ends of the world."

NEW-HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The receipts of this Society, during the year, ending April 1st, have been $4,881 94; and its expenditures $4,918 99; leaving the treasury overdrawn, $39 05, but showing an advance, on the previous year, of $453 97. In addition to what has been received into the treasury of this Society, and expended within the state, $876 55 have been paid into the treasury of the Parent Society—$640 of which, in the form of legacies, and $236 55 in donations from congregations, and individuals in different parts of the state—making the whole amount devoted to the cause of Home Missions, during the year, $5,578 49—exceeding the amount of the previous year, $960 10.

The Society has had in its service, during the year, 47 missionaries; 28 of whom are pastors of churches, and 19 are stated supplies; 35 of these have labored in single congregations, 10 have divided their labors between 2 congregations each, and 2 have occupied still larger fields.

During the last missionary year of the Society, 6 pastors had been settled, 6 houses of public worship completed, and 2 others commenced; 1 church had been organized, and 5 churches had enjoyed seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord.

“In reviewing the goodness of God towards the cause of Home Missions in this state, for the last three years and a half,” says the Secretary of the Society, Rev. BENJAMIN P. STONE, “we have great occasion for thanksgiving and praise. During this period, 17 churches have acquired sufficient strength to sustain their own Gospel institutions, and a larger number have been hopefully born again, than during any previous period of the same length, since the foundation of the Society.”

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

There remained in the treasury of this Society, April 1st, 1840, a balance of $3,566 18; the receipts, since that date, have been $2,808 04, making the resources of the year $6,374 22. The expenditures have been $4,346 88, leaving a balance in the treasury, April 1st, 1841, of $2,027 34.

Fifty missionaries have been in the employment of this Society during the year. There had been added to the churches aided, at the close of the last missionary year, 200 members—most of whom, had, during the year, been translated from the kingdom of darkness into the kingdom of God's dear Son. Over 3 of these churches, the missionaries had been settled as pastors—10 of them had, during the year, completed and dedicated houses of worship; 3 had been so far strengthened, as to count it their privilege no longer to receive charitable aid, but to contribute of their resources, henceforth, to swell that stream, from which they had themselves been watered in the days of their weakness.

But "there is a class of results," says the Secretary of the Society, Rev. SAMUEL DELANO, in his last report, "that cannot be set forth in measured quantity. The great amount of evil prevented in these several fields of operations; the good impressions which have been made upon thousands of minds; the progress of truth, though silent and unobtrusive, yet not the less real; the knowledge and light which have thus come in; the edification and comfort which the saints have experienced; the enlargement of faith; the confirming of hopes; the inspiring of animated effort; the bringing to view things invisible; and the bowing of the soul in obedience to the powers of the world to come; here, is an amount of good effected, which probably is not less than all others together, and yet is so unobtrusive in its character, as never to be seen, unless searched out, and can scarcely be discerned, even after diligent search, except by the eye of faith."

MASSACHUSETTS MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Eighty-one missionaries have been in the service of this Society, the past year. Their Sabbath congregations, number not far from 9,000 souls; and the pupils in the Sabbath schools and Bible classes under their care, between 5 and 6,000. At the date of the Society's last report, the churches aided contained 3,800 members, and there had been added to them, during the year, not far from 600; 17 of the churches had been favored with seasons of special religious interest, and an unusually large number of the converts were heads of families; 6 houses of worship had been built, and 4 enlarged or improved, and 11 churches, most of which the Society had nurtured from their feeblest infancy, had assumed the responsibility of sustaining the institutions of the Gospel without aid—thereby relinquishing nearly $1,000 of missionary funds, for the benefit of those whose circumstances are more necessitous.

The receipts of the Society, during the year, have been $17,366 61, exceeding those of the preceding year $2,648 12. Of this amount, $11,574 31 have been expended within the state; $7,172 57 have been paid into the treasury of the American Home Missionary Society, and there remained in the treasury, April 1st, $2,689 80.

There have also been received into the treasury of the Parent Society from the State of Massachusetts, $3,812 43; $1,250 of which was from the Hampshire Missionary Society, $1,000 in part payment of the legacy of the late Rev. Jonathan L. Pomeroy, and $1,562 43 from various individuals, congregations and auxiliaries in different parts of the state. The whole amount, therefore, realized to the cause of Home Missions from the state, during the year, is $21,183 04; of which $10,985 09 have been paid into the treasury of the Parent Society, and expended in extending the principles and institutions of the Pilgrims towards the going down of the sun.

The Executive Committee of the Massachusetts Missionary Society, in making their appropriations, have looked, not upon the necessities of the feeble churches within their limits alone, but have had an almost equal concern for those in the most distant parts of the land. They have made the cares of the Executive Committee of the American Home Missionary Society their own, and have borne no small share of their burdens. The Secretary of the Society, Rev. JOSEPH S. CLARK, in his report at the close of the last year, says: "No sooner was it known that the Parent Society was unable to occupy new fields of labor in the rising settlements of the West, and could retain those already occupied, only by reducing the hire of the laborers, which, even in that case, it was feared, must be kept back for a season, than we felt bound, by the law of christian reciprocity, to make a reduction in Massachusetts also, wherever it could be done without unsettling the ministry. After the most diligent inquiry into the circumstances of each assisted church, as its missionary year expired, the new appropriations, made to 17 of the churches, were reduced $890 below the sum which they received the year preceding. "In nearly all these cases," he adds, "the Committee have had the happiness to hear, that this step, and the reasons for it, have received the friendly acquiescence of these churches, though it has laid them under additional burdens."

CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

There remained a balance in the treasury of this Society, April 1st, 1840, of $4,610 13. The receipts, during the year, have been $3,244 78, and the expenditures $3,244 32; having a balance in the treasury, April 1st, 1841, of $4,610 59. There have also been received into the treasury of the American Home Missionary Society, from the Home Missionary Society of Fairfield West, the Home Missionary Society of New-Haven East, from legacies of individuals, congregations, and Ladies' Auxiliary Associations, $5,320 34. The "Female Missionary Society of Stonington" has contributed $140, towards the support of a missionary in Wisconsin Territory; and the Ladies' "Stilson Benevolent Society" of Greenwich, $400—making the entire amount necessary to sustain two missionaries in the same territory. The whole amount, therefore, contributed for Home Missions in Connecticut, during the year, is $8,564 66.

Thirty-five feeble churches have been aided in this state, the past year, in sustaining the Gospel. Several of them have reported seasons of special religious interest, and in some of them there have been striking manifestations of God's saving power.

"Though there are now more feeble churches in Connecticut," says the Secretary of the Society, REV. HORACE HOOKER, in his last report, "than there were twenty-five years ago, it is not because Home Missions have failed of their object. A part of this number, consists of churches formed through the agency of our Society, which, therefore, we may regard as striking evidence of success; another part, consists of churches, which, in consequence of various changes, have become weak, and which, without the patronage of the Society, might have ceased to exist; while in most cases where this patronage has been enjoyed, the churches, though still ranked among the churches that need aid, are so unlike their former selves, in all that constitutes the strength and ornament of religion, as a living body is unlike a tenant of the grave. What is now called feebleness, is a far different thing, from what was designated by that term at the origin of the Society. What was then meant by "desolations," and "waste places"—which were visible, too, in almost every section of the state—can now be found only after diligent search. If a new and neat house of worship has taken the place of one, whose appearance of neglect and decay, only imaged forth the moral state of the church—if the assembly at the tavern on the Sabbath has been transferred to the sanctuary—if the school-house has been repaired, and made comfortable or even attractive—if intemperance no longer reels without shame through the streets—if error and profaneness have retired abashed from the public gaze—if the voice of prayer and praise has succeeded to the boisterous notes of mirth or the coarse language of licentiousness; call the scene of these changes what you may, it will afford proof, in a radical transformation of character, that Home Missions, through the blessing of Heaven, have converted a waste, howling wilderness into a fruitful field."

RHODE-ISLAND HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society has resolved, the past year, to relinquish its dependence upon the Connecticut Missionary Society, whose generous aid it had received for many years, and to rely for pecuniary supplies for its feeble churches, upon collections to be received from the more favored churches within the state. This arrangement has received the approbation of the churches, and they have generously responded to the calls which have been made upon their beneficence, in behalf of the needy and destitute around them.

There have been 4 missionaries laboring within the state, during the year, and the amount expended in their support is not far from $800.

The Rev. MARK TUCKER, D. D., of Providence, is the Secretary of this Society.

PHILADELPHIA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society occupies the same territory, as did the Philadelphia Agency of the American Home Missionary Society; viz. the states of Pennsylvania, New-Jersey, Delaware and Maryland. The extent of the field, and the increasing necessity of multiplied and enlarged efforts to build up its feeble churches and reclaim its desolations, suggested the importance of changing the relation of an Agency to that of an Auxiliary Institution. This suggestion received the cordial approbation of the friends of the cause, both within the Agency and out of it, and in July last, the organization of the Philadelphia Home Missionary Society, Auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society, was completed. Sustaining to the Parent Institution the same relation as other Auxiliaries of the larger class, and acting upon the same general principles, this Society will have the immediate oversight of the destitutions within its bounds—will make its own appointments—organize subordinate auxiliaries—call the attention of churches and individuals to the claims of the cause—sustain from its own resources, as far as practicable, the laborers within its limits—and devote whatever funds may remain, to the advancement of the common cause in other sections of the land.

The formation of this Society, the spirit with which its operations have been commenced, the favor which it has received, and the success which has already attended its efforts, to awaken a deeper and more general interest in the establishment of Gospel institutions among our own countrymen and kindred, we regard as highly auspicious to the cause of missions. The Rev. ELIAS R. FAIRCHILD, Secretary of the Agency, was elected Secretary of the Society, and commenced his labors by an extensive exploration of the field, with reference both to its necessities and the development of its resources for missionary action, the results of which, will be of great value to the Society in the prosecution of its work.

The year and the field have each presented their peculiar difficulties, in the way of pecuniary collections; the receipts, however, have amounted to $9,050 22—which exceeds the amount collected the preceding year, $1,326 34. Forty-nine missionaries have been in commission during the year—33 in Pennsylvania, 13 in New-Jersey, 2 in Delaware, and 1 in Maryland. They have preached the Gospel and administered its ordinances in 65 congregations; the number of congregations aided being greater than in the previous year by 27, and the number of missionaries by 19.

Seventeen new stations have been occupied—some of them of peculiar interest, where no previous effort had ever been made to establish the Gospel. Six new houses of worship have been completed, and 3 others commenced. Three hundred and sixty-nine have been added to the churches—216 of whom were added by profession. The year has not been as distinguished, as some former years, for revivals of religion ; yet, several of the missionaries make mention of seasons of more than ordinary interest, and in 4 of the churches there have been revivals of considerable extent and power.

CENTRAL AGENCY, UTICA, N. Y.

The receipts of this Agency, during the year, have been $3,725 69 ; and there have been pledged in support of 36 missionaries, commissioned for 12 months each to preach the Gospel to 40 congregations within its bounds, $3,095.

The aggregate of missionary labor bestowed on the churches is equal to 32 years. Sixteen churches have been added to the number of those aided during the year, 4 of which have been recently organized. Three churches have assumed the entire responsibility of sustaining the Gospel, 2 have had pastors installed over them, and 6 others have completed new or essentially improved their former houses of worship. Eight churches are reported as enjoying revivals of religion, most of which are of recent date, and some of which are of peculiar interest. In several other congregations, the assemblies are increasing and becoming unusually solemn, and the great truths of the Gospel are having their appropriate influence upon the hearts and lives of men. Two hundred are reported as hopefully converted during the year, and more than that number have been added to the churches.

The Secretary of this Agency is Rev. ABIJAH CRANE, whose report will be found in the Appendix.

WESTERN AGENCY, GENEVA, N. Y.

Sixty missionaries have been commissioned within the bounds of this Agency, during the year, to labor in 70 different congregations ; $5,491 have been pledged to sustain them, and the aggregate of service rendered, if their commissions are fulfilled, will be 59 years—Ten new fields have this year been taken up, and several churches that were almost extinct have been resuscitated and saved. In 3 missionary stations parsonages have been built, and 13 of the missionary churches have either completed or commenced houses of worship.

The receipts from the field of this Agency have been $9,551 83, exceeding the amount appropriated to missionaries within the same limits $4,060 83. The distinctive characteristic belongs to the district embraced within this Agency, of yielding the largest private donations that have been received during the year—two individuals having paid $1,000 each into the treasury of the Society.

The Secretary of this Agency is the Rev. JOHN A. MURRAY, whose report will be found in the Appendix.

WESTERN RESERVE DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The number of missionaries on this field has been increased, during the year, from 14 to 21: all, except 3 of whom, have been sustained by the contributions of the churches immediately connected with this Auxiliary.

Under the labors of the missionaries, the churches have gathered strength—the tone of their piety has been elevated;—a growing attachment to the permanent institutions of the Gospel, a higher estimate of the value of the pastoral relation, and an increasing interest in the various departments of christian benevolence are every where manifest.

The receipts of this Society have been $1,120 81—a small advance on the last year, though less than they would have been, had not the effects of the pecuniary embarrassments of the country been felt more severely on this field, during some portion of the last year, than in any year previous. The larger subscriptions have fallen off, in consequence of the inability of those who have generously made them, in former years, any longer to renew them. But the deficit thus occasioned, has been more than supplied, by the multiplied contributions of those who have not given of their abundance, but, some of them at least, of their penury.

“Our population,” says the Secretary of this Society, Rev. WM. F. CURRY, “originally from New-England, and possessing all the peculiarities of their forefathers, are destined to exert a powerful influence on the character of this state and of all the western states. The Western Reserve embodies, at the present moment, a moral power, and can combine and concentrate an influence, which will be felt from the lakes to the shores of the Ohio and the Missouri. And wo to the West, if this spot becomes so corrupt, by neglect, as no longer to exert a restraining power upon the flood of iniquity, which is poured over the valley of the Mississippi.”

MARIETTA AGENCY, OHIO.

This Agency embraces 9 counties in the vicinity of Marietta, viz: Washington, Monroe, Hocking, Morgan, Athens, Meigs, Gallia, Lawrence and Jackson. Their population, as presented in the last census, is nearly 134,000. The Agency reports collections, during the year, to the amount of $465 11; which have been expended, in sustaining 3 missionaries within the bounds of the Agency. Two others, making 5 in all, have received their appropriations directly from the treasury of the Society.

"These missionaries," says Rev. HENRY SMITH, the Secretary of the Agency, "have labored with acceptance, and with as much success, as could be expected from the nature of the soil they have had to cultivate. But, there remains still much land to be possessed. There are many feeble churches on this field, which would willingly do something toward the support of a pastor, altogether destitute of the means of grace—others, after repeated, but ineffectual efforts to procure a minister, have sunk down into supine inactivity, and need some foreign aid to arouse them from their slumbers;—and there are, within our limits, regions, neither small nor comparatively sparsely populated, which are like the barren heath that knoweth not when good cometh—regions, over which the darkness of spiritual death reigns, we had almost said, unbroken by a ray of light."

CENTRAL AGENCY FOR THE WESTERN STATES AT CINCINNATI, OHIO.

The Rev. HENRY LITTLE, on resuming the duties of Secretary of this Agency, a little less than a year since, found the Board in debt nearly one thousand dollars, and obstacles to be encountered in making collections, as serious as have existed in any part of the country. The churches to be visited were widely separated, and the travelling, for several months of the year, was exceedingly difficult. The receipts, however, have amounted to $2,800, which has cancelled the debt of the Agency, and enabled it to assume the responsibility of sustaining 18 of the missionaries in commission within its bounds.

The time and labors of the Agent, however, have been directed, no small part of the year, to nurturing the feeble churches and surveying the regions of destitution. In a late communication, he says, "I have just visited some of the upper Wabash country, and find a wide and interesting field for missionary operations. That whole country north of the Wabash, has so many natural advantages, that it must soon be inhabited by a population, as dense as any portion of the United States. The western half, north of La Fayette, had no white men upon it, twelve years ago; now, there are towns and settlements in every part of it. An enterprising population is flowing in from the northern part of the Atlantic states, and this is the moment, when the missionary should take his station among them. There is another region in Indiana, in the southwest part of the state, differing somewhat from the one described, but scarcely less important, equally large and equally destitute of Presbyterian ministers. In fact, there never has been a time, since your first missionaries were sent into this valley, that the necessity for men was, every where, more pressing than at present. I hope that at your anniversaries, and every where and in every way, you will urge the churches to pray the Lord of the harvest, to send forth laborers into his harvest."

"But, while we thus plead for help, we would not forget to recount the goodness of God, in bestowing past and present blessings. Ten years ago, I met a synod at Madison, Indiana, which included all the Presbyterian ministers west of Ohio and Kentucky and north of Arkansas; and yet, this whole body was not much larger, than either branch of the Presbyterian church in the State of Indiana alone now is; and the American Home Missionary Society has been the great instrument, in the hand of God, of effecting this change and working this blessed increase. One has only to look at its operations the last year in the West, or the result of its labors for ten years, to be satisfied that its steady, noiseless operations are most efficient and powerful. The kingdom of Heaven, we believe, comes not with observation. So, the preaching of nearly two hundred missionaries, on this great field the past year, has been without much observation. Little has been said or thought about their labors. But, as a body, they are self-denying, hard-working men, and, under God, they have been instrumental in perfecting the saints, edifying the body of Christ, and in turning the feet of the disobedient unto the wisdom of the just. They have performed a work, which, though silent, will be seen, in the light of another day, to have been truly great and glorious."

OTHER AGENCIES IN THE WEST.

Illinois.—The Rev. FLAVEL BASCOM continued his efficient services, as Agent of the Society in the northern part of the state, until late in the autumn, when he was installed pastor of the Presbyterian church in Chicago, where his labors have been greatly blessed, in the edification and enlargement of the church under the outpourings of the Spirit of God.

"The present," says Mr. Bascom, "is a time of peculiar interest and trial in the history of our churches in this region. Four or five years ago, the influx of population was great and rapid. The country was fast filling up, money was plenty, property of all kinds was saleable, improvements were commenced on a large scale, and expectation of future prosperity was high and strong. Hence, in many places, ministers were settled whose support was pledged by the people. But, in consequence of the pecuniary reverses which succeeded, in almost every instance, those ministers have been compelled to leave their people for want of support, or to rely on the Home Missionary Society to make up the deficiency, which has from year to year increased. This is no fault of the churches. They made their pledges on a noble scale of liberality, in view of their ability, present and prospective, in 1836 and 1837; since then, an entire revolution has passed over them. Immigration has been greatly diminished, and property is unsaleable. The produce of their farms, on which they relied for means to support their families and to pay for their lands, will scarcely defray the expense of carrying it to market. Just at this time, their lands must be paid for or relinquished, and the pecuniary pressure is severe and the prospect dark. This state of things, accounts for the increased number of applications from this section, within the last six months. I am exceedingly happy that you have been able to grant aid in all these cases; for much, very much depends on the manner in which the churches pass through this crisis. If left unaided, they must reluctantly give up the means of grace, with the gloomy prospect of remaining destitute they know not how long."

"There has never been a period, since the first settlement of this state, when individuals and communities, hitherto irreligious, were so accessible to the influences of religion as at present. This is the very time, when every faithful minister is needed at his post. A cloud of mercy seems to be gathering over us. The way of the Lord seems to be preparing. The fields are white and ready for the harvest. And after the missionary has borne the heat and burden of the day, in preparing the ground and sowing the seed, and the time of harvest comes, shall the harvest be lost, because the laborers needed to gather the precious fruits cannot be sustained? In several of the churches to which you have extended aid, within the last few months, revivals of religion have commenced, which will doubtless give them strength for sustaining of themselves the Gospel. Let, then, the friends of the Home Missionary cause be encouraged to persevere in well doing. For almost all that makes this portion of our land to differ from a moral wilderness, so far as our denomination is concerned, we are indebted, under God, to the American Home Missionary Society. And when this land has become like the garden of the Lord, how delightful will it be to the friends and patrons of the Home Missionary cause, to reflect on the influence they were permitted to exert to secure such results."

Wisconsin.—The Rev. STEPHEN PEET, of Milwaukie, has rendered important service to the missionary cause in this territory, the last two years, by the voluntary agency which he has performed in its behalf. His reports have been spread out before the churches, and have had a happy influence, in awakening their attention to the importance of occupying with evangelical institutions, in its very infancy, a portion of the land, so extensive in territory, so fertile in soil, so inviting in climate, and so rapidly filling up with an enterprising and intelligent population.

Nine missionaries have been in commission within this territory, during the year. As the result of their counsels and those of their fellow laborers, the Presbyterian and Congregational churches have been happily united in one ecclesiastical organization, auspicious of extensive and permanent good to the interests of Zion. The number of these churches in the territory is 24; one half of which have been organized during the year, and two-thirds of which have enjoyed, within the same period, revivals of religion which have resulted in the hopeful conversion of five hundred souls. The call from these churches, and from the scattered disciples where no churches have yet been organized, is loud and importunate for men—men of apostolic temper, who shall count not their own lives dear unto them, if so be they may be honored of God, in covering the fairest portions of their native land with the beauty of holiness. Are there none of this character in our Theological Seminaries, or unoccupied in our older states, who will respond to these calls, Here are we, send us? And is there no silver and gold, yet unconsecrated to God and his kingdom, that shall be pledged for their support?

Iowa.—The Rev. ASA TURNER, of Denmark, has performed, in this territory, a service similar to that of Mr. Peet in Wisconsin, and with the same happy results. The soil, the climate, the prairie, the grove, the navigable river, the meandering stream is here alike inviting; and multitudes are crowding in, to select their home for this life, as well as their scene of preparation for another. Mormonism is there to delude them. Popery is there to ensnare them. Infidelity is there to corrupt and debase them. And Atheism is there, to take away their God as they go on to the grave, and to blot out every ray of hope that may beam upon them from beyond it. And shall not christian institutions be planted there? Ought the six missionaries of the American Home Missionary Society to be left there to labor alone, with a congregation of at least a thousand added to the territory every month? Says one of the missionaries, as he looks at the foes with which they have to contend. "There is an imperious necessity of sending on here, forthwith, men of strong nerve and unwavering faith. Ten or a dozen such men, in addition to what we have, stationed at different posts, and sustained, so that they could devote themselves wholly to their work, would exert an influence which time cannot measure. Do the conquerors of this world keep all their best troops in the camp, and send out a few of the weak and feeble to stand in the breach, and meet the main body of the enemy? It is not so. The bravest and best are selected. And will our great Captain be satisfied with us—will he hold the American churches guiltless, while they send so few and so feeble men to occupy these perilous outposts? O that some of the princes in Immanuel's army would come to our help!"

CANADA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Nine missionaries have been in commission, during the year, in Lower Canada. Their labors have been highly acceptable to the churches, and in some instances, have been accompanied with special blessings from on high. The Rev. A. J. Parker, missionary at Shipton, has been employed a portion of the year, in visiting the missionary churches, and in calling the attention of the stronger to the claims of their more needy and dependent brethren. His labors have had a happy influence on the churches visited, and have resulted in good to the cause of missions and the kingdom of Christ.

The hindrances to the missionary work in this field—the necessity and the motives for its enlargement, are presented in the last report of the Society. "We cannot," they say, "more decisively stigmatize the practice of war, than by stating, that the disturbances in this Province have, for more than three years, impeded benevolent enterprises, and the labors of missionary societies, and the preaching of the Gospel, to a degree, in some instances ruinous, and in every instance deplorable. And long after the visible contentions have ceased, the devastating influences continue, and the ruins long remain, as after a conflagration, showing the greatness of the havoc, and illustrating, by the contrast, the former degree of prosperity. Happily, those portions of the land which have suffered most begin to recover, and the people engage, in not a few instances, with a fresh and praiseworthy zeal, in sustaining the means of grace where they are enjoyed, and those who are destitute, begin to realize more deeply their need of the Gospel and its ordinances."

"But, there are yet numerous townships and settlements that have no regular Gospel ministry; there are others which are visited only once a month or once a quarter, by some zealous missionary; and others, which no missionary ever visits, which do not even enjoy the labors of a schoolmaster, and in which, therefore, no effort of any kind is put forth, to prevent them from sinking into a state of the grossest darkness. After all that has been done, the destitution of the country has not been met; nay, there can be little doubt, that with the increased number of emigrants expected, that destitution will be growing on our hands, instead of diminishing. Every year the evil is increasing. The neglected settlements sink lower in spiritual ignorance and degeneracy, while, at the same time, new settlements are constantly springing up around them, presenting new claims upon the resources of the benevolent."

SABBATH SCHOOL MISSIONARY ASSOCIATIONS.

The generous and grateful co-operation of this interesting class of Auxiliaries, of which we have made mention in former years, has been continued during the last. "The Juvenile Missionary Society, connected with the First Church in Brooklyn," N. Y., has sustained one missionary in Illinois. "The Murray-street Church Sabbath School Missionary Society," N. Y., has paid into the treasury $225, which has been appropriated towards the support of two missionaries in Michigan, one in Indiana, and one in Northern Illinois and Wisconsin Territory. And "The Sabbath Scholars' Missionary Association of the West Presbyterian Church," (Carmines street,) N. Y., has collected and paid into the treasury, since our last report, $300—making the entire amount appropriated to the support of two missionaries, one in Northern Illinois, and the other in Michigan; the latter of whom, has been blessed in his labors with a revival of religion, remarkable for its extent and power. In speaking of its influence upon the little colony to which he ministers, he says: "I look at the heads of families in our village and for some distance round, and but two or three are found, who do not hope in a Savior's mercy—I look among our young people, and not one is left. All, we trust, are sitting humble penitents at the feet of Jesus. I look into the Sabbath school, and even here a number hope that they have become the children of the Savior. I look into our dwellings, and in all, with a single exception, I find an altar erected to the living God, on which morning and evening incense is offered."

NECESSITY OF ENLARGED OPERATIONS.

While we review the last year, and the three preceding years, and record, with gratitude and praise, the good which this Society has accomplished, in the most difficult times that benevolent institutions have ever passed through; while we rejoice to see it standing firm in the affections of the church—its Auxiliaries and Agencies in vigorous and harmonious action, and a prospect of unbounded usefulness spread out before it, it is still painful to reflect that it has accomplished so little. It is not enough, that it has held its own. It is not enough, that the receipts of the last year fall but little short of the largest amount, which has ever been received, in a single year, from the contributions of the churches. The work to be done has not, during these years of embarrassment, remained stationary. The rapid increase of our home population has enlarged it. The continued rush of immigration from the old world has enlarged it. The very reverses of worldly prosperity, which have restricted our resources, have enlarged it. Inadequate, therefore, as was the scale of the Society's operations to the wants of the country, four years since, the disproportion is now vastly greater. And shall another and another year make it greater still, till faith herself, as she surveys the magnitude of the work and the difficulties with which it is encompassed, shall exclaim, If the Lord should make windows in heaven, could such a thing be? Or will the friends of Christ, at the present moment, more favored than any future one can be, enter upon this work with a vigor, a liberality, and a perseverance commensurate with the amazing interests which are involved in its execution?

MEN, AND THE DUTY OF THE CHURCHES IN REGARD TO THEM.

The providence of God seems now, in a special manner, to be directing the rising ministry of the land to our new settlements, to find their appropriate and appointed fields of labor. There has never perhaps been a time, when our older states were so well supplied, and when so few churches, that are of themselves able to sustain the Gospel, were holding out inducements to the most promising of the youthful heralds of the cross, to settle in the cities and villages of the eastern and middle states. If the candidates for the sacred office, who are annually leaving our Theological Institutions, if the vigorous and well disciplined of those who are already in the ministry, and who are unoccupied because no churches have hired them, are to be consecrated wholly and uninterruptedly to the business of their high calling, they must go where the work is to be done—where the Master hath need of them—where the harvest is plenteous and the laborers few. It is for this service that God has raised them up, and if it be not performed, we are sure, he cannot acquit them as faithful stewards of his mysteries. And if their hearts have been touched with fire from his altar, and this service be properly presented to them, and the way duly prepared for them to enter upon it, we are sure, it is not in them to decline it. The first duty of the church with reference to these men is, to lift up, without ceasing, the voice of her supplication, that they may receive a special anointing from on high—that they may be such ministers as the church needs—such as our new settlements demand—such as our nearness to the day of this world's redemption imperiously calls for;—that they may be men who will go out not knowing—not caring whither they go, satisfied that they go at God's bidding,—men who will joyfully take their stations, amidst the privations and hardships of the wilderness to preach Christ and him crucified, and leave them not, till the wilderness be turned into the garden of God, or they be summoned to their glorious recompense above. The next duty of the church with reference to these men is, to send them forth, to do the work which God has given her to do, assuring them that the workman is worthy of his hire, and that in due time he shall receive it at her hands. And shall the cause of Missions at Home be retarded,—shall it fail to be prosecuted, on the scale which the dearest interests of our fellow countrymen, and the honor of our God and Redeemer demand,—shall one laborer the less be sent into the field, because the church is regardless of the voice of God, when he calls for the goods which he has intrusted to her care? The period, in which it is our privilege to labor in this cause, is too precious, to be suffered to pass by, with gold and silver unconsecrated to Christ, laborers standing idle in the market place, and the people perishing for lack of vision. It has been said, that one generation ought to give the Gospel to the globe. If so, how much more ought we, of this generation, to make our own land Immanuel's! And yet, half a generation have gone to their graves, since this Society commenced its operations; and how small a portion of our work is done! Patriotism, philanthropy, the love of Christ, the perilous condition of unsanctified millions—passing rapidly beyond our reach, and riveting, as they pass, the manacles of the second death upon millions that they leave behind them—and, above all, a solemn regard to that day when we must give account of our stewardship, call upon us, to do with our might, whatsoever our hands find to do. Blessed are those servants, whom their Lord, when he cometh, shalt find watching.

EXTRACTS FROM THE FIFTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

Forty years ago, the moral condition of Western New-York was deplorably bad. It was nearly all missionary ground. There was scarcely a point, where the Gospel could be preached stately, without assistance from abroad. "I remember preaching in Geneva, your beautiful village," said an aged minister to me, "on my coming into this part of the state. It was a wicked place, and the appearance of the congregation on the Sabbath would now be thought rough and wild, in the roughest parts of Steuben and Alleghany counties."

In 1799, the Massachusetts Missionary Society, the first year of their operations, sent two missionaries to labor in the infant settlements, lying between Whitesboro' and the Genesee River. But up to 1811, this Society had sent into this part of the state but 6 missionaries. One of whom, the Rev. J. Merrill, is still living, and regularly preaches the Gospel in a neighboring town.

In 1801, a correspondence was held between the Massachusetts Missionary Society, and the Connecticut Missionary Society, respecting fields of labor; and after this, it appears that this part of the state was more particularly supplied by missionaries from the latter society.

The Connecticut Missionary Society was instituted about a year before the Massachusetts Missionary Society. Some of the old inhabitants speak of the missionaries of the Connecticut Society with peculiar emotion. "Never can I forget," said an aged man of East Bloomfield to me, "what my feelings were, when it was published through our settlement that the missionary had come. In that barn, we had precious meetings. There I was converted."

In 1800, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church sent out a missionary, who located himself in Geneva. The Assembly had seldom more than one to three missionaries in this part of the state, during any one year before 1827; and all their missionaries in the region previous to that time, seldom bestowed more than 6 months missionary labor on this field in a single year. In 1809, they had 2 missionaries, one appointed for 4, and the other for 3 months. In 1814, they had 1 missionary, who was appointed for 3 months. In 1823, they had 3 missionaries, who were commissioned to labor from 1 to 3 months each; and in 1826 they had 4 missionaries, who were appointed in all to labor 6 months. So that, during these four years, the amount of missionary labor, secured to the churches by the Assembly's Board, was less than 2 years. After the organization of the American Home Missionary Society, the Assembly's Board, adopting substantially the mode of conducting Home Missions that had been successfully tried by the National Society, greatly increased their operations in this part of the state. In 1835, they had 18 missionaries, nearly all of whom were commissioned for 12 months, and some of them were very devoted, energetic and useful missionaries.

As late as 1813, Western New-York seems to have been almost an uncultivated waste. There were only a few churches that could even then sustain the Gospel without missionary aid, or without their pastors being obliged to sustain themselves in part by secular employments. In this year, a clergyman, whose letter was published in the Pauoplist, of May, 1813, thus wrote from this section of the state: "The northern and southern parts of the county of Cayuga are missionary ground. In the towns of Virgil, Mentz, Dryden and Cato, there are small churches formed. The western part of Locke, and the southern part of Genoa, are in great want of the word of life. They have formerly had small churches, which are now dissolved. The counties of Broome, Cortland, Tioga, Seneca and Steuben, furnish much missionary ground. In the Holland Purchase, there is a wide field for missionary labor. This tract is about ninety miles square. In the southern parts of it, are a vast number of people, and I think but two churches formed, and those small." The writer then urges the sending of men of talents and experience as missionaries, from the consideration that infidels and heretics abound in the new settlements. These persons he represents, as being in general "overawed by the presence of a respectable minister, while they often attack those of ordinary talents, and talk them out of countenance."

Western New-York, however, has been settled to some extent by emigrants from New-England. Thousands of families have moved here from New-England. They brought with them their New-England habits of industry, their love of order, of sound doctrine, of the institutions of religion, and of revivals. God, to a considerable extent, therefore, planted the people of this part of the state, a noble vine, wholly a right seed, and has thus far preserved it from becoming the degenerate plant of a strange vine unto him. This accounts, in some measure, for the great success the Gospel has here had; and which will be manifest, by a mere statement of facts relative to the growth of the Presbyterian church in the midst of us. From a small beginning, God has caused it to take deep root and to fill the land. The hills are covered with the shadow of it, and the boughs thereof are like the goodly cedars. Its boughs are gone forth to the sea, and its branches to the river.

In 1800, there was scarcely a Presbyterian church in all the region now occupied by this agency. In 1805, the Presbytery of Geneva was formed, and then consisted of 3 ministers. In 1809, it had but 12 churches; and as it extended farther east than the bounds of the agency, and was the only presbytery, there were at that time less than 12 Presbyterian churches in Western New-York. In 1814, there were two presbyteries, Geneva and Cayuga; the former had 31 churches and the latter 7. In 1826, there were 8 Presbyteries, which had under their care 191 churches and 10,000 communicants. For this great increase, we are indebted, in no small degree, to the United Domestic Missionary Society of New-York, and the Geneva Agency. These Missionary Boards, at the organization of the American Home Missionary Society, were sustaining 26 missionaries on this field. After the organization of the National Society, Home Missions were prosecuted with fresh vigor. Since 1827, this Society has assisted in Western New-York from 50 to 70 churches yearly, and issued from 40 to 70 commissions to as many missionaries. And great have been the results. In 1831, there were 10 presbyteries, having 225 churches, and 15,000 communicants. In 1836, there were 280 Presbyterian churches, and 25,000 communicants. And now, there are 12 presbyteries, and at least 380 Presbyterian and Congregational churches, and we should think more than 30,000 communicants. The A. H. M. S., during its 15 years existence, has aided 264 different churches in Western New-York. Nearly one hundred of these churches are now able to sustain the Gospel without assistance. The churches have nearly doubled since 1826, and the communicants have probably trebled. Such is the wonderful work God has wrought in this section of our state. Such has been the triumph of the Gospel. It is indeed the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes.

But this does not give a full estimate of the good accomplished. The same good work which New-England has done, by introducing among us so many excellent families of devoted and consistent piety, Western New-York, in its turn, is now performing for other parts of our country. Family after family have gone forth from our churches, and youth after youth of devoted piety and high promise, so that thus early, it is supposed, nearly as many communicants as are now in our churches have removed from us to the far west, and to other fields in our own and foreign countries, and are assisting there in the formation of society and in the establishing of the Gospel. Some of our men have gone forth into foreign lands. One of them is pastor of a church at the Sandwich Islands of 7,000 members, principally gathered through the blessing of God on his labors. We have now, it is believed, more than 30,000 communicants in our Presbyterian and Congregational churches. And nearly as many have gone forth from us, to build up Zion's wastes and do good, wherever God shall cast their lot. And other thousands of communicants are looking toward the west, and before many years have passed will have joined their brethren there. Thus, the pious emigrants from this part of the state will, under God, raise up a multitude of pious men and women, who, in their turn, like a mighty wave will roll farther west, to bless still more distant portions of our land; and these, under God, will raise up others of similar spirit, who will still move farther west, until wave after wave shall have rolled over our land, and our whole country to the Pacific be filled with temples to the living God, and with a regenerated population.

It ought here to be remarked that, notwithstanding the general infancy and feebleness of our Zion, the expense of defraying this great missionary operation has been borne by our own churches. More than $100,000 have been raised on this field for Home Missions, since 1826; and this has exceeded the sums paid the missionaries nearly $40,000—which surplus has gone into the treasury of the National Society, to build up the wastes in other parts of our country. Nor have Home Missions been exclusively remembered in the contributions of the churches. In this small part of our state in 1839, $14,000 were raised for the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions; while in the same year, there were raised for the Board in the entire states of Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky, Louisiana, Missouri, the District of Columbia, and the territories of Arkansas and Florida, only $12,000! This shows the importance of carrying on our Home Missionary operations with great vigor, would we see the world converted. For, as this cause prevails at home, the stream will be deep and wide and pure, that flows from this country to the foreign field. Our churches have also contributed liberally to the Bible, Tract and other benevolent causes. A large number of young men have here been raised up to preach the Gospel, and our churches have nearly, if not entirely sustained their beneficiaries.

There can be no doubt, that the Home Missionary effort has tended to the general intelligence and temporal prosperity of this part of the state. It has helped to form a population to whom the boon of self-government may be safely entrusted. Blot out what has been done for Home Missions, and a darkness would rest over Western New-York that would be felt. There would be a ruinous deterioration of all fast property. For sin tends to the shame and poverty of a people, as surely as righteousness tends to its exaltation. An empire is now springing up in Western New-York, where 60 years ago was an unbroken wilderness. Already we have 2 cities, 44 incorporated villages, 304 unincorporated villages, 303 towns, and 620 post offices; and yet its real and personal property, according to the corrected aggregate valuation for 1839, is but little over one-fifth of that of the whole state.

During the first 8 years of the American Home Missionary Society, there were raised for it in the whole state $155,000, and on this field during the same time $39,000. During the last 7 years $157,000 were collected in the whole state for the Society, $66,000 of which were from this field; more than one-third and nearly half of what was raised in the whole state. A reason, for the comparative generous contributions to this cause by our churches, will be seen in the following extract from a missionary report lately received; while at the same time, it will illustrate the operations of the Society. There is nothing extraordinary in this case. I recollect several years ago passing through the village where this missionary afterwards labored, and being pained on hearing that there was no meeting-house in the place, and that they were seldom privileged with preaching. The missionary writes:

"During the 3½ years of my labors, there have been added to the church by letter 10, and on profession 24. In the mean time, a neat and commodious house of public worship has been erected, at an expense of more than $3,000. There has likewise been contributed $200 to the different benevolent objects. The temperance cause has also made some progress amongst us. For more than a year after I came here, no such institution existed in this town as a temperance society. Now, we have one on the total abstinence principles, which numbers nearly 700 members. I first engaged here for 6 months, and told the people to raise me what they could. Between $90 and $100 were subscribed. For the next year, they raised a little less than $300. The next year a little over, and the last year $350. In addition, I have received at the rate of $100 each year from your Society. The lot of many a missionary has been so much more trying than my own, that when I have read their narratives, I have thought myself almost in affluent circumstances. Although I have seen many weeks, when I could not command resources to pay the postage on a letter. But why speak of my privations. They are known to Him, who can make all things work together for good to those who love him.

Our house was dedicated on the 25th of December. One or two striking conversions have occurred since my last report. The people are making an effort to raise my salary this year without assistance from your Society, and I trust they will succeed. In taking leave of you, I hope you will feel convinced, from a review of the past, that your help in our behalf has not been in vain. And may God reward you abundantly for your labor of love.

Here we see an illustration of the beneficial effects of Home Missions. In a village where there was scarcely any semblance of piety—no house of worship—no temperance society, and where the Sabbath was scarcely regarded, a missionary takes his stand. He labors in the midst of privations and encouragements 3 years and a half, and receives from the Home Missionary Society $350. During this time, $200 are paid back by the congregation to the different benevolent societies of the day, and $1,040 are raised by the people for the support of the Gospel, and more than $3,000 for the erection of a meeting-house. So that the small sum of $350 granted the congregation, and given them in a way calculated to encourage them and draw out their ability, has probably been the means of their raising $4,200 for the establishing of the Gospel in that and other places, which, but for this aid, would not have been raised. In the mean time, souls have been saved from death—many saved from intemperance, and a well of salvation has been opened, where for generations souls may drink and live forever. A church, thus benefitted by the A. H. M. S., can never forget it. It will feel an attachment to the Society, and will esteem it a pleasure to befriend it, and to make it by its donations a greater blessing to our land and world.

During the year, 60 missionaries have been commissioned to perform 58 years of labor in 71 different congregations; and for whose support the Board have voted \$5,491. The whole number employed on this field, including those commissioned last year whose commissions extended into this year, is 76; and the whole number of congregations aided 89. During the year, 10 new fields have been taken up, and several churches that were almost extinct have become resuscitated and saved. Several parsonages have been built—13 meeting-houses have been built or been commenced, and 14 or 15 of the churches aided have reported revivals of religion. Probably $\frac{1}{2}$ of what was given these churches to enable them to sustain their pastors has already been repaid by them, into the different benevolent societies of the day. These churches, with a few exceptions, are gradually increasing in strength. Every year, some churches are so strengthened that they subsequently sustain the Gospel without help. In a few years, judging from the past, but few of the churches now aided will need assistance. But as 10 or 15 churches will probably be organized each year in Western New-York for 10 or 15 years, it is thought about the same number of churches, as are now receiving assistance, will require aid for 10 or 15 years to come.

The receipts from this field, from May 1, 1840, to April 26, 1841, have been $9,601 88; exceeding the sum voted the missionaries $4,060 88. In these receipts, we have two donations of $1,000 each—one of $225, and ten of $100 each. Thus the Lord has raised up friends to the cause and even exceeded our expectations.

The following table will show the counties embraced in this agency, the number of churches in each to whom assistance has been voted during the year—the sums voted these churches, and the receipts from each county :

ELEVENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

Having obtained help of God, we have sustained the Home Missionary banner on this field another year. It was set up, we trust, in the name of the Lord. It has awakened hope and courage in many of our churches, to struggle through their former embarrassments and rise to the rank of benefactors. From year to year,  has been as the star of promise to more than a hundred churches in Central New-York. They have looked to it, as the signal of the Saviour's love, and a sure token of his kind designs to enlarge their borders and repair their desolations.

These churches we have visited and counselled the past year; and we have commissioned 36 missionaries, each for 12 months, to preach the Gospel in 40 of their congregations. To sustain these missionaries in their work, the Board has pledged them $3,095. The receipts of our Treasurer, since our last report, is $3,725 69. The amount of labor bestowed upon the 46 churches under our patronage, within the same period, is 32 years. We are now aiding 16 churches, which received no assistance the previous year; 4 of which, are newly organized congregations. Three more of our churches have taken the entire responsibility of sustaining the Gospel. Two of our missionaries have been installed as Pastors. Three houses of worship have been built within the year, and three others have been finished or essentially repaired. All that has been said in former years, of the fidelity of our missionaries in preaching the Gospel in public and from house to house, and in gathering and instructing the rising generation and the youth in Sabbath schools and Bible classes, might here be repeated with equal emphasis. The Temperance cause has made unusually rapid progress under the new pledge. In some places, hundreds have joined the tee-total society, under the labors of our missionaries. God, in great mercy, has granted, in several instances, his special blessing on these labors of love. Eight revivals have been reported, most of which began within a few months, and some of them are of very interesting character. In several other congregations, the assemblies are enlarging and becoming unusually solemn, and not unfrequently the inquiry is heard, "What must I do to be saved?" Two hundred are reported as hopefully converted, and more than 200 have joined our missionary churches. The revival in Carthage, reported at the close of last year, has raised that church to ability to sustain themselves.

The German congregation, in Syracuse, is a happy illustration of the necessity of Home Missions. Two years since, there were about 40 German families there, like sheep in the wilderness, having no shepherd. They were without a Pastor, without Bibles, and without schools. Our missionary gathered them, and instructed them in science and religion. Now, there are 65 families, 85 communicants, and during the past year, 19 have been hopefully converted. Arrangements are now in progress for building them a house of worship. There are thousands more of such lost sheep to be gathered in this part of New-York. Says one of our missionaries, "I established a Sabbath school in one of the darkest corners of this section. The parents are ignorant and dissipated. The children are ragged and filthy. They scarcely knew any thing of the Sabbath, having never been taught. No one has cared for their souls. I am quite ashamed that I should so long permit children to starve within two miles of our village. Most of the children, 18 or 20 in number, knew not a letter, but seemed to devour every word I spoke like greedy dogs." Similar neighborhoods, and many larger, filled up with souls for whom atoning blood has flowed, are found in various directions around most of our country parishes. Indeed, a considerable portion of the churches we patronize, were, on a larger scale, just such neglected neighborhoods. They are frontier churches; i. e. in one direction, at least, there is no regular preaching for many miles. They are our pioneers. By them the way of the Lord is prepared in the wilderness, and the borders of Zion enlarged. Their work is hard, and their privations many. Without our aid they will be trodden down, but with it, their success is sure.

How pure is the joy, which the good man feels, when he can help his poor neighbor to the house of God. How much more may his heart rejoice, when he can open the house of God to 50 or 80 of his poor neighbors and their families! This is the work and the joy of our patrons, and we would praise God that they may have their joy increased, some thirty, some sixty, and some an hundred fold.

We close, by presenting, briefly, two reasons why the Home Missionary Society should be put in immediate possession of the means to supply every destitute portion of our country with the preached Gospel, as fast as suitable ministers can be found.

1. Our Foreign Board of Missions demands it.

The Providence of God has thrown open before our church almost the entire heathen world, and calls that Board to enter in and occupy for Him. That Board has been struggling for years, to respond to those calls promptly and fully, but they have not done it. And why? Every body knows the Board has no earthly resource from which to draw, but the piety, and benevolence, and missionary spirit of the American church. This is the capital on which their business depends. No effort of theirs to secure the means of saving the heathen, even from the endless burnings of the pit, can transcend this capital. They have enlarged their drafts upon this, until they can enlarge no more. No one, acquainted with facts, believes this failure is for want of enterprise on the part of the Board, or on account of the poverty of the church. The humbling truth is forced upon us, that the spirit of missions in the church is not equal to the calls of Providence, to give the Gospel to this perishing world. How shall this be augmented? In many ways; but most certainly and speedily by means of Home Missions. The field of their resources must be enlarged, and more thoroughly cultivated. The number of contributors must be greatly increased. We were not surprised, a few weeks since, to hear one of the most experienced agents of the Foreign Board state to a numerous audience, that he found no churches within the range of his labors so liberal, compared with their ability, in contributing to that Board, as the Home Missionary churches. He farther said, that the hope of their enlargement was, under God, resting upon the onward progress of Home Missions. We have no doubt but these were mature thoughts. God has already raised up, by means of Home Missions, several hundred churches to pray for the coming of Christ's kingdom, and to furnish men and means for the conversion of the world, as long as men and means and prayers are needed. What a mighty auxiliary, in this great work, would our remaining 1500 poor churches form, were they all well furnished with Gospel ministrations. The Foreign Missionary cause, therefore, we may expect, will extend its influence and increase its usefulness, just in proportion as the Home work is faithfully prosecuted.

2. This is the most economical method of spreading the Gospel.

It is the united testimony of all our Foreign and Home Missionaries, that vastly more might be accomplished in spreading the Gospel, if sufficient funds could be secured. It becomes a question then of transcendent importance, How can our limited funds be appropriated, so as to secure the greatest amount of good? Of Home Missions, it may be said emphatically, "Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth." We do not refer here to our giving the Gospel to half a million of souls at very small expense, or to the thousands who are every year turned to God by this instrumentality, nor to the paramount importance of permanent over transient preaching. We refer simply to the smallest, perhaps, of the numerous train of benefits which result from these beneficent labors, viz., the amount of funds secured to the work of spreading the Gospel. We are aiding at least 800 churches annually. Were it not for this aid, not less than one third of these churches would do nothing, or next to nothing, for the support of the Gospel among them, having only occasional preaching. Another third, would deem it impracticable to hire for more than three or four months in a year, and this usually followed by years of destitution. And all, but a small fraction of the remainder, would make no effort to settle a Pastor, regarding the attempt as hopeless. The aid we offer changes their prospects. It awakens hope of success, and calls out the energies of these weak and discouraged congregations. Many among them who care little for the Gospel, and perhaps have never lent a farthing for its support, rather than lose the proffered aid, will cheerfully assist in the effort. Others, inspired by their love of the Gospel, abound in liberality, and the object is secured. Thus we provoke men to love and good works. The result is, if we may judge of the whole, by those within the bounds of this agency, that each of these 800 churches raises, on an average, over $100, annually, to sustain the Gospel among themselves, more than they would do if we did not aid them. The $80,000, therefore, which we bestow upon these feeble churches, bring, at least, $80,000 more to the sacred work of preaching the Gospel to the poor. Thus, every hundred dollars we bestow upon the poor in this work, will prompt them cheerfully to give another hundred, to carry out our benevolent design. But securing one hundred per cent. directly, is not all. These churches, while destitute of the inspiring influence of the living pastor, did comparatively nothing for the spread of the Gospel. But being blessed and built up by benevolence, almost as a matter of necessity, they become benevolent. They contribute, as a whole, more than one fourth of what we bestow upon them to forward the missionary enterprise; making twenty-five per cent. more. One hundred thousand dollars, therefore, we may assert, without fear of mistake, would be lost annually to the work of spreading the Gospel in our world, should Home Missions cease. Can the American church afford, in the present state of things, to lose this amount of aid from their poor brethren? Should we not rather double our contributions to this object forthwith, and bless another 800 of our poor churches, which are or might be formed, not only with the precious Gospel, but with the privilege of giving $100,000 more than they are now doing, to secure to themselves and their children the "Living Bread," and to send it round the world.

OUR COUNTRY.

"Breathes there a man of soul so dead,
 Who never to himself hath said,
 'This is my own, my native land!'"

Every man of ingenuous mind loves the country of his birth. Men may pride themselves on their being "citizens of the world," and affect an enlargement of soul that knows no preference for the land of their nativity; they probably misrepresent the better feelings of their own hearts. Or, if they indeed feel no peculiar love for the country whose soil has cherished and whose laws have protected them, and for the people whose blood they share and whose intelligence informs and elevates them, it is surely no just ground for boasting. Indeed, such an indifference to the relationships of country and kindred, would seem to call in question the moral health of him who professes it. Our relations, if not the source, are at least the measure of our obligations. The reasons which bind us to love men at all, increase in urgency as the subjects are nearer us in position, more intimately related to us, and more within the reach of our kind offices.

Why is not patriotism generally numbered among the christian virtues? We applaud the love of country exhibited by men of the world, by the soldier and the statesman; why not require it also as an element in the character of a saint? Is it incompatible with his dignity as a citizen of a heavenly kingdom, that he recognize his relations in this world and fulfil the claims and duties that arise out of them? The hero, who jeopard his life for the hearths and altars of his native land, and the civilian, who sinks his own in his country's aggrandizement, are characters to whom we accord the honors of a moral sublimity. And yet, through a strange perverseness, it is by some esteemed almost a virtue, to feel the least interest in the people with whom their relation is the most direct, and to whom it is practicable to do the most good!

The Christian, of all men, has most reason to be a patriot; for he has the truest apprehension of his country's dangers, and knows best what will avail for her salvation. He is taught, from on high, the origin and extent of her maladies, and knows that the truth of the God, that liveth and abideth for ever, is the only panacea.

HER PERILS.

But while every Christian knows that the Gospel alone is the conservative principle of communities, where do we see "the children of light" putting forth such strength and talent, and encountering such pecuniary cost as are adequate to bring the whole land under its power? On the contrary, how are our organizations already existing for the spread of religion, crippled in their efforts and stunted in their growth, because they are fed with such a sparing hand. Instead of plans enlarged to correspond with the widening fields and louder calls of Providence, our Home institutions are compelled to study how they may hold the ground already gained; and that with the fact before them, that the agencies of evil are all the while at work with ceaseless and increasing activity.

HER HOPE.

Under God, our hope for this country is in the unpraised, and almost unnoted labors of those quiet men, who, scattered here and there throughout the land, are teaching the people to honor God and to love man—who are holding up before every conscience the portraiture of the divine character, and thus rebuking sin and winning to the practice of virtue. They are the best legislators, who make every man a law unto himself, and erect a tribunal in every bosom, and seat thereon an enlightened conscience. An agency like this, is the nation's great hope. It can make the covetous to delight in generous deeds—the grasping hand of avarice to unclench at the cry of distress—the reckless to respect the authority of law, and observe the order of society. It can meliorate, if it cannot remove, half the evils of which men complain, and can forestall the other half, by taking the rising generation by the hand, and leading it into the safe paths of piety and intelligence.

This is our country's hope. O, shall not such an instrumentality be sustained and enlarged? Shall the ministry of God's appointment be trodden down in the tumultuous rush of political strife, or starved into inefficiency by a failure, on the part of those it has already blessed, to appreciate its value?

ENCOURAGEMENT TO EFFORT.

We have a most animating conviction that there is no country on the globe, where the improvement of society is a more hopeful work than in ours. Here, are the subjects of effort—men free to think, and to act as they think—men on the right level, neither above nor below the natural line of pious endeavor; here, too, are the elements of character—the leaven of Puritanism, the spiritual views of truth; here are the means—the christian literature, the physical and intellectual resources, the untrammelled churches and favoring laws. And here, too, we trust, full proof will be made of these great facilities, and our land become "Immanuel's land, a mountain of holiness, and a habitation of righteousness?"

THE WEST—NINE YEARS AGO, AND AT PRESENT.

In the year 1832, a distinguished clergyman spoke as follows: "This broad, fertile land in which we dwell, must be delivered from the bondage of sin and Satan. A few months ago, I stood on the banks of the Mississippi, opposite the mouth of the Missouri River, where, wheeling and foaming in its career from the Rocky Mountains, it enters that placid and beautiful stream. I looked south, and I thought of the 1,000 miles from the spot where I then stood to the Gulf of Mexico. I looked north, and thought of the 1,500 miles to the sources of the Mississippi. I looked east, and thought of the 1,300 miles to the head of the Ohio valley. I looked west, and thought of the 2,500 miles to the sources of the Missouri. I thought of the teeming millions who are soon to cover this land; and I lifted my hand to heaven, and cried, 'Lord Jesus, this land shall be thine! Thy church will not give up the struggle, till it is full of the knowledge of the Lord!'" [Rev. J. Gallaher.]

In the same year, this message was sent us from beyond the Atlantic: "Popery has directed a longing eye to that immense tract of land, and has already felt the inward heaving of ambition, to compensate herself for her losses in the old world, by her conquests in the new. The valley of the Mississippi has been, no doubt, mapped as well as surveyed by emissaries of the Vatican; and cardinals are exulting, in the hope of enriching the Papal See by accessions from the United States. Rouse and inflame the zeal of Protestantism in America, to disappoint the apostles of darkness of their wished-for prey.

"The object of your zeal must be your own country—to supply her rapidly increasing population with able, faithful ministers. Your religious policy must be a home policy. Compared with the claims of your own land, the claims of the heathen are but secondary. If you cannot attend to both, you must attend to your own destitute people. You must cultivate the waste places of your homestead. Think what your country is, and especially, what she must be—not only for the magnitude of her territory, and the multitude of her people, the vastness of her wealth, and the greatness of her power, but for the importance of her example. On your land hang, in a great measure, the future interests of the globe. Hence, the unspeakable importance of your churches concentrating, in a great measure, their religious efforts upon your own country. If it were necessary, in order to supply your people with pastors, one half of your male members should become ministers, while it should be the chief business of the other half to support them. These are my deliberate views of the duties of the Christians of America." [Rev. J. A. James, of Birmingham, England.]

Such was the language which, nine years ago, found a response in feelings of the whole nation. Glowing as were the pictures of the immense capabilities of the West, all who went thither to see, were ready to exclaim, "the half has not been told."

But where is this "West" now? Have the millions of its inhabitants melted away as the mist of the morning before the rising sun? Has its territory been blotted from the map of our country? No, the West is where it was. Its states are as vast, its prairies as fertile, its forests as grand, its rivers as majestic as they ever were. No adversity, which it has suffered in common with the rest of the country, has affected its essential greatness. It teems with the elements of physical and moral power. The earth still yields her exuberance; the population has held a steady increase from year to year; public and private enterprise, though baffled and repressed, has worked for itself new channels; society has gone on in the process of consolidation, its various civil and religious institutions silently but steadily assuming a fixed and permanent character. Eight years ago, the western community was like metal molten in a furnace, though fluid, yet glowing, boiling, impetuous. Now, it is becoming like the same metal cooling down into the unalterable shapes, which have been given to it by surrounding influences. Some of these moulding causes have been supplied, we trust, by the operations of this Society. By the labors of the sacred ministry, sent out and sustained by the friends of Home Missions, the elements of society have been arranged and harmonized, the Gospel preached, schools founded, churches erected, and souls gathered to the Saviour.

While the West, then, is no less inviting than it was nine years ago, in physical beauty and fertility, it has become more populous, its lands are extensively brought under cultivation, its political influence is more important, and its religious institutions and destiny possess a greatly augmented interest. The temporary causes which have depressed the people of the West, must soon yield to the upward tendencies of their elastic and buoyant enterprise. While some day-dreams of speculation will have vanished, soberer views will direct the energies of the people, and the West must be prosperous and powerful. It is scarcely possible for it to be otherwise. Even should political and commercial errors cover the land with disaster—still the soil will be there, vast and fertile, and a population will be there, vigorous, augmenting and mighty.

There is, then, no reason for withdrawing the public attention from the West; but, on the other hand, its claims have grown with every passing year. The friends of Christ must look at those claims, must entertain them, must respond to them by a substantial sympathy and aid.

PHYSICAL GREATNESS OF THE WEST.

Behold the NEW FIELD, which is daily opening before the swelling tide of emigration! Look at Iowa and Wisconsin, and thence onward to the Rocky Mountains! The Mississippi has been passed, and Illinois is no longer the frontier boundary. Already are her citizens selling their lands to go to the "new purchase," or Iowa. This settles the alternative, that the Home Missionary must either follow in the wake of emigration to the Rocky Mountains, or the tide of ignorance, together with every variety of scepticism and sin, will rise higher and higher, until, in its reflex influence, it rolls over the beautiful monuments of Puritan intelligence and piety in the East. The same "causes which transferred the sceptre" of power and "civilization from the banks of the Euphrates and the Nile to the shores of Western Europe," now in operation, are transplanting a prodigious population from Western Europe to the plains of the Mississippi. And what power is there to stop the unparalleled growth of our nation from spreading over an unoccupied western world? There is every thing to urge the enterprising sons of the West onward. An untenanted and luxuriant country is ever opening before them. No ocean rolls between them and the promised land. A few days' journey establishes them in a home of their own. Besides, they have the assurance that they will be closely followed up by civilization and a dense population.

The five states, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Missouri, contain 231,128 square miles, or more than territory enough to constitute fourteen states like those of New-England and New-York. And when they contain a population of equal density on the square mile with Great Britain, they will number more than 53,000,000. Nor is it incredible that, at a future day, such will be the denseness of our population. For if England can sustain them, we surely can with our immense agricultural resources.

Add another item. The single state of Illinois contains upwards of 16,000 square miles more than all New-England, excepting Maine. With a population, therefore, no more compact than that of Old England, here is territory enough to contain the entire population of the United States, according to the census of 1830. Who are to provide for the spiritual wants of the future multitude, that will doubtless live and prepare for eternity on these prairies? Who will lay the broad foundation for their salvation? What a question for the present generation of ministers and church members to answer!

That the mass of mind, hereafter to be congregated in these plains, will exert an influence proportioned to the vastness of this western continent, no reflecting Christian can doubt.—What shall this impression be? Shall it be for Christ or Belial? Will it mitigate or augment the sufferings of apostate man? Here is the problem for the church to solve. On it, hangs the all—the eternity of millions yet to exist! And if the ministry would meet the question with an interest, only in part befitting its intrinsic importance, it would be the harbingers of salvation to multitudes, who will otherwise be offered like hecatombs on the altar of sin!

TEMPORARY EMBARRASMENTS OF THE WESTERN CHURCHES.

Some disappointment has been expressed by the friends of missions, that after all the expectations of speedily placing the western churches above dependence on foreign assistance, they continue so needy, and their ministers suffer so much from an inadequate support. And many are ready to blame the community there, as wanting in a right appreciation of the Gospel, and sacrifices to sustain it.

In mitigation of this censure, it ought to be borne in mind, that the western states were made the scene of the speculations of 1835 and 1836, which were carried on mostly by eastern adventurers. In the subsequent revulsion, distress overtook almost all the enterprising men in those states. They were plunged at once into the greatest perplexity, from which many of them have no hope of ever extricating their fiscal concerns.

Whatever the western states now have, with which to pay their debts to the east, must first be raised from the earth by agriculture. But when they have thus raised it, they have, in some cases, no currency for which it can be exchanged; and the indebtedness of the community to the eastern cities must be met, by sending forward the products of their soil, before relief can flow back to the mass of the people. Hence it comes to pass, that so many of the churches are less able to support the Gospel without assistance, than they were five years ago. But, they must not be neglected. All the causes which oppose the progress of religion are at work and strengthening with every passing month. The operations of Home Missions must, therefore, be urged forward in these times of darkness, as well as in times of light.

THE WEST MUST NOT BE ABANDONED.

And here, we take occasion to enter our protest against the inference, which some good people at the east draw, from the present embarrassments of the western country. There are not wanting men, from whose standing in the churches more practical wisdom might be inferred, who speak of the enterprise of saving that broad and goodly land, as if it were a failure. They regard the pecuniary trials of the new states, as if they were fatal to all evangelical effort,—as if prayer, and the word and Spirit of God, which the last year flowed over the West in one vast wave of blessing, were less powerful, or the souls of the teeming thousands less valuable, than in 1836. The very men, who, by their rage for the government lands and by flooding the West with eastern capital, spread the contagion of worldliness, to an extent to which mere western resources could not have carried it, now charge their disappointments to the people of the West, and visit their chagrin upon her feeble churches and struggling colleges. This is wrong. We must stand by our brethren. All sober-minded philanthropists, who value the Mississippi Valley, not for the per centage which it returns for pecuniary investments, but for its intrinsic moral importance, will stand by her churches, her schools, and her ministers. The causes of depression are temporary, and doubtless will ultimately prove a blessing, by driving back a class of adventurers, clerical as well as lay, who were crowding into the new settlements, it is feared, with too much sensibility to their supposed physical attractions. These depressions, too, have been in temporal, rather than in spiritual things. It is our sincere belief, that to the minister who goes to the West, actuated by the spirit of his Master, it presents a field more desirable, more hopeful, as to the best sort of success, than it has at any previous period.

DIFFICULTIES,

NO GOOD REASON FOR AVOIDING THE MISSIONARY WORK.

But what is there in these difficulties, after all, that should deter ministers from engaging in the missionary work? Some things, it is true, are peculiar to the new settlements; but by far the greater part of the discouragements that beset the missionary's path, are of a kind that exists every where in our land—that grows out of the times, the commercial and political state of the nation. To set down all this to the account of the West, and make it a reason why ministers should not emigrate thither, is unfair.

But admitting that western life is all made up of self-denial and toil, and that a settlement at the East is, on the contrary, a guaranty for every comfort—has it come to this, that the lambs of Christ's flock are all to be fed and folded—except those that are scattered in the wilderness? that his servants may choose what part of his work they will do—omitting, however, all that is repulsive and toilsome? Have our young ministers, and others who are not disqualified by the act of Providence, no better reason to give for their backwardness, than that "ministers have hard times in the West?" We would affectionately ask of such, Brother, who gave you this honor, that you should be a minister of Christ? For what end were you called to this responsible station? Did Heaven take you, a worm of the dust, and endow you with the gifts of the ministry, for your own sake—to enable you to stand up more prominently before the world, to gain a genteel livelihood, without soiling your hands, or corroding your heart with cares? Was it only to affect the refined and the graceful,—to do “the fancy work” of the ministry—that you were plucked as a brand from the burning? And who, then, is to go away into the wilderness, and grapple with the bear and the lion, and feed the flock of God, amid perils and privations?

But they greatly misjudge, who think that the life of the self-denying missionary is one of little or low enjoyment. True, his external comforts may be few and homely, and his trials may be such as often drive him to his God for consolation. But then, he finds it there. There is, oftentimes, in the very absence of human supports, a distinctness of realization of the divine favor, that excels, in the luxury of its enjoyment, every other pleasurable feeling. When the missionary, in his journeys of mercy, finds himself away in the centre of some vast prairie, with neither tree, nor rock, nor habitation, nor work of man within the circle of his vision, and feels himself to be, as it were, in some other sphere, alone with God, he has a perception of the being, majesty, and presence of the Creator, which in the crowded town, and amid the intrusive vanities of men, he never knew. So, when, one by one, his heart lets go its hold on “creatures, earth and dust,” and he retires farther and farther from the world, and comes to feel the absoluteness of his dependence upon Jehovah, there rolls in upon his soul such a sense of the richness and all-sufficiency of God, that he glories in his tribulations, and exults in the very trials which are the occasion of such a blessed experience. Nor is it in this way alone, that he meets a reward. To commune with some praying saint in a cabin of the forest; to meet some wanderer, just in the crisis when his feet may be turned back again into the right way; to be able, by one word of the Gospel, to chase the gloom of years from the mind of some mourner; to kneel by the bed of the dying, and to hand up, as it were, the liberated spirit in faith and prayer to the Saviour,—these are sources of happiness that gush forth at every step, refreshing him, like the rivulets that cross his pathway, with unexpected joy.

APPEALS FOR MINISTERS.

MISSIONARY LABORS IN A WIDE FIELD IN INDIANA.

My labors have been spread over quite an extent of country, perhaps greater than you would think advisable—but, all things considered, no greater than to us seems necessary. My missionary field is nearly 30 miles square, and of late I have been earnestly invited to enlarge it, by going about 30 miles south of the Wabash, and 70 north of it. I spend a little more than half of my Sabbaths in this place. Here I preach twice on the Sabbath, and superintend a Sabbath school. During the week, I hold a prayer meeting, visit as much as I can from house to house, distribute tracts, &c. Once a month, I ride about 21 miles east, and preach in two different places of some importance, on the Sabbath. On this tour I am always absent three days, and sometimes a week. Once in three months, I ride about 30 miles northeast, to a small Presbyterian settlement, where I organized a church last spring. On this tour I am absent about a week, visiting the sick, distributing tracts, &c. I preach as often as I can on the Sabbath, in as many as five other places. Since I began to cultivate, or rather to ride over this moral waste, there have been some hopeful conversions; one of the subjects has since died, I trust, the death of the righteous. In several of these places, good manifestly has been done. The number who attend meetings increases, Sabbath schools are organized, and reading meetings on the Sabbath held. I cannot but think that the way is preparing for great good here, and that God has mercy in store for this people.

APPEAL FOR A MISSIONARY, AND FOR AID.

From a Committee of the Holston Presbytery, Tennessee.

We are fully persuaded, if you could examine the destitute churches, and their scattered members, within the bounds of Holston Presbytery, and perceive what their spiritual wants and exigencies really are, you would, at our repeated and united entreaties, do your utmost, that a qualified Gospel missionary, sent out by your Board, might itinerate and labor among them; provided, he should receive half his support from the contributions of the people under our Presbyterial oversight. So much we feel authorized to promise for your encouragement; and will endeavor punctually to see fulfilled. We have a number of vacant churches, and these have many scattered members, whom the ministers of the Presbytery are utterly unable to supply with preaching, and an adequate pastoral care. We think we know, in some degree, the great usefulness of your Society to the christian cause in the destitute parts of our extensive country; and earnestly desire that it may be augmented a thousand fold. We have no confidence in shibboleth exclusiveness and sectarian zeal, to subdue and sanctify the rebellious heart of man. But to such influence, our destitute people are continually exposed. It is our desire, that they may hear, receive and obey the law-honoring, God-exalting, heart-melting, and soul-saving Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, as he has directed, that it be preached to every human creature. We want to see the time come, when the churches and people, that shall receive needed supplies by your missionaries, shall show themselves able and willing altogether to support them; and all the destitute shall be fully supplied by installed ministers.

MEN ARE WANTED.

The county in which we live is destitute, to a great extent, of evangelical ministers. Many neighborhoods are open to me, but I cannot supply them all. I am compelled to turn away many who come and earnestly request me to preach in their vicinity. I have thought that if some of our ministers who are stopping in our eastern cities, and settling down in small congregations in the old settlements, could survey the actual destitutions in the great valley, they would be constrained to take up their cross, and enter this extended moral wilderness, to spend and be spent for the salvation of souls.

CAN THEY BE FOUND?

Who will listen to our calls? Who will come and build, as did the faithful Paul, on their own foundations? Who will have the patience and intrepidity to lead an infant church through all its vicissitudes up to vigorous manhood? Such are the men we need; and they, too, are the men who will reap a harvest of glory in heaven. But can they be found? If not, well may we go back to the tomb of Paul, and long for the resurrection of the spirit which has so long slumbered there!

SOME OF THE SEED WITH WHICH THE WEST HAS BEEN PLANTED.

Men are here meeting, from all parts of Europe, to compare the merits of their respective creeds. And each will contend warmly for the territory which they all claim. Depend upon it, truth will be compelled to join issue with all the varying and multiform errors, that have ever convulsed society and ruined mankind. Here, is to be the spot for making bold experiments. The errorist selects the West, as the appropriate soil in which his system will luxuriate. The revolutionist abandons the well fortified institutions of the East, to commence the work of convulsion and overthrow, where he finds the mind afloat and ready for a change. In a word, every doctrine has its advocates, and every system has its adherents. The standing rule of a large portion of our population is, "Give every man a hearing." The consequence is, every man makes proselytes.

What a novel spectacle do these facts exhibit! Here are minds collected from the four winds. They are held together by no fixed principles, no homogeneous preferences, and by no long established usages. On what new consolidation they will finally settle down, remains for the future historian to describe. How much does such a population need to be followed up by men of strong minds, of sound judgment, of established principle, and of ardent piety.

APOSTATE PROFESSORS.

From a Missionary Report.

Within a few days, the Spirit of the Lord seems to be moving on the minds of some of the congregation. Two or three give evidence of a change. A man and his wife, who were professors in New-England, but who have cast off fear and restrained prayer, had forsaken the house of God ever since they have been in the country, and made the Sabbath a special day for visiting and trading, are now powerfully wrought upon by the Spirit of God. A few weeks ago, the man could curse and swear, and fear no evil; now, both of them feel their sins to be beyond the pardoning mercy of God.

We have another man in our neighborhood, a member of a Presbyterian church in —, a man of considerable talent; but the most wicked man I ever saw. Swearing and lying are cristles in his course; and his enmity against the Gospel, and ministers of the Gospel, is of giant growth.

If such specimens of eastern professors are scattered over the goodly land of the west, can the eastern churches do less to counteract their evil influence, than to send faithful missionaries, and furnish such support as shall leave them free to set forth the truth in all its majesty and power?

From another.

There are also, scattered up and down through the community, many individuals who once professed religion, and are members of churches at the East, some with, and some without letters, who stand aloof from the church here, and live like the impenitent world around them. Some of them, in addition to their evil example, are skeptical, and exert an influence directly against religion; and they are a great stumbling-block in the way of sinners.

VARIOUS EXTRACTS FROM MISSIONARY CORRESPONDENCE.

SHALL WE HOLD ON!

Our little church has been diminished by deaths, removals and suspensions, for the last year or two, more than it has been increased by additions; and although the ability and willingness to support the ministry has increased, the growth is very slow. Not more than half enough can be raised per annum. I suppose the church will ask for renewed aid in the support of their pastor. Whether it should be granted, I do not know. I desire to have no choice in the matter. My desire is, that the funds of your heaven-born Society may all be appropriated in the most judicious manner. They are the contributions of the pious, and often of the pious poor. I sometimes almost fear to receive funds thus raised. True, the small amount granted by your Society is the chain that binds us together—that is, I see not how I could sustain myself among this people without it; and amid all our discouragements, I have never seen a time when I thought it my duty to leave. I trust the way is preparing for the ingathering of many precious souls. We have two Sabbath schools, numbering near fifty scholars each—and very respectable congregations on the Sabbath. I usually preach twice or thrice during the week. There seems to be a steady and increasing attachment to the benevolent institutions of the day—and particularly to the H. M. Society. I am willing to remain in this field another year—yea, even till death, if such be the Lord's will.

INFLUENCE OF THE PILGRIMS.

Though nothing of special interest has transpired since my last report, yet, the marked change that has taken place both in the natural and moral aspect of my field since the date of my first commission, is truly cheering, and begins to remind us of the flourishing settlements and thriving villages, together with their exalted social privileges, in the land of the Pilgrims. The grand impressions, culstamped more than two centuries since upon their institutions, and, upon their immediate posterity, have characterized every subsequent generation in their various locations, and are beginning to be every where visible in this then unknown and heathen land; and shadow forth the same features which are about to be given to other generations, and even to other countries.

THE SONS OF THE PILGRIMS IN THE WEST.

Many are the privations to which good families are still subjected, from the want of comfortable houses and clothing, and food, improved lands, teams, and farming utensils, and from their remoteness from schools, meetings, and market. There is, notwithstanding, a good degree of contentment and cheerfulness, and a disposition to make efforts for improvement. The sons and daughters of the Pilgrims are here, and none but such, are adapted to a region so new; and from what has been done here in four years past, in the clearing of wild lands, building of houses and barns, and in the construction of roads, with so few hands, and with such small means, and in the midst of so many discouragements, we may infer, that with the ordinary smiles of Providence, in a few years this wilderness will become a fruitful field, and with the influences of Divine grace, Zion here will arise and shine, extending her borders and displaying her comeliness.

VISIT TO A DESTITUTE PORTION OF MICHIGAN.

The recent death of a relative at the east made it necessary for me to leave home, and visit some friends almost at the northern extremity of white settlements in Michigan, on the shore of the lake. This afforded me the opportunity to preach two Sabbaths, viz: once at Moskegon, and once at Grand Haven, Ottawa county. At the former, I was the first minister of any denomination that ever addressed them in a public discourse on their eternal interests. And though the day was cold and stormy, (being the last Sabbath in October,) and the snow full one foot deep, and no paths trodden, yet I had a respectable and very attentive audience, whose beaming eyes, often suffused with tears, bespoke the adaptation of the glad tidings of salvation to the wants of men—even worldly men—who had banished themselves and families from the religious institutions and privileges of their fathers, to secure earthly treasures that elude their grasp, or if secured, are contemptible compared with the worth of the soul that is hazarded to attain them! Often, while among them, did they express a wish to enjoy the labors of a faithful minister, and a willingness to contribute liberally towards his support. Nay, many of them are determined to do this, or leave for places where they can. But when I think of the many just such infant settlements on the borders of our vast lakes, at the mouths, and all along on the banks of our noble rivers, on the wide-spread and beautiful prairies, and in the midst of the dense and luxuriant forests throughout the length and breadth of this mighty valley—perishing for the Gospel—I feel impelled to lift up my soul with importunity to the great Lord of the harvest, and pray that he will thrust out more laborers, for the harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few.

Often have I thought, while meditating on this subject, could the great mass of our ministering brethren at the east be eye and ear witnesses of these destitutions and wants, only once during their ministry, the result would be such a simultaneous coming up to the help of the Lord, on the part of the churches, that there would be no lack of men or means to possess this godly land.

AN AFFECTING INTERVIEW.

"They fainted, and were scattered abroad as sheep having no shepherd."

This section of country has been settled for more than twenty years, and yet hardly the trace of a christian minister can be found, from 50 to 100 miles around. The Campbellites have done "what they could," and are still doing—but no good. A few Sabbaths ago, I saw in my congregation a weeping stranger—a lady upwards of forty years old. After sermon, I introduced myself to her. She took my hand with a convulsive grasp, and with a faltering voice asked the blessing of God upon me. She informed me that she had moved, with her husband, to this country, some twenty years before, from the state of New-York, and brought with her a letter of dismission and recommendation from a Presbyterian church; that she still held it in her possession, for want of an opportunity to unite with any church. She said she longed for the communion, and had a few times partaken with the Campbellites, but could not do it again. "You," said she, as she sobbed aloud, "are the first Presbyterian minister I have ever seen in this state, and I have come fifteen miles to hear you preach; and, I bless the Lord, I am well paid." Could our eastern christians have heard her cries, and seen her tears, I am sure they would say, "Send forth missionaries, and we will sustain them;" or, could they see the destitution of this country, a spirit of compassion would be stirred within them.

DEATH OF A CONVERT.

In my last I gave you an account of Mr. H., a wicked man, and dealer in ardent spirits, who had been a professor of religion, and who died in wretchedness. I now have a death to record, which is the reverse of that. Among a circle of fifteen of our young people, who stood together in our sanctuary last fall as fruits of the late revival here, to make public profession of the religion of Jesus Christ, was Mrs. S., a young married lady, having one sweet child. A solemn, holy joy seemed to pervade the whole company. The countenance of Mrs. S. particularly indicated this. From that time, she has seemed to be living for heaven. In the latter part of the winter, her health declined; and finally it was found, in despite of medical skill, that consumption was fixed upon her slender frame. For three months, during her last sickness, she had an opportunity to display the deep workings of the Spirit of God on her heart; and to exemplify the christian graces under these trying circumstances. Two or three weeks ago, we laid her in the grave. The scenes of her death I have not room to describe. Her reason was bright to the last. When I entered the room, and perceived by her pulse her situation, I said, "you are with us now, but you will not be long;" she answered, "No; the shorter the better. I need to be patient. I am going to my beloved Saviour." I can undertake no description of her address to her father and sister, who came in while I was there, and who were not professors. She was more than twelve hours dying, and many persons heard her appeals. I can only say, it was the eloquence of death, and there were some as choice specimens of the language of heaven, as we can expect this side of the glorious reality. One such death-bed scene, seems to make my labors and my trials light. How many of them—were they all that you have—would it require to compensate your Society for its labors and expenses? Mr. S. had stood by the side of his wife when she made a profession, and now seems to be sustained by comforts which earth cannot give nor take away.

SCATTERED MEMBERS OF THE FLOCK.

From our Missionary at Green Bay.

As I came within 70 miles of home, I began to find the scattered members of my church, and found it very pleasant to spend an hour or two in each family, leaving tracts and giving such counsel or reproof, as seemed necessary. Buried in the deep forests of Fox River, I found an aged mother of this church, who has six daughters living within a few miles of her, five of whom are married, and all of whom have hope that their sins are pardoned through the blood of Christ. When such families people the wilderness, will they not soon blossom as the rose?

JUST IN TIME.

There was a beloved and substantial member of this church who hoped that he gave his heart to God this last year. He was a young married man. Until the commencement of this year he had lived entirely indifferent to religion; and when I first preached in his neighborhood, it was a matter of surprise to his neighbors, that he should go to meeting. He and his wife came into the church in July, giving most satisfactory evidence of true conversion. The last time I saw him, he led his three children to the baptismal font and gave them to the Lord. His work thus done, he died, leaning upon the support that David said would sustain him while walking through the dark valley.

But he is not the only one in this place that I hope has given his heart to God during this year, as blessings attending the means that you have helped to sustain, and which without your help would not probably have been used. O tell the rich churches, that $125 has been the means of building up a church of 28 members on the frontiers of our nation; and what is more than all, of gathering precious, immortal souls into the Redeemer's kingdom, and of feeding those who are famishing for the bread of eternal life! O yes, tell them, SOULS ARE PERISHING, and unless help arrives soon it will be too late. To have neglected this place one year more—Oh how different the condition of some of its late inhabitants! Methinks I hear R. K. G. praising his Saviour and his God in Paradise, for the beneficence bestowed through you for the last year.

GRATEFUL RECEPTION OF AID.

I have received my commission; and I assure you that it was received with grateful acknowledgments to your Society for the timely aid thus proffered me in my present embarrassed situation. My mind feels relieved from the pressure of trouble, and I look on your Society, as an angel of mercy to minister to the afflicted, consolation and hope amid depression and want.

THE SABBATH GAINING GROUND.

The effects of the Gospel are distinctly seen in an increased respect for the Sabbath. Our town is now a noiseless retreat for those who wish to keep "holy-day." One fact as an illustration. An individual who was entirely reckless of the claims of the Sabbath, who spent these consecrated hours in hunting, fishing, &c., neglected to provide a sufficient quantity of fuel on Saturday, for the Sabbath. He, therefore, went into his yard, late in the afternoon, and commenced chopping. And when he returned, he says to his wife: "Well, I never heard an axe sound so loud before!" A year before, half of the inhabitants might have engaged in this business without exciting notoriety.

The above are some of the visible results of the Gospel in this place, the past year. But its secret, invisible effects, must be left until the "books are opened," and eternity makes its solemn disclosures.

TOO POOR TO LIVE WITHOUT THE GOSPEL.

Until recently, we had no church. But the few brethren residing here, felt that it was not proper for them to remain as sheep scattered on the mountains, with no one to look after them. After consultation, and with the assistance of a neighboring missionary, we united in the formation of a Presbyterian church. It is composed of nine members—four males and five females. A few others will join us the first opportunity.

Our number, as you perceive, is small; our means are equally so. But we feel ourselves to be too poor to live without the Gospel. Hence we have determined to support a minister half the time, provided the other half of his support can be secured. At the earnest solicitation of ministering brethren who knew our situation, and took a deep interest in our affairs, the Rev. — has been induced to visit us. We hailed his coming with joy, and are making every effort to retain him among us. By the advice of the ministers referred to, we now apply for $100 aid, with the hope that another hundred may be obtained from some other source.

REMARKS.

It is surely a blessed work, to nurture these little plants in the vineyard of God: Happy is that minister whose privilege it is to hold the cup of salvation to such thirsty lips! How much better is it to preach to those who "desire the sincere milk of the word, that they may grow thereby," than to cater for the morbid and critical appetite of churches full to satiety! How many ministers, did they but know the things that make for their comfort, would forego the temporal advantages of a settlement at the East, and seek some humble spot in the wilderness, where they might lay the foundations of future society, and renew, as it were, their own youth, and live over again in all the freshness of a first love, the varied joys and trials of their early professional life!

A CONTRAST.

The church here has been formed about 6 years. It first consisted of 13 members; now, there are over 70, beside several who have gone out to constitute the nucleus of each of the two churches formed in the vicinity. This region, formerly, was one of moral desolation. Universalism, infidelity, intemperance, and Sabbath-breaking, were common up and down our streets. But few attended meeting any where. It is said, that two weeks since there were ten or eleven religious, evangelical meetings on the Sabbath, all in this town; and that there might have been 1000 people who attended them. This, however, is a time of revival of religion in many parts of the town, and there were more meetings and more out than usual.

A MISSIONARY'S APPEAL TO THE EASTERN CHURCHES.

Brethren and fathers, in the providence of God, our lot is cast in a Gospel land, we have a goodly heritage; yet we are separated far from you. Bone of your bone, and flesh of your flesh, we have not lost natural affection by coming to the West. Parents have children, brothers have sisters, churches have members, who have come to this western clime exposed to the prevailing evils of the day. You are therefore interested for the West. It is well—for if you are not, I know not who will be. The son, the daughter, the missionary, the world, the Saviour, are looking to you. They look to you for help, and your willingness to help awakens joy in heaven and gratitude on earth. We glory in your religion, in your acts of benevolence. Yet we have somewhat against you. You in general do not do what you might for the West. I know of many churches in the state of New-York who are able to support their own minister, and also a missionary at the West, easier than our public churches can raise $100 for their minister. I had many delightful interviews with brethren in New-York and Vermont, which will always be refreshing to my heart; amid the darkness and storms of this life, the scenes of christian communion through which we pass, are often the themes of review, and we love to mention the name of those dear friends, who, when the request came from Ohio, "Come over and help us—we have not had a Gospel sermon in a year," &c., said, "Go, go; the Lord be with you; go, publish the message of salvation to sinners. We commend you to God and the word of his grace." With them I sang, and prayed, and wept—and to these and kindred spirits, I like to write, and give them my present views. When I tell them that $200 will not lessen the comforts of their houses, and with our own efforts will help us to one; or $400 will help us to two, such as we need, I trust they will not be offended, nor cry out—"that the claims of the West cannot be satisfied."

SUCCESSFUL EFFORTS TO PROMOTE SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

The attention of the people has seemed to be called to the subject of Sunday schools for some time past, and the inquiry has been frequently made, "What can be done to make the Sunday schools more interesting, and secure a better attendance?" My health and strength have been such, that I have not felt myself warranted in spending much time in school, as it is held in the intermission, and I find the two regular services, and the Bible class at 5 o'clock, as much as I can well attend to. About the first of July, however, I remained in the school—the matter was talked over, and a committee appointed to visit and get in pupils. Particular reference was to be had to getting into the school the whole congregation, a majority of whom have usually spent the Sabbath quite differently. The next Sabbath, immediately after the forenoon exercises, we went among the people, and "compelled them," by our persuasions, "to come in." We succeeded beyond our expectations. From 40 to 50 had been our usual number heretofore, and we at once gathered 79 who took the place of pupils, although they were old and young. The next Sabbath the effort was repeated, and the result was we had 97, besides the teachers. Our meeting-house is now "too strait for us." One class of married ladies meet in a neighboring house, and we have formed an infant Sunday school, which had last Sabbath 21, in all amounting to 111. And we are confidently expecting a further increase. This effort, or something else, has given a new impulse to my Bible class, and its number is increasing. Last Sabbath we had 26.

Such is the immediate result of a little effort, and I have been thus particular in the hope that others would be led to follow the example. We hope for great and good results. God's word is probably more extensively studied, in this community, than ever before.

THREE YEARS' MISSIONARY LABÖR—FURTHER AID NOT NECESSARY.

It is now three years since I commenced preaching the Gospel to this people.—When I came here, the church had enjoyed the stated administration of the word of God; but for a short season. They had no house of worship, and had done little or nothing for the cause of benevolence. There were then about 90 members, as appeared by the church records, but a number of them had removed from the place, without taking letters. Since that time, 33 have been dismissed to join other churches, and 3 excommunicated—leaving little more than 50 of the original members. Ninety-two have been added, making our present number near 150. Those excommunicated have not walked with the church since I came here. The society have a respectable place of worship, and are now able to support the Gospel without further aid from the A. H. M. S. They are thankful for the assistance afforded, and intend, by the blessing of the Lord, to repay it into the treasury of your Society. The first year they raised only $150 for my support. This year they have agreed to raise $450, and they are able to do it.

AFFLICTION DEMANDING SYMPATHY AND AID.

There has been, during the last quarter, the usual attendance upon the means of grace among those who have enjoyed health. Many of my people have been visited with sickness, which has prevented them from going to the sanctuary, or the place for religious conference and prayer. My own family have drank largely from the same bitter cup. My wife has not been able to attend public worship for four months, except recently in a few instances. At times, I have felt almost ready to sink under my cares and labors by day, and watching at night; but underneath us have been the arms of the Almighty, sustaining us, while we have been led in a way which we know not, and seen darkness become light before us, and crooked things straight.

The trials of ministers and people, in places like this, are peculiar; they can be better felt than described. I am confident, that if my christian friends at the East knew one half of them, they would sympathize most deeply with us, and watch the arrival of every mail, hoping to learn something more favorable in regard to our circumstances.

“MY EXTREMITY WAS GOD’S OPPORTUNITY.”

Before the receipt of my commission, I despaired of relief; and the very day it came to hand, I had made up my mind that I could not possibly be sustained any longer. True, we were not reduced to the lowest extremity; but myself and family were almost entirely destitute of shoes, and many articles of clothing, which are essential not only to decency, but comfort and health; and I had no means of obtaining them without money. I have not yet received a farthing in cash on my salary since I have been on this field, which is now near two years. My people could not obtain it, and therefore I could not. Still, the thought of leaving was very painful to me. But my extremity was God’s opportunity; and the promised aid of your Society was the more grateful. Although it was less than I had hoped it would be, yet I can assure you it was productive of feelings that are not easily described. We felt that, at least some of our wants would be relieved; and when our family came around the domestic altar, I think I can say in truth, that with heartfelt sincerity we unitedly offered up our thanks to “Him from whom cometh down every good and every perfect gift,” for the special mercy conferred on us through your Society. Yes, my dear brother, missionaries at the West know how to appreciate the Home Missionary Society; and would that its value were known from “sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth.” Then would its treasury be abundantly replenished, and through its instrumentality and munificence, this whole western wilderness would “blossom as the rose!”

SUPPORT OF THE GOSPEL ASSUMED.

The church and people over whom I am placed in the Gospel, feel it their duty to attempt my support, without farther aid from your Society. They also wish me to say, that they do not consider their connexion with you as having ceased; but, that grateful for the efficient aid which for so many years they have received at your hands, and without which the ordinances of the Gospel could not, probably, have been sustained among them, they mean still to remember you in their prayers, and from time to time, as God shall give them ability, in their contributions. To help you in the present emergency they have undertaken to raise the instalment now due from your Society on my last quarter.

LIBERALITY.

“A THANK-OFFERING TO THE LORD.”

From a Letter to the Secretaries, from a Clergyman in the West, after a visit to New-England.

“DEAR BRETHREN—Enclosed I send you thirty dollars to constitute my mother, Mrs. —, a life member of the A. H. M. Society.

“My parents have seven sons and two daughters—all married and settled in the world, and all professors of religion. We are scattered over five states, at a distance of a thousand miles asunder.

“We were all permitted to assemble at an appointed season under the paternal roof, and, on the last Sabbath, to come—a family of twenty, parents and children—around the table of our common Lord and Master.

“My father is 80 years of age; my youngest brother is about 30. We are all in health and in comfortable circumstances. For the distinguishing temporal and spiritual mercies bestowed upon us, we felt it a privilege to make a thank-offering to the Lord. The sons constituted our father an honorary member of the A. B. C. F. M., by a donation of $100, and the daughters wish to constitute their mother a life member of your Society.”

SACRIFICES OF FEEBLE CHURCHES.—THE WIDOW AND HER DAUGHTERS.

These are but little known and still less appreciated by the world at large; for the spirit which prompts to self-denial for the honor of Christ, is that meek and retiring spirit which shuns the gaze of man. And even when it is known, that “a certain poor widow” has cast in “two mites,” who but the Saviour knows how to estimate the gift? Who considers that it is, in fact, a greater sacrifice than the costly offerings of the rich? One of the reports (from Mass.) thus alludes to such a widow: “She was one of the twelve who were organized three years ago as a church of Christ in this place. She had three daughters of mature age, all in an unconverted state. They are now all members of this church, in good standing. They have no means of support but their daily labor, and one of the daughters has been an invalid all summer; yet the family has contributed $10 this year for the support of the Gospel.” No small proportion of a minister’s salary in many a feeble church, comes from such sources.

A DONATION FROM SOLDIERS.

From Rev. C. Kingsbury, Choctaw Nation.

I have been much interested in reading the Home Missionary, which is kindly sent me, but have been often exceedingly pained by the accounts of hardships and trials, and the very inadequate support of those worthy men who are laboring under the direction of the H. M. Society to establish the Gospel, and to extend its blessed influences through our new settlements in the West.

We are but a feeble band, in the midst of a vast natural and moral wilderness, but we have felt that we ought to do something. At Fort Towson, where I preach one fourth of my time, we proposed to devote the collection at the monthly concert in April last, to the A. H. M. S. Eight dollars was the amount. A friend added two more. And before that week closed, we were cheered by the letter of Major Childs of Florida, [See Home Missionary for April, 1840,] enclosing to you a generous donation from Fort Pierce.

I have now the privilege of adding twenty dollars more, being part of a legacy left by Corporal John R. Smith, who died last winter at Fort Towson. He was a member of our little church, and left his property to be applied to benevolent objects. The above twenty dollars is the portion we have allotted to the H. M. Society. Enclosed you have my draft for the whole amount. I wish it were in my power to send you a much larger sum.

ADDRESSES

AT THE FIFTEENTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE A. H. M. S.

ADDRESS OF MR. SPAULDING.

Resolved, That the Report, an abstract of which has now been read, be accepted, and printed under the direction of the Executive Committee.

On presenting the above resolution, the Rev. J. SPAULDING, from Illinois, remarked :

Let this report go out to communicate its facts, and lay its great principles on the conscience and heart of the nation, and an echo will come back that will make the church glad.

Twelve and a half years ago, a missionary with his companion passed over the Alleghanies with the view of finding a home, and the expectation of finding a grave, somewhere in the wide West.

They paused a day to rest on the banks of the beautiful Ohio. The October frosts had just turned the forest foliage into gold. The Indian summer was just spreading out its glorious mantle. The past, and the future and every thing around, awakened serious thoughts. Before them was the Ohio, and its sentinel hills, just as God made them. The home of their youth was nearly a thousand miles off. A new home was to be found; new acquaintances formed; new friendships made; new labors performed; new scenes passed through. With what tenderness, and fervor, and faith, that humble pair knelt in the chamber of the tavern, and commended themselves to God, another day will tell. Another day will reveal the results of their labors, in the field where this Society has scattered its richest seed, and gathered its richest harvests.

Would that I could take these friends of Home Missions, this evening, over that great field. I should love to introduce you to the venerable elder, who, twelve and a half years ago, took the newly arrived missionary by the hand, and, with tears in his eyes, said : "God has heard our prayers, and sent us a minister."

I should love to introduce you to an aged physician and his son—they would remind you of Jacob and Joseph—both of whom were wedded to infidelity, till the missionary came, preaching pardon and peace through Jesus Christ.

I should love to show you the spot where the first church was formed in one of the new counties. Do you see that house on that gentle slope of the hill? That is the spot where the congregation sat to hear the word of life. And the well? There the preacher stood and told the thirsty of the water of life. There was the tabernacle, the pillars of which were the huge beech trees, and its covering the sky. There the first Presbyterian church in that county was formed; elders were elected and ordained; and there a band of about 11 sat down with their Lord at his table.

And there is a spot, in a neighboring county, of scarcely less interest. I will call it Shiloh, for there the tribes were wont to meet for worship, before the building of their present temple on Mount Moriah.

The church at Shiloh was made of logs, and its seats were rough hewn slabs. In this humble place were collected followers of Jesus for some 20 miles around—met to celebrate his dying love.

Two of the young men of that neighborhood, and present on that occasion, have since passed through a regular course of study, and are now preaching the Gospel.

Among those who presented themselves for admission to the church and its ordinances on that occasion, was an intelligent Scotchman. "Once," said he, "I was a member of a Seceder church in Pennsylvania. Ten years ago I came and opened a farm in the Ohio forest. Here I have seldom heard preaching, and have had no opportunity of coming to the table of our Lord. I love him, and his doctrines; his ordinances and his people. I am hungry, and desire once more to come into his house and partake of the children's bread." On being asked "whether, in public and social worship he could sing any but the old version of the Psalms," he replied, with the warmth of a Scotchman's heart : "Bless your soul, I can sing any thing when with the people of God !"

From Ohio we may pass into Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, into the North and South; and then, with the Report, trace the great thoroughfares, and traverse the empire rivers of the West.

From particulars we may pass to general facts, illustrating the power and blessedness of the Gospel; and showing the glorious results of the efforts of the A. H. M. S. God has owned its labors. The Holy Spirit has descended to render them efficacious, and angels have rejoiced over souls renewed, and sins forgiven.

Review the statements of the report; 80 missionary congregations blessed with revivals within the past year; 3,285 hopefully born into the kingdom of God—a larger number than crowds the Tabernacle this evening. So many just commenced the song that shall never end. Moreover, more than 54,000 taught in Sabbath schools and Bible classes; and more than 64,000 enrolled in the temperance army !

Look at these facts; and behold the pastures of the wilderness dropping fatness; the valleys covered over with corn; the little hills rejoicing on every side, and all the trees of the field clapping their hands.

Look at what has been done, and lift up the heart in thanksgiving to God. Look at what remains to be done, and lift up the prayer for more laborers in the field.

And one prayer more—For the means? You have them already. For the heart and the hand to sustain those laborers. FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS above the receipts of the last year is all the Executive Committee ask. Shall they not have it? Will you not see that they have it?

Then the epitaph, said to have been engraved on the tomb stone of Atolus of Rheims, may with propriety be written on yours:—"He exported his fortune before him into heaven by his charities, and he has gone thither to enjoy it."

Or, what is infinitely better, you may hear from the lips of your Saviour and Judge: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

ADDRESS OF MR. BACON.

The Rev. Mr. BACON, of New-Haven, Conn., moved the following resolution:—

Resolved, That the great work to be accomplished for the salvation of men in this land, and by this land, imperiously demands a speedy and extensive enlargement of Home Missionary operations.

Mr. B. remarked in substance as follows:

I feel no small embarrassment in undertaking to sustain the truth embodied in this resolution. It may seem, sir, a small thing to come here to make a holiday oration. But when I think of the vast interests that are involved in this subject, I feel under a great responsibility. The destinies allotted even to individuals are great and important; how much more so, those of nations!

The history of the world turns on the impressions given to it by a people or a nation. Ancient Greece has impressed her arts, her taste, her habits, her mind, upon all the world down to this hour; and to a very great extent there they will remain impressed until the end of time, to influence and to sway the nations of the world. And so it is and has been, and will be, with conquered, prostrate Rome—beautiful even in her ruins. And so also, was assigned the same kind of destiny, though of a higher order, to the scattered nations of Israel. The law of the Lord went forth from Zion, and his light from Jerusalem; and it was destined that the nation should give forth to the world a Saviour of men, which is Christ the Lord. Thus, from that small district, influences have gone forth that must modify the destiny of the human race, not only to all time, but also exert an influence on the eternal condition of unnumbered millions.

And there are two nations now on the face of the earth, that are destined to exert an almost boundless influence upon the rest of the world. I mean England and the United States.

Look at Great Britain, spreading her empire over the world—over continents and islands of the sea; she, whose boast it is, that upon her dominions the sun never sets—what a destiny is allotted to her! How she sends forth her colonies, and a strong tide of emigration to the remotest corners of the globe! Now, in all her movements to sustain her march of empire, her first duty is to christianize her own dominion. That is her first and her obvious duty—to send out missions to her own colonies, and thus to christianize her own empire. The very relations she bears to her dependencies, her wealth, her facilities of influence, demand that she should give every subject of her vast dominion the opportunity of salvation. And what a work it is. How might it enlist—I may say, how might it exhaust all the energies of the people of God in the British empire to carry on that effort. And I feel bound to say that if they were to confine themselves to christianizing their own people, they would do their part in relation to the salvation of the world.

That she has the means at her command, for this object, if they were only brought into requisition, is evident. A few years ago, I was travelling with a minister of the church of Scotland; and I learned a fact at which I was completely astonished. It was, that at that moment, there were supernumerary clergy in Scotland to such an extent, that, if every pastor, and the incumbent of every parish, from Johnny Groat's House to Land's End were to die over night, all their places might be filled in the morning.—There were so many candidates, educated for the ministry, always waiting for the dead men's shoes. Let Great Britain send these men forth to evangelize her colonies. There would be ample employment for them all, in the territories of that nation, whose banner shines in every clime and floats on every sea, and on whose soil the sun doth never set.

And I would have the American people know, that the destiny of this nation is a no less brilliant and important one. Its duty is to christianize the land, from the mouth of the Oregon to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Its missions should spread over every part of it, its missionaries throng every hill and valley; until the school-house and the church should be found on every hill top, side by side. Such is the duty of this country; and such I would see accomplished. Then would the world see a sight, — "Such as earth saw never, such As heaven looks down to see."

This is our mission and destiny, a mission and a destiny more august than any possessed by the ancient republics of Greece and Rome—to make this land the light of the world—a fountain of light eternally streaming forth to enlighten all the lands of the earth; while our own walls should become salvation and our gates praise.

And now the question is, are we awake as we ought to be to the importance of fulfilling this destiny allotted to us? That it is our destiny no one doubts. We know it, as clearly as if a voice had spoken it from Sinai; as clearly, as though a ministering angel had come to tell us what we had to do. We all see it—we all know it. There is not a heart that does not feel the truth of this, and recognizes it as the legitimate destiny of the American people.

Let us, then, do our part in christianizing mankind, by christianizing our country; and our voice shall go forth to the world trumpet tongued, as it has ever since the discovery of this country by Columbus. Every revolution and change here, has had its after-clap upon the Eastern continent. It has been so with every political and commercial movement, and it will be so with every religious one. Like the reverberation which follows the discharge of the electric fluid; the thunder that breaks from one cloud is answered by the echo from another. So the revolution here, in its after-clap, shook down thrones in the old world, and changed the destinies of kings and empires; and its effects are only just beginning to be felt now. Kings know this, and princes know this. Every change here has a corresponding change in the old world.

Are we then awake to all this? Do we indeed know it? And if so, shall we be traitors to the high destiny allotted us for the redemption of the world, for which Christ died? For this reason, I would respond to the demand of the Executive Committee, that they may advance and extend their operations all over this country.

The report says, that progress has been made in the face of recent embarrassments. The Committee have done well, with what they had entrusted to them; but have the churches done well, with what has been entrusted to them? Let us go back to the collapse of 1837. Just before this, there was a demand for men to go forth in behalf of the churches and the cause of missions, and to preach the Gospel to all the world. This demand was felt and acknowledged in every workshop, field, and farm, and there was a corresponding feeling throughout the land; there was a waking up of interest in the hearts of the sons of the church, and the inquiry was, "what wilt thou have me to do?" Then came the shock. And some 20, ay 30, and 40 men who had devoted themselves to the cause of missions in Pagan lands, and to the conversion of the heathen, at the solicitation of a single Board, were told "we cannot send you out as yet;" and again, they were told, "You must wait longer, we cannot send you out yet;" and finally they were told "We cannot send you out at all."

This institution felt the same shock. The churches were embarrassed and perplexed, and knew not how to go on. The Committee did well, under the circumstances, to prevent entire bankruptcy; but the churches needed more aid; and more of them needed it than ever. And then was heard the loud cry of distress from the West, that the missionary was suffering and must have help. And the result of this was, that in the seats of learning the feeling waxed cold, and the spirit of enterprise and devotedness to missions waned amongst them; and the question arose in the heart of many a one looking forward to the sacred office—not, "What can I do for Christ?" But "Where shall I get a settlement? How shall I live?"

What then could be expected, but languor and coldness in the heart of the churches, and fears that the ministry would grow secular? What could we expect under such circumstances, but that the churches would be crowded in upon by a superfluous number of ministers; until here, as in Scotland, for every one that has a parish, or a congregation, there is one waiting to step into the dead man's shoes?

This cannot be, if the cause of Christ is to flourish. Religion could not but languish; she would lie down and perish beside her own altar. No, sir. There must be a waking up to the responsibilities that rest upon this great nation. A revival, in every sense of the word, must take place. The word will be, that "the banner of the Cross must go on," over the whole land, over every river, and mountain, and plain, and hamlet, from conquering, to conquer; and other territories be subdued by the Gospel, and new names in geography be enrolled on the banner of Jehovah and his religion. Already we have Wisconsin and Iowa—names that might make Quintilian stare. And we shall add to these "Dacota" and "Oregon," and others far more strange in sound, from far over the Rocky Mountains.

The time has now arrived, my friends, when we want something more than politics, or a political change, to save us. When I heard my brother who has just spoken, describe the church in the western country built of logs, I thought to myself, those are the only log cabins that can save the nation! And wherever the people worship God, whether under the broad shade of the beechen trees, or enclosed with logs, or within a temple like this, there is the refuge for the stranger—there is the house of God, and none other than the gate of Heaven—and there is the hope of our Israel found.

There never was so deep and universal an impression in the public mind as now, that politics are not a safe-guard from sin, or an adequate hope for the people; and that both are only to be found in the kind protection and loving kindness of God our Father.

God has lately spoken to this nation. I have thought of the language of the prophet, "In the year that King Uzziah died, I saw the Lord sitting on a throne, high and lifted up." So this year, having met with a great national bereavement, the people are ready to acknowledge the hand of God and their dependence on him—to see the "Lord," and to regard his supremacy—"high and lifted up"—and no longer to rely on political changes and convulsions, but on his power, grace, and love, to defend us. Our confidence must be in these; and in the institutions of Christianity; and in the institutions of the Bible; and the preaching of the Gospel of Christ; and the Sabbath schools; and all those influences which make a christian people; for it is these, and not armies or navies, nor the boasted wisdom of rulers, nor violent political changes or excitement that can save our country.

We talk of wanting $50,000 more than last year. Suppose that for the lack of that sum, to bind us all in one common faith and one common hope in God, by the strong ties of religion, the nation, by and by, is convulsed with the violence of war. How long would $50,000 last in support of civil war? How far would it go towards suppressing a single insurrection? And yet, how cheerfully the most enormous sums would be paid, without grudging, in support of such things! But how large a sum does it appear, when required for the service of the Lord? How much, let me ask, would it cost to navigate a single ship of war? How much would it cost to send her on a cruise? Why the $50,000 or the $150,000 which this Society needs, would be but a drop in the bucket. And yet, employing the $150,000 as we propose, is the very way to save armies and navies and munitions of war, and millions of blood and treasure to the country. The influences of this Society, if poured on the national legislature for a single session, would save that amount a hundred times over. For there is no way in which money can be expended which will tell so effectually, as in expending it for such purposes as these: to extend God's kingdom, and to secure peace on earth, righteousness and good will among men!

The foregoing sketch is made from brief notes, and presents but an imperfect outline of the eloquent remarks of Mr. Bacon.

ADDRESS OF DR. PATTON.

Rev. Dr. PATTON, of New-York, presented the following resolution :

Resolved, That there is demanded in behalf of the church and the ministry, united and fervent prayer for the outpouring of the Divine Spirit; that not only this land, but the entire globe may be speedily subjugated to Christ.

Dr. P. remarked :

The object contemplated in this resolution, is one of noble grandeur. It is the subjugation of this entire globe to the dominion of Jesus Christ. It seizes upon the most spirit-stirring motive to arouse and engross the affections, to marshal and render them tributary to the church of God.

It is a matter for devout thanksgiving that the human mind is becoming familiar with the amplitude of the work to be done. There is scarcely any institution for benevolent action, that proposes to itself a field less extended than "the world." If the Bible is to be circulated, it is that every family may possess this inestimable treasure. If the religious tract is to be distributed, it is that ultimately these messengers of mercy may, with regularity and certainty, be carried to every human being. If the Foreign Missionary is commissioned, it is that he may kindle heavenly fires on sacred altars wherever man is found. And when the Home Missionary Society beholds with intense interest, the desolations of our own land, and aims, with a holy purpose and a steady heart to supply all the waste places—even in this, it looks out upon the deep necessities of a perishing world. As it is by the strong and healthful pulsations of the heart, that the life-stream flows vigorously to the extremities; so are all the plans which contemplate the spiritual good of the heathen, dependent on the state of religion at home. Unless piety be ardent and devoted here, in vain shall the cries of the heathen break upon our ears. No one will go to their relief, and no means will be furnished to carry forward the operations of redeeming love. There are home fires, that must be kept brightly burning with a steady flame, or no impression will be made on the massive darkness which enshrouds the globe.

Dr. P. proceeded to remark—that it was a subject of congratulation that men begin to think of the world—that they have become so familiar with its claims, as a subject of christian effort, as to admit the practicability of its conversion, and seriously to attempt it without delay. This, he continued, is coming up to the amplitude of the divine arrangements—this is entering into the spirit of Christ, who tasted death for every man, and whose commission includes in its comprehensive mandate, “every creature.” O, it is refreshing, on these high days, to come forth from our narrower stations, and to stand upon the lofty places of Zion, and look abroad upon the vastness of the field! Familiarity with the ennobling grandeur of the object, imparts expansion to the soul; while confidence in the promises and exhaustless resources of God, should inspire a noble daring and magnanimous self-denial.

The speaker adverted to the language of the resolution, in which the means of accomplishing the world's conversion is said to be fervent prayer—the simplicity of prayer. It is this which connects all the moral machinery on the earth, with the agency which alone can give it life and efficacy. The testimony of the Bible to the value and necessity of prayer, is full and explicit. It tells us that every agency that prayer has sanctified is mighty and must prevail. When Abraham stood before God and interceded for Sodom, the divine wrath waited, patiently waited, till he had done pleading—as though the clouds could not pour out their liquid fire, until prayer was ended. The Bible tells of battles won; of the heavens shut and opened; the sick recovered; the dead restored; and of many wonders wrought by the agency of prayer. It reaches far into the future, and foretells triumphs of prayer yet to be won: “My house shall be called the house of prayer for all people.” “O thou, that hearest prayer, unto thee shall all flesh come.” “From the rising of the sun even to the going down of the same, my name shall be great among the Gentiles; and on every place, incense (prayer) shall be offered unto my name, and a pure offering.” “The interest awakened, shall be deep and thrilling. “It shall come to pass that there shall come people and inhabitants of many cities, and the inhabitants of one city shall go to another, saying, let us go speedily to pray before the Lord, and to seek the Lord of Hosts,” &c. &c. This shall not be an occasional and impulsive measure; but shall become the regular and continued movement. “And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon to another, and from one Sabbath to another, shall all flesh come to worship before me, saith the Lord.” The Bible speaks of the angel, who shall stand before the altar, whose work it is to offer the prayers of the saints—that when these prayers are presented with the column of incense, then he shall take fire from off the altar and cast it upon the earth, “and there shall be voices and thunderings and lightnings, and an earthquake.” O, it is prayer—it is prayer, that shall yet shake and upheave the deep foundations of the earth! Nor should the saints be alarmed, when they behold strange and violent commotions among the nations—one dashing against another—for it is thus, that the accumulated prayers of all the saints are answered. It is thus, that God will overturn, and overturn, until, at the name of Jesus every knee shall bow. “The nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish; yea, those nations shall be utterly wasted.”

Of all human agencies, none takes so commanding a position as prayer. The history of this world, as it is written by the pen of inspiration, is the history of prayer. For this is the power that moves heaven. Yet it is the power which may be wielded by the humblest and obscurest saint. It will doubtless be found in the great day, that many a popular and prominent man will be set aside; whilst the retired, but pleading disciple, will be brought forth to great honor, as having alone, in her closet, wrestled with the angel and prevailed—

“Whose silent prayers and labors Heaven employs
To do the good, while others make the noise.”

Dr. P. next adverted to several particulars, for which intercessory prayer is greatly needed.

First, for the wider extension of REVIVALS OF RELIGION. A kind of public sentiment in favor of serious things must be produced, or the lack of moral courage will prevent men from attending to the soul. Revivals must become more frequent and powerful—thousands must be brought in where hundreds now are, or there will be no advance on the kingdom of darkness. There is no such thing as hereditary piety; the children of the pious need conversion, as well as others. It is only by conversions, that the places of the departed can be supplied, and an increase of members secured. Rich and blessed as have been the revivals of past years, they have scarcely made any impression on the great mass of the ungodly. They have, as yet, put an end to no one form of iniquity. They must be increased many thousand fold. Revivals are needed for the elevation of piety—the enlistment of personal services—the increase of benevolent action—and for giving right views of many topics which need to be seen through a more spiritual medium. Your Report, Mr. President, tells of 3,265 hopeful converts brought into the churches under your patronage during the year past. Could you send out your mandate and assemble them all here to-night—could we see the hundreds from Illinois thronging into yonder gallery—the other hundreds from Wisconsin in these seats on the left—and those in the centre filled from Ohio and Indiana, until this whole edifice were crowded with the results of your labors; and you should see the feelings of grateful joy, sparkling from their eyes—and remember, that all these are the fruit of but one year's blessing on the labors of your Society; we should see an illustration of the preciousness and the need of revivals. None expect revivals without prayer. O then, let prayer ascend in mighty columns, for enlarged and powerful revivals, until the "plowman shall overtake the reapers," and nations shall be born in a day.

Second—for the RIGHT KIND OF MINISTERS. This topic of prayer is specified by Christ: "Pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers." None question the need of more ministers. The fact, that a few—everlasting candidates, shall I call them?—hang around every vacancy in the older states, does not disprove it. There are many and important places to be supplied, but these men do not go to them. They, unfortunately, are unfitted for the work, or for some other reason, either of mind or of heart, of debt or of matrimony, are detained among the green fields of New-England, and are not found among the rough places of the West. In illustration of the qualifications of the ministry needed, Dr. P. cited the devotion of the followers of Abu Thaher, the chief of the Carmithians. Being called upon by the opposing general to surrender, this chieftain asked the messenger, "How many men has your general?" "Thirty thousand," replied the officer. "Among them all, has he three like mine?" Then, ordering them to approach, he commanded one to stab himself, another to throw himself from the precipice, and a third to plunge into the Tigris. All three instantly obeyed and perished. Then, turning to the officer, he said: "He who has such troops, need not regard the number of his enemies." And shall the followers of the blessed Saviour count their lives dear unto them, or permit their coward selfishness to chill the ardor of their devotion to Him? No—no—never!

The third particular for which prayer is needed, is that Christians may be SECURED AGAINST THE TRIALS to which they are exposed. The speaker here alluded to the temptations of worldliness at the present day, as a severer test of piety, than even the persecutions of the early ages. Many a man could cheerfully go to the stake rather than formally deny Christ, who yet virtually does it in practice every day. Satan has changed his policy. Persecution he found to be a losing game; its fires were the light-houses, that illumined the track of the church in her path of conquest. Had the devil continued the work of persecution, he would, long ere this, have burnt himself out of this world, and left this globe, a glowing emblem of the intense splendor and power of true religion. Perceiving how it worked, he warily changed the plan of his attack, and instead of loading the christian cause with ignominy and suffering, he poured in peace and prosperity, and threw around it the pomp and splendor of the court. He gave the church great favor with the emperors, and from the time that Constantine became a patron of the true religion, its power began to decline, and soon there settled down upon the world the deep, long night of the dark ages. Since then, every time that persecution has unsheathed her sword, the cause of Christ has moved forward with grandeur and with strength. Emphatically, the periods of her suffering have been the periods of her greatest triumphs; whilst the times of her worldly prosperity have been the seasons of her coldness and infidelity. What now holds the church in such inaction? What now holds it in such open rebellion against the acknowledged will of her Lord? Why is it, that with such wealth and such numbers, so large a portion of our own land is still destitute of the Gospel? What steals away the church's strength? O, it is the spirit of worldliness, which has entered the house of our God, and now makes the disciples of Christ false to their master. The observing John Wesley once said, that he had known but four men, whose piety had not declined through their becoming rich. Later in life, his experience had taught him to declare, that he knew not one, whose piety had not been injured by the blighting influence of wealth. Not that wealth is a talent, which may not be so used, as to promote spirituality and growth in grace; but, that it is held back from its legitimate use. O, it is the subtle, poisonous spirit of the world, which is now withering the mighty powers of the church of God! It throws abroad its fascinations; under the semblance of refinement, it pleads with the frank-hearted Christian; in an evil hour he listens to its syren voice; it fastens upon his heart—and then, farewell, spirituality—farewell, every feeling of high devotion—the gold has become dim, the most fine gold changed! Much and ardent prayer is needed, when Christians are surrounded by such temptations. I know not that this kind can ever be driven out, but by prayer and fasting. Then let there be prayer, and let there be fasting—if needs be, fasting for forty days. It must, O, this demon must be expelled. The interests of a bleeding Savior, the cries and agonies of a ruined world demand it!—Let us then gather round our HOME altars; let us build them up where they are not now erected; let us kindle on them holy fires; let there go up from them all, mighty columns of incense, that shall plead with God to keep us all from the world, and to make us to live for CHRIST and CHRIST ALONE.

SIXTEENTH REPORT.

WELL may the patrons of the American Home Missionary Society, as they come together to celebrate the Sixteenth Anniversary, inquire, with solicitude, of those to whom they have entrusted the management of its concerns, "Watchmen, what of the night?" The year now closed, no less than several which have preceded it, has been one of distressing embarrassment in the business affairs of men—it has been one of trembling and apprehension to our associations of benevolence. To this institution, a year like the past, sending the influence of its derangement and its distress into every city and village and hamlet of the land, is the more severe, as it increases the wants, and multiplies the number of those whom we seek to bless, while it withholds from us the means which we could otherwise command for the accomplishment of our benevolent designs. Had there been no higher source of confidence and hope to encourage us, than those can look to, who are engaged in enterprises purely secular; had not help come to us, which no human wisdom could devise and no human arm vouchsafe, with less cheerful hearts and less joyful tidings, should we come before the friends of missions now to tell them the history of the year. To HIM—whose cause, the cause of missions is—and whose love to it is infinitely greater than that of his children can be, to HIM do we owe it, that we are able to say to the friends of this institution, that its course, the past year, has been ONWARD! The light of Heaven has been thrown upon its pathway—the gifts of Heaven have been poured into its treasury—and the richest blessings of Heaven have descended upon the fields of its culture.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

The whole number of missionaries, named in the foregoing table and in commission during the year, is 791 ; being 101 more than were in the service of the Society the preceding year, and 5 more than the largest number, which the Society has ever before had in commission, on the American field, in any one year since its organization.

This increase of laborers is especially gratifying, when considered in connection with the fact, that the greater part of it has been in our new states and territories—in the infant communities of our frontier settlements—where the foundations of christian institutions are to be laid speedily, if laid at all. In the territories of Wisconsin and Iowa, the number of missionaries has been more than doubled during the year.

Of the missionaries reported, 548 were in commission at the beginning of the year, and 248 have been since appointed.

The locations of the missionaries are in 23 different states and territories, in Upper and Lower Canada, and in Texas, distributed as follows : in Maine, 73 ; New-Hampshire, 50 ; Vermont, 54 ; Massachusetts, 83 ; Rhode Island, 3 ; Connecticut, 42 ; New-York, 187 ; New-Jersey, 11 ; Pennsylvania, 49 ; Delaware, 2 ; Maryland, 1 ; Virginia, 1 ; Georgia, 1 ; Tennessee, 8 ; Ohio, 66 ; Indiana, 24 ; Illinois, 50 ; Missouri, 6 ; Arkansas, 1 ; Michigan, 36 ; Wisconsin, 19 ; Iowa, 12 ; District of Columbia, 1 ; Lower Canada, 9 ; Upper Canada, 1 ; and Texas, 1.

The number of congregations and missionary districts supplied, in whole or in part, is 987 ; exceeding the number of the last year by 125 ; and the amount of labor performed is equal to 594 years—being 93 years of labor more than were reported at the last anniversary, and 30 years more than have ever before been reported in a single year.

The number of pupils instructed in Sabbath schools and Bible classes, under the supervision of the missionaries, is not far from 64,300.

The amount contributed to various benevolent objects, by 288 congregations—the whole number from which we have reports on this subject—is $14,476 69, verifying the statements of former years, that more than 40 per cent. on the amount appropriated in aid of feeble churches, is paid back by them, during the year, into the different channels of christian benevolence. Very few churches responded with more promptness and liberality to the call of the American Board, the last autumn, than did many of the missionary churches. Almost as soon as intelligence could be received, after the Report of the Board had reached the most distant parts of the land we were told of missionary churches, individual and associated, in Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, and beyond the Mississippi, resolving to increase their self-denial and their sacrifices, at least twenty-five per cent., that theirs, too, might be the privilege of helping forward, in difficult times, the work of God among the heathen.

The cause of Temperance, in connexion with the labors of the missionaries, has made advances, during the year, that have no parallel in the history of the Society's operations. The impulse given to this reformation, in our cities and older settlements, has been felt in every extremity of the land. Whole households, whole congregations and whole districts of people, of large extent, and with the exception of scarce an individual within them, have been brought under its power. Not less than 134,000 souls are pledged to entire abstinence from every thing that can intoxicate, in the communities which have been blessed by the labors of the missionaries—a number more than twice as large as was reported the last year. And in addition to these, in places out of the fields committed to the special care of the missionaries, but in which they have labored day and night in this cause, there are multitudes, which we cannot number, who have this year, for the first time, taken their stand under the temperance banner.

But a testimony, for which we should be still more grateful, that God has smiled upon the missionary cause, we have in the fact that he has accompanied the preaching of his ambassadors with the demonstration of his Spirit. Seldom has it been our privilege to speak of a larger number of revivals, in connexion with the missionary stations, and those of more interest and power than have been enjoyed the past year, especially in the last half of the year. Many of these revivals are still in progress, and the results cannot be told. In 109 congregations, however, we are able to say, that God either is or has been, during the year, specially present; and the number of hopeful conversions, reported by 288 missionaries, is 3,018.

The number added to the churches on profession of their faith, is not far from 3,446; by letters from other churches, 2,068—in all, 5,514; which exceeds the number added the last year by 896.

And who would send back these thousands of new born souls into a state of unregeneracy—break down the barriers which this temperance pledge throws around the morals and the hopes of these scores of thousands—disband these Sabbath schools and hand over the children to the dominion of ignorance and the corruptions of infidelity—shut the doors of these sanctuaries and scatter the members of these churches like lost sheep upon the mountains; who would recall this little army of soldiers of the Cross from their work of conquest—make the heavens over these destitute places as brass and the rain upon them powder and dust—dry up the little rills of charity, that flow from them to make glad the city of God—silence the voice of prayer and praise in these concerts for a world's conversion; who would take from the bereaved, the sick and the dying, through all these regions, their consolation and their strength—sweep away the domestic peace, the social order, the intellectual improvement, the enjoyment of the good things of this world, and the enrapturing hopes of a better life, which the sanctifying of the Sabbath, the influence of the ministry, and the power of the Spirit of God have given in these fields of missionary labor, for all which it has cost the churches to secure them? Who will not rather, as he contemplates, here, these results of missionary action, in all their diversified, momentous and endless relations, and especially, as he looks back upon them, and looks forward upon them, from another state of being, wish that it had been his privilege to make his offerings in this cause a hundred fold greater than they have been?

THE TREASURY.

The balance in the treasury, May 1st, 1841, was $2,827 79; and there have since been received $92,463 64—making the resources of the year $95,291 43.

The amount due to missionaries at the beginning of the year, was $10,186 53; and there have since become due $96,899 36—making the liabilities of the Society for the year, $107,085 89.

Of this sum $94,300 14 have been paid. The remainder—$12,785 75—is still due to the laborers, who have performed their service and who are worthy of their hire, and towards cancelling which, there remains in the treasury a balance of only $991 29.

The receipts, above reported, are $7,050 30 greater than those of the preceding year. This is but a small advance, compared with what the Committee hoped, at the beginning of the year, to be able to report—compared with what they then stated seemed to them to be the least, which, in view of the urgent necessities of the cause, they ought to ask of the churches of Christ. The receipts of the first four months of the year encouraged the hope, that the much needed augmentation of pecuniary resources would be realized. But in the autumn and during a part of the winter, the receipts, instead of continuing to increase over those of the corresponding months of the preceding year, actually fell below them ; so that the whole amount received, during the year, from the ordinary contributions of the churches, is not quite equal to that reported at the last anniversary.

For the entire portion of the hoped for increase of funds, which has actually been placed at the disposal of the Committee, special thanks are to be rendered to that gracious Providence, whose care of this institution has been so conspicuous from its origin, and who has, this year, brought it supplies, in unwonted measure, from sources and through channels which his eye alone can discover and his hand alone control. The amount received in payment of legacies, during the year, over and above the amount received from similar sources the preceding year, is $7,837 23; the excess being greater than the excess of the entire receipts of the year now closed over those of the previous year, by $787 93. To God, then, be special praise, for the cheering results, which it is our privilege, at the close of another year, to communicate to the friends of missions.

THE COMING YEAR.

We enter upon a new year with an increased amount—$12,785 75—already due to the missionaries—with an increased amount—$35,536 63—of pledges to be redeemed—with a hundred and one more missionaries in the field to be sustained—with a work before us, greatly augmented, by what we have failed the past year to do, and by the rapidity with which it every year grows upon our hands. To do more of this work, with the same amount of means, can hardly be hoped for ; inasmuch as retrenchment and economy in appropriations, have already been exercised, till there seems no longer a place left for them. That God should make windows in heaven, or send us enlargement, the coming year, as he did the last, from the treasures of the dead, we may not anticipate. It is for the churches of Christ—the disciples of Christ—the lovers of their country—the benefactors of mankind, every where through the land, to say, whether their contributions to this cause shall this year be increased, as its necessities demand, and the work, by this means, be carried forward. Our destitute fellow countrymen never needed the gospel more ; never did so many of them need it. Infidelity was never more eager to corrupt them ; God was never more ready to bless us, in our efforts to save them. Never will the difficulties that impede our work be so few ; never will the same amount of expenditure be so available. This, this is the day of our country's salvation ! “ARISE, saith a voice from heaven, AND THRUST IN THE SICKLE, FOR THE HARVEST OF THE LAND IS COME” !

And shall the harvest perish because the reapers are few ? Whence have come the one hundred additional laborers the past year, and what has brought them into the field, if it be not, under God, the resources of the church which have been pledged to sustain them ? Let these resources be increased in due proportion, in coming years, and other hundreds will go forth to gather the wheat into its garner. The providence of God will raise them up. The people of God and the Spirit of God will train them for their work ; nor will they cease to be multiplied, till the watchmen shall see eye to eye and the Lord shall establish Zion. Be it the great work of the friends of missions, then, to invite the laborer to his field—to follow him, in all his life of self-denial and privation, with their sympathies and their prayers—to minister to all his necessities, with the liberality that becometh saints, and to rejoice with him, as he sees the wonder-working power of God, through his instrumentality, turning the desert into a fruitful field. Be it the delightful purpose of every friend of Christ and of his country, to enlarge his gifts and multiply his offerings in this blessed cause, from year to year, as the providence of God shall call for them, till it be proclaimed from heaven, “enough, ENOUGH, the sanctuary of the Lord is builded—this land has become Immanuel's, and the earth is full of the knowledge of God.”

AUXILIARY SOCIETIES AND AGENCIES.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The Maine Missionary Society—the oldest benevolent institution in the state, and occupying a territory as large as all New-England besides—has prosecuted its work, the past year, under serious embarrassments, yet not without manifest tokens of the divine favor.

Seventy-three missionaries have been in commission, and $7,249 99 have been expended in their support ; while but $5,817 17 have been received into the treasury from the contributions of the churches ; the Trustees having been obliged to borrow $1,500 to meet the claims of the missionaries who have fulfilled their commissions. We trust the friends of Christ, who have so nobly sustained this Society hitherto, will not suffer its usefulness to be curtailed or impeded, while there remains before it yet so much land to be possessed—"Destitute places are calling with more and more importunity upon the institution," says its Secretary, Rev. ELIPHALET GILLET, D. D., "for help, and nothing, but restricted means, prevents it from occupying the whole ground, to which God in his providence seems to be specially inviting us, by the revivals of religion, both in the missionary churches and in those that aid them, which have seldom been more marked and extensive than at the present time."

And the language of the Trustees, in their last report, shows us how deep an interest they feel in the success of their brethren, whose labors are directed more especially to our western valley : "That immense tide of population," say they, "which is pressing on with overwhelming power towards the setting sun, must be followed up with the preaching of the gospel of the grace of God—the doctrine of Christ must every where drop as the rain, and distil as dew upon the mown grass, as the showers that water the earth, then shall that extended region, skirting the Pacific, become like the garden of Eden. Such an influence, diffused over our whole land, would indeed make it the heritage of God."

NEW-HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society has, during the year, celebrated its fortieth anniversary. The men whose wisdom and zeal, energy and prayers, brought it into existence have, most of them, ceased from their labors. Six only of the twenty-four fathers in Israel, whose names are recorded as the founders of this Society, are yet numbered with the living. But the churches which have been planted and nurtured by the instrumentality which they set in motion—the redeeming influences which have gone out from hundreds of sanctuaries—the many souls that have been converted in these once waste places of Zion—these, are an imperishable monument to the memory of those, who laid the foundations of so benevolent an institution.

Fifty-three congregations have been blessed by the beneficence of this Society the last year ; 32 of them with the regular ministrations of the Gospel, and the remainder with partial supplies. Several of them have also been visited with the special influences of the Holy Spirit. Fifty missionaries have been in commission, at an expenditure of $4,396 62. The receipts of the Society have been $4,321 63, and $662 57 have been paid by the state into the treasury of the Parent Society.

“Fidelity to the truth,” says the Secretary of the Society, Rev. BENJAMIN P. STONE, “compels us to say, that the state of our treasury was never more discouraging. Our receipts, the last year, have fallen off more than $500, while our appropriations have not been diminished, and the calls for aid have been increased.” “In other respects,” he says, “the aspect of the Home Missionary field in this state is still one of encouragement and hope. Though the number of revivals has been less, during the year, than in some preceding years, still the gradual advancement of morals and religion in many places, and the steady increase and delightful harmony of most of the churches under patronage, are most evident indications of the smiles of Heaven upon the cause in which we are engaged, and they are more than enough to compensate all its benefactors for the small sacrifices which they have made to sustain it.”

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Vermont was early entered, as a missionary field, by the Connecticut Missionary Society; and churches were planted there under its auspices, which are now among the most flourishing and vigorous in the land. These churches have, from their infancy, been sending out their pious teachers, their educated evangelical ministry, into other parts of the state—into the remotest sections of our land, and to the ends of the earth; and the bright light, which they are now throwing upon the mountains and pouring through the vallies of the state, is guiding multitudes of her people to a better life.

The Missionary Society of the state has been in operation twenty-three years. During the last year, fifty-four missionaries have been in its service, the larger part of whom have devoted their undivided attention to particular congregations, and several of them have been specially blessed in their labors. The receipts of the Society, so far as reported, have been $2,769 27; and the same amount has likewise been expended.

The large field within the state, that yet remains to be occupied by evangelical institutions, calls loudly upon the friends of Christ to give this cause far greater prominence in their benevolent efforts. There are not far from sixty towns in the state, in which there is no Congregational church organization, and as many more where churches exist with no permanent ministry. Can the churches in Vermont be engaged in a more benevolent service, than that of giving to these destitute at their very door the bread of life? Can they devise better things for their country or for the advancement of the kingdom of Christ over the earth, than by making it their first and great work, to bring all their fellow citizens under the power of the world to come?

The Rev. SAMUEL DELANO, who has served the Society as its Secretary, the last two years, with fidelity and success, has, during the year, yielded to his predilections for the pastoral office, and been installed over the church in Haverhill, New-Hampshire. The Rev. CEPHAS H. KENT was appointed in January as his successor, and has since been actively engaged in the duties of the office.

MASSACHUSETTS MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

There remained a balance in the treasury of this Society, April 1st, 1841, of $2,689 80; and the receipts, during the year, have been $15,635 91. The expenditures within the state, have been $11,562 05; $4,739 32 have been paid into the treasury of the American Home Missionary Society; and there remained a balance on hand, April 1st, 1842, of $2,024 34.

There have also been received into the treasury of the Parent Society, from the Hampshire Missionary Society, $1,510, from various individuals, congregations and auxiliaries, $2,150 40, in payment of legacies $5,669 65—in all $9,330 05; making the whole amount realized from the state to the cause of Home Missions, during the year, $24,965 96, which, including the amount received from legacies, is greater than the amount of preceding year by $3,782 92.

Eighty-three missionaries have been in the services of the Society during the year, ministering to not far from 10,000 souls, on an average from Sabbath to Sabbath, and distributing their pastorals labors among the 3,000 families from which these Sabbath congregations were gathered. At the date of the Society's last report, the churches aided contained not far from 4,200 members, nearly 500 having been added during the year, and ten of these churches had been blessed with seasons of special religious interest, and 200 souls had, in the judgment of charity, passed from death unto life; sixteen pastors had been settled, two houses of worship had been dedicated to God, six others were in progress of erection or soon to be commenced, and seven churches had changed the relation of beneficiaries, for that of benefactors to those who are now as needy as were once themselves.

The deep interest of the patrons of this Society in the work in which the National Institution is engaged, and for the advancement of which they make such generous contributions, as well as the enlightened and liberal christian policy which they would have pursued towards our unevangelized population, whether native citizens or strangers within our gates, is thus expressed in the last report of the Executive Committee, drawn up by the Secretary of the Society, the Rev. JOSEPH S. CLARK: "It is no longer to be doubted that the great events, and such as stand connected with the moral renovation of the world, are wrapped up in the future destiny of this nation, ready to be revealed by the action of just those causes which the spirit of missions is now putting in train. All the lines of Divine Providence seem converging to this one point. Even the growing numbers of the unevangelized among us do not form an exception; for a large proportion of these have come from less favored lands—brought hither in the providence of God, we may believe, not to overthrow our institutions, and change our customs, but to be WROUGHT UPON and RENOVATED BY THEM, if we are only true to the trust which Heaven has committed to our hands. We should reasonably expect just such a course of Divine Providence, were it known to be the will of God that this country should take a leading part in the regeneration of the world. Were it found written in prophecy, that the christian Church, which was planted on these shores 200 years ago, would attract the Gentiles to its light, and kings to the brightness of its rising, we should naturally presume that God would demand of us something more than missionaries to the heathen and the means of their support. These, of course, he would demand in large supplies; but we should think it highly probable that he would also bring multitudes from less enlightened lands to this, that they might be taught and moulded here, under all the advantages which free institutions and practical religion can afford. It would be wise economy, and greatly facilitate the work which he had given us to do. And if he should permit the Catholics to come in such numbers, as to render it extremely hazardous for us to neglect their salvation, it would only show more clearly what the mind of God was. It would be a still more impressive demonstration of the responsibility which he was putting upon us in regard to this world's conversion. Such, in fact, is the very aspect of his providence, in this particular, at the present time."

RHODE ISLAND HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society has had three missionaries laboring within its bounds the last year; one in the village of Woonsocket, one in Washington village, Coventry, and one in North Scituate. The church in Scituate have enjoyed an interesting revival of religion, during the year, and hope to be able to assume, another year, the entire support of their Gospel institutions. Two other churches, that were recently receiving missionary aid, have taken themselves from the list of dependent churches, and now rejoice in the privilege of extending a helping hand to others.

The expenditures of the Society, during the year, have been $1,075.

The Rev. MARK TUCKER, D. D., of Providence, is the Secretary of the Society.

CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The Missionary Society of Connecticut, having for its object the building up of the old wastes within the state, is of more recent origin than the Society of the same name, whose missionaries laid the foundations of christian institutions in Vermont, in Central and Western New-York, in "New-Connecticut," and in states and territories still farther west. This Home Society had completed, at its last anniversary, the twenty-fifth year of its operations, and the report of the Directors holds up the present state of the feeble churches within their limits, in delightful contrast with their condition a quarter of a century since; when, in the language of one who surveyed their desolations and made his report, "There were, in the state, districts as far from Heaven—and, without help, as hopeless of Heaven—as the Pagans of Hindoostan or China." Now, there is scarcely a spot in which a church can be gathered, with any prospect of permanency, where the sanctuary does not throw open its doors, inviting the people around it to the altars of God and the kingdom of Heaven. Sixty-eight feeble churches and waste places have been taken up by this Society since it commenced its labors, twenty-one of which are now sustaining the Gospel without aid.

The number of churches assisted the last year is forty-two; and from the returns made, they seem to have enjoyed, in more than ordinary measure, the divine blessing. Several of them have been visited with revivals of religion, and the cause of Temperance has made great advances in many of the congregations—"I have been led, in view of these facts," says the Secretary of the Society, the Rev. HORACE HOOKER, "to ask, what would have been the effect in regard to revivals, and especially in regard to Temperance, of letting these weak congregations become or remain waste? Would the dews of grace have descended on these barren, uncultivated fields?—or, if so, would they have produced verdure and fertility? Would the voice of praise for sin forgiven have gone up to Heaven? Would so strong an impulse have been felt by the unhappy slaves of appetite to cast off their chains, and come forth to the liberties of men, and in some cases, at least, to the liberty with which Christ makes his people free? To keep so many congregations open to the reviving influences of the Spirit, and to the various intellectual and moral influences which, in this age, are moulding the institutions and shaping the destinies of society, is not a work of small import."

The balance in the treasury of the Connecticut Missionary Society, Auxiliary to the American Home Missionary, April 1st, 1841, was $4,610 59.

The receipts, during the year, have been $6,184 07, exceeding those of the previous year by $2,939 29. The expenditures, within the state, have been $4,421 27, and $2,000 have also been paid into the treasury of the Parent Society; leaving a balance in the treasury of the Auxiliary, April 1st, 1842, of $4,373 39. There have also been received into the treasury of the A. H. M. S., from the Home Missionary Society of Fairfield West, the Home Missionary Society of New-Haven East, and from various congregations and Ladies' Auxiliaries, $4,432 41, and from legacies of individuals $1,525 61; making the whole amount realized to the cause of Home Missions from the state, during the year, $12,142 09—exceeding the amount of the last year, by $3,576 03. Grateful mention should be made, in connection with this increase of funds, of the very efficient agency of the Rev. G. J. Tillotson, in the early part of the year, especially in Litchfield county; as well as of the temporary labors of Rev. Augustus Pomeroy in the eastern part of the state.

PHILADELPHIA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The field occupied by this Society—extending over the states of Pennsylvania, New-Jersey, Delaware and Maryland—includes an area of 70 thousand square miles, with a population of nearly 3,000,000. While many of the cities, towns and villages, which adorn it, are blessed with an able evangelical ministry, there are regions of destitution, of broad extent—some of them densely populated, and others, where the dominion of the forest is scarcely broken—that make their strong appeal to the churches of Christ, for the immediate establishment of the institutions of the Gospel.

The work of supplying these destitute places, and strengthening the things that remain in all the feeble churches within their limits, the Philadelphia Home Missionary Society has been vigorously and successfully prosecuting, the past year.

Sixty-one missionaries have been in commission; 45 of them in Pennsylvania, 11 in New-Jersey, 2 in Delaware, 1 in Maryland, and 1 in the District of Columbia. Thirty-eight of these have been employed as pastors or stated supplies, in single congregations, thirteen have had charge of two congregations each, and ten have occupied still larger fields. The Society has thus extended the services of the living ministry and the blessings of Gospel ordinances, to 80 congregations—the number of congregations being 15 greater, and the number of missionaries 12 greater than in the preceding year. Ten of the churches aided have enjoyed revivals of religion, some of which have been remarkable for their extent and power. Four new churches have been organized—seven houses of public worship completed and six others commenced.

Three hundred and seven have been added to the churches; 2,249 pupils are connected with their Sabbath schools, and 4,209 names are attached to the pledge of total abstinence from every thing that can intoxicate. “The cause of Temperance,” says the Secretary of the Society, Rev. ELIAS R. FAIRCHILD, “has made astonishing advances in almost every part of our field. Individuals, families, churches, towns and large districts, have reaped incalculable benefit from its influence.”

The expenditures of the Society, during the year, have been $8,579 92; and the receipts for the 11 months reported were $7,513 06. The subscriptions which have been made, and the collections to be taken up for the fragment of the year, since the date of the report, it was hoped, would make the aggregate of receipts fully equal to those of the last year, notwithstanding the peculiar difficulties which have been experienced on that field, in the collection of funds.

CENTRAL AGENCY, AT UTICA, N. Y.

The income of this Agency, during the past year, has been $3,743 47. In the same period, it has pledged assistance to 41 missionaries. These, with others whose previous appointments had not expired, make 52 laborers on this field, who have performed, since the last report, 40 years of ministerial service, in 55 churches. Seven of these churches are reported as enjoying seasons of special revival, while in others there has been more than the usual amount of spiritual refreshing. In 12 churches, 400, in the judgment of charity, have been born again, and upwards of 300 received on profession of their faith. Other signs of prosperity are also noted, such as the erection or improvement of houses of worship, and the strengthening of some congregations, so as to require no further aid in supporting the Gospel.

But the most signal event in the history of the missionary churches of this region, during the last year, has been the progress of the Temperance reform. The Secretary of the Agency, Rev. ABIJAH CRANE, remarks, that "the power of God has been as manifest in this, as in a general revival of religion. No instance is known, in which this peculiar movement has begun out of the bounds of a christian congregation, or where the Gospel was not preached. The work has not, as yet, spread over the whole territory, but as far as it has gone, the great mass of the people, temperate and intemperate, have yielded to its influence. In many places, nearly the whole congregation, and all within their bounds, men, women and children, have taken refuge from the burning element under the pledge of total abstinence." In addition to the immediate and obvious benefits of this glorious work, the observance of the Sabbath, and the attendance on public worship, have been, in some places, greatly promoted; and in several instances, these were but the commencement of still more important changes. Scarcely was the foul demon of intemperance expelled, and a hope awakened of temporal comfort, ere the Spirit of God entered to possess the soul, and cheer it with the joys of a christian hope.

WESTERN AGENCY AT GENEVA, N. Y.

The labors of the Secretary of this Agency, Rev. JOHN A. MURRAY, have been more embarrassed by the prevailing pecuniary difficulties than in any former year. The same cause has rendered dependant on missionary aid, several congregations which had previously sustained the Gospel without assistance ; and has brought again upon the list of beneficiaries 4 churches, which were once aided, but had recently attempted to sustain themselves. The receipts of the Agency for the year, amount to $6,378 34, being $3,173 51 less than in the year previous. Nevertheless, there is a decided advance both in the number of missionaries and the amount of labor performed. Sixty-four appointments have been issued, making the whole number employed on this field 82, including those mentioned in the last report, whose terms of service extended into the present year ; and the labor performed by them, in 93 congregations, is equal to 60 years. Twenty-one of these missionaries were not in commission the previous year.

Among the more marked results within the bounds of this Agency since the last report, is the impulse given to the cause of Temperance. Nearly all the missionaries enumerate the trophies of this reform by hundreds, and one mentions that, in a single town, 1500 have signed the pledge of total abstinence within the year. By events like these, the moral tone of society has been elevated, churches have been filled with hearers, and the general interests of congregations promoted. Eighteen of these pastors have reported seasons of special interests among their flocks, which have resulted in hopefully reclaiming 500 wanderers ; and 345 have been, for the first time, received into the fold. Three churches have provided parsonages, and thirteen have within the year completed or commenced houses of worship.

For further particulars respecting this Agency, see its Report in the Appendix.

WESTERN RESERVE DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Twenty missionaries have been in commission, during the whole or a part of the year, on the field of this Auxiliary, and 17 of them have received their compensation from its funds. The amount of labor performed is about 12 years. Notwithstanding, local causes have prevented so harmonious a co-operation of the churches on this field with each other and the Auxiliary, as is desirable, there has been, at least, a strengthening of the things that remain, and that were ready to die : and also, in some cases, a gratifying increase of spiritual prosperity. The absence of a convertible currency, at that portion of the year when collections for this cause are principally made, prevented an increase of income. The receipts of the year have been $1,048 22. The Secretary of the Society, Rev. WM. F. CURRY, has felt himself called, by the providence of God, to retire at the close of the year from the exposures of an agency, and to devote himself to the duties of the pastoral office.

This important field, so fertile in its soil—washed on one border by an inland sea, and divided by a canal, that gives it the choice of an eastern or a southern market, and overspread with the enterprising sons of the Pilgrims—must of necessity exert a powerful influence on the regions beyond ; and therefore it deserves a speedy and vigorous effort, to pervade it with the best influences of a permanent ministration of the Gospel.

MARIETTA AGENCY, OHIO.

Six missionaries have labored within the bounds of this Agency since the last report, and four of them been sustained by its funds. The receipts have amounted to $583 09, and the expenditures to $448 20. Scattered over the nine counties comprised in the Agency, there are but 20 Presbyterian and Congregational churches, among a population of 140,000 souls. Few as they are, these churches are all, but one or two, in need of help from abroad ; and almost all, except those supplied by the A. H. M. S., are destitute of the stated preaching of the Gospel. The demand for missionary labor is exceedingly importunate. Says the Secretary, Rev. HENRY SMITH, “the region included in the bounds of this Agency is the ‘hill country’ of the West. In its soil and surface it is another New-England ; in the laborious habits, vigor, and enterprise of its inhabitants, it wears the same aspect ; and could it have any thing like an adequate amount of spiritual culture, it would soon bring forth an abundant harvest, and become itself a storehouse of spiritual blessings to other sections of the West.”

CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF AGENCY FOR THE WESTERN STATES, AT CINCINNATI, OHIO.

The position of this Agency, in the midst of that assemblage of sovereignties which stretch from the Allegany mountains to the Mississippi, is one calculated to oppress the hearts and overburden the hands of those who are called to manage its concerns. In so many surrounding states, the uncultivated fields are great in number and vast in extent ; and were there no difficulties of a pecuniary nature, the agency would still be arduous. But the commercial distresses of the country greatly increase the natural obstacles to success. The Secretary and Agent, Rev. HENRY LIT-TLE, reports, that, "it is almost literally true, that away from the centers of business there is no money," and that in the collection of funds, it has sometimes been necessary to "receive subscriptions in such articles of produce as the people could give." This state of general depression is aggravated by the fact, that a large portion of the community is now suffering from a previous excessive exhaustion of plans and hopes. When the public was universally possessed by the mania of speculation, congregations commenced the erection of churches larger than they could finish. They invited ministers, and promised them an ample support,—not because they were able to pay it, even then, but because they expected to be able in a year or two. So also, in their individual affairs, the members of churches—their heads swimming with the intoxication of prospective wealth—assumed enormous liabilities. When the tide turned, not only was their liberality cut off from the support of all good objects, but they were left to struggle for an indefinite period to pay their debts, with the price of their products reduced to the lowest point. Hence, to the ministry, it is a time of unexampled trial, and the extension of missionary operations, in these circumstances, would seem to be almost a physical impossibility. With what gratitude to God, then, should we record, that during the last year, the receipts of the agency have amounted to about $3,000, besides $300 raised in Missouri, and left for appropriation in the hands of the Society recently formed in that state; and also about $600 collected in the bounds of the Marietta agency, and paid into its treasury. The total increase above the collections of the previous year is, therefore, equal to $700. The number of missionaries in commission has risen from 18 to 34. In some portions of the field, the spirit of revival has been enjoyed, and the word of God is attended with unwonted power; and some of the ecclesiastical bodies are attempting a systematic supply of all the destitute within their bounds, with, at least, occasional preaching. Thus, from behind the dark cloud of temporal embarrassment, some cheering rays shine forth, giving promise that the day-spring from on high is drawing near.

OTHER AUXILIARIES AND AGENCIES IN THE WEST.

During the year past an auxiliary Home Missionary Society has been formed for the state of Missouri. As it is but in its infancy, no report has as yet been made of its operations.

The central position and prospective influence of this portion of the great valley, have, from its first settlement, attracted public attention, and the state already numbers 400,000 inhabitants.

The adherents of Rome have here concentrated a large amount of means for subjugating the West to their power. In Missouri, and the adjacent portions of Illinois and Arkansas, they have no less than 74 priests, with literary institutions of every grade, in which at least a thousand youth are now in a process of training. In the whole region beyond the Alleghanies, their ecclesiastics are more than 300 in number; and the higher seminaries of learning—including universities, theological schools, and academies for male pupils—amount to 23; besides 34 female academies, and numerous institutions of inferior grade. Apart from the elementary schools, these contain an aggregate of something like 3,000 pupils. Here, then, the very heart of the West is infected, and through its great natural arteries, every pulsation throws abroad a stream of influence, baneful to the civil freedom and religious well-being of unnumbered thousands.

In Illinois, the Society has had for the last year no other than the occasional, voluntary agency of Rev. F. BASCOM, pastor of a church at Chicago. In the bounds of the Presbytery of Alton, and of the Ottawa Presbytery and Fox River Association, missionaries have been sustained to labor in a wider sphere than usual, and to exercise, to a limited extent, the duties of agents. In reviewing the events of the past year, Mr. Bascom remarks, that “there has been much to encourage hope and awaken gratitude, and not a little to produce painful feelings. There is perhaps no part of our country where greater harmony prevails among Presbyterian and Congregational churches than in Northern Illinois. There is a substantial agreement among them in doctrines and measures, and a good degree of forbearance in regard to points of difference. The ministrations of the Gospel have been blessed to the conversion of souls in a greater degree than in any previous year. There have been extensive and precious revivals of religion in all the more important villages on Fox River, and in many other villages and settlements further west. Hundreds, through the instrumentality of your missionaries, have been brought to the saving knowledge of the truth. In these glorious results angels rejoice, and we thank God and take courage. But though the moral power of our churches has been increased, their pecuniary ability to sustain the institutions of the Gospel, is still feeble and precarious. A door of hope was opened to our farmers, last autumn, by the state of the wheat market; but it was soon closed by the great depreciation of the currency, for which they had exchanged the products of their toil. But although these reverses embarrass our religious institutions, and increase the degree, and extend the period of our dependence, still they are not the most painful circumstances which your agent has to contemplate. The numerous, extensive, and long-continued destitutions which still abound, are the darkest feature in the moral aspect of this field. I could enumerate at least ten important villages and country settlements in the northern section of this state, where ministers are imperiously demanded, and where the prospect of their usefulness would be abundantly encouraging. Could I spread out the appeals which I have received from these places before the unemployed ministers and theological students at the East—could I present to their minds the condition and prospects of these places, as they appear to me, I am sure it would not be in vain. If their prevailing desire is to labor where they can do most for the kingdom of Christ, they would only need to know the facts in relation to these places, to prepare them to say, ‘Here am I, send me.’ Within twenty miles of Chicago there are hundreds of families as destitute of religious privileges as if they lived in the heart of a heathen country.”

Similar testimony is not wanting to prove the need of evangelical labor in the central and southern portions of the state.

Wisconsin.—The salutary effect of planting the Gospel in our western settlements in their earliest infancy, is most happily illustrated in Wisconsin. To most of the new states attention was not called until the population had assumed such a character that missionary efforts were necessarily remedial rather than preventive. In the case of this interesting territory, the effort has been to begin in season, and to keep pace with the increase of the people. In carrying out this purpose, the Committee were greatly cheered by the timely pledge, by one individual, of a thousand dollars for this specific object; and the impulse thus given to the enterprise has not been lost. Three years ago, only 4 missionaries of this Society were laboring on that field; a year since there were 9; and during the twelve months now closing, 19 have been under appointment. Twenty-four of the 35 churches in the territory enjoy the fostering aid of this institution, and upon at least 10 of them, God has poured out his reviving and converting grace. With this divine impulse have been associated other blessings. Great harmony in counsel and labor characterize the ministers and churches. Sabbath schools, containing more than 1,000 pupils, are already organized in the territory, while hundreds more are collected into Bible classes. The various benevolent enterprises of the day are brought before the people, and receive the cordial patronage of these infant churches. The principle that “the laborer is worthy of his hire,” is recognized; and the liberality of many in the support of their ministers is such as to involve great sacrifices—thus showing how precious to themselves, to their children, and to the welfare of the country of their adoption, they esteem the order of Christ's house.

The progress of the Society's operations in this territory, is intimately associated with the zeal and enterprise of Rev. STEPHEN PEET, by whose voluntary agency the field was explored, and its resources spread before the public; and who, since the last report, has been appointed the Society's agent, and is employed wholly in its service.

In Iowa, the Rev. ASA TURNER continues to devote a portion of his labors to a missionary agency, in ascertaining the fields most eligible and needy, and in laboring among the feeble and destitute churches.

There is a period in the early history of almost every western settlement, which may be called its moral climacteric, when many hostile influences combine to test, to the utmost, the vigor of whatever spiritual life it may possess. This crisis once favorably passed, and the improvement of society is a work of comparative ease. Such a period, we apprehend, the present is to Iowa. Besides the almost unexampled depreciation in the value of its products, there has been no currency for which they could be exchanged. To these temporal difficulties have been added the influences of Infidelity—undisguised and rancorous; of Romanism—subtle, diligent, and well supplied with resources; of Mormonism—with its array of numbers, its pretended revelations and miracles; and of a diversity of sects, bearing the christian name, but distracting the community, and agreeing only in casting embarrassments in the way of those who labor simply for the spiritual kingdom of Christ. But notwithstanding these obstacles, there has been a marked advance during the year. The number of missionaries has increased from 6 to 12. On several of the churches the Spirit of grace has descended, imparting strength to ministers and people, and multiplying the trophies of redeeming love.

It is impossible to contemplate the condition and prospects of this most exuberant and inviting territory without deep solicitude. It is but as yesterday, since it had not even a name among the great sisterhood of states; and to day it is about to take its place, full grown, among them. Ten years since, the first strip of its territory was ceded by the Indian to the white man; five years ago, its population was but 12,000; and now, in less than 4 years from its political birth, the people are well nigh 50,000. This living tide has flowed right on, unchecked by the temporal reverses of the times ; and every where, on upland and by the river side, in forest and prairie, the sound of families is heard, and human hope and enterprise are urging on the toil and rivalry of social life. But where are the moral influences that should direct this amount of awakened mind ? Where are the twenty ministers and the means of their support, that ought to be sent to that territory before another year shall end ? We ask these questions in the belief that the church has ample resources, and that there are yet some of her sons who are willing to leave the old fortresses of Zion, and to go and stand by the side of their brethren, in the front rank of the van-guard of her armies.

CANADA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Although on some accounts, it would be proper to leave the cultivation of this part of the great moral field to missionary societies more directly related to Great Britain, yet so large is the admixture of settlers from the United States among the population of Canada, that the time for the withdrawal of our assistance seems not yet to have arrived. During the past year, the Auxiliary has commissioned 5 missionaries, towards the support of 3 of whom the Parent Society has contributed, and has also sustained 5 others for the whole or a part of the year. The receipts, according to the report of the Secretary, Rev. C. STRONG, of Montreal, amounted to $1,603 64, of which there remains an unexpended balance of $839 49.

All these missions are regarded as prosperous and useful, not only because of their immediate results, but also for their indirect and silent influence on the Catholic population of the Eastern Townships, where most of them are situated.

THE HAND OF GOD, AS MANIFESTED IN THE PRESENT ASPECTS OF THE MISSIONARY FIELD IN THE WEST.

EMBARRASMENTS IN THE WEST.

The pecuniary disasters of the country, and especially the protracted dependence of the western churches on missionary aid,—which are so frequently adverted to,—might be regarded as grounds of discouragement, were the prospects of the cause to be estimated only by the visible course of events. But such is not the standard by which to judge the ways of Him, who “is wonderful in council and excellent in working.” Those embarrassments which have fallen with such peculiar weight upon the new states, are, we trust, the very means employed for their salvation. For twenty years past—ever since the physical grandeur and the moral bearings of that vast empire opened on the eye of the church—she has borne it on her heart before God, and besought him to consecrate all its greatness for himself. It is this very prayer, which he is now answering in his own mysterious way. There was a time, when the West was the theatre of unbounded speculation. The entire mass of eastern capital and activity, that could be separated from other forms of adventure, was directed thither; and the ardent and enterprising, as well as the reckless and discontented, rushed, as by a common impulse, to that land of promise. The tide of worldliness swept over the new states, widening as it rolled, and bearing before it even the peculiar people and churches of God. In the din of competition for the golden prize, the still small voice of principle was well nigh drowned; and it seemed as if an apostate church were about to sink into the idolatry that accounts gain as godliness; while the great multitude of unconverted minds could not be held in check to listen to the whispers of eternity. Had this phrenzy continued, its blighting effect on the spiritual prosperity of the West, would have been far more baneful than that of all other hostile influences. As well might a vineyard flourish in the tornado's path, or the foundations of a house be laid amid the rushing waves of a cataract, as the temple of the Lord be built amid such a torrent of worldliness. But the prayers and alms of many fathers and mothers in Israel, in behalf of that fair land, had come up for a memorial before God, and he would not give it up. He stretched forth his hand, and the overflowing scourge rolled back. The proud schemes of unsanctified enterprise he dashed to the ground. They, who but lately were rich and increased in goods, and felt that they had need of nothing, finding their splendid visions dispelled, now gladly gather the crumbs that fall from the children's table. Behold, in this, the goodness as well as the severity of God! This very adversity has saved the West. It has repressed inordinate enterprise, and sobered the aims of men; it has sifted the people, and driven or kept away many an unprincipled adventurer, whose influence would have been only to corrupt. Meanwhile, in their trials, the humbled churches hear the awakening voice of the Holy Spirit, as he turns again the captivity of Zion; and copious showers of grace are poured out to refresh the garden of God.

ROMAN CATHOLIC IMMIGRATION.

Another fact in the history of the Valley of the Mississippi, which has awakened the solicitude of the friends of our country, is the rapid increase of foreign immigration. The presence among us of more than a million of persons of foreign birth and associations, having under their training another million of children, and able to cast into our ballot boxes nearly half a million of votes for whatever party will do most to conciliate them,—with the fact that all this moral and political influence may be concentrated and wielded by a few ecclesiastics, who are themselves the instruments of a foreign power,—are circumstances that should startle from inactive repose, every patriot and friend of evangelical religion. But while these facts afford just reasons for redoubled vigilance and effort, they furnish no ground for discouragement. On the contrary, such an extensive migration of the subjects of false religion to this land of light and civil liberty, is one of the most striking events of the age; and one that unfolds another leaf of our country's eventful destiny. Hitherto, American Christians have not appreciated the share which this nation is to have in the conversion of the world. They have been wont to measure their influence by the amount of means which they could send to grapple with the leading forms of error in distant lands. But heaven is evidently assigning us a more signal service and a higher reward. The most formidable foe to the universal spread of the Gospel is, doubtless, to be found in the Roman apostacy; and to meet and overcome this foe, will be among the most arduous and illustrious victories of the people of God. If, then, in the arrangements of Providence, we are permitted to wage this warfare on our own ground, let the conflict come. Where else could the contest be bloodless, where so successful as here—here, where no racks nor tortures forestal the force of argument—here, where the benighted children of error will be surrounded and pervaded by the silent but resistless influence of our schools and presses; here, where every one of them may stand erect and feel that he is a man, and may assert his right to doubt, as well as to believe—to discuss and judge, as well as to listen and obey? Instead, therefore, of deprecating the coming of so many foreigners as a curse, we should regard it as the FULFILMENT OF OUR NATIONAL DESTINY the spreading out, on our own soil, of the work that God has given us to do. Let, then, the victims of oppression and of error gather to our shores. Let them come with good or with evil intent; as exiles fleeing from tyranny, or as emissaries to spy out and possess the land—let them come. We will meet them on the beach, with bread in one hand, and the Gospel in the other, and welcome them to the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free. The enemy “meaneth not so, neither doth his heart think so; for it is in his heart,” by these migrations, “to destroy and to cut off nations not a few.” But God, meanwhile, is bringing “the blind by a way that they knew not, and leading them in paths that they have not known.” Roman Catholic immigration can be dangerous to us, only when we are false to our great trust. Their numbers, their boldness, their resources, do indeed demand that the churches should throw their utmost energies into the work of our country's salvation—should thrust out into the field every laborer, and seize on every point of vantage, and leave no corner of the land so dark, that in it error may securely hide. If this be done, and done in season, we need not tremble for the result.

But this must be accomplished, and that too without delay. To omit or postpone it, is ruin to ourselves and treason against heaven. The universal diffusion of the best influences of the Gospel, throughout our whole country, is the appointed mission of the American church. God has made this as plain by his providence as if a voice from the skies had spoken to her. By a thousand leagues of ocean, he has shut her out from the rest of the christian world, and spread her great field around her, and bidden her to subdue and keep it. The dimensions of this field are computed by millions of square miles, and its people will soon be numbered by hundreds of millions, speaking one language, and bound together by facilities of travel, the interests of trade, and by moral ties that no merely political changes can ever effectually sunder. Where else—in what age or country—has there been assigned to any division of the church, a work so obviously and exclusively its own—so direct and simple, and yet so vast in its extent and consequences? Truly, God “hath not dealt so with any nation!” And shall we not recognize and fulfil this high calling? Shall more time be lost by delay, while the work enlarges and obstacles every day increase? All the aspects of our country bid us to make haste. Its growth and promise, its wants and dangers, admonish us that the decisive effort must be made NOW, or NEVER. If we regard these signs of the times, and go forward, trusting in the Lord, we cannot fail. He who made a path through the sea, when it lay in the way of an advancing church, will break down all obstacles before us. Our past success is but the voice of his providence saying “Behold, the Lord thy God hath set the land before thee; go up and possess it, as the Lord God of thy fathers hath said unto thee; FEAR NOT, NEITHER BE DISCOURAGED!”

EXTRACTS FROM THE SIXTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT.

During the year ending April 26, 1842, the Board have commissioned 72 missionaries to perform 71 years of missionary labor in 82 churches. The whole number employed on this field, including those commissioned last year, whose commissions extended into this, is 85, and the whole number of churches aided is 98.

Results.

The Gospel has been preached steadily in nearly 100 congregations. The missionary churches have been more generally supplied than at any former period. Twenty-one of the missionaries were not in the service of the Society the previous year. Five new fields have been taken up. Three ministers have been installed pastors of their respective churches. Three churches have intimated their intention of sustaining the Gospel hereafter without missionary aid. Nearly all the missionaries speak of the impulse that has been given to the temperance cause. One has reported 1500 new pledges to this cause, and nearly every one speaks of hundreds who have signed the pledge during the year. Many taverns, and some of them of the best class, have been changed into temperance houses—and one distillery has been converted into a temporary meeting-house. This reformation will cause more persons to attend public worship. It will add to the strength of all our congregations. And this year, though not as highly blessed with revivals and additions to the churches as some other years, will be regarded, on account of the great temperance reformation, as a year of distinguished blessings.

Some of the missionaries speak of seasons of unusual interest. Twenty-one churches have reported revivals, which have resulted in the hopeful conversion of about 600 persons. Sixteen of these churches have reported more than 500 cases of hopeful conversion. The missionaries have reported 680 additions; 436 of which were on profession.

The Rev. Mead Holmes, Missionary at Ellicottville, writes—"We rejoice over more than 100 cases of hopeful conversion. The proprietor of our principal hotel, both our editors, several professional men—several merchants—many mechanics and farmers are subjects of the work. Nine abandoned drunkards have been reclaimed, and give evidence of piety. Some 40 new family altars have been reared. There is an interesting group of young men, among whom we hope to find some candidates for the ministry. I never realized so clearly the import of that passage, 'Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power.' There were two of the most terrific cases of conviction I ever witnessed. One was a young man, an apostate, of a religious family—the other a notorious blasphemer, gambler and drunkard, who had not had a christian relative on his own or his wife's side for several generations. But now he can count eight of his relatives who have taken their stand on the side of the Lord. What a change in that circle of relatives! What cannot Almighty Grace effect?" Similar scenes have been reported by other missionaries. The Lord has been with them and their labors have been crowned with his rich blessing.

There has been, it is believed, a wholesome improvement in most of our missionary churches. Several have purchased parsonages. Thirteen have erected or commenced building houses of worship. In most of the churches aided, Sabbath schools and Bible classes have been in successful operation. Prayer meetings have been stately held. The churches, as feeble lights in a dark place, have been watched over and kept from extinction. They have been strengthened and blessed from on high. Their influence is felt in the gradual abandonment of open vice, and in the better observance and sanctification of the Sabbath. In many places, before the missionary came among them, they had no Sabbath. Their Sabbaths were spent in hunting, gambling, horse-racing, drunkenness and kindred vices—but now, through the influence of the Gospel, as preached by the missionaries, and of the churches they gathered, the Sabbath, to a pleasing extent, has been saved from desecration, and now regularly beams on those places with its holy, peaceful, and elevating influences.

Disbursements.

To sustain the missionaries on this field the Board have voted $6735. But as seven of the missionaries have been obliged to leave their respective fields without completing the full time for which they were commissioned, the sums pledged to the missionaries will not exceed $6300. An unusually large number of churches have applied for aid, and they have required larger appropriations than would have answered in favorable years. Nor have we granted all the aid asked, and that the reasonable wants of the missionaries have demanded. We have been obliged, in many instances, to grant a smaller sum than was asked; when, from the known wants of the missionaries, it would have been more congenial to our feelings to have exceeded their requests. But we can only give as the churches give us the ability. When they withhold their donations, it is felt in the embarrassments and sufferings of our missionaries, who, unknown and almost unthanked, are toiling, with the spirit of martyrs, for God and for their country.

Receipts.

The receipts of the agency the present year are $6378 34 falling short of those of the previous year $3,173 51. This decrease is more in appearance than in reality. To a considerable extent the ladies in our churches made their effort for Home Missions in a way that did not add to our receipts. We have a list of 31 valuable boxes of clothing made up by them, 20 of which were valued at $1460. And the others judging from the places where they were made, would increase this sum to $2000. Besides a great change has come over the prospects and hopes of men. Many to whom, in former years, we could apply for efficient help, are now able to render but little pecuniary assistance. Some years, 54 men have sustained a missionary each by individual donations of $100. Last year from three individuals $3098 were obtained—but this year only eight have been found who have sustained a missionary by a donation of $100 each, and we have no donations larger than $100.

The following improvement of one of our moral wastes has fallen under our knowledge during the year. We record it to the encouragement of the friends of Home Missions, and to the praise of the Redeemer.

About six years ago a feeble church was organized in Youngstown, near Fort Niagara, with seven members, only two of whom were males. The first year a Home Missionary labored with them a part of the year, one fourth of the time. The next year they undertook to sustain the gospel all the time, with the assistance of $100 from the Missionary Society. The third year they sustained the Gospel without missionary aid. The fifth year the Secretary visited the congregation, and received a donation for Home Missions to the amount of $194. Last year, in addition to sustaining the gospel among themselves, they probably contributed $1500 to the different benevolent objects of the day, $1160 of which were contributed to the American Board. When there in March, we were informed that within a year they had been blessed with two distinct revivals, and that as the fruits of these revivals, 150 persons, during that time, had made a public profession of Christianity.

The Committee at New-York resolved, at their last anniversary, in May, 1841, to enlarge their operations. Their pledges to the missionaries have been increased, while the receipts of the Society have been diminished. We have been aware of this, and have aimed to make our appropriations as low as possible; and in a number of instances where we were obliged to bestow less aid than was asked, we have found that it fell heavily on a suffering missionary. Many of the missionaries in Western New-York could tell of sufferings endured in the prosecution of their work, that would excite the deepest sympathy in the Church of Christ. But they suffer in silence. Their trials are hid in their own breast or told only to their God. We know it must be so from the scanty support they generally receive, and from the kind of pay they are often obliged to take. They suffer like men and like Christians. They do not complain although it is often evident from their reports that their soul is in deep waters. A missionary writes, whose appropriation we had felt obliged to reduce $25, "I have not received $50 from my people in 15 months. I have to take property. The people cannot pay what they have not. I have been compelled to ask the aid of friends." Another writes: "Money is almost out of the question. I have received during this year not one cent from my people." Another writes: "My year has now closed; it has been a year of great labor and little compensation, except from your Society. I have received not more than $30 from my people. Yet I have not labored in vain.—They have built them a delightful chapel—improved greatly in their singing—the temperance cause has flourished greatly—the Sabbath school has done much good, and in the day schools the testament is generally read. Three or four family altars have been erected, and the Sabbath is much better regarded than when I first came here." Another writes, "I have received during the year only $3, and $4 in hay. If the whole of the subscription for my support, and the missionary aid voted me had been paid, my salary would have been $234 50. I have a wife and two children, and my salary is all my subsistence. I am now so feeble as not to be able to do any thing, having been sick four weeks—having no salary, and no income. I am in indigent circumstances. Were you at my fire-side, I could show you that ministers at the West are not the only missionaries who suffer."

It is evident from these reports, and from others of a similar character that might be made public, that no class of men are making such great sacrifices to forward this enterprise as the missionaries themselves. They are called to endure hardship, and sacrifice, and self-denial, and suffering in this work, and we doubt not many of them rejoice that they are counted worthy to suffer for the sake of Christ. "Our Home Missionaries," writes a gentleman of Massachusetts, "are not cared for by the churches as they ought to be. They are martyrs—if we have any—in our country's cause." In most instances it is believed the missionaries would be obliged to leave their fields, were it not for the aid of the A. H. M. S. Generally, they would receive a better support were they to seek employment in the more able churches. One in Cattaraugus county writes: "My people can raise this year for my support only $250. If your Society will grant me $100 I can remain. If you cannot, I must yield to a call to settle over a congregation on a salary of $600. But this is no temptation to me. I feel as though I must see the salvation of God among this dear people. My heavenly Father owns the universe; and I am sure I shall live well enough on $350, especially since he has taken our three little children to himself and left their parents to toil and labor and make sacrifices for the good of others."

"It is a well known fact," says a late writer, "that there are scores of unemployed ministers, who, in continuing so, are suffering a living martyrdom; and yet are prevented by poverty from going where the ripening harvest is perishing for want of their labor. They are in debt for their education. Or they have families, or dependants, who cannot dispense with their presence and support; or that make their necessary wants too great to be met by the limited salary which missionaries receive. But the present restricted income of Home Missions almost compels the Society to pass by all these men, however varied and rich their qualifications, and to select chiefly young men, or those whose domestic relations admit of their being appointed at the lowest cost.—Now what a fact is this to be told the church in this country, that a leading qualification of the agency she employs must be its cheapness? And that if her waste places cannot be built without more expense, they must still lie desolate and the laborers must stand idle."

"My ministerial life," writes a missionary, "which now numbers 12 years, has been spent among the destitute churches in Ohio, and in Erie, and in Chautauque counties, of this state. For four years I have lived on a salary averaging less than $200 per year. I would indeed still continue to feed my body on such a salary. But my mind is starving for want of an adequate library. I cannot therefore consent to labor as I have done any longer."

General Results.

During the 16 years of this Agency it has granted 848 commissions to 312 different missionaries, to perform 827 years of missionary service in 270 churches. The sums voted to sustain these missionaries amount to $72,000. During this time it is believed that 100 meeting-houses have been built by the churches when receiving aid. During the last 8 years 60 meeting-houses have been built or commenced by the missionary churches. One hundred of the churches that have been aided on this field, including the few previously aided by the United Domestic Missionary Society, from May, 1822, to May, 1826, are now able to sustain the gospel without missionary aid. There have been raised on this field for the A. H. M. S. $112,000, and this has exceeded the sums paid the missionaries $40,000, which surplus has aided the Parent Society in sending the Gospel to other parts of our country. The Agency has furnished the means of securing to the feeble churches of our land, "One thousand years of missionary labor."

TWELFTH ANNUAL REPORT.

The Christian pastor, as he stands upon the verge of a new year, and looks over the events of the one which has just become blended with eternal ages, is filled with mingled and stirring emotions. When he looks at the low standard of religion in his church;—their want of sympathy with Christ, and the low value they place on his Gospel;—their attachment to perishing things and their want of interest in glorifying God and saving men; and when he thinks how few have been turned from the power of Satan unto God, with yearning solicitude he exclaims, "Who hath believed our report? to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?" But when he contrasts his people with those who have no pastor;—when he remembers the ignorance which has been dissipated, the error which has been rebuked, and the tide of iniquity that has been checked;—when he thinks how many souls have been cheered in their temptations and conflicts,—how the dying hours of some have been rendered not only comfortable but blissful, by the messages he has borne;—when he sees that morality, benevolence, and piety, are increasing among his people, and that some fallen spirits have been born again; he adores the grace that put him into the ministry,—he thanks God and takes courage.

With such a pastor this Agency can most heartily sympathize. Our connexion with the elements of human society, though upon a vastly extended scale, brings upon us much of the responsibility and many of the sorrows and joys of the pastoral office. While reviewing our missionary labor the past year, and presenting some of its details to our patrons and the Parent Board, in our Twelfth Annual Report, we find much to humble us, and enough to swell our notes of gratitude and praise.

Missionaries, Churches, Pledges, Receipts.

The whole number of missionaries, whose term of service has fallen within the year, is 52, and the number of churches, which have received our patronage, is 55, and six other churches have, in consequence, enjoyed stated preaching a portion of the time. We have given pledges, during the year, to 44 churches, amounting to $3,585. Forty-one missionaries have been commissioned, each for twelve months, 36 of whom are wholly employed under these commissions. The receipts of this Agency, within the year, exclusive of about $1,400, sent from the eastern counties directly to New-York, are $3,743 47.

Labor done, Results.

Our missionaries have performed 40 years labor since our last report. Three of them have been installed pastors, and others are expecting soon to enter into that sacred relation. In five waste places the Gospel standard has been planted, and in some of them the trophies of grace are already multiplied. Three of our churches have signified their intention to sustain the Gospel without aid. Four houses of worship have been built and dedicated. From eight churches revivals of religion are reported, and in others there have been seasons of spiritual refreshing. About 400 have been hopefully converted to God. More than 300 have been received by the churches on confession, and about 130 by letter. Sabbath School and Bible Class instruction has been imparted, as usual, in all our congregations. All our missionary churches contribute annually to different benevolent objects, and some of them give in charity much more than they receive from us. Many of them have shared liberally the past year, with the abler churches, in furnishing clothing for the suffering brethren at the West.

Pecuniary Embarrassments.

Our missionaries and their poor congregations have had to struggle with pecuniary embarrassments beyond any former year. Fears had been awakened before, but now the reality is felt. We are not aware, however, that one of the brethren has left his post for lack of "the meat that perisheth." All have been disposed to share the trials and privations of their respective flocks, and to aid them in their temporal necessities by the consolations of the Gospel. Some of them have felt a very strong sympathy for their western brethren who are so painfully afflicted with oppressive poverty. They have not only encouraged their people to soften the trials of western missionaries, by clothing their families, but have themselves given one twelfth of their small salary to cheer the hearts of those martyrs in the cause of our church and our country. Would the members of our churches generally practice half the self-denial that some of the missionaries do in this state, our western brethren would no longer have their "usefulness hindered," their "spirits broken," their "health ruined," or be driven from their beloved work, by crushing poverty.

Temperance Triumph.

The triumph of the temperance cause has distinguished the past year. Former labors in this work have been crowned with encouraging success, but nothing like the present has ever before been seen. The power of God has been as manifest as in a general revival of religion. And it is worthy of special notice, that we know not a solitary instance where this peculiar movement has begun, out of the bounds of a Christian congregation, nor where the Gospel was not preached. The work has not yet spread into all our congregations, but as far as it has gone, the great mass of the people, temperate and intemperate, have yielded to its influence. In many places nearly the whole congregation and all within their bounds, men, women, and children, have taken refuge from the burning element, in the "cold water army." For several months past, many of our missionaries have been almost wholly employed in this department of labor. Some of them have had no help from abroad, but the Lord has been with them, and a temperance revival, in several instances, has changed the character and prospects of the whole community. More has been accomplished in this work within six months than in six previous years.

The fruits of this reformation are numerous. Temperance houses, clean and quiet, are rapidly opening. Hundreds of the intemperate who were the mere wrecks of men, have left their rags and filth and sottishness, have assumed their proper form and colour, and are seen clothed and in their right minds. Their wives are joyful, their children happy, and their homes the abode of plenty, peace and love. An amount of intellectual wealth, physical energy, mechanical skill, and moral power, has been redeemed, of more value to our country than hundreds of thousands of silver and gold. In addition to the immediate and obvious benefits of such a reformation, Sabbath-keeping and going to church, have been, in some places, greatly promoted. We cannot but hope that these marked tokens of divine mercy are the harbingers of still richer blessings. In some cases already, the foul spirit of intoxication had but just been cast out, and hope awakened of temporal comfort, when the Spirit of God took possession of the soul and cheered it with immortal joys.

Conclusion.

When we think that revivals and conversions, the temperance cause and every moral reformation, will be confined to the range of a preached Gospel, and then look over the scores of our vacant churches and hundreds of waste places within our bounds inhabited by thousands of immortal beings, but where no branch of our Zion has ever been planted, we feel that we have fallen short of accomplishing our object. Especially when our minds range over the West, contemplate its vast extent, its physical resources, and its probable influence; when we view the millions already scattered over its extended plains, and the prodigious multitudes which are gathering there from the old world; when we know that foreign Papists are expending double the amount every year to plant their schools and churches on those fertile prairies, that Home Missions are to establish evangelical religion; and when we notice the increasing tendency of the American community to popular convulsions and consider the certain and tremendous crisis to which our nation is hastening, and are sure that nothing can save us but the power of the Gospel—we dare not think that we have accomplished any thing worthy of the relation we sustain.

But when we compare the results of the past year with those which have preceded it, we find substantial evidence, that God and his redeemed people foster the Home Missionary cause. We find that more missionary labor has been performed since our last report than ever before in a single year; that more churches have been fully supplied with Gospel ordinances; that more hopeful conversions have been reported; that larger accessions have been made to the churches; that the contributions to our funds and to other benevolent objects have been increased;—and that the number of reformed inebriates, and the thousands, who have joined the temperance ranks, transcend, beyond all comparison, those of any former year.

Our hopes of the speedy triumph of Home Missions have been greatly raised by the recent and glorious impulse given to the temperance enterprise. These institutions have gone together around our whole frontier and through our extended interior. The temperance cause can never finish its work until Home Missions occupy the whole field. If it is the design of God, as it appears to be, to carry out the former, we are sure he will prosper and succeed the latter. And should the grace of God be as signally exhibited in arresting the attention of the American community and concentrating their energies upon the work of Home Missions, and in blessing these labors of love, as has been witnessed in the temperance reform, it might soon be truly said of our church, "Thy sun shall no more go down; neither shall thy moon withdraw itself; for the Lord shall be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended."

Mormons in the West.

The history of Mormonism is such a perfect refutation of its pretensions, that intelligent men find it difficult to account for the continuance and spread of this singular imposture. The absurdity of its claims are so obvious, that Christians not minutely informed in relation to its genius and operations, suppose that, by this time, the delusion must have melted away. But the fact seems to be quite otherwise. From the following extracts from letters of our correspondents in Iowa, it will be seen that the region around the mouth of the Des Moines River, on both sides of the Mississippi, is destined to be the seat of a serious struggle with this form of error; and that the ranks of its advocates are filling up with large accessions from different parts of the United States, and even from Europe, from whence converts are coming across the ocean, to dwell in the promised land.

The Mormons have twelve stakes—places where they are to build temples, &c.,—corresponding to the twelve tribes of Israel. They claim all the miraculous gifts and powers of the apostles; daily show signs and wonders which overpower the credulous, and manifest a zeal that I have never seen before in any class of religionists.

I will give you a summary of their pretensions.

1. Joseph Smith is a prophet—as really as Isaiah; and the Book of Mormon, with all the revelations of the prophet, which now make quite a volume, are of equal authority with the Old and New Testaments.

2. Theirs is the only true church; they know this with absolute certainty. Every other professed disciple of Christ holds the same relation to this true church, that the Jews did, who, in the time of the apostles, rejected the Saviour.

3. No man can be a Christian, or be admitted into the kingdom of God, unless he is baptized by immersion by an authorized person.

4. None are authorised to preach or administer the ordinances but such as are called by direct revelation, and set apart by the authority of Joseph Smith. All others are “false teachers and false prophets, wolves in sheep’s clothing, thieves and robbers,” as they say in their preaching.

5. All who are baptized receive the Holy Ghost and the forgiveness of sins. Hence they can work all the miracles promised by our Saviour in Mark xvi.

6. Zion, or the New Jerusalem, is in Missouri, where the Saviour is to appear, in a short time, in person.

7. All who believe are called on by the Spirit of God, to assemble in the vicinity of the various stakes and help to build temples. The Indians are the lost tribes of Israel, and during this generation, they are all to be gathered at these points; while all others are to be cut off—that is, all who do not receive J. Smith as a prophet of the Lord.

8. For such as will not believe in this life, a kind of purgatory is prepared in another world, where they will be brought to their senses and made to receive the prophet; while those who have once joined the Mormons and have apostatized, have never forgiveness, neither in this life, nor in that which is to come.

9. The prophet predicted eleven years ago, that Zion is to be built in Missouri in this generation. But they have been dispossessed, and the city of their hopes lies desolate; still they are not without hope. Nauvoo, their principal city, in this vicinity, contains 3000 inhabitants. Every one of a certain age is called on to bear arms; and the “legion of the Lord" is drilled twice a week, and it is the common belief that they intend soon to attempt to retake their claim in Missouri.

10. Joseph Smith translated the Bible anew. In the first 3 chapters of Genesis, he has added the amount of at least one entire chapter, for which there is not the least shadow of authority. So in other parts, he makes any alterations that he pleases: e. g. in the Gen. vi. 6, where it is said "it repented the Lord that he made man upon the earth," the new translation reads, "it repented NOAH that HE made man, &c."

You smile at my apprehensions, but I do fear the influence of this people. If this delusion shall be stayed, the minds of its subjects will resemble our prairies after the fire has burnt them naked: Infidelity or Atheism will be the result. But when or where it will be stayed, I cannot see. Nothing is too foolish for men to believe; and unless it can be met by timely, well directed and energetic efforts, it will spread. Multitudes are predisposed to believe that a "water birth" makes one an heir of heaven: while many others are entirely removed from the ordinances of the Gospel. These men ransack every place, without purse or scrip, in imitation of the ancient apostles. Always on foot, with a zeal always burning, and a sanctity which excites a reverence in the minds of many, they all make and will make proselytes.

Again, the position of Iowa relative to Missouri, makes them regard it with peculiar interest. They expect soon to be strong enough, with the aid of the Indians, to meet Missouri in battle array. Every one that embraces the system is as ready to fight as were the Israelites under Joshua.

WHAT FOLLOWS FROM THESE FACTS ?

The inference which I would draw from the facts in the foregoing statement, is the great necessity of sending on, forthwith, men of nerve and faith to occupy this territory. Ten or a dozen men of the right stamp, in addition to those already on the ground, and stationed in different parts, and sustained so that they might give themselves wholly to the work, might exert an influence which this world has no arithmetic to compute.

An intelligent observer of the foregoing facts, declares—

Mormonism is extending in that region chiefly, in my opinion, because the mass of the people do not enjoy constantly the privileges of the sanctuary.

BRIEF NOTICES OF THE OPERATIONS OF ROMAN CATHOLICS IN THE WEST.

Diocese of Detroit—Embracing the state of Michigan and Wisconsin Territory. The Cathedral is at Detroit. Whole number of churches and chapels 25, other stations 25, clergymen 16, literary institutions and schools 11, &c., &c. The University of St. Philip, under the auspices of the bishop, is situated near Detroit, and holds out the usual literary inducements to pupils, and board and tuition for $100 per annum. Fifty young men are in a process of education in this diocese, and several schools are in operation at different points, including a Female Academy at Prairie du Chien. Important places are occupied by these various movements, as Detroit, Monroe, Ann Arbor, Marshall, Grand Rapids, Green Bay, Milwaukee, &c. At Prairie du Chien, a church is nearly finished of 100 by 50 feet.

Diocese of Cincinnati—Embracing the state of Ohio. The diocese contains 38 churches, and 15 others are in the process of erection: at which, and at some 20 other stations, 38 clergymen officiate. Besides the Cathedral at Cincinnati, a new one is in progress, 200 feet by 77, with a Corinthian Portico 45 feet deep, a tower and steeple. A Gothic church for the German Catholics, 142 feet by 66, is also nearly completed. The points occupied by the Catholics seem to have been selected not without an eye to future influence. For example—on the Ohio river, at Steubenville, Marietta, Portsmouth, Georgetown, Ripley, &c. On Lake Erie, Cleveland, Sandusky and Toledo. On the Canals, Canton, Chilicothe, Dayton, Hamilton, Zanesville, &c.

In Perry county, near the centre of the state, and in the immediate vicinity of the National road and the Ohio canal, at convenient distances from Athens, Zanesville, Circleville and Columbus, are several Catholic establishments, viz.:—the Dominican convent at St. Joseph's, in Perry county, with 5 friars, 4 novices, and 4 lay friars; and at Somerset, in the same county, a convent of 11 nuns of St. Dominic, who have under their charge the "St. Mary's Female Seminary." At this institution a system of education is pursued which is calculated to be very attractive by its list of studies and accomplishments. At St. Joseph's, in this county, one of the largest and most splendid churches in the West, has lately been erected. The style is Gothic, 122 by 60 feet, and 162 feet high to the top of the tower.

At Wilkesville, in Gallia county, "2000 acres of land, part of a large tract owned by Mr. P. Quin, abounding with iron, salt, &c., one of the finest wheat regions in the West, only 18 miles from the Ohio river, and having an ample supply of water power," have been granted for the support of a priest, an asylum for orphans, and schools.

There is also an ecclesiastical seminary belonging to this diocese in Brown county, on a farm of 300 acres, having 12 students under the charge of a principal and two assistants.

The "Atheneum" at Cincinnati is now converted into a Catholic college, called St. Xavier College, under the direction of Jesuits, has six professors, and about 50 boarders, besides those who attend the course of instruction, but do not board in the institution.

The Sœurs Notre Dame,—devoted to female education, have an Academy in Cincinnati, where the instruction is in the French language. The pupils "may receive visits occasionally from their relations, (!) but these visits must neither be frequent nor long." "Uniformity requires that all the boarders should assist at divine worship as performed in the institution." About 50 young ladies attended this seminary last year, of whom 40 were from the neighborhood—a proof of the local influence of the institution.

A "Society for the Diffusion of Religious Knowledge," at Cincinnati, manages the publication of the Catholic Telegraph, and issues tracts, &c. There is also a "Church Building Society," the members of which contribute 12½ cents each, monthly.

Diocese of Vincennes—Includes Indiana and the eastern part of Illinois—has 27 churches, including the Cathedral at Vincennes, 10 others building, and 29 other stations. There are 30 clergymen acting as such, and 4 in other employments. In looking over the names of these clergymen, the reader is struck with the great predominance of foreign names, such as O'Rourke, Sniederjans, Chartier, Weinzœpfen, Baquelin, Benoit, Buteux, Bernier, &c. Here, as in Ohio, there are a College and Theological Seminary, both at Vincennes. Fifty young men are reported as studying under the Catholic supervision in this diocese, besides 10 students in the Theological Seminary. The college, styled "St. Gabriel College," received a charter from the legislature last year, and has a "numerous faculty" of professors "in all the various branches of education, who are permanently connected and identified with the college." Here, as usual, "there is" professedly "no interference with the religious belief of the pupils, but for the sake of order, boarders are expected to comply with the external forms of Catholic worship, which is the religion professed by the members of the college."

Besides Vincennes, the important points occupied by Catholics, are such as Fort Wayne, Peru, Logansport and Terre Haute, on the Wabash, Indianapolis in the centre of the state, Michigan city in the north, and New Albany, Jeffersonville and Madison, on the Ohio river. In Illinois, the principal stations of this diocese are Chicago, Juliet and Shawneetown.

Diocese of Du Buque.—This is an old diocese, and its governor is the Right Rev. M. Loras, D. D., who was consecrated in 1810. It extends over the Iowa Territory, in which it has 7 churches and 5 other stations, which are supplied by 9 clergymen.

The Cathedral is situated at Du Buque, and is said to be far superior to any other church building above St. Louis. The services are both in French and English. Connected with the cathedral is a fine, large, brick edifice, occupied by the bishop and clergy, and arranged for the purposes of a seminary. Academies for girls are in operation at Du Buque and Burlington; for boys at DuBuque and Davenport. A brick church is in progress at Iowa city, with a basement for a school, to be opened the present spring. Houses of worship are either built, or measures for that purpose are in progress, at Bloomington, Fort Madison and West Point.

Diocese of St. Louis.—Embraces Missouri, Arkansas and the western moiety of Illinois. Bishop, Rt. Rev. Joseph Rosati; Coadjutor, Rt. Rev. Peter Kenrick, D. D. This diocese contains 56 churches and chapels, and 9 others are in the process of erection; 60 other stations are also supplied by the clergy, who number 74, viz: 50 in the ministry and 24 in other employments.

The central position and prospective influence of this portion of the Mississippi valley, have not escaped the attention of the adherents of Rome. Consequently, there is here a concentration of Catholic force from whence an influence may be sent abroad in every direction. They have 3 seminaries, 37 young men preparing to be priests, and 320 others pursuing their education in Catholic institutions. There are besides, 10 female academies with an aggregate of no less than 640 pupils—making in round numbers, a thousand of the youth of that most interesting portion of the West, under the training of the Catholics!

Of the facilities for such extensive influence on the education of the rising generation, an idea may be formed from a few brief notices. The St. Louis University is under the care of 6 resident priests, at the head of whom, is the Rev. Peter Verhøgen, who is also Superintendent of the Jesuit Missions in Missouri, Louisiana and Ohio. Last year there were 160 students, of whom 130 were boarders, and of course subject to the standing rule "to assist in performing diving service" according to Catholic modes. St. Mary's College, in Perry county, has a president and 8 professors. There are convents and academies for young ladies at 10 other places, besides free schools and orphan asylums at different points. A splendid church, 120 by 80 feet, is erecting for the Jesuits at St. Louis, making 7 places of worship occupied by the Catholics in that city.

Connected with this diocese are the Indian Missions to the Potawatamie Indians, and to the Flat Heads and Paus d'Orcilles of the Rocky Mountains.

Diocese of New-Orleans.—Established in 1793; governed by Rt. Rev. Anthony Blanc, D. D.; embraces the state of Louisiana; 42 churches and chapels; 15 or 20 other stations; 50 clergymen, of whom 13 are not immediately connected with the missions.

This diocese has a college at Grand Coteau, Opelousas, under a president, 6 professors, 4 "coadjutors," besides 4 professors of English, drawing and music. Some of these must have other employment, as there are but 70 boarders. By the rules of the institution, pupils are not received over 14 years of age, which indicates the design and expectation of the managers, as to the result of the training on the religious principles of the scholars. There is also a Theological Seminary at Lafourche, under the direction of the Lazarists. "There are 12 seminarians, 4 of whom are in theology, and 3 will be ordained priests this year."

There are 4 convents, having under their charge 6 academies and schools, and comprising 112 nuns and novices, and 585 pupils. Besides these, are the male and female orphan asylums, with 218 orphans and a day-school of 26 scholars—making a total of nearly seven hundred persons of all ages in the schools, besides the 218 orphans.

Diocese of Natchez.—Embracing the state of Mississippi. This appears as yet to be in its infancy, the bishop having received his consecration in March, 1841. It has but few stations, as Natchez, Vicksburg, St. Louis, and 2 other stations on the Gulf, and only 3 clergymen. The church at Natchez was some years since destroyed by fire, and has not yet been rebuilt.

Diocese of Mobile.—This See covers Alabama and Florida. There are 30 stations, at 7 of which there are churches; clergymen, 18. The operations are almost wholly confined as yet to the vicinity of the seacoast; a few stations only being as far north as Montgomery, Ala. Mobile, Pensacola, Tallahassee and St. Augustine, are the most important.

The College at Spring Hill, near Mobile, has a president and 2 professors, and 70 boarding students. There are also for boys an academy at St. Augustine, and a school at Mobile; for girls, a seminary at the convent of the Blessed Virgin at Summerville, and a school and orphan asylum at Mobile.

Diocese of Bardstown.—Embracing Kentucky, is well supplied with the means of operation, having 40 churches and chapels, 70 other stations, 50 clergymen, of whom 24 are employed in the various institutions. The apparatus of education is also extensive, comprising 6 colleges and seminaries, viz: the Jesuit Seminary in Marion county, and the Dominican convent in Washington county. At these two establishments there are 10 instructors including the superiors, (some of whom also officiate in the neighborhood,) and 15 theological students. Also, St. Joseph's College at Bardstown, with 14 officers and professors. The prospectus states that "the apparatus for Natural and Experimental Philosophy, is as complete as any in the western country." St. Mary's College is near Lebanon, in Marion county, under the care of 8 clergymen, to whose names the letters "S. J." are appended—i. e. Societatis Jesu, belonging to the order of the Jesuits. Besides these there are "3 scholastics and 5 lay brothers" in the institution. Average number of boarders, 110. There are also institutions of less note at Mount Merino, in Meade county, and at Louisville, the latter with 50 pupils. There are in the state, 3 convents and 10 academies. In the community of Loretines, there are no less than 156 members. There are also an institution for the deaf and dumb, and an orphan asylum, and minor schools. The young men receiving education under Catholic influence are 300; pupils in female academies, 528.

Diocese of Nashville.—Rt. Rev. R. P. Miles, D. D., is bishop, and extends his jurisdiction over the state of Tennessee. There are 8 clergymen and 52 stations, at only 2 of which they have church edifices. This diocese, like nearly all the rest, has its literary institution, at Nashville, designed to furnish priests for the missions in Tennessee. The students have charge of an academy under the superintendence of the superior of the seminary. Forty young men are returned as under instruction in Catholic institutions in this diocese. It does not appear to have as yet any institutions for the education of females.

In reviewing the facts set forth in the above notices, there are a few things that appear to be worthy of special remark.

And first, the numerical force of the Catholic clergy in the West is greater than most persons are aware. By the above enumerations, made from statistical documents, there are three hundred priests in the ten western dioceses! This is a net increase of 10 or 15 during the year 1841.

Again—these men are almost all foreigners, as a moment's inspection of their names will suggest; of course, they come among us strangers to our laws and the genius of our institutions, and having no interest in them, except to mould or subvert them.

Again, in the seminaries above alluded to there are no less than 90 clerical students. Thus, leaving out of account the increase of Catholic priests by immigration from foreign lands, there is a home production of Romanist clergy, nearly equal to the candidates for the ministry in all the Protestant theological seminaries on the same field!

The facilities for education are another striking feature. Every one of these dioceses that has been organized long enough, has its college or colleges. Twenty-three institutions, including the theological seminaries, are prepared, so far as can be judged from the titles of their professorships and lists of studies, to give instruction equal, and in some cases superior, to our best academies. These are for males. The female academies are at least 34 in number, besides numerous schools and orphan asylums. These higher seminaries have in them 2,947 youth.

Upon whom does this machinery of education chiefly operate? On the Catholics? Probably not. The great mass of these people care little for education. They are mostly the German and Irish population of large towns, and on the canals, rail-roads and other public works. Their children have no need of schools to make them Romanists. But it is on Protestant children that this system of means is chiefly intended to operate, and probably produces its principal effect.

Such are the influences that are co-operating with infidelity and the native depravity of man, to educate the children of the West—to make the voters and legislators, who ten years hence may control the government of our country! And is this the time to relax in our missionary efforts? Shall the Protestant institutions which an enlightened zeal has begun to found in the West, be abandoned now, in the very crisis of our country's destiny? We put these questions to our own hearts, and to our brethren; and we beseech all who have any concern for this country and for their own children—any zeal for Christ, or love for men, to frame an answer in view of the great day of final account.

Extracts from the Correspondence of the A. H. M. S.

POPULATION OF THE WEST.

Fifty years ago, not a white man was found in what now constitutes nine states and two organized territories, in the valley of the Mississippi. Indiana and Ohio have nearly doubled during the last 10 years; while the latter now ranks in population the third state in the Union. In the same period, Illinois has trebled her numbers; while Michigan contain six times as many as she did ten years ago. In the last 20 years, the population of the whole valley has quadrupled—the sum total now falling but little short of 6,000,000. This shows us on the frontier what to expect in time to come—with such a moving mass behind, who have already severed the ties that bound them to the land of their fathers, and who stand ready to go in any direction that interest shall dictate; while there is opening before them a country in many respects more inviting than any previously settled. Again—almost every country in Europe has her sons here; and we are to regard each, virtually, as an agent, looking out locations for friends left behind. Hundreds will come instead of tens, and thousands instead of hundreds.

But there is another view which cannot be too often brought before the eastern churches. The population of the United States has doubled once in about 23 years. If it were to double once in 25 years for 150 years to come, at the end of that period it would number more than a thousand millions of immortal beings—candidates for an eternal destiny—more than the present population of all the earth. Whatever abatement is to be made from the calculation, it cannot be said this land could not contain this multitude. Our soil, in the valley, would every acre support its man. Besides that already brought into market, 770,000,000 acres lie east of the Rocky Mountains; and of the 446,000 square miles now occupied, scarcely a hundredth part is cultivated or made to yield its increase.

Again, the Mississippi valley contains more than four times the area of all the states east of the Alleghany mountains. Twenty years will give the sceptre to the valley—will place the destiny of this republic in the hands of states that had no existence fifty years ago; and then we will take care of the East, if the East will not take care of the West; we shall do to the East what seemeth good unto us, if the East neglects to do to us what duty requires.

A Correspondent in Northern Illinois writes as follows:—

The former sheriff of the county told me at his own house, where I had been preaching, that the district which was Jo-Daviess County, when he took the census in 1835, and which numbered 4038 people, had increased to 25,000 when the census was taken last year. Within those limits we have 4 ministers.

Some persons on reading the accounts of western embarrassments, continuing year after year without the prospect of speedy improvement, may feel discouraged, and be disposed to relax their efforts in behalf of the destitute. But this would be neither wise nor right. It is true, the period of temporal prosperity seems to be deferred, and the burden of sustaining the Gospel is thrown in no small degree upon the charity of the eastern churches. But it should be borne in mind, that the East has too large an investment in those western churches, to admit of their being forsaken now. There are her sons and daughters; thither has she sent innumerable influences to found the institutions of knowledge and piety. The work has been begun at hundreds of points, and is in such a state of advancement that it would be bad economy to withdraw assistance now. Again, we must not forget for a moment, that all that is done for the West is done for ourselves—in self-defence, to preserve the common liberty of the whole nation from the overthrow which false religion and infidelity would bring upon it. No; the embarrassments of the new states may be regarded as trials of the faith and patience of those who labor and pray for their conversion, but afford no reason for abandoning the work.

But after all that is said, and said truly, about the difficulties attending the evangelization of the West, what portion of our country has been more fruitful of results? Where have the means of grace produced more effect? On what efforts of the church, in any part of the world, has God bestowed more signal blessings than on those which have been made to plant the Gospel and the institutions of learning in the Mississippi Valley? Let us not therefore be impatient, because "the poor we have always with us." Many of these embarrassed churches are themselves but the proofs of missionary success. Their members are the fruits of evangelical labor, which missionaries have performed. All the good they have done, and all that they may yet accomplish, may be regarded as the result of ministers sent out and funds expended in years gone by. And if they should become extinct as churches, still as individuals they have been enlightened and saved, and that is enough to repay a thousand fold, all that has ever been done for them. But those churches will not become extinct. We believe the Christians who have made up their minds to sustain this blessed work of Home Missions, are the flower of the church, the substantial working, praying, giving portion; and they will not abandon this enterprise until they see reason to believe that it is abandoned of God, and they are convinced he has given up this fair land to hopeless ruin.

USEFULNESS OF THE A. H. M. S.

VARIOUS EXTRACTS.

Had I not been deeply impressed with importance of attending to the work of the ministry in this region, and often learned by experience to trust in God, I should have made some secular engagements to supply my wants for the coming year. But whilst I was pondering my way, I was thankful to the Father of mercies for your pledge to aid in my support another year.

Here I desire to express my thanks to you and the patrons of the A. H. M. Society. Dear brethren, you are doing a great work in this young, yet gigantic West. When I look around on our churches in this region, I find that most, if not all, have been, in the progress of their existence, connected with your Society. Our brethren, mostly, are your dependants or benefactors, and sometimes both.

A great change.

In the name and in behalf of the church and society in this place, I tender to the Executive Committee of the A. H. M. S., and through them to the patrons of the Society, their sincere thanks for the assistance rendered them in sustaining the Gospel during the year. But for such timely aid, they would in all probability have remained as they had been for some time previous—destitute of the stated means of grace.

The change wrought is truly wonderful and can be ascribed to the grace of God only. O, my dear brother, who can compute the amount of glory which eternity will reveal as the result of those streams of benevolence which flow through the A. H. M. S.? But for that benevolence, what had been the moral condition of many hundreds of fields which are now like this, rejoicing as the garden of the Lord.

"Don't leave us."

My parents in —, have recently urged me strongly to leave and go to that state. Through their influence, doors have been opened for me to three or four congregations, who are able to support the Gospel, and I was on the point of deciding that I would go, but my friends in different parts of this county expressed such feelings on the subject, and urged me to stay with such importunity, that I feel that I cannot leave them at present. It is like abandoning friends in a dangerous forest, and I cannot withstand their cry, "don't leave us," "don't leave us." Yet, were it not for the aid your Society renders, I should be obliged to leave. O, I wish some of the churches who build large meeting-houses, and pay their ministers large salaries, and still are rich, would or could realize the situation of their brethren, and the churches in this wide field! Surely they would not leave you with stunted means to carry on the work in which you are engaged. There is no instrumentality, I am convinced, that can be the means of blessing this region like the A. H. M. Society. Without this, ignorance, Popery, Infidelity, &c., &c., will occupy this large field in the West, which is soon to do very much towards deciding the fate of our country, and of influencing the world!

Efficiency of Home Missionary Aid.

This church has had a long infancy. When I came they had no place for meeting, but an open and ragged wagon shop capable of holding 50 people, seated, when assembled, on rails and scantling. There we met, prayed, and there I preached while the winds of winter whistled around our ears. In the midst of this state of things, I made one proposition, "build a meeting-house and live, or neglect it and die. They builded and have defrayed most of the expense. And since the effort commenced, the church has more than doubled its numbers. Without some nursing hand, it appears to me the church would not have survived to the present time—while now, it bids fair to be united, useful and prosperous.

A Picture.

The following is one of the many cases that come to our knowledge, often without the agency of the sufferers, and deeply affecting our hearts and filling our eyes with tears. Individual exceptions there may be, but it is our firm conviction that there is no class of men on the face of the earth making such constant sacrifices and dying such living deaths to do good to others, without the prospect of earthly reward, as the evangelical ministry in the new states. They wear out without the notice or the gratitude of men; but their record is on high; and in the great day of manifestation it will be seen, that they have laid the foundations of Zion for many generations.

I visited one of our brethren a few days ago. He was sick—not expected to live. He has nine children. His wife has to do her work, and teach them, because he is too poor to hire them taught. What will this family do, if they lose their scanty support by the loss of their father? And what will they do if he lives? It will be months before he can do any thing to support them.

O ye, who enjoy in older communities the institutions of piety, the ready-made arrangements of organized society, at the cheap cost of merely supporting them, be mindful of the pioneer, who goes away from all this, to do for others what your fathers have done for you—to sow in tears, that those who shall come after him may reap in joy! Leave him not unsustained by your alms and your prayers. Leave not his widow or his orphans, to be cast out upon the world, the victims of unmitigated want!

Embarrassments of Poverty.

Most of the year, once in 4 weeks, I have gone 10 miles after preaching here in the morning, and preached at 4 o'clock P. M., and also have gone 6 miles, every 4th week, after preaching two sermons, and preached again. All my journeys have been performed on foot, until in the fall, when an aged brother furnished me with a horse. You will see how acceptable the aid you promise us must be, when I tell you that I shall not be able to obtain $20 in cash in this congregation, and as for clothing, it is as scarce as money. I do not know but I should have had to discontinue my labors for the want of clothes, if it had not been that the Lord opened the heart of the brother who furnished me with the horse.

From a Missionary on the Mississippi River.

To tell you of the relief afforded by the receipt of your letter and commission, would be difficult, and perhaps unprofitable. So constantly are you receiving accounts of distress, that in what seems to the individual suffering, to be extraordinary privation, you see scarcely more than the common lot. A pious gentleman lately remarked, on reading a letter from a foreign missionary, received by his friends here, that they who are in foreign lands do not suffer half as much as missionaries in the West. And so far as food and clothing go, this is true. I could tell of trials, of unceasing anxieties for months and almost years at a time, to know how to procure bread-stuff for my family.

The quarter has been one of joys and sorrows, of bereavement and blessing. In the beginning of it, I was laid on my bed for more than a week with the bilious fever. At the same time my eldest child lay in the same room under a severe attack of the same character. She recovered but slowly; but lest the cloud should look too dark, the gracious Father provided something to cheer us even there. He gave me a more sweet sense of dependence on him, and of his faithfulness to provide for the wants of his creatures. Our people here were very kind to us, in looking into our wants, and rendering us any assistance they could.

While we lay thus burning under a high fever, "mail day" came, and one of our neighbors brought us from the office two letters. One was from a female member of this little church, who had married and moved away, asking for a dismission and enclosing a five dollar note. The other was from your own hand, telling of the box of goods you had shipped to us, from the ladies of M., New-Jersey. I do not know that any act of kindness I ever received affected me as deeply as that did. Will you tender to them our most sincere thanks for their benevolence to those whom they never saw.

PARTICULAR CASES.

One woman now hoping that God for Christ's sake has forgiven her sins and converted her husband, though now near three-score years old, who was born of Catholic parents in Montreal, says she never saw the sacrament administered by Protestants until this month. Now she blesses God for what she has seen, and heard, and felt in her old age, after such a long life in ignorance and sin.

A Victory of Grace.

The communion service on Sabbath was a harvest; I think it was the most delightful day of my life. In addition to other things that rendered this a peculiar season, there was the admission into the church of one, who, not long before, had been a persecutor and defamer. Her appearance produced the deepest sympathy among the people. The circumstances of her conversion rushed fresh upon the memory of all; and the opposition she had endured, bade us all look for genuine sincerity in the profession she was about to make of her faith in Christ. At the close of a meeting during the revival, some account of which you have received, she remained for conversation. She wept so much that I was obliged to forbear saying any thing to her for some time. When she had gained composure, I found that she was entertaining very exaggerated ideas of what ministers could do in such cases. She was, therefore, exhorted to look away from all human aid and cast herself directly at the feet of divine mercy. The remarks only produced exasperation at the time; and she went away in a rage at the unwillingness of the minister to give her any comfort. Her way home lay through a wood, and she was alone. As she went, the very bushes seemed to speak and tell her she was a perishing sinner. She fell down on her knees overwhelmed, and for the space of half an hour, continued in earnest prayer. On the spot she found the pardon of her sins; and she reached home rejoicing in the mercy of God, and thankful beyond measure that the preacher had so strongly insisted upon her going at once to God, and ceasing to lean on an arm of flesh. The change which was visible to her entire family, made a deep impression on two of the oldest daughters; one of whom, unknown to any in the house, retired into the stable for secret prayer. She had scarcely uttered her first petition, before her sister, with a similar object in view, came softly in and fell down at the distance of a few feet from her, and began to pray aloud. As it was night and very dark, they did not see each other. The first kept perfectly still, nor was it known by the other that she was there, until they came together in the house, and in the presence of their astonished but rejoicing parent, declared what had befallen them.

Affecting Extract.

I waited with no little anxiety for my commission, and was rejoiced to receive it; but was not a little disappointed to perceive that the full amount asked was not granted. My children are growing up in ignorance for want of the means to educate them. My wife is wearing away her life for the want of assistance in her family concerns. From month to month she toils on with four children, in a house, without any eastern conveniences attached to it, often for weeks in succession destitute of sugar, coffee, tea, fruit, and almost every thing that belongs to the class of luxuries, that something may yet remain to be distributed among those starving for the bread of life. The Missionary Herald and the Home Missionary are the only publications I take, for the want of means. I lost my Hebrew books several years since, and have not been able to replace them. New books I cannot procure, for it is difficult to save money enough even for postage.

The full amount applied for in behalf of this missionary was not granted, because the Executive Committee had not the means to do it consistently with other claims. The responsibility of the privation and suffering endured by ministers on the outposts of Zion, falls upon those who withhold from the treasury of the Lord the means of relief.

"The Highways and Hedges" Explored.

The Sunday Schools are two—one of 40 scholars and 120 volumes in the library. The other 25 scholars and 50 volumes. I might mention another which I established, in what I might call one of the darkest corners in this section. The parents were ignorant and dissipated; the children ragged and exceedingly filthy, and scarcely knew any thing of the Sabbath, having never been taught. And yet this settlement is not more than two miles from our village. Strange as it may appear, no one seemed to think of their miserable condition—"no man cared for their souls." I am quite ashamed that I should so long permit children to starve so near me. There are a few professing Christians in the neighborhood, but none who could take charge of the school. I availed myself of the help of a Methodist brother, a mile distant, to superintend. Most of the children (18 or 20 in number) knew not a letter, but seemed to devour every word spoken to them. O how many there are in our land, in the vicinity of our churches, who are starving for the bread of life, and are not fed!

APPEALS IN BEHALF OF THE NEW STATES.

From Rev. A. Kent, Galena, Ill.

Frequent appeals have been made for ministerial aid, but it avails not. Time flies, and 12 years are already gone, and not a man has come that was willing to share with me the labor of building on this wide waste. I might stand on Pilot Nob (a mound in full view) and with the aid which Moses enjoyed when he climbed to Pisgah's top, I might count, Grant 2000, Green 1000, Stephenson 2800, Carrol 1000, Jo-Davies 6500, Clinton 1000, Jackson 2500, and Du Buque 4000, eight contiguous counties, in which, there is no minister but myself to look after the scattered sheep, and to supply the churches already formed of our denomination, (i. e. Presbyterian and Congregational.) These counties contain 20,000 souls, (as you may see by adding the figures above,) and the number will be multiplied to 40,000 in five years. I could give you facts more in detail concerning these counties, in six of which I have preached, and that when there were but three counties, i. e. one in Illinois, one in Wisconsin, and one in Iowa.

Suppose that a population of 20,000 souls in Connecticut were at a stroke to be bereft of all their ministers and churches, and schools, and every means of moral and intellectual improvement, and to be reduced to that chaotic state which is exhibited by the mixed multitudes of these new settlements; would not this fact, when known, constitute a strong appeal to your sympathies? But your children and grand-children, will many of them find a grave here, as certainly as the sparks fly upward.

Brethren, we do not wish that we should be eased and you burdened, but that there should be an equality. Compare then the fields in Connecticut, where a minister has charge of 1000 souls, and is cheered by fellow-laborers within 6 miles on each side, with this field where there are no ministers within 40 miles north, 50 miles south, 20 miles east, and 100 west; within which the population is increasing at least 4000 annually; and where the churches already formed are wasted by Mormonism, Perfectionism, and every other ism. We have no controversy about Presbyterianism or Congregationalism; no controversy about Old School or New School—about Taylor or Tyler-ism. We plead for help—for strong men, men that can endure hardness—valiant for the truth, and wise to win souls.

A Missionary Field on this side of the Mississippi.

The region where Mr. ——— labors, was settled some 50 or 60 years ago. The first settlers have long since gone to the grave. The children they brought with them, and those born to them in their new country, have many of them paid the debt of nature. The third and fourth generations now occupy the country. But all this time, we (the Presbyterian church,) have done almost nothing to send them the means of grace. Of course, the people need, nearly as much as some heathen countries, to be instructed, in the very first principles of the Gospel. And it requires as much moral courage to live and labor among them, as to live and labor in heathen lands, when supported by the Board of Foreign Missions. Yea, I had rather go to the heathen, on many accounts; more self-denial would not be requisite. And there is a large and extensive tract of our beloved country in this condition. If any thing is done for this extensive region, it must be by patient perseverance; and in time we may hope to see the good fruits.

The churches in this country might do something for the Home Missionary Society, and would, if a good agent would visit them, and place the subject in its proper light before them. Yet they would not do as much as churches in the eastern states according to their ability. And for a very obvious reason. The moral obligation to sustain the ministry is neither perceived nor felt, except very feebly. Perhaps the average salary of the settled ministers would not amount to $100. The cause of this feeble sense of obligation is in part to be ascribed to sects among us who make a great merit of preaching for nothing, and declaiming against ministers who take pay for preaching on Sunday, when no body else pretends to take wages for working on the Sabbath. Many are above the influence of such folly, but it has its influence on the populace; and in the region where your missionary is preaching, it will take years to wear out this erroneous feeling even from the best and wisest among them. How I should rejoice if your Society had a score like Apollos or Whitefield in the region to which I have alluded, perhaps three or four times as extensive as Massachusetts, and not half a dozen of our ministers in the whole bounds!

Good Ministers Needed.

There is nothing more needed in this part of the West, in my humble opinion, than thorough going and able ministers of Christ, whose business it shall be to go from place to place and house to house, and look up the lost sheep of the house of Israel. A great many such there are in this country, who never let themselves be known until they are searched out. This service, by the by, cannot be performed as it should be by broken-down ministers.

He who comes out here to preach the Gospel must have a clear head and a sound heart. A rotten place in a man's heart, no larger than a sixpence at the East, will soon grow in this country to the size of a dollar.

Melancholy Effects of neglecting to plant the Gospel Early.

There is generally little effort to obtain the Gospel, and the least desire for it I have ever witnessed in any part of the country in which I have been. They are willing to have preaching, if they can get it for nothing, and that is the only condition on which many will have it. They are also very particular and fastidious, and not long suited with any kind of preaching.

A Minister's Testimony.

Surely the following testimony of a missionary in Illinois must sink into the hearts of unemployed ministers, with something like a conviction that they ought to be in the field and at work. How can they harden their hearts against such appeals?

During the two years I have labored here, I have been almost alone—no Presbyterian or Congregational ministers being in the region, except one or two. There is now some prospect of a minister at Greenville, and also at Hillsborough, an adjoining country seat. But Bellville, Edwardsville, Shelbyville and Carlyle, four county seats with from 500 to 1200 inhabitants each, are destitute, beside settlements throughout the region. Brethren seem to think they cannot be supported in this part of the state. I would willingly take the poorest church in the region, and in some way teach, make tents, plant corn, live in a log-house, do without sugar, tea and coffee, and risk my support, if I could but see the others supplied with ministers. May the Lord of the harvest send us laborers here.

Infidelity—Means to Counteract it.

A part of each Sabbath is devoted to a lecture on the evidences of Christianity—a series of this character having been commenced a few weeks since; and it is my design to continue this course through the summer. I think this plan promises to result in good. Strange as it might seem, the writings of Thomas Paine are read by many, both male and female, with much apparent interest, and his sentiments furnish topics for conversation in the social circle. There are, occasionally, lecturers in this community, who go from place to place, decrying the ministers of the gospel, and the institutions of religion, denying the immortality of the soul, and the future punishment of the wicked. And there are many who follow their pernicious ways, by reason of which the cause of truth is evil spoken of.

Peculiar need of Able Ministers.

This results perhaps in part from the great variety of tastes and prejudices, which exist in almost every community. They come together from all parts of the country, and each individual brings his local feelings and prejudices. To unite such dissimilar materials, and bind them all to him, requires more than ordinary attraction and power in a minister. It is entirely a mistake, to think that less talents are requisite in the ministry here, than at the East. If any part of the country needs energetic and powerful minds, it is this. Every thing is in an unsettled state, and there are numerous and deep seated errors to be rooted out. And above all other things, deadness to the world, and a perfect consecration in heart and life to God, are needed here. No one will be likely to labor with much success, and certainly not with much pleasure, unless he feels in some degree as Paul did, who counted all things but loss that he might win Christ, and be found in him.

Reaction will come.

The crisis we are approaching as a nation, it is feared, is not begun to be understood by the mass of the people of God. Not the moral purity of the West alone, but the preservation of the whole country is at stake. In general, it has been more a desire for a treasure on earth, than one in heaven, that has peopled these western regions of our country. Hence the tide of worldliness has fairly swept over the western plains; not unmingled with irreligion, and false religion, and frightful immoralities. Let this state of things continue—let the tide of ungodliness at the West accumulate and spread, and soon we may expect its turbid wave will roll back upon the East; and who then shall plant anew her overwhelmed and desolated institutions? Our country is in danger, and the souls of present and unborn millions are in danger, while Christians all over the land, and christian ministers, are suffering every thing but Christianity to take root, and spring up and bear fruit on the fertile soil of the West.

Something must be Done.

A thousand such facts as are detailed in the foregoing pages, demand that the resources of the Home Missionary Society be greatly increased. Let it be remembered :

1. That it is this Society, that by its patronage keeps a large proportion of the ministry in the western field. And is not this a great and good work—a work deserving a liberal supply of means ?

2. Not only should the ministers who are now in the field be sustained, but many others ought to be sent there. They are needed, and they are ready to go.

3. If they are not sent and sustained in the destitute portions of the country, the following evils will inevitably ensue :

1. Unemployed preachers will accumulate in the older states, beyond the demand for them there ; hence they will be obliged to turn their attention to secular pursuits ; the dignity of the office will be let down ; the church, under the mistaken idea that what is only an unequal distribution is an actual surplus, will relax her efforts for the training of ministers ; and consequently, when the missionary spirit shall again revive in the church, and she shall look around for her sons to go to the destitute and to the heathen, they will not be found, and the work must stand still while another generation of preachers is educated.

2. Meanwhile the golden opportunity, the critical time for deciding the rescue of immense portions of our country from the reign of wickedness and error, and their people from eternal death, will have passed away, never to return. Now, much of the West may be pre-occupied by the truth ; a few years hence, truth will have to fight with a hundred foes for every inch of ground she gains.

In view of the too general insensibility to the great interests at stake, and the value of the present opportunity, we almost seem to see the Savior of men, bending over our beloved country, and saying, as he did of Jerusalem :—IF THOU HADST KNOWN, EVEN THOU, IN THIS THY DAY, THE THINGS THAT BELONG TO THY PEACE—BUT NOW THEY ARE HIDDEN FROM THINE EYES !

PLAN FOR ITINERANT LABOR, UNDER CERTAIN CIRCUMSTANCES.

The leading policy of the A. H. M. S., is in favor of permanent labor, either in a single congregation or in a definite field of small extent. But there are districts so new, or where the churches are so feeble, that they cannot be supplied in this way ; and consequently, some modification of this policy becomes necessary. Hence, within certain limitations, resort is had to a species of itinerant labor.

The plan on which the Society is willing to aid in this species of labor, seeks to secure, as far as possible, a regular responsibility of the missionary employed, to the ecclesiastical body with which the churches he serves are connected.

1. The Presbytery or Association desiring such labor, form their destitute churches into a circuit or circuits, to be occupied by one or more preachers, who shall regularly supply them.

2. The missionary is to be selected with special reference to the field, by the Presbytery or Association within whose limits he is to labor. This is important, in order that he may be one having the confidence and sympathy of the ministers and churches in the neighborhood. The A. H. M. S. desire that ministers so employed be men of experience who are adapted to the peculiar work of missionaries in neglected communities.

3. It is expected, that while the immediate object of this species of labor is to afford a temporary supply of preaching and ordinances, the ultimate design, which should be kept steadily in view, is to establish the regular ministrations of God's house in every community. Hence, as fast as possible, the more important points are to be encouraged to attempt the support of the Gospel; and others to unite together as may be most convenient, and engage regular preaching.

4. The Presbytery or Association are expected to use all reasonable means to raise the support of the missionary, applying to the Society only for the sum which they are unable to raise.

This system is recommended as a mode for nourishing those churches which are too feeble to begin the process of active growth. There are many portions of our land where no other plan can be made to answer. In this matter the Presbyteries and Associations must take the lead. They know the ground—its peculiarities, its facilities, and its difficulties; and they know what kind of men are needed. Let them seek such men, and when they obtain them, if aid is needed, let application be made to the Society in the name of the body that has charge of the matter, and the Executive Committee will respond to the appeal “as God hath prospered them.”

We add, merely, that it is seldom that men of the proper character for this work are at the disposal of the Society to send out. They are the last men to be out of employ; where one such is to be found, there are ten fields ready for him to enter.

HOW TO MAKE COLLECTIONS FOR BENEVOLENT OBJECTS.

In general.

1. Make them on principle—as matters of duty and of conscience.
2. Make them systematically—every object having its specified time and mode, and every thing being done with promptness and efficiency.
3. Make them intelligently—the claims of every cause being spread out at length, and the appropriate motives fully enforced.
4. Make them from the whole congregation, old and young, rich and poor—each individual being called upon to give as God hath prospered him.
5. Make them as means of grace to those that give. Present no motives but those of scripture authority. Let the utmost kindness and christian courtesy be exhibited by every agent and every collector; and should any one decline giving, be sure to treat him so that he may be approached again.

In particular.

1. Let every church determine, at some regular meeting, what benevolent objects they will aid in the course of the year—fixing the time, when the claims of each shall be heard, and the collections taken up, and appointing a committee of three or more for each object, to superintend the collections.
2. When the time assigned for a given object arrives, let such principles, facts and motives connected with it, as are judged most suitable, be presented, in the most public manner, by the pastor, or an agent—but never wait for an agent, or feel that his presence is indispensable; ordinarily, there will be no occasion for the service of an agent, if the pastor of the church will preach a sermon in behalf of the object to be aided.
3. Let the committee having charge of this particular object, as soon after the public appeal as may be, have a meeting, and divide the congregation into districts or sections—appoint one male and one female collector for each district, and provide them with suitable books, in which to take the names of all who contribute and the amount they give. If the committee or the church prefer it, the committee themselves may make the collections, instead of appointing collectors.
4. Let the collectors, within a week—or two weeks at the longest—call on every individual within their respective districts, not known to be unfriendly to the object, and solicit donations—passing by none, because of their youth or their poverty, and treating all with becoming attention and respect; and then report the result to their committee—the whole amount to be paid over by the committee without delay, into the treasury for which it is destined.
5. At the close of the year, let the whole church and congregation come together, to hear the reports of these committees, as well as statements and addresses from their pastor, and such others as he may introduce, and to make similar arrangements for another year; and if they have had no regular system before, they will probably find the sum total of their religious charities increased from two to four fold—their hearts far more deeply interested than ever in these objects of christian beneficence—the duty of giving, and of collecting, pleasant instead of irksome—a means of grace to themselves as well as of mercy to all mankind.

AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY, PRESENTED BY THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, AT THE ANNIVERSARY MEETING, MAY 10, 1843.
APPENDIX.

NEW-YORK:
PRINTED BY WILLIAM OSBORN,
No. 83 William-street.

SEVENTEENTH ANNIVERSARY.

The AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY held its Seventeenth Anniversary in the Broadway Tabernacle, New-York, on Wednesday evening, May 10th, 1843. HENRY DWIGHT, Esq., President of the Society, took the chair, and the meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. JOEL H. LINSLEY, D. D., President of Marietta College, Ohio.

The Treasurer's Report was read by Mr. JASPER CORNING, Treasurer of the Society.

An Abstract of the Annual Report of the Executive Committee was read by Rev. MILTON BADGER, one of the Secretaries.

1. On motion of Rev. HENRY LITTLE, of Madison, Ind., seconded by Rev. NOAH COE, of Greenwich, Conn.

Resolved, That the reports now read, be adopted and published under the direction of the Executive Committee.

2. On motion of Rev. S. L. POMROY, of Bangor, Maine, seconded by Rev. WILLARD CHILD, Norwich, Conn.

Resolved, That the Gospel of Jesus Christ is adapted to the necessities of nations, no less than of individuals.

3. On motion of Rev. LYMAN BEECHER, D. D., President of Lane Seminary, Cincinnati, O., seconded by Rev. J. K. CONVERSE, of Burlington, Vermont.

Resolved, That among the various forms of human instrumentality, the stated evangelical ministry is eminently the power of God for the conversion of the West.

These resolutions were sustained by appropriate addresses from Rev. Messrs. LITTLE and POMROY, and Dr. BEECHER, setting forth the urgent claims of our own country and her increasing population to the best influences of an intelligent and zealous ministry.

The exercises were agreeably diversified and rendered more impressive by the performance of several pieces of sacred music by the choir of the Tabernacle, under the direction of Mr. GEORGE ANDREWS.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. BAXTER DICKINSON, D. D., of Auburn, N. Y.; after which the Society proceeded to elect officers for the ensuing year.

This Committee shall have power to appoint its own meetings, form its own rules of business, and fill any vacancies in its own number which may occur during the year, and to convene special meetings of the Board or Society ; shall appoint missionaries and instruct them as to the field and manner of their labors ; shall have the disposal of the funds ; shall create such agency or agencies for appointing missionaries, and for other purposes, as the interests of the Institution may require ; and shall make an Annual Report of their proceedings to the Society.

An executor, on paying a legacy of two hundred and fifty dollars to the funds of this Society, shall be a Member for life ; and the payment of a legacy of one thousand dollars shall constitute him a Director for life.

ART. 7. Any Missionary Society may become Auxiliary, by agreeing to pay into the Treasury of this Society the whole of its surplus funds, and sending to the Secretaries for Correspondence a copy of its Constitution and Annual Reports, mentioning the names of its Missionaries, and the fields of their operations.

ART. 8. Every Auxiliary Society, which shall agree to pay the whole of its funds to this Society, shall be entitled to a missionary or missionaries, to labor in such field as it may designate ; at least to the amount of its contributions ; provided such designation be made at the time of payment.

ART. 9. The officers of all Auxiliary Societies, shall be, ex-officio, Directors ; and annual contributors to their funds shall be Members of the Society.

ART. 10. This Society shall meet annually in the city of New-York, on the Wednesday next preceding the second Thursday in May.

SEVENTEENTH REPORT.

IN rendering their SEVENTEENTH REPORT, the Executive Committee may properly adopt, as an epitome of the Society's history for the past year, the language of inspired song, "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." Such has been the experience of those to whom was committed the anxious trust of guiding the affairs of this Institution since the last anniversary. They went forth, and wept as they went, to behold the harvest so plenteous and the laborers so few. They wept, because, when all the means at their disposal were exhausted, those who were ready to perish still knocked at their door, and there was nothing to give them. They have wept, because the day of our country's probation is so swiftly passing away, and the most thoughtful of her sons lay it so little to heart; while a large portion of the American field is left to him who soweth only tares. But still, having obtained help from God, the Society has gone forward, scattering far and wide the precious seed; and now returns with its annual narrative, to tell how its Great Patron has upheld it amid many trials, and crowned the year with loving kindness and tender mercies. To have been sustained, merely, when the prosperity of the country was so depressed, and the general spirit of enterprise was well-nigh broken, were itself a matter of thankfulness. But to be permitted to go farther, and speak of advances made in the Home Missionary work; to see the public interest in this cause increasing in intelligence and strength; and, above all, to behold the rain of righteousness descend on the thirsty wilderness, and the solitary places made glad—renders this anniversary an eminent occasion for joyful congratulation and praise; and may well invigorate the faith, and brighten the hopes of the members of this Society.*

* Towards the close of the year, one of the Vice-Presidents of the Society, Rev. ALEXANDER PROUDFIT, D. D.—himself an early and laborious missionary to the new settlements—closed a life which had been filled with usefulness and honor.

The details of the Society's operations are embraced in the following.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

From the preceding enumeration, the following results of the year are derived.

The number of ministers of the Gospel in the employment of the Society, during the year, has been 848. Of these, 623 were in commission at the time of the last anniversary, and 225 have since been appointed.

The whole amount of labor performed is 657 years.

During a greater or less portion of the year, the Gospel has been preached by the missionaries in 1,047 congregations and missionary districts.

These laborers have been distributed in 25 states and territories of the Union, and in Canada and Texas;—viz.—in Maine, 68; New-Hampshire, 47; Vermont, 53; Massachusetts, 78; Rhode-Island, 3; Connecticut, 39; New-York, 193; New-Jersey, 10; Pennsylvania, 47; Delaware, 3; Maryland, 1; Virginia, 1; North Carolina, 2; Georgia, 1; Kentucky, 1; Tennessee, 6; Ohio, 75; Indiana, 33; Illinois, 65; Missouri, 20; Arkansas, 1; Michigan, 46; Wisconsin, 28; Iowa, 16; District of Columbia, 1; Canada, 9; Texas, 1.

By comparing these statements with the last Annual Report, it will be seen that there have been important advances in the good accomplished by the Society. It has had in commission 57 more missionaries than in any other year of its existence. These have labored in 60 more fields, and 63 years of labor have been performed more than in the twelve previous months. Another fact, which reveals the policy of the Committee, is that 64 more laborers than in any former year, have been stationed in the great valley of the West, towards which our increasing population is forcing its way, with an impetus which no temporal embarrassments have had power to check. In Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois and Missouri, alone, the appointments have been 42 more than in the previous year. When it is remembered, that a mighty struggle for the possession of that rising empire is drawing nigh, and that Romanism and Infidelity are there concentrating their hosts for the coming conflict, the increase of missionary laborers in that part of our country, is a matter of special congratulation.

Increasing attention is given on the fields of this Society's culture, to Sabbath school and Bible class instruction. The number of pupils under this species of training is not far from 68,400. Encouragement of important aid in this department is held out to the missionaries, by the liberal offer from the American S. S. Union, and the Massachusetts S. S. Society, of gratuitous appropriations for libraries.

The impulse communicated to the cause of Temperance during the previous year, has extended its influence into the last. The committee are especially gratified to learn from the statements of the missionaries, that among the thousands who so suddenly assumed the vow of total abstinence from intoxicating drinks, the cases of apostasy are exceedingly rare. The number of persons thus pledged, in the communities connected with our missions, is not far from 146,000.

The productiveness of funds invested in the Home Missionary cause, continues to be seen in the returns which are annually made to the treasury of benevolence, from the fields on which they are expended. In 308 of those fields, the aggregate of charitable collections is $13,000—being about 40 per cent. on the sum appropriated to them. This has gone for the spread of the Gospel in heathen lands, for the circulation of the Bible, and for the various other forms, in which the leaves of the tree of life are applied for the healing of the nations.

But the pious heart will inquire for results, which the foregoing statistics but imperfectly disclose. It will ask for the evidence, that One like unto the Son of Man has been seen amid the golden candlesticks, which it is the work of this Society to set up. To this inquiry, the Committee are permitted to respond, that the presence of the Savior with his missionary servants, and his blessing on their labors, has not been so signal in any year, since the revivals of 1831 and 1832. Many of the churches assisted were enjoying a refreshing at the date of the last report; but a still larger number have been visited during the past winter and spring; and the present anniversary finds many of them still under the descending showers of grace. From the reports we learn, that 233 of the churches have shared in these effusions, and that 6,858 souls have been hopefully born again, during the year, in connection with the ministry of this Society.

The number added to the churches on profession of their faith is about 5,853; by letters from other churches, 2,370—in all, 8,223. This number is 2,709 more than the additions of the previous year, and would doubtless have been much larger, but for the brief period which has elapsed since the revivals referred to commenced.

Mere numerical statements, however, convey but a meagre idea of the blessings bestowed on the churches and on the land, by this merciful visitation. There are results which no human mind can compute, or figures express. No eye has seen the whole, but that which looks upon all things—which has followed the steps of every missionary—which has beheld when, in the great congregation, truth, like a strong man armed, has grappled with rebellion, and when, in the closet or in the cabin of the forest, the still small voice has won the heart to love. The Infinite alone, can measure the wretchedness relieved by the reformation of the intemperate, and the happiness secured, when friends, long alienated by discord, were reunited in affection, and desolate homes were cheered again with food and gladness.

Precious beyond conception are the earthly fruits of this work of God's grace. But how much more precious the spiritual results, involved in the surrender of souls to Christ, domestic altars erected, cursing and blasphemy exchanged for prayer, prodigal sons reclaimed, peace unspeakable shed abroad in weary hearts, and churches founded, to keep their places and to repeat and perpetuate all these blessings, until the consummation of the Redeemer's triumph! It is when contemplating such fruits as these, that the Committee feel how imperfectly appreciated is the influence which the Christians of this land, with the blessing of God, may exert, through this Society, in a single year. And never does the preciousness of the trust committed to the American churches appear so great, as when, with endeavors so feeble, God connects such glorious results. Could the souls who have been hopefully led to Christ by the instrumentality of your missionaries, since our last anniversary, be gathered here to night, from the North and the South, from the East and the West, they would be more than doubly sufficient to crowd this vast temple to its utmost extent. And could our ears hear but one note of the song put into their mouths—one burst of their new-born joy—how small would appear all the toil and treasure expended, in pointing them to the Lamb of God! How should we blame ourselves that other thousands still, are not embraced in the same blessed company. The question continually forces itself upon the mind—why should this gracious work have been so restricted? Why should other fields, as inviting and as promising as those that have been blessed, still remain barren? Has no rain nor dew of Heaven descended upon them? Is the Spirit of the Lord straitened? Are these his doings? By no means. That Divine Agent has been moving among the people that sit in darkness, and the destitute have sent to our missionaries, beseeching them to task their exhausted powers still farther, and to visit them in their prairie homes, that, once more at least, they might hear the message of salvation. But there is a point, beyond which the most active zeal cannot go; and in many instances, where all things seemed ready for a spiritual harvest, no souls have been gathered, for there were no reapers there. How could they believe without preachers? And how could they preach, except they were sent? And how could the Society send more, with the means placed at its command?

The Committee take occasion to bear testimony to the laborious zeal and patient endurance, manifested by the missionaries, in the emergencies of the past year. As a class, they have shown themselves worthy of all the confidence, and more than all the aid, which the churches have bestowed upon them. Especially should those be held in honor, who are bearing the burden and heat of the day amid the privations of the new states, and the more destitute portions of the older states. Nobler exhibitions of the spirit, which labors and has patience, and counts all things but loss for the cause of Christ, can no where be found. Although, in general, their lot appears humble to the eye of sense, they have taken large views of their work, and have beheld, afar off, its influence in securing the welfare of those who shall tread this soil, when they themselves are laid in its bosom and mingled with its dust. And for the sake of this joy set before them, they have toiled on, in their dispersion and their solitude—have borne patiently the opposition of unreasonable and wicked men, and shared without a murmur, the privations of the communities where they dwell. During the revivals of the past winter, notwithstanding the extraordinary severity of the weather, they have shown an apostolic zeal in labors, watchings, and fastings, and in journeyings to surrounding regions, where the destitute were desiring to be taught the way of life. Their toil has been blessed, their record is on high, and in the day of the Lord, they will shine as those who have turned many to righteousness!

THE TREASURY.

For the sake of greater convenience in preparing the Annual Report, it is judged expedient that the financial year of the Society should close on the 15th of April, and not, as heretofore, on the 1st of May. In conformity with this arrangement, the present Report embraces the receipts and expenditures of the Parent Society for only eleven and a half months.

The balance in the treasury at the last anniversary was $991 29. The subsequent receipts have been $99,812 84—making the resources of the Society for the year, $100,804 13.

At the beginning of the year, the unpaid claims of missionaries for labor performed amounted to $12,785 25, and there has since become due to them, and for incidental expenses, the further sum of $95,038 26, making the liability of the Society for the year, $107,823 51. Of this sum, $98,215 11 have been paid.

To cancel the remaining $9,608 40 still due to the missionaries, and towards meeting the further sum of $28,341 58 pledged for the coming year, the balance in the treasury is only $2,589 02.

In the history of the period now under review, as well as in all its previous experience, this Institution has seemed to be peculiarly the child of Providence. In emergencies from which man could see no way of escape without disaster, our Heavenly Father has brought relief, and often in such a way, as to show that the hand that supplied the succor was his own. For many months past, the prevailing commercial embarrassment, like the sirocco's breath, has seemed, at times, to dry up the very fountains of benevolence; and when the cause of charity has asked for help—even at the door of the liberal—the answer has been, in the language of the king of Israel, "From whence shall I help thee? Out of the barn-floor; or out of the wine-press?" But God has disposed his people to take larger and juster views of the claims of our own country, and the indispensableness of Home Missions to preserve whatever is valuable in her institutions, and to fit her to bear her part in converting the rest of the world;—so that what has been lost to this cause by the diminished means of its patrons; has been, this year, more than made up by the increase of their number and their self-denial. The receipts of the eleven months and a half covered by the Treasurer's Report, exceed the total receipts of the year preceding by $7,349 20. The Committee express the opinion, that had the business of the country been in a prosperous state, the augmented interest felt in this work, would have enabled the Society to send, instead of 57, at least 100 additional laborers, into the great harvest field. For the advancement actually secured, and for the stronger purpose manifested by a portion of the community, to make this whole land Immanuel's, let devout thanks be rendered to the King of Zion! But still, how far behind the importance of the work, is the largest enterprise of the churches! After all that is done, how much remains undone, and even unattempted! What is a single hundred thousand dollars, in an undertaking to which, perhaps, millions of souls must look for the means of their eternal salvation! Divided among those who should prefer Jerusalem above their chief joy, what a miserable pittance is the proportion of each, to be offered on the altar of HIM, who gave for them his own blood. What is the annual addition of 50 or 60 missionaries, towards supplying a domestic and foreign increase of population of nearly THREE QUARTERS OF A MILLION, since our last Report!

There was one way in which a temporary expansion might have been given to the Society's operations, viz: by resorting to loans for the means of sending laborers into the field. But although the most urgent motives to this course have been concentrated upon the hearts of the Committee, they have felt solemnly bound to restrict their expenditures within their receipts. The time has gone by, when the irregularities of collections might be safely corrected by borrowing. The experience of this and other Societies, in former years, the indications of Providence, and, if we mistake not, the judgment of the christian public, are all averse to involving our benevolent institutions in debt, for the means of proceeding with their work. Accordingly, during the past year, this Society has not borrowed a dollar; nor does it propose hereafter to resort to this expedient. As fast as the churches supply the requisite funds, they will be remitted to the laborers to whom they are due; and when the receipts are inadequate, the payments must be delayed in proportion. It will therefore be seen, that the missionary is brought into a near relation to those who contribute to his support, and is immediately dependent on their prompt and liberal aid. If that aid be withheld or delayed, there is no system of credit interposed for his relief; the only expedient to which the Society can resort, will be to suspend all further appropriations to the destitute, until the laborers shall have received their hire.

AXUIILIARY SOCIETIES AND AGENCIES.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The income of this Auxiliary for the year ending April 1st, was $7,397 42,—which is more by $1,580 25, than the receipts of the previous year. The expenditures, including the payment of a debt of $1,500, were $7,777 12. Some further liabilities remain to be discharged, but the Trustees cherish the hope of being able to meet them before the close of the Society's current missionary year.

Sixty-eight missionaries have been under appointment in 84 congregations or larger fields. The blessing which has attended their labors, has greatly animated those by whose bounty the Society has been sustained, in the dark and trying times through which it has passed. The Secretary, Rev. E. GILLET, D. D., in his report, says "The Lord has crowned the year with his goodness. The friends and patrons of the Maine Missionary Society, never had more manifest occasion, since its first establishment, to rejoice in its operations, than during the year now closing—whether reference be had to the fidelity of the laborers, or the results of their ministrations." Many precious revivals have been enjoyed, the fruits of which are seen in the reformation of social evils, and the strengthening of the churches in every good work. "And there are some promising aspects for the future; the chief of which, is the growing conviction, that the cause of Home Missions must be sustained."

This Auxiliary has been for thirty-six years, the chief instrument in the spiritual husbandry of the state to which it belongs. More than four fifths of the churches have partaken of its aid, and nearly half of them still depend on it for the means of retaining the privileges of the Gospel. But the time has come, when its operations should be conducted on a larger scale. More than half a million of people, pressing onward beyond the present verge of organized society, into the bosom of the wilderness, and calling for new churches and more laborers, require an income for this cause, at least double the largest amount, that has ever been contributed by the churches of Maine. Can it be, that an institution so well entitled to their grateful reverence, shall be left to struggle with pecuniary embarrassment? With their enterprising population, their rising institutions and abundant physical resources, it is but reasonable that they depend mainly on themselves, for the means of planting the Gospel over the whole of their 33,000 square miles of territory. If they do not furnish those means to their own children, who will furnish them to the millions of the West? Our hope is sanguine, that the necessity thus laid upon the Christians of Maine, the impulse recently given to the Home Missionary cause, and especially the recent revivals of the work of God, will call out their liberality, so that the domestic field of the EAST may be all cultivated, and the pilgrim spirit of faith and enterprise, be permitted to turn its energies to evangelize the WEST. Thus, eventually, may the extremes of our land combine their efforts with the central portions, and pour their united influences upon the heathen world, and aid to achieve the final victory over the empire of sin.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

During the year ending April 1st, and comprising parts of the 41st and 42d years of this Auxiliary, 47 missionaries have labored in 53 congregations, principally as pastors or stated supplies. The aggregate of labor secured by their appointment is 38 years. Four new houses of worship have been erected, and 4 pastors settled. The last half of the year has been marked by great religious interest, and special seasons of revival have been enjoyed in 11 of the churches.

The receipts of the Society, for the year ending April 1st, were $3,815 98, and the expenditures, $4,060 86. Besides the income of the state Society, individual contributions, including a legacy of $1,000, have been paid into the treasury of the Parent Society, to the amount of $1,315 29—making the whole sum given to the Home Missionary cause in New-Hampshire, during the past year, $5,243 52—which is $828 91 more than the year preceding.

“The possession of a preached Gospel,” says the communication of the Secretary, Rev. BENJAMIN P. STONE, “has seemed so important a blessing, that the Trustees have been unwilling to withhold it in any worthy case of application from the feeble churches. Hence they have increased the liabilities of the Society, for the past two years, somewhat beyond its income. An anticipated improvement in the monetary affairs of the country, led them to rely upon the increased contributions of the friends of the cause, for the means of meeting promptly the claims of the missionaries. But in this they have been disappointed, and now find, that a reduction of the appropriations is absolutely necessary to relieve the Society from debt.”

That reasons for curtailment should exist in a state, where 70 out of the 180 Congregational and Presbyterian churches are reckoned on the list of the feeble, is deeply to be regretted. We trust, that when every consideration of duty to their own waste places, and to the rest of the land, demand enlargement, the Christians of New-Hampshire will not allow the ruinous process of reduction to go on. This hope is based on the increasing numbers and graces of the people of God, and the growing concern manifested for Home Missions. “These,” says the Secretary, “are auspices of the enterprise in New-Hampshire, more precious than gold or silver, and more worthy to be the ground of our encouragement, and the reward of our toil.”

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Vermont suffered largely, in her moral interests, in that, before her own territory could be brought under general cultivation, she was subjected to a drain of emigration, by which many of her able and enterprising sons were removed to other fields. Hence, in the language of the Directors of the state Society, "There are tens of thousands who have not the preached Gospel, or who are dependant on foreign aid to enjoy it."

It often happens in the moral, as in the physical world, where the fields of men lie contiguous to a desert; if energetic culture do not press upon the limits of the barren waste, and win from it new ground, the sands will gradually roll in, and desolate that which before was covered with fruits and verdure. The time must then soon come, when the churches of Vermont shall make a vigorous effort to put the whole state under adequate Gospel cultivation. They must do it, not only as a preparation for sending the light of salvation to the heathen, and as a part of their duty to that "Great West," whither so many of their own sons and daughters are migrating; but they must do it in self-defence. The Committee are happy to learn, that there are recent indications in some sections of the state, that this duty is beginning to be appreciated.

During the year, the vacancy in the office of Corresponding Secretary has been filled by the appointment of Rev. ISAAC R. WORCESTER, who entered on its duties, November 1st, 1842. From the annual returns of the Auxiliary, it appears that 53 missionaries have been under appointment, and the expenses of the Society have been $3,249 23. Several of the churches have shared in the spiritual blessings which have been so extensively enjoyed on other portions of the field.

MASSACHUSETTS MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Seventy-eight missionaries, in connection with this Auxiliary, during the year, have ministered the means of grace to 79 churches, containing about 5,000 members, and extending their spiritual oversight to some 15,000 souls. An unusually large number of the churches have been strengthened, so that they cease to depend on the Society for aid. This fact has enabled the Committee to indulge the promptings of an enlarged philanthropy, by diminishing the portion of missionary means expended within the state, and devoting more to the welfare of other portions of the field.

At the beginning of the year, there was a balance in the treasury of $2,024 34. Since that time, up to April 1st, the receipts have been $15,934 78—making the resources of the year $17,959 12. Of this sum, $8,976 04—a less amount than in the preceding year—has been expended for the support of missions within the state; and $5,000—or more than the year previous, has been paid to the Parent Society, in promotion of its general objects. In doing this, the Committee of the Auxiliary identify their interests with those of the remotest sections of the land, and tender their sympathy and their co-operation, with a feeling, that to them, as a component part of the National Institution, belongs the duty and the joy of preaching the Gospel to our whole country. Besides the above, there has been paid, from different parts of Massachusetts, directly into the treasury of the A. H. M. S., the sum of $12,646 66. Included in this sum are various legacies to the Parent Society, amounting to $8,247 40, and also $1,483 56 from the Hampshire Missionary Society. The whole amount for Home Missions received from this state, during the year, is $28,584 44.

Of the good accomplished by the Massachusetts Missionary Society, no adequate impression can be gained by looking back over only a single year. The husbandry of Home Missions has so gradually changed the barren waste into a fruitful field, that the annual progress is scarcely observed; and yet the whole result is one of incalculable value. Says the Secretary, Rev. JOSEPH S. CLARK, in the last Report of the Society, "If 150 evangelical churches in Massachusetts, embracing 9 or 10 thousand members should be suddenly blotted out, and so many fountains of christian charity and moral influence dried up, the loss would seem irreparable—the ways of Zion would mourn; the world would feel the shock. And yet there are so many churches, embracing so many members, and putting forth such influences on the field which the Society has cultivated within the bounds of this state. A large proportion of them would have had no existence, and none of them their present power, had not relief been extended in a time of need. Not a few of them have risen to such stature and strength, that the fact of their missionary origin is generally forgotten, and excites surprise when announced. The course of this Society, like that of the quiet streamlet, is indicated, not by the noise of its impetuous motion, but by the strip of deeper green that it pencils on the landscape; and oftentimes, like that streamlet, is half concealed from view by the exuberance of its own creating."

RHODE-ISLAND HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The Secretary of this Society, Rev. M. TUCKER, D. D., reports that the expenditures of the year have been $850. The missions aided have struggled with various and protracted difficulties, which have impeded their success. There is much ground, still needing the attention of the friends of intelligent, evangelical piety. One newly gathered church is about to be added to the 3 assisted last year, and a candidate is preaching to it, with a prospect of settlement. Five hundred dollars of the sum expended by this Auxiliary, were furnished by the liberality of the Connecticut Missionary Society.

CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY, AUXILIARY TO THE A. H. M. S.

The balance in the treasury of this Auxiliary, April 1st, 1842, was $4,373 39. In the succeeding twelve months, the receipts have been $5,240 82, and the expenditures $5,544 76. Of this latter sum, $3,613 were expended for missions in the State, $500 appropriated to the aid of the Rhode-Island Home Missionary Society, and $1,431 remitted to the National Society, to be employed in other sections of the great field. Additional contributions, to the amount of $8,133 57, were also made to the A. H. M. S. from various Auxiliaries, and other sources in the state; so that the whole sum realized from Connecticut for this object, during the year, is $13,374 39—which exceeds the whole amount of last year by $1,232 20.

Thirty-nine missionary fields in this State have been cultivated by the Auxiliary during the year. The labor bestowed has resulted, in an unusual degree, in an increase of the vigor and efficiency of the churches assisted. At a time of so much temporal embarrassment, this happy effect can be ascribed only to the gracious interposition of the Spirit of God, who has not only revived the graces of his people, in the missionary churches, and thus disposed them to greater religious effort, but has also made important additions to their numbers, by the conversion of souls. Several very interesting revivals are reported; and in not a few cases, the “waters of salvation have flowed in the channels opened by temperance.”

But the reclaiming of the waste places within the State, is not all that the Society aims to accomplish. It looks abroad over the whole country, and regarding it as the asylum, where the Great Head of the church is gathering from other lands, those who flee from oppression and want, it proposes to embark, with additional energy, in the work of giving them the light of a Protestant Christianity, as well as civil freedom. "If there is a spot on earth," says the report of the Secretary, REV. HORACE HOOKER, "where mind can be concentrated, with brighter hope than any other of bringing it to the knowledge, belief and practice of the pure Gospel of Jesus Christ, that spot is the United States. If on earth, Christianity, by its institutions and influences can attract the human heart, and win that respect which is so essential to its power, it can do this in the United States. We need not wonder, then, that the Great Head of the Church is gathering minds, from the four winds of heaven, and thick as the leaves of the forest, to our shores. It might be said to be the natural attraction of Christianity, manifesting itself through forms of government and institutions in harmony with the powers and wants of man. Let them congregate in our borders, and while they gaze on the full beauty of the Gospel, bow to Him who is King in Zion. And while our hearts go forth in sympathy towards those who remain in lands of darkness, and we send them the means of salvation; let us cheerfully co-operate in accomplishing the grand design, for which Providence sends these millions to drink with us from the fountain of life."

PHILADELPHIA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The territorial position of this Auxiliary, lying upon and embracing the great channels of communication from the North and East to the South and West, is one of peculiar importance. The states comprised in it—New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland—possess also much intrinsic interest as a missionary field, from the great extent of the work yet to be done, to bring them fully under evangelical influence, as well as from the abundant resources, which, with the blessing of Heaven, they may hereafter develope for the cause of Christ.

The report of the Secretary, REV. E. R. FAIRCHILD, states the receipts of the Philadelphia Home Missionary Society, for the year ending April 1st, to be $7,904 45—or $490 more than was reported last year. During the same period, the expenditures were $7,704 69. Various donations and legacies for the general objects of the Parent Society were paid directly into its Treasury, amounting to $1,657 94—thus making the total of Home Missionary collections on this field, during the year, $9,562 39. That an amount exceeding the receipts of any former year, from the same territory, should have been given amid the peculiar hindrances which have prevailed, is a fact gratefully recognized as evidence of an awakened interest in the condition of the destitute lying at our own doors, and as a pledge, that this still youthful Auxiliary is aiming at the earliest practicable occupancy of its whole field.

Sixty-one missionaries have labored, for more or less of the year, in 78 congregations, in the bounds of this Society. Three of the churches are of recent origin, and two of them have been organized within the year; while no less than 13 are on ground not previously occupied by the Society. Among other facts of interest are mentioned, the commencement of four new edifices for public worship, and the completion of two others. The temperance revival has extended to all classes of society, and been the source of incalculable good. And the breath of the Almighty, which has breathed so extensively upon the slain of our land, and caused an exceeding great army to stand up in the enjoyment of a new and immortal life, has visited with its vital energy 23 of the valleys of vision, where the missionaries of this Society are stationed to prophesy in the name of the Lord. Of the fruits of this divine influence, 579 have already joined themselves to the church of God. The total of additions, by letter and by profession, is 723.

CENTRAL AGENCY, UTICA, N. Y.

Fifty-four missionaries have been in commission, during the year, within the bounds of this Agency, ministering to 61 congregations. Nine of these congregations have never before received missionary aid, and five of them are in places where the Gospel has never before been stately preached by a Presbyterian or Congregational ministry. Four of the churches, which last year were aided by the Society, have now assumed the entire support of their Gospel institutions, and become our fellow laborers in the good work of elevating other feeble and destitute congregations to the same privilege and dignity. Five missionaries have been settled as pastors, during the year; seven houses of worship have been completed or are in the progress of erection, and several others have been made more convenient, more comfortable and more appropriate places for rendering praise and thanksgiving to the Most High.

Seventeen of the missionaries make mention of interesting revivals of religion, as enjoyed during the year or now in progress among the people of their care. By many of them, the number of hopeful conversions is not estimated; six hundred are, however, reported as having, in the judgment of charity, passed from death unto life, and two hundred have been added to the churches on profession of their faith.

"The number of hopeful conversions, however, gives but a meagre view," says the Secretary of the Agency, REV. ABIJAH CRANE, "of the precious fruits of these revivals. It has been a time of peculiar refreshing to the churches—emphatically a revival of religion—strengthening them, vastly more, by raising the standard of piety and benevolence, than by increasing their numbers. The revivals have all begun under the labors of pastors, each in his own parish, or by an occasional exchange of service with a neighboring brother. An unusual amount of lay service has been performed under pastoral direction. Stillness and solemnity have characterized public meetings, and an importunate spirit of prayer has pervaded the churches. In some cases, there has been overwhelming emotion, but it was produced by the still small voice of the Spirit, rendering the Gospel of Christ quick and powerful. A higher estimation is placed in these churches, on the pastoral office and the ordinary means of grace. There is also an increased consciousness of parental responsibility, and a growing attachment to household consecration."

The happy effects of the outpouring of the Spirit upon the churches within this Agency, has been seen, too, during the last half of the year, in their contributions to the cause of missions. The severe pecuniary distress, experienced on this field, had made the receipts of the first half of the year, exceedingly small; and it seemed inevitable, that they must fall far below those of former years. But as religion revived, contributions increased; few churches now gave less than in former years, some doubled the amount of the previous year, some trebled it, and one gave even four fold;—so that the receipts of the year, amounting to $3,607 94, fall but a trifle short of the year preceding.

WESTERN AGENCY, GENEVA, N. Y.

The receipts from the field of this Agency, during the year, have been $8,395 85,—greater than the amount contributed last year by $2,017 51; "The fruits of more sacrifice and self-denial," says the Secretary of the Agency, REV. JOHN A. MURRAY, "than would have been requisite, a few years since, to secure double the amount to the same cause."

Eighty-six missionaries have been in commission, during the year—thirty of whom were not in commission last year, and twenty-five of whom have never before labored under the direction of this Society. Ninety-six congregations have enjoyed the labors of the missionaries—ten of which are gathered in fields hitherto unoccupied. Fourteen houses of worship have been commenced or completed; others have been repaired and freed from debts, which had long held them in jeopardy and greatly embarrassed the congregations which worshipped in them.

But, the most grateful evidence that the friends of missions have not labored in vain, in this portion of their Master's vineyard, is found in the special blessings of Heaven, which have descended upon the congregations that have received their benefactions. Twenty-six of the missionaries report revivals of religion in their churches; and thirteen of them, 626 cases of hopeful conversion. More than a thousand are reported as having been added to the churches connected with the agency during the year—777 of them, on profession of their faith; and were the returns complete, the number added on profession, it is believed, would appear to be several hundreds greater.

WESTERN RESERVE DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The receipts of this Society, during the year, have been but $550 81. This diminished amount, as compared with the receipts of former years, is to be accounted for, partly by the increased severity of pecuniary embarrassments, and partly, by the fact that very little direct agency has been employed, for the collection of funds. The REV. MYRON TRACY, the Secretary of the Society, has given his attention to matters of correspondence, and has rendered essential service to the cause, in diffusing information, in encouraging feeble congregations, and in calling the attention of pastors and churches to the importance of systematic efforts for building up the waste places of their Zion, to such an extent as his other avocations would permit. Eighteen missionaries have been in commission within the limits of this Society, during the year. Several of the churches have been visited with seasons of refreshing from on high, the condition of most of them has been improved, and the conviction is every where becoming stronger and deeper, that our own country calls for increased liberality, more energetic effort, and more importunate prayer in the work of giving to her rapidly extending population, the blessings of education, and the hopes of immortality.

MARIETTA AGENCY, OHIO.

Nine missionaries have labored within the boundaries of this Agency, since the last report; $530 have been received by the treasurer of the Agency towards their support, and the balance requisite for sustaining them has been drawn from the treasury of the Society. A general revival of religion, extending into every evangelical denomination, has been experienced in all this region.

The missionary churches are among those upon which the Spirit has descended with great power. Converts have been multiplied, the churches have been increased and strengthened, and the communities, in which they shine as lights in the world, have felt the restraining, sanctifying, elevating power of divine truth.

“One most encouraging feature of the work in this field,” says the Secretary of the Agency, REV. HENRY SMITH, “is, that young missionaries, who were born and educated within its limits, who have the entire confidence of the people from the very outset of their labors, whose local and national affections and sympathies are here, and who, knowing before hand our spiritual destitutions, are willing to spend and be spent to supply them—enduring hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ—are just beginning to thrust the sickle into our whitening harvest. What we now need, and what our salvation imperatively demands, is the development of our own resources. We must act ourselves, as well as be acted upon. There is power of muscle, energy of purpose, strength of intellect, ability to do and to suffer, in unfailing abundance, lodged in the cabins which send up their smoke among the wooded hills of this Western New-England—if it can be drawn forth and consecrated to the cause of our blessed Savior—sufficient, not only to redeem the West, but to convert it into a store-house of salvation for the redemption of other lands. Let not our brethren at the East, then, despair. Let them pray for us without ceasing. Let them hold out in their labors of love, a little longer. A little longer, let them send us missionaries. A little longer, let them aid us in raising up and sustaining our own, and the work in the West—at least in this section of it—will be done. The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them, and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose.

CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF AGENCY FOR THE WESTERN STATES, AT CINCINNATI, OHIO.

The number of missionaries reported at the last anniversary, as connected with this Agency, was 34. The number has been increased, during the year, to 44. The report of the collections which has reached us includes only eleven and a half months, from the date of their last Annual Report;—up to that time, the receipts had been $2,200, and there was reason to believe, that enough would be received, during the fragment of the year, to leave the sum total but a little less than what was realized the year previous.

"We are constrained," says the Secretary of the Agency, REV. HENRY LITTLE, "to call upon all the friends of Home Missions to give thanks to God, for the success with which he has crowned their labors in this section of the Great Valley. It has been a year of trial and pecuniary sacrifice, both on the part of those who have contributed to the cause, and those who have borne the heat and burden of the day. But present or personal ease is not our motto. No! Our aim is the advancement of the Redeemer's kingdom, in this broad and inviting section of our common country. And we think there has never been a year, since the first herald of mercy lifted up his voice in it, in which God has granted such signal success. Almost every missionary on our catalogue has been blessed with a revival; and in many instances, the labors of the missionaries have, in other respects, been wonderfully successful. So that, if it should appear that we have not collected quite as many dollars as in some other years, yet we have never passed through one of such prosperity to the church—a year of mercies, chronicled in heaven to the praise of God's rich grace, to be recounted on earth, with joy unspeakable, when the successes of worldly enterprises, and the triumphs of earthly greatness, shall be remembered no more.

MISSOURI HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society, the organization of which was mentioned in our last report, has been prosecuting its work with great enterprise and with cheering results. REV. DR. BULLARD, the Secretary of the Society, though sustaining the responsibilities of a large pastoral charge, has rendered most important services to the cause of missions in this state, during the year, by his extensive correspondence with institutions at the East, and by the personal survey which he has taken of the most inviting portions of their missionary field. To his zeal and devotedness in this work, it is chiefly to be ascribed, that the number of missionaries in the state has increased, since the date of our last report, from 6 to 20, and that hope has been awakened, that the fifty counties, which were but recently reported as having no Presbyterian or Congregational minister within them, shall not long remain without, at least, one, in the centre of each, to prepare the way of the Lord and make his paths straight. Of the amount paid to the missionaries on this field, $750 have been raised within the state; and the disposition has been manifested, by the few who there enjoy the institutions of the Gospel, to co-operate with their eastern brethren, to the utmost of their ability, in their endeavors to bring that vast and fertile country, so rapidly filling up with immortal beings, under the power of the world to come.

And our brethren there have strong claims on our sympathy, and they need our helping hand. The territory, which they seek to occupy, is larger than the whole of New-England, and as beautiful, in all probability—that portion of it, especially, which lies north of the Missouri river—as any which the sun in his circuit blesses. We know of no portion of the West, that is becoming densely settled more rapidly than this. One county in this district, and that the smallest county in the state, now numbers 12,000 inhabitants; and yet, it is but five years since it was purchased of the Indians, or white men allowed to enter it. Two years ago, steamboats were carrying produce into that county for the sustenance of its inhabitants; now, they return from it heavily freighted with the productions of the soil. Popery, long since foresaw, that the principal city of this state was to be the centre—the commanding citadel of the West; and she has occupied it, and in all the chief places of concourse—on every high bluff, along the banks of the mighty rivers, which give to this state its facilities of communication with every portion of the globe, and on its blooming prairies, spread out like the ocean, inexhaustible in their fertility—she has erected her banner, and bids defiance to Protestantism—to free intelligence, equal rights, and a pure evangelical piety. And shall this fair land be abandoned, without a struggle, to the undisputed and perpetual dominion of the Man of Sin? Shall the many millions, that are here to spend their probation, go to their account unblessed of the pure Gospel of God? Shall the most favored moment we can ever see, for sowing, broadcast, over this exuberant soil the seeds of an immortal harvest, pass by unimproved? Or, will the church awake, and in the very infancy of this rising community, consecrate it, with all its resources and its teeming myriads of intelligent, accountable men to the Lord Jesus Christ?

OTHER AGENCIES IN THE WEST.

ILLINOIS.—The REV. FLAVEL BASCOM, of Chicago, though performing the duties of an important pastoral charge, has generously and largely aided the operations of the Society, in the northern sections of this State, by his correspondence and his counsels, the past year, as he has done in years preceding. In a communication recently received from him, he says—"For ten years, it has been my privilege to witness the toils, the privations and the joyful success of your missionaries in this state. To have had some humble part in these toils, privations and pleasures, is a privilege, for which I thank Heaven. I would exchange it for no earthly distinction. But, how momentous has been this period? Who can bear to contemplate the picture which would have been the sad reality, but for the influence of your Society? Who can estimate the blessings which will flow down to all coming generations, from these humble operations? And who can estimate the evils, which, in many places, it is now too late to remedy, that your Society might have prevented, but for the limitation of its resources? Ten years ago, there was only one Presbyterian and one Congregational church, in all that portion of the state, which lies within a hundred miles of its northern boundary. These, were in a state of feeble infancy, and were sustained by missionary funds. During the subsequent summer, three or four other churches were formed, within these bounds, all of which owed their existence to your Society. On the same field, there are now two Presbyterian and two Congregational Associations, embracing, in the whole, more than 60 churches. All these churches, with not more than two exceptions, have been formed by your missionaries, and fostered by your care. But for the agency of the American Home Missionary Society, many of these churches would never have had an existence. Or, if they had been organized, they would not have survived, unaided, the reverses and embarrassments, which have now rendered them so long dependent on eastern liberality. These churches, though but partially supplied with a stated ministry, are, nevertheless advancing, perhaps as rapidly as their sister churches in any part of the land, in numbers, in spirituality and in strength. The past year, has been a year of special divine favor. Probably this section of the state has never been blessed, in any former year, with revivals of religion so numerous and so powerful."

From other sources, we learn that many of these revivals had their origin in the outpouring of the Spirit upon the brethren of the Synod of Illinois, when—with one accord, in one place—they were beseeching God to give them a fresh anointing from on high, and to send them to their respective charges, full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, to proclaim the Gospel, as it was proclaimed in the days of apostles and martyrs. The same Spirit which had descended upon them, was soon seen to be moving upon the hearts of their people. Those far removed from the sanctuary and unable to attend it, those who were isolated from christian neighbors—in the solitude of their own cabins, felt its power. The single-handed, heavenly-minded missionary told the simple story of the cross to assemblies, still and solemn as the house of death. Christians were humbled in the dust—the infidel trembled before his Maker—the bold blasphemer cried out for mercy—the drunkard abandoned his cups—the backslider returned to his first love—the youth—the child became an heir of life, and the great name of God was glorified! Were the friends of missions to realize no other fruits of their labors than those which have been developed in these revivals, they might well exclaim—"Now lettest thou thy servants depart in peace, for our eyes have seen thy salvation."

It will be gratifying to the friends of Christ to be informed, that the REV. THERON BALDWIN, who served the Society with so much ability and success in this state in former years, has consented to devote what time can be spared from the responsible duties of his present station the coming year, to the furtherance of the same cause, particularly in the central and western sections of the state.

Sixty-five missionaries have been in commission, the last year, within the limits of this state—an increase of fourteen over the number of the year preceding.

WISCONSIN.—The progress which has been made in the establishment of Gospel institutions in this Territory, at so early a period in its history, is matter of devout thanksgiving and praise to the God of missions. Four years ago, and but four missionaries had broken the silence of the wilderness with the accents of mercy. The last year, twenty-eight have proclaimed salvation to the perishing and the lost, and have been hailed by multitudes as messengers of God—as guides to immortal life. The revivals which have been enjoyed under their ministry, in extent and power, are not unlike those which have blessed northern Illinois. In the mining district—in the north-western section of the Territory especially, the ministry of God, through the power of the Spirit of God, has wrought glorious changes in the aspects of society, and the hopes of men for another life, within the compass of the year. A missionary who has labored in that district, in speaking of a particular station, says—"I wish every friend of Home Missions could read a full history of that place—could see it as it was, before the windows of heaven were opened over it, and see it as it now is, since blessings have descended, till there seemed hardly room to receive them, and he would be abundantly repaid for all his contributions, in the good done in that single place. The whole mining region in fact, is an exceedingly interesting field, and the change effected during the year, in the religious aspect of it, is truly astonishing. A little more than a year ago, there were but two ordained ministers of our connexion in all northern Iowa, western Wisconsin, and north-western Illinois, viz:—at Galena and Mineral Point, and scarcely a church besides, that had even a name to live. Now, there are ordained ministers at Dubuque, Potosi, Prairie du Chien, Platteville, Fair Play, Freeport, and a licentiate at Cassville, and seven promising churches, either newly organized or resuscitated from almost utter extinction ; and all this, is the result of the operations of your Society in a little more than a single year."

The churches which have been organized all over this Territory, the houses of worship that have been erected, the children that have been gathered into common schools and Sabbath schools, and, above all, the seal of God so conspicuously set upon the early ministry of his servants here, are most auspicious omens of the highest prosperity and happiness of the people, for this life and for that which is to come.

The REV. STEPHEN PEET, is the general missionary and Agent of the Society, in this Territory.

IOWA.—The missionary field in this Territory, has been greatly enlarged, since our last report, by the rush of our population towards the going down of the sun. Not only have infant settlements grown up into flourishing villages, and new ones been commenced in districts which had already been thrown open, but a recent purchase of Indian lands, comprising more than fifteen thousand square miles, in the north-western section of the Territory—a tract of country more than twice as large as the State of Massachusetts, and unsurpassed in fertility, perhaps, by any on the globe, is—a large portion of it—to be opened for occupants the present spring. Thousands of purchasers have, for months, been standing upon the line. Every main road leading to the new purchase, was, even last autumn, almost literally lined with men women and children, with their flocks and herds, eager to be among the first to take possession. Intelligent men, who have witnessed the preparation which is making for the occupancy of this new purchase, as well as of other sections of the Territory scarcely less inviting, tell us there is good reason to believe, that the population of the Territory will be more than doubled within a single year.

And what are the prospects of these multitudes of immigrants for another life? Who are going out with them to care for their souls? The Mormon with his delusions; the Romanist with his mummary; the Infidel with his deadly poison; the Atheist, bold in his blasphemy; with a host of others of kindred spirit—the spirit of the pit—are competing with each other for the pre-eminence and the mastery, in giving shape and character to the faith, the morals, the hopes, the immortal destiny of the present and future population of this vast Territory. But where are the preachers of the pure Gospel of God our Savior? We have called for them during the last year, almost in vain. And our brethren who are there, thrusting in their sickles and gathering the golden harvest, till they well-nigh faint under their labors, have called for them almost in vain. They say—"Our Master requires no more of us here than we are able to perform. And who, in the East, or in any part of this lost world, would be willing to do less than all he is able, in the service of such a Master? We have no privations, but those to which our fellow citizens are hourly submitting, for the sake of gain. They do this for an earthly reward, while we are anticipating an incorruptible inheritance in heaven. We, indeed, have the extremity of the home missionary field, and inconveniences peculiar to our condition. But we are happy in our work. None of us regrets that he is to see his own New-England—the home of his childhood, and his early friends no more. None of us would exchange the prospects of usefulness that are opening before us, for aught that this world can give of ease or elegancies or affluence, nor for length of days beneath the sun." And yet, but few have been induced to cast in their lot with them. An increase of laborers there has been in other sections of the West—in Michigan, 10—in Wisconsin, 9—in Illinois, 15—in Missouri, 14—while we have to include two, recently commissioned, and now on their way to their respective fields, in order to report an increase of 4 in Iowa, and to make the whole number there 16.

We hope another year will not pass away, without giving to this Territory its full share of the increase of laborers, and making ample compensation to it even, for the deficiency of the past. The hearts of the youthful ministry are beginning to be turned towards this Territory, and sure we are, that if any friend of Christ, would send forward his thoughts over a single century, and fancy himself on some lofty eminence, looking down upon this section of his country and the vast regions beyond it—the dwelling place of millions on millions of Americans, but given up to the dominion of Popery, Atheism, and Sin—immoralities unrebuked by the godly, and crime unchecked by the fear of retribution from earth or Heaven; or viewing it, on the other hand, overspread with school-houses and sanctuaries, communities, enlightened, virtuous, peaceful, sending back the savor of their piety, to cement in perpetual union the brotherhood of the East and the West, and diffusing their charities, without grudging and without measure, over the globe,—that friend of Christ, whether God has given him talents and learning and a holy heart, or silver and gold, sympathies and prayer to consecrate to his service in this portion of his vineyard, would surely feel, that whatsoever his hand findeth to do, must be done quickly.

The REV. ASA TURNER has devoted one half of his time, during the year, to the duties of a general missionary and Agent of the Society in this Territory.

CANADA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Nine missionaries have been in commission in Canada, since our last report—eight in Canada East, and one in Canada West—five of them sustained by the Canada Home Missionary Society, at an expense of $736 04, and four by the funds of the parent institution.

“The missionary churches in Canada,” says the Secretary of the Society, REV. CALEB STRONG, “continue unbroken, and those situated in the midst of intense excitement on the subject of Millerism, have remained steadfast, while other churches have been painfully convulsed. Some have enjoyed revivals more or less powerful, and have been enlarged and strengthened. And if it is remembered, that there are thousands of American origin in Canada—that revivals have hitherto been very rare, and that there are unfavorable influences to contend with altogether unknown in the United States, it will be seen that Canada still presents a peculiar claim to the sympathy and prayers of American Christians.”

Correspondence has been had during the year, with the Colonial Missionary Society of England and Wales, proposing that, so far as practicable, the responsibilities of this Institution, with reference to the churches in Canada, should be assumed by that Society, in order that our energies may be concentrated upon our own country. The Committee of the Colonial Missionary Society, tender to the patrons of this Institution the thanks of British Christians, for the aid which has been so long and so liberally rendered to the churches in Canada; and while they express their apprehension, that they shall not be able fully to meet the necessities of these churches, they regard the American Home Missionary Society, nevertheless, as fully absolved from all obligation with reference to them, in view of the great work to which we are called in our own appropriate sphere of action. We quote a paragraph of their reply, that it may be seen, by American Christians, how important the evangelization of this nation, in its bearings upon the destinies of mankind, is esteemed to be by intelligent, far-reaching, christian philanthropists on the other side of the Atlantic.

“The Committee,” says the Secretary, REV. ALGERNON

WELLS, "sympathizes with its American brethren, in the views and feelings, under the influence of which, they feel called upon to devote their first and most strenuous efforts to complete the evangelization of their own mighty and growing country. It admits of no doubt, that the first duty of the American churches, is to provide for the religious wants of America—that in fulfilling their duty to their own country, they are most effectually fulfilling their duty to the world. If their efforts shall keep pace with the rapid spread and increase of its population; if they shall supply evangelical truth and power, adequate to contend with the mass of European Popery, vice and infidelity, which their country is required annually to receive and absorb; if they shall imbue all the elements of its mighty freedom, commerce intelligence, with the living power of the Gospel; if they shall exhibit and prove to the world, that free institutions in religion, are adequate to the great work of rendering safe and salutary free institutions in all the other interests of society, then will they have accomplished a glorious triumph for all coming ages of mankind, and British Christians cannot but look on with deep interest and entire approbation, while their American brethren are devoting their resources and energies to their proper dispensation, and cannot but wish them God speed with devout and earnest prayer."

THE PRESENT ASPECTS OF THE MISSIONARY WORK.

The review which we have taken of the year, and of the field which has been committed to our culture, while it calls for gratitude and praise that so much has been accomplished, cannot fail, we think, to impress upon every heart, a deep sense of the entire inadequacy of the instrumentalities and resources hitherto employed to the attainment of the end which we seek to secure—the triumphs of the Gospel over this whole country. Our enlarged offerings for the relief of the needy, have been but as the three loaves and the two fishes, in the presence of an immense multitude. And to the wonder working power of Jesus of Nazareth alone, is it to be ascribed, that so many thousands, on so small supplies, have been nourished into immortal life. But, how many more are the thousands, that have remained unfed—whom no associated action of the people of God—no provisions of the church have ever reached.

It is painful to look over our older states, where missionary institutions have been in operation twenty, thirty, forty years, and find, in any of them, the work yet undone—nay, growing upon their hands—a far greater number destitute of Gospel privileges now, than when these benevolent efforts began. It is painful to see our new states doubling their population in the short period of ten years, and some even in five—that population gathered from the hordes of ignorance and vice and ecclesiastical corruption in the old world, or, going out from the sanctuaries and family altars of the eastern and middle states, and becoming strangers to the house of God and apostates from the faith of their fathers—and to feel, that all we are doing for their salvation, is scarcely sufficient to meet the necessities of a tenth part of their number. It is painful to see our settlements extending—villages and cities springing up as if by enchantment, thousands on thousands seeking their homes for life, far away from the restraining, purifying influences of christian society, there to form and consolidate social organizations, which are to shape the character and seal the destiny of untold millions of our countrymen, and to be able to do almost nothing towards pouring in upon these settlements, at this favored moment, the light of everlasting truth. And yet, such is our condition—such is the disproportion of the means employed by the church to the end to be attained, if our land ever becomes a mountain of holiness. As we look at this glaring disproportion—as we see how inadequate are our plans, how meagre our resources for prosecuting the work which God has given us to do, we should enter upon the labors of another year with desponding hearts, did we not see, in the signs of the times, and in the everlasting covenants of God, sources of encouragement, unfailing as his power and inexhaustible as his beneficence.

We see evidences on every side, that God is moving upon the hearts of his people—that he is giving them more enlarged conceptions of the great work of Missions at Home, and kindling up in their souls a zeal for the honor of his name in their native land, which will not suffer them to rest, until salvation by the blood of the Lamb shall be proclaimed, wherever the voice of a fellow-countryman is heard or his footsteps seen. The conviction, we believe, is fast becoming more general and more deep, that it belongs, by the ordination of Heaven, to THE AMERICAN CHURCHES, TO TAKE CARE OF THEIR OWN COUNTRY—to give heed to the cries of the perishing at their very door—to be drawn out, by the ties of consanguinity, after the wanderer in the wilderness, and the disconsolate in his lonely cabin. We believe the conviction is fast becoming more general and more deep, that the present, is the time of our merciful visitation—that now, our country may be saved—that while it is yet in its youthful vigor, we may throw around it the power of truth and the cords of eternal love, and bind it together as with adamant chains—but that, if we linger in our work, it will ere long put on the inflexible character of manhood—ere long be sinking into that decline, which awaits all nations unbaptized from on high, and from which there is no resurrection! We believe the conviction is fast becoming more general and more deep, that TO TAKE CARE OF OUR OWN COUNTRY IS TO TAKE CARE OF THE WORLD—that to multiply the churches of Christ and the converts to righteousness here—to secure from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the consecration of gold and silver, sons and daughters, sympathies and prayers to the coming of the kingdom of Christ over the globe, is to bring to the work of missions abroad, such reinforcements of talent and enterprize and faith and treasure, as will carry it right on, like the chariots of God, until great voices shall be heard in heaven, saying, “The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ!”

We see evidences on every side, that God is moving upon the hearts of the ministry—imbuing the candidates for temple-service with an apostolic spirit. The message comes to us from our Seminaries of sacred science, as it has not for years gone by—it comes with a tone of sincerity and earnestness that cannot be misinterpreted,—“Here are we, send us. We are bought with a price, and at how dear a price we are ready to testify, by thrusting ourselves, joyfully, into the fore-front of the battle. We can bear privations, we can endure hardships, we can sleep sweetly, in an early grave, till the morning of the resurrection, if we may but preach Christ and him crucified to our perishing fellow countrymen. We crave the privilege of traversing those ocean prairies, though it be in weariness and watchings, in cold and nakedness, if ours may be the blessedness of pointing their inhabitants to the Lamb of God.” One and another much-loved and long-tried pastor, too, is telling us, “I am happy in my present relations, surrounded with comforts, and with every prospect that I might here spend a quiet and peaceful old age. But, a deep concern has been fastening itself upon my inmost soul, for my kinsman according to the flesh, for my native land, at this crisis in her history. God has made me to endure hardness. I can go, where others cannot. For such an object, my people will cheerfully relinquish me. They will follow me with their prayers, and God will give them manifold more in this present time. I will go out, not knowing—not caring whither I go, if so be the Spirit of God, and the benedictions of the people of God rest upon me. I may fall the sooner, but I shall fall the happier.”

Whence, we ask, hath this growing, heart-burdening concern for the destitute in our own wildernesses—for the redemption of our own land, been kindled up in the churches and in the ministry? Hath it not come of Him, who hath engraven our Zion upon the palms of his hands, and who hath her walls ever before him? And hath he not purposes of mercy to accomplish thereby, which his own omnipotence will not suffer to fail? And what mean these wonderful outpourings of the Spirit—these unwonted, unmeasured blessings which descend upon the fields of our labor—the revival of one year joining the revival of the next, and each succeeding one leaving more striking marks of its heavenly origin? Is it not that we are approaching the fulfilment of the promises—the final consummation of the Redeemer's triumphs? Is it not, that the Spirit is to be poured upon all flesh, and the ends of the earth are to see the salvation of God; and that ours is to be the privilege of girding ourselves for conflict with the powers of darkness, amidst such revelations of divine grace as this world has never seen—such as prophetic vision could find no language adequate to describe?

These are the hopes, and this the confidence, with which we enter upon the labors of another year. If the people of God shall but read these signs of his coming, and be moved by them to deeds of sacrifice and self-denial, corresponding to the magnitude of the work to be done, and the encouragements we have to undertake it in the name of the Lord of Hosts; if the burning zeal, which has been kindled up in so many noble spirits in the christian ministry, may but catch from soul to soul, till every herald of mercy shall feel, that it is his highest privilege and his highest joy, to wear out his life where labor is the severest and earthly gratifications few, if he may but know, that there his Master hath most need of him; if every such herald may be sent forth, and comforted and cheered in his toils, by those who would share with him his glorious recompense of reward; if our older communities will but take up that which remains unfinished and unattempted within their bounds, with a zeal and a liberality that shall know no abatement, until the work there is done, and their surplus treasures are poured over the mountains, to make the wilderness a pool of water and the dry land springs of water; if communities of more recent origin, will aspire to the dignity of casting off their dependence, and throwing in their offerings, to swell the streams of benevolence, rolling in grandeur towards the setting sun—like the streams of their own Valley to the Father of Waters; if the whole American church, will but arise in the greatness of her strength, and put her hand, once for all, to the enterprize, and—looking up steadfastly into heaven, and seeing

Jesus sitting on the right hand of power, and saying, "Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, that will I give unto you"—lift up the prayer, THY KINGDOM HERE COME, AND THY WILL BE DONE, AS IT IS IN HEAVEN, then, will the work, which is indeed so vast, and to which our mightiest resources are so utterly incompetent—then, will this work be DONE. OUR COUNTRY WILL BE SAVED! AND THE NATIONS OF THE EARTH WILL RISE IN THE LIGHT OF IT, TO GLORY AND TO GOD!

Secretaries for Correspondence.

APPENDIX.

Auxiliary Societies, Agencies, and Committees of Missions, and the nature of their connexion with the A. H. M. S.

State and other large Auxiliaries.

Most of the state Missionary Societies were in existence before the formation of the National Society, and some of them—as the Missionary Societies of Connecticut and Massachusetts—were among the earliest organized efforts in our country for sending the Gospel to the destitute. They have voluntarily connected themselves with the A. H. M. S. from a conviction that greater unity of plan and efficiency in action would thereby be promoted.

The terms by which the Auxiliaries are connected with the Parent Society, are such as to secure the following objects, viz :

First—The Auxiliary is not superseded or overshadowed by the National Institution, but, on the contrary, is invigorated and sustained by connexion with it. This is secured by the provision that the Auxiliary is the sole agency for this cause that operates on its field. It controls all appointments in the state to which it belongs. From it alone the feeble churches receive assistance. Thus a direct relation and strong attachment is cherished towards it, in the hearts of the ministers and churches.

Again—While the local operations of the Auxiliary are thus encouraged and sustained, its connexion with the Parent Society is such as to awaken an interest in the destitute beyond its own limits, and afford facilities for reaching them. It is not only a Society for local purposes, but it is also a branch of the National Society, and as such, has the control of all agencies for the collection of funds within its own field, and can direct the manner in which its surplus resources shall be expended beyond its own limits. Thus the state and other large Auxiliaries are not merely organizations to help the Parent Society ; they are integral parts of it, bound together in one whole by a common interest in, and free access through the Parent Society, to the great field to be occupied, and governed by the same general principles and rules in carrying on their work.

The Auxiliaries holding this relation to the National Society, are the following :—The state Missionary Societies in Maine, Massachusetts, New-Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut and Rhode-Island ; the Canada Home Missionary Society ; the Philadelphia Home Missionary Society, which extends its operations over the states of New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland ; and the Western Reserve Domestic Missionary Society, in Northern Ohio.

Agents.

Besides taking up contributions for Home Missions, the Agents of the A. H. M. S. exercise a general superintendence of the operations of the Society within their respective fields. By correspondence and personal visitation, they ascertain the wants of the destitute ; assist them to obtain the preaching of the Gospel ; and instruct and encourage them to develop their own means for its support. They receive applications for aid, and make such preliminary examination as may be necessary before submitting them for the action of the Executive Committee ; and in other ways, labor to insure a judicious and economical application of the Society's funds.

At present, the Society has in its employ no merely collecting agents, nor any whose services are not required for other purposes in the regions where they labor.

The Secretaries of several of the larger Auxiliaries already mentioned, are also the Agents for this cause in their respective bounds. Besides these, the Parent Society has in commission the following, who devote, some the whole, and others a part of the time, to this work, viz :—

Rev. ASA TURNER, in Iowa, part of the time.

Rev. STEPHEN PEET, in Wisconsin.

Rev. HENRY LITTLE, in the portions of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Tennessee and Kentucky, which may be conveniently associated with Cincinnati, as a centre.

Rev. F. BASCOM, in Northern Illinois, performs some of the duties of a voluntary Agent, in connexion with missionary committees appointed by the Fox River Association and the Ottawa Presbytery. Also, Rev. THERON BALDWIN in Southern Illinois, devotes such portions of his time to this work, as can be spared from other duties.

Rev. JOHN A. MURRAY, in Western New-York.

Rev. ABIAH CRANE, in Central New-York.

In certain districts, where the duties of an Agent are likely to be peculiarly responsible, there is associated with him a board of counsellors selected from the region of his labors, called an Agency. These Boards of Agency differ from Auxiliary Societies, in that they have no independent existence, but are appointed by the Executive Committee from year to year, and are governed by rules which the Committee prescribe. Their duty is to counsel and direct the Agent in carrying out the principles of the Society, and to give advice in relation to such local matters as may be submitted to them by the Executive Committee. The persons composing a board of Agency, are selected for their intelligence and interest in this cause, and their influence in promoting it; and are so distributed over the field as to secure a personal acquaintance with its condition. The Agent of the Society is also the Secretary of the Agency with which he is associated.

The existing Agencies of the Society are the following, viz: The Central Committee of Agency for the Western states: office at Cincinnati. The Marietta Agency, for nine counties lying in the vicinity of Marietta, O.; the Western and Central Agencies in the state of New-York, having their respective offices at Geneva and Utica. Lists of the persons composing these Agencies will be found on a subsequent page.

These boards of counsel might not have been necessary, had the ecclesiastical bodies on the ground been able and disposed to pay sufficient attention to the missionary work, and to act as its directors in their respective bounds. But the ministers composing them are usually scattered over a wide extent of territory, and meet but seldom, and only at seasons when they are much occupied with other business; and accordingly, it has been necessary in some cases to organize agencies for this specific work. But in other cases, Synods, Presbyteries and Associations have chosen to act as Auxiliaries of the Society, availing themselves of the provisions of its constitution, which gives them the general control of missionary operations in their respective churches. Ecclesiastical bodies thus related to the A. H. M. S. act through

Committees of Missions.

The A. H. M. S. has ever regarded the ecclesiastical bodies as the appropriate judges of the standing of their own ministers, and of the wants of the churches in their connexion. Accordingly, the commission issued to every missionary requires, that his credentials be acceptable to that ministerial body of his denomination within whose bounds he is appointed to labor. And the various Presbyteries, Associations, &c. are invited to appoint, each, a Committee of Missions from its own members, to receive applications from its churches, and suggest to the Society the action proper in each case. Such a committee constitutes the official source to which reference can be had for information and advice in all matters pertaining to missions in the connexion to which it belongs. This mode of co-operation has been preferred by numerous ecclesiastical bodies, from the first formation of the Society. It guarantees to the churches of each denomination represented in the Society, that their respective claims shall be fairly considered with all the advantage of having the endorsement of the body to which they belong. It also relieves the Parent Society from the responsibility of any error that may be committed in a given appointment, and transfers it to the Committee of Missions, by whom it is recommended, and on whom it properly devolves. The advice of such a Committee is therefore regarded as the highest authority, and has the same influence with the Society as that of a Board of Agency appointed by itself.

There is one limitation to this influence, however, which ought to be stated. Should any ecclesiastical body so far swerve from the principles of truth and Gospel order, as not to be in fellowship with the great body of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches in our land, that fact would cause its recommendations not to be respected by the Executive Committee.

As cases may occur in which the feeble churches may not be aware of the existence of any board of Agency, or Committee of Missions, through whom to apply for aid, a general provision is made, that applications may be vouched by any two ministers of known and approved standing, who can certify to the facts of the case. If the information thus given is not sufficient, other facts are sought by the Executive Committee, through private correspondence.

Such, briefly, are the relations of the American Home Missionary Society to the various organs through which the community seeks to act out its missionary feeling. It will be seen that this plan secures the united action, in the missionary work, of those, whose views of doctrine and church order admit of co-operation, and whose interests in the great field are essentially the same. This combination insures a homogeneous policy as to the manner and amount of appropriations, and the qualifications of missionaries; it has discouraged sectional feelings, and diffused throughout each part an interest in all the rest; and thus has formed ties between the West and the East, along which have passed, from the latter to the former a silent and invisible current of moral influences, more valuable, if possible, than all pecuniary grants. At the same time, the connexion of the Parent Society with the various Associations that act with it, is such as to secure to them entire freedom in the missionary work, in their respective spheres, and an influence beyond them, in cultivating the waste places of our common country.

ADDRESS

Of Rev. S. L. Pomroy, at the Annual Meeting of the A. H. M. S.

Resolved, That the Gospel of Jesus Christ is adapted to the necessities of nations, not less than of individuals.

The first inquiry, said Mr. P., which naturally presents itself, is, what are "the necessities of nations?" What are the necessities of France, Spain, England, or any other country? The answer is, the necessities of a nation are precisely those things in which it falls short of attaining or securing the great object of the social compact. The object aimed at, theoretically and professedly, by national organizations, is the security of individual, personal rights. Among these may be mentioned a man's physical rights—his right to life, and to the means requisite to sustain it; his intellectual rights—the right to think, to know, to argue freely according to conscience, the highest and dearest of all liberties; moral rights—rights of conscience—the right to worship God when and where and how he pleases, provided he does not infringe upon the rights of others; domestic rights, the inviolability of the family compact; social rights, the rights of man as a member of human society; immortal rights—his rights as an accountable creature of God, destined to eternity—the right to abandon his sins, to love and serve God, and prepare for heaven. All these are human rights, inalienable rights, DIVINE rights. The nation that should fully secure these individual rights, would accomplish the great end of its existence, and promote the highest welfare of man, as a physical, intellectual, moral, social, accountable, immortal being.

But what nation or kingdom under the whole heaven does thus fully secure the rights, and promote the highest welfare, of its citizens for time and eternity? Not one. Nations are made up of individuals, proud, selfish, revengeful, rebels against God. Can such a people enact laws and administer a government that shall not violate human rights? Judge ye!

How is it with our own beloved country? Are our constitution, our legislation, judicial proceedings, executive administrations, state and national, all "holy, just and good?" Are we, as a nation, doing all we can and ought to do, to promote the physical, intellectual, moral, social, eternal welfare of each and every inhabitant? Are there no physical necessities unprovided for among us? Have the wants of the human mind been every where met? Are there not some 700,000 free white persons in this enlightened land who can neither read nor write? What provision has been made for the moral and spiritual wants of this great community? There are large sections of the country where the Gospel can hardly be said to be preached at all.

That, as a nation, we have not attained the objects contemplated in the organization of nations, is evident enough from various signs which are visible all around our horizon. What, for instance, means that fanatical spirit which pervades the whole country, and which is so easily kindled into a flame?

What is indicated by the existence of that reckless, infernal mob-spirit, which ever and anon stalks abroad, scattering fire-brands, arrows and death? What means that sighing of the prisoner which I hear, that clanking of chains, about which men are afraid to speak, that deep, smothered, yet audible groan which is going up from three millions of abused and crushed spirits into the ear of the Lord God Almighty? What means that dark, fiendish spirit, that may be seen sitting upon the crest, or creeping, like a snake, among the folds of every storm-cloud that passes over the land?—a lying, truckling spirit, with one eye, and that, as Carlyle said of Robespierre, “sea green;” and one object in view, to wit, the next election, which he means to carry by any means, by all means, fair or foul—a spirit that is ready to ally or sell himself to Popery or slavery, to Joe Smith or the Devil, or any other potentate or power that will give him voters and votes.

What means this trembling anxiety which many of our wisest men feel respecting the mighty armies that come thronging the great highway of nations, and pouring themselves upon our shores, and here rearing their citadels, arranging their forces, and preparing, as they hope for the conquest of this glorious land? What is the matter? Where lies the ground of this anxiety? What mean, I say, all these elements of evil at work within the nation with such galvanic power—threatening to tear us asunder, or bury us in the gulf of eternal infamy and ruin? Do they not intimate at least that we have not yet attained the great, benign and blessed objects for which nations were instituted? Is it not clear to a demonstration, that our necessities are great, our iniquities infinite? No man can open his eyes and not see, that we are full of wounds and bruises and putrifying sores, which have not been bound up, neither mollified with ointment, and our disease is not abating—our transgressions are not diminishing. We are daily sinking deeper and deeper in depravity.

Now the resolution, which I hold in my hand, affirms that the Gospel of Jesus Christ is adapted to the necessities of nations. And what, I ask, are the necessities of a nation but the necessities of the individuals who compose the nation? Let the wants of the individuals of a nation, physical, intellectual, moral, social, be fully met; and what can that nation want more? What necessities remain?

And surely, sir, it is not difficult to see how Christianity may elevate and bless a community. Look at its doctrines. Contemplate the character of its great Author, as revealed in the scriptures of truth. What an object to hold up before the mind and heart of a mighty empire!

“Fly through the world, O Sun, and tell How dark thy beams compared to his.”

Consider the character and work of Christ. What an irresistible charm there is in that cross on which he died! The cross is the symbol of the most glorious truth that ever dawned on this benighted world. Christianity also teaches the brotherhood of the human family—a fact of momentous interest and importance.

Look at the precepts of the Gospel—its injunction of supreme love and obedience to God; respect for the magistrate and obedience to the laws; and impartial love to our neighbor.

Look at its institutions—its church organizations, its day of holy rest, its ministry of reconciliation, giving line upon line, precept upon precept.

Now these doctrines, precepts and institutions of Christianity are adapted to enlighten, elevate, purify, and bless a nation, by enlightening, elevating, purifying, and blessing the individuals who compose it.

Let this Gospel with all its benign influences penetrate and permeate the nation—let it have free course; and who can doubt that all our physical, intellectual, moral, domestic, social, immortal rights and interests will be secure? Our fanatical tendencies will be arrested and cured. That fearful mass of brutish ignorance, which now hangs like a millstone about our necks, will be instructed and become instinct with life. The manufacture, sale and use of intoxicating drinks, as a beverage, will come to a perpetual end, and those “breathing holes of hell” be stopped up. Popery will sink like a millstone in the sea and be found no more at all. It is not the Gospel, and cannot breathe its atmosphere without losing its identity. If we had faith as a grain of mustard-seed, we should never, for a moment, entertain feelings of apprehension from this source. God in his providence is bringing these myriads of poor ignorant beings to our shores, and scattering them among our Protestant population, that we may do them good—the good which we either would not or could not do them in their own land. I wish I had five hundred hands, that I might go down to the shore and take by the hand every emigrant as he sets his foot on our shores. I would say to him, brother, walk in. If you are hungry, we have bread enough and to spare. If you are cold and naked, here you will find clothing and shelter. If you are sick, we have physicians and systems of medicine in abundance, and they are at your service. Receive him thus, and you will find that an Irishman has a heart. You will make him believe, that after all there are good people among those Protestants; and will win him at length to the cause of truth. But if you go down to the shore, and double up your fist at him, and charge him with designs of treason and murder in coming hither, you at all events make him an enemy, and shut up the door of his heart against all efforts to promote his spiritual good. The great mass of the Catholic population among us certainly harbor no such designs, and if we would do them good we must treat them kindly. At any rate, if Protestantism cannot cope with Popery on this free soil, in the midst of Bibles, and Sabbaths, and schools, and seminaries; then I say let us give up the contest, and hasten back to Rome and get absolution as speedily as possible.

Let the Gospel have free course, let it be preached in its purity, and its principles be faithfully applied, and it will undermine the great blood-stained citadel of slavery, and send it down, chains, manacles, dungeons and all, like Lucifer and his hosts from the battlements of heaven, nine days deep into the gulf of annihilation; and in its place will spring up a bright and beautiful temple for God and liberty.

That mean, truckling, contemptible spirit of party, that is now corrupting and ruining the nation, will add speed to his flight, like a modern governmental defaulter, and never again set foot on these blessed shores.

The same Gospel, sir, and nothing but the Gospel, can long hold the elements of this nation in union. We are a “mingled people.” Our interests clash—our prejudices in many things are at variance. If the Gospel go not forth in its power into all parts of the land, some who hear me will probably live to see this great nation dashed in pieces like a potter’s vessel, and at the noise and crash of our downfall, every despot of the old world will rise from his throne and thank God that he was not doomed to be the citizen of an American Republic.

The Gospel is what this nation wants, the whole Gospel, and nothing but the Gospel. With this, we stand; without it, we fall. It has already done and is doing a marvellous work in this land; and I trust in God it will yet accomplish its full mission of mercy, breaking down the strong holds of sin, and saving the millions that are ready to perish.

Sir, I cannot but think there is hope for us as a nation. Why was God six thousand years in preparing this rich, beautiful, magnificent country for the reception of our fathers? Why did he plant such a nation here? Why has he intrusted to us such amazing interests? Would he have shown us such great things if it had been his pleasure to kill us? Let us fervently pray, that we may yet be truly regenerated, and that the powers and functions of our government having been properly adjusted, we may move along the bright pathway of our history, dispensing rich and still richer blessings even down to the final consummation of all things.

If such be the destiny that awaits us, we may be quite sure that we have a work and a labor to perform of no trifling importance. Within 25 years a work must be wrought in this land such as we have not seen, and such as will put in requisition the faith, the energies, and all the resources of the church of the living God among us, or we go down—we sink forever.

What then is the conclusion of the whole matter? It is, that every one who has the hope of the Christian, should drink deeper into the spirit of the Gospel, and gird on his armour more firmly than he ever did before. The great want of this age is more piety. We have not religion enough to meet the calls of God and the exigencies of the times in which we live.

We must open our hearts and our hands and give more liberally of our substance. There is property enough in the church, if it were only consecrated to Christ.

We must publish and proclaim every where through all our borders, the unsearchable riches of the Gospel, and lay the offer of salvation at the feet of every man, woman and child in the nation, at whatever cost.

If you have in your possession a golden trumpet, (which few have,) set it to your mouth, and let the message of mercy float on its rich, mellow, subduing, melting tones.

Perchance you have a silver trumpet; if so, blow that. Let its clear, silvery, persuasive notes fall on the ear of dying men. Some will hear; and hearing, their souls shall live.

Or, it may be God has given you a brazen bugle, such as stirs up men's souls, and moves to mighty deeds. If so, set it to thy mouth, and blow the everlasting Gospel. Let its loud, shrill, truth-telling, thrilling notes echo along the hills, and roll over the mountains till they reach the farthest dweller in the wilderness.

If you have nothing better than a ram's horn, blow, blow it with all your might, and if the heaven-defying towers of sin and the bulwarks of wickedness do not come down on the first day, don't be discouraged; but up again on the second day, with the dawning light, and blow loud and long, and on the seventh day, which is the day of the Lord, blow seven times, which is the perfect number, and remember how the walls of Jericho came down.

In a word, if the Christians of this land, or indeed any considerable portion of them, will awake to their duty, and labor and pray, and pray and labor, with an unfaltering trust in the great Head of the church, we shall live and not die. Ten righteous would have saved Sodom, or to echo the language of the Report just read, "OUR COUNTRY WILL BE SAVED! AND THE NATIONS OF THE EARTH WILL RISE IN THE LIGHT OF IT, TO GLORY AND TO GOD!"

Our Country—Its rapid changes and prospects.

From a Speech of Hon. J. C. Calhoun.

Our population is rolling towards the shores of the Pacific, with an impetus greater than what we realize. It is one of those forward movements which leaves anticipation behind. In the period of thirty-two years which have elapsed since I took my seat in the other House, the Indian frontier has receded a thousand miles to the West. At that time, our population was much less than half what it is now. It was then increasing at the rate of about a quarter of a million annually; it is now not less than six hundred thousand; and still increasing at the rate of something more than three per cent. compound annually. At that rate, it will soon reach the yearly increase of a million. If to this be added, that the region west of Arkansas and the State of Missouri, and south of the Missouri river, is occupied by half-civilized tribes, who have their lands secured to them by treaty, (and which will prevent the spread of population in that direction, and that this great and increasing tide will be forced to take the comparatively narrow channel to the north of that river and south of our northern boundary, some conception may be formed of the strength with which the current will run in that direction, and how soon it will reach the eastern gorges of the Rocky Mountains. I say some conception; for I feel assured that the reality will outrun the anticipation. As wise and experienced as was President Monroe—as much as he had witnessed of the growth of our country in his time, so inadequate was his conception of its rapidity, that near the close of his administration, in the year 1824, he proposed to colonize the Indians of New-York, and those north of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi, in what is now called the Wisconsin Territory; under the impression that it was a portion of our territory so remote, that they would not be disturbed by our increasing population for a long time to come. It is now but 18 years since; and already, in that short period, it is a great and flourishing territory, ready to knock at our door for admission as one of the sovereign members of the Union. But what is still more striking—what is really wonderful and almost miraculous, is, that another territory (Iowa) still further west, (beyond the Mississippi,) has sprung up, as if by magic, and has already outstripped Wisconsin, and may knock for entrance before she is prepared to do so? Such is the wonderful growth of a population, which has attained the number ours has, and is still yearly increasing at the compound rate it is; and such the impetus with which it is forcing its way, resistlessly, westward.

Such are the convictions of an experienced and sagacious civilian. And now, we would ask, what kind of government and religion shall the people have, who are to swarm over this yet unmeasured extent? Shall they be a law-abiding people? Shall they have christian institutions—Protestant institutions? Will our children be among them?

And who are to educate and mould those hordes? What generation is entrusted with the charge of giving form to their moral image? There can be but one answer. This generation—our readers among the rest—must meet the responsibility. If we, who live now, omit or postpone this work; if we do it not with all our might, how can those who succeed us do it, when it shall have so greatly increased in magnitude and difficulty?

Facts not to be forgotten.

If the population of the United States shall double every thirty years, (and the President of the United States estimates that it doubles every twenty-three years) it would amount in fifty years to between seventy and eighty millions; and in a hundred years to two hundred and seventy-five millions. Allowing thirty-three years as the age of a generation, the conversion of these millions is (instrumentally) the work for the next three generations! What the last of these shall be, depends, under God, on the second; and what the second shall be depends on that which is now on the stage. How true it is, that the work of the present generation cannot be handed over to the next.

What is the teaching of such facts?

Facts like these admonish us to do what our hands find to do for our country with all our might. There is said to be a hill in Europe, from the top of which bursts forth a spring, and that the removal of a single spade-full of earth may determine whether its waters shall fall into the Rhine, and thus reach the Atlantic; or whether they shall flow in the opposite direction, and mingle with the sources of the Danube, that winds its way through many distant states, and is finally lost in the waves of the Euxine. So diverse are the ends towards which the current of our nation's destiny may be turned; and now is the time, and this the generation which is to determine which way the stream shall run. A few years have greatly altered the moral aspect of the nation; and a few years more will make greater changes still. An era in our history seems to be at hand, and many a heart is failing for fear of the events that will follow. Whatever is done to give an evangelical type to those events must be done soon. A dollar expended for the salvation of the country ten years ago, was worth two expended now; and the same amount now will far exceed in usefulness what it will if not employed until ten years hence. This is the day of our country's salvation; a few thousands of treasure may prevent her ruin; millions might fail to retrieve it!

The West, its present condition and prospective Influence.

Delay is ruin.

The more I ponder upon the subject of Home Missions, and listen to the almost daily recital of new and interesting facts bearing upon it, the more I feel the imperious necessity of the sacramental host's of God's elect coming up now to his help against the mighty. Delay here will not only ruin thousands of souls, but greatly retard the glorious latter day of the Redeemer's triumphant reign on earth.

Every day is here laying foundations for future generations, who are to wield a mighty influence on the destinies of this nation. Not less than three county-seats, within a short distance of this place, are open for the labors of efficient ministers, and which form such points of radiating influence as I have named. O! what results might be expected from the labors of faithful ministers there! Are there none to thrust in the sickle and secure the harvest for the Lord? "The field is white, and the harvest great," but where are the laborers? GLEANING at the East.

I wish all the candidates for the ministry, in the Theological Seminaries, as well as some of the ministers now in the field, would attentively read, and prayerfully reflect upon a note, contained in the Comprehensive Commentary, vol. 4, page 596, on Luke 24: 36—48, by the late lamented Dr. WISNER. It would aid them in determining their proper field of labor. It is true, he primarily refers to the Foreign Mission field; but, if his principles of reasoning are correct, it is clear, "that it is not, as is commonly done, to be taken for granted by those who come into the ministry, that they are to remain," in the older States, "unless a case of duty can be made out for them," to go to the West; "but it is to be taken for granted, that they are to be employed in preaching the Gospel in the destitute region of the West, and there building up christian institutions, unless a case can be made out for them to remain" at the East, where the institutions of religion are already established.

Perhaps there was never before so favorable an opportunity for exerting an influence in this vicinity in favor of orthodox sentiments. There has been a happy change of feeling in regard to an educated ministry. The more intelligent portion of the community will not attend the meetings of those whose only evidence that God has called them is, "that they can preach so well when so ignorant."

Now is the accepted time!

From Iowa a missionary writes:

"The field is white already for the harvest. There seems to be an increased conviction on the minds of the mass of the people, that 'religion is the chief concern of mortals here below.' I feel that now is the time to gather in the harvest. Sinners are inviting us to preach the everlasting Gospel. The Holy Spirit is inviting us to go out into the highways and hedges, and compel men to come in. I know the number of laborers has increased—almost doubled—in our connection, the past year; but the demand is increased, not diminished. The few that came to our aid seem to be lost, just as the little stream is lost, that makes its way to one of our lakes, or to the Father of Rivers. The state of things in this territory demands a greatly increased number of laborers from the A. H. M. Society—1st. Because immigration is more rapid than ever before; men are pouring in here every day and every hour. 2d. God is holding the pursuit after the world in check; a dark cloud hangs over our pecuniary affairs. True, many are perplexed and troubled, and the minds of many are soured; still the mass begin to feel, that they must lay up treasure somewhere else than on earth. 3d. The Holy Spirit seems to be hovering over the territory. Such times should be improved. If we had five times as many laborers as we have, all filled with the Holy Ghost, they would have enough to do. One year's labor now may be worth more than ten bye-and-bye. Such a state of things existed when I first entered Illinois, twelve years ago; but it did not return for years. My prayer is, that you will send us on forthwith some true yoke-fellows."

Changes in twelve years.

I have recently taken a circuit of about 250 miles over the central part of Illinois, and I can assure you, the feelings that were awakened in my mind were indescribable, as I contrasted the populous towns, and thickly settled neighborhoods, broad fields and numerous spacious barns and dwelling-houses, with what Illinois was, when, 12 or 15 years ago, I traversed its wide-spread plains, meeting nothing for a half, or even for a whole day, but the wolf and the badger, and as I thought of the unborn millions that must tread this fertile soil, under the influence of the religious institution we are now establishing, I involuntarily inquired, "who is sufficient for these things?"

Changes in five years.

Not quite five years ago, I first preached in —— neighborhood; then quite a small room, say sixteen feet by eighteen, held the congregation very comfortably; and there were not more than 9 or 10 professors of religion. Now we have a church there of about 50 members; there are 9 or 10 members of the Methodist church there, and 15 or 16 of the Baptist church; so that it is now quite a church going community. The change at —— is almost as great. So that the country over which these churches extend, some 30 miles in length, by 8 or 10 in breadth, is now hardly surpassed in morality and religious influence by any neighborhood of the same extent in the western country; and I hope to see them able, in a very little while, to sustain the Gospel among themselves.

Are the facts known?

Do the churches at the East understand the state of things here? Do they realize the importance of immediate effort? If they do not, the enemy does, and acts upon it too. Let Christians in the East remember that their brothers and sisters, and sons and daughters, are here, and many of them cut off from the stated means of grace, and spending their Sabbaths in silence, while they possess, almost to repletion, the preaching of the word. And often while such mourn in secret, and long for the crumbs that fall from your tables, they refrain to disclose their real situation. I have seen such cases. Some have not had the opportunity of a communion season for five or six years; while their children are growing up without the influence of the sanctuary and the stated means of grace.

No time to be lost.

Truly there is a great harvest to be gathered in, in all the length and breadth of this valley, and NO TIME TO BE LOST. For Mormonism, Romanism, Campbellism and Universalism, are making encroachments every day. Evidently, the church should be on the alert, with regard to the West. Some religion it will have; true Christianity should therefore be presented to every neighborhood speedily, lest while we sleep the enemy sow tares and great evil ensue. May God have mercy on the West, and prepare it to aid much in the conversion of the world to Christ!

How it strikes an Eastern man, after living in the West.

So much are the people discouraged, that there begins to be much inquiry, what can be done here to supply our own wants? The result will be, that, if well educated and qualified ministers cannot be had from abroad, an inferior ministry will occupy the ground, and the consequence I need not foretell. O, if ministers at the East did but know the importance of now occupying this ground, and did but realize the influence they might wield here for the cause of Christ, and if they had withal the spirit of Paul, there would be, to use a western phrase, "a general rush" to the field. If the whole truth on this subject were seen and felt in all its force, it would be difficult to keep ministers enough in the older States, to supply their wants.

Changes in Missouri.

The Platte country, which lies in the N. W. corner of the state, is now more densely settled than any other portion of the state, except St. Louis county. One county in that district, and that the smallest county in the state, now numbers 12,000 inhabitants; and yet it is but five years since it was purchased from the Indians, or white men were allowed to settle on any part of it. Two years ago, the steamboats carried produce into the county, now they visit it with very little freight, and return loaded down with produce. There are three or four county seats, and one large trading town on the river, in the Platte purchase, and yet, as will be seen by the correspondence below, there is only ONE Presbyterian minister in all that country, which is over 100 miles in length by 60 miles in breadth. There are eight or ten county seats in the state, containing each from 500 to 1500 inhabitants, which are entirely without Presbyterian or Congregational preaching. No state in the Union is increasing in population and wealth more rapidly than Missouri. Its principal city, St. Louis, enjoys the pre-eminent advantage of a position in the centre of the great valley of the West, and a direct steam-boat communication North, South, East and West, on some of the largest rivers in the world. What other city can boast of an increase like that which has raised the population of St. Louis, in the last four years, from 12,000 to 32,000? And yet, so less wise than "the children of this world' are "the children of light," that this commanding point and its adjacent territory, are almost overlooked by Protestants, while in the conclaves at Rome and Vienna, all its advantages are discussed and appreciated, and an army of ecclesiastics is poured in to gain and to hold this fair possession for Antichrist. The rich of Catholic Europe buy the liberty to sin, and the poor give the price of their toil and pain, and straightway cathedrals, colleges, nunneries and schools spring up on our soil as if by magic.

The West will govern the nation.

For years, the tactics of politicians have been shaped with a view to gain the favor of the West; this has been regarded as a significant omen of the future influence of the Mississippi Valley. But not until the census of 1840 was it generally supposed that the period of transfer of political power to the West was so near at hand. What shall be the moral training of those men who are to be the future majority in our national legislature? The friends of Home Missions must answer.

The East interested in the character of the West.

Notwithstanding all the reports of missionaries, and the intelligence which is published, there are multitudes of Christians at the East, who have a very defective knowledge of the situation and wants of the West. It seems to me that every patriot, philanthropist, and Christian in this country, has not only something, but much to do in shaping, moulding, and building up the moral institutions of the West, for it needs not a prophet's ken, to tell that the balance of power and influence will in a few years be on that side of the Alleghany mountains. Let our population continue to roll its annual tide over the immense regions of the South and West, and this mass of mind be left without the controlling influence of pure moral principles, and soon all the blessings of our freedom will be things that were; and anarchy and misrule will take their place. Whatever, therefore, is done to create a correct standard, must be done soon, for now the foundations are being laid for future generations to build upon.

The East responsible.

O, if the eastern churches did but know the power they wield through you, for the good of our land and for the cause of Christ, you never would, I am sure, want funds to carry out your most extensive plans. They must send us many more able and faithful men, and that too ere long, or it will be too late to save the West; and this opportunity lost, and the sun of our country's glory will set in gloom, and Satan will triumph in the contest he is now waging here for the possession of this land.

But not only must they send us men and money—they must give us their prayers. Queen Mary once said, she would rather meet an army of 20,000 men, than the prayers of John Knox. And I verily believe, that one good praying mother in Israel, on her knees, gives Satan more uneasiness about his possessions here, than all the speeches and flourish of anniversaries. While, then, the eastern churches contribute money and send men to build up religion at the West, let them not forget, that their prayers are not the least powerful instrument which they can wield for the salvation of our land.

New purchase of lands in Iowa.

Our territory is assuming new importance, from the fact, that a treaty has just been concluded with the Indians on our western border, effecting the purchase of all their lands, extending west to the Missouri river, and north to the Neutral grounds; a large portion is to be opened next spring, and we may expect an immense flood of emigration. What shall be done to carry the Gospel with this tide of immortal beings?

The territory here referred to as just purchased, contains ten millions of acres, or more than 15,000 square miles. Thus, a region double the state of Massachusetts in size, is added to this single territory of Iowa, and thousands now stand on the line, with axe in hand, ready to build the log dwelling of the pioneer. Every main road has, the last autumn, been almost literally lined with men, women, children and flocks and herds, intent to be among the first to take possession.

Missions among the Miners in Wisconsin.

The missionary field in Western Wisconsin comprises a mineral region of about 60 miles square. From 25,000 to 35,000 persons are supposed to be congregated on this tract, a large portion of whom are engaged in raising from the earth, or in smelting the ore of lead. As a general fact, the population is shifting continually. Many who spend their summers in agricultural pursuits, in other sections of the country, come here to employ the winter months in mining, stimulated not merely by the hope of obtaining cash, (which agriculture will not always, in these times, command,) but also by the spirit of speculation which finds ample excitement amid the various uncertainties of the business. Mining almost necessarily begets the spirit of gambling. Every "new discovery,"—i. e. every new place where a "mineral" (lead ore) is discovered in a section before untouched, draws together adventurers. Then succeeds a time of speculation in "prospects," as the favorable appearances are called. A few only out of the multitude realize their expectations, as the miner in "prospecting," sinks his "shaft" at random into the earth, risking his time, labor and expense in the uncertain hope of meeting with "big mineral." Should he alight upon "float," i. e. mineral which appears to have been detached and carried away from the mass to which it originally belonged, he eagerly seeks to trace it to its "main body" by "drifting," or digging horizontal galleries, or by sinking new shafts perpendicularly, led on by the hope every moment of "striking a lead" and making his fortune. Hence, throughout the mineral district, the surface of the earth is, here and there, dug up and covered with rubbish, from these shafts, of from 5 to 200 feet deep. Around these unsightly mounds, the inhabitants are clustered, mostly in log or sod cabins, with here and there the framed, brick or stone buildings of those whose success has given them an eminence in the community, or who come to the diggings for the purpose of trading in such articles as miners may require, and too often, to minister that liquid venom which inflames the passions as well as poisons the blood. Almost every portion of the globe has its representatives in such a community. Not only the adventurer from the East or South, but the miner from Cornwall and Yorkshire, and other places in Great Britain; and in all places, the German or Irish Catholic.

A correspondent informs us, that these places are ludicrously named, in a manner which very significantly expresses the position of the mass of the people in the scale of refinement: such as "Pinhook diggings," "Rattlesnake diggings." Others have such appellations as "Hardscrabble," "Fair-play," "Nip & Tuck," &c., &c. Too often, men acquire large sums of money, by setting up what are called groceries, but are in fact gambling establishments, with their invariable attendants, ardent spirits. Hither, at night, on the Sabbath, and at other vacant hours, the miners have been accustomed to resort to lounge, and seek for excitement in the social glass, or the more intoxicating game.

Is there no Brainerd for the miners.

I do not believe there is a more promising and interesting field for ministerial labor than this mining region, embracing the S. W. corner of Wisconsin, the N. W. corner of Illinois, and a small section of Iowa opposite these. The miners have leisure, and will attend meetings in the evening, and are very susceptible to religious impressions; and many points are now presented, where a precious work of grace might be witnessed as the result of faithful preaching. O, I would love to devote myself to labors among the miners, had I not another charge! Would that some Brainerd could be found who would enter this field, and labor from cabin to cabin, as he did among the natives, and break the bread of life—what results would follow? IS THERE NO BRAINERD FOR THE MINERS?

The East—Need of Home Missionary efforts.

Vermont.

"There are in Vermont not far from sixty towns in which are no Congregational churches, and which, so far as our denomination is concerned, are without the institutions of the Gospel. In most of them the regular administration of these institutions is needed, and should be had. To these should be added sixty towns in which are churches without ministers, permanently destitute. And the fact is, a church without a minister, is scarcely, at the best, more than no church, and in truth very soon ceases to be. Very many of those churches in Vermont which have been long destitute of the stated ministry, though they have a name to live, are dead. This calculation gives us 120 towns. Probably it is a little within the truth. It is no doubt safe to throw into this field one half the State. All of half the territory of Vermont is, so far as our denomination is concerned, destitute of the gospel ministry; and one-half of this destitution is without church organization, while in the remaining moiety a large portion of the light that should be, is darkness."

New-Hampshire.

"Though the number of feeble churches has, of late, been considerably reduced, it is still true that the resources of the Society are insufficient to aid all that remain in sustaining the institutions of religion. There are about 15 churches of the more feeble class to which this Society does not, at present, stand pledged. Six or seven of these churches are supplied with preaching either the whole or a part of the time, and no one of them is able, without assistance, to raise the lowest sum adequate for the support of the ministry. And besides, there are not a few towns and places where no churches and no regular christian order exist, that present inviting fields of missionary labor. The obstacles to the success of the Gospel in these places, though peculiar and great, are not perceived to be more so, than those that have been encountered and overcome in many other towns, now comparatively reclaimed from a state of moral darkness."

Massachusetts.

"Good men sometimes suggest a doubt whether there be much need of missionary work in the old State of Massachusetts. But what are the facts? One of your missionaries, located in the midst of a population of 1,400 souls, not more than 200 of which regularly attend any place of worship, thus writes:—"I have heard those who believe in the sanctity of the Sabbath, publicly held up to ridicule, as persons who were attempting to bring into use the obsolete institutions of the Jewish ritual. It is a known fact that a man's practice rarely rises above his belief; generally it falls below it. The statement will not, therefore, be deemed incredible when I say, that I hear as regularly and as constantly on the Sabbath, as on any other day, from early dawn till evening, the sound of the axe and saw, the plane and hammer. I see men performing all manner of labor, both in the field, and on the highways. Some of our stores are regularly thrown open on the Sabbath, and men of reputed respectability visit them for traffic. Our congregation is irregular, varying from 25 to 150. My hearers could often be doubled by going into the bar-room instead of the church—which stand on opposite sides of the street."

"But such wastes as these do not comprise the largest part of the missionary field in this Commonwealth, nor create the strongest necessity for continued effort. During the last twenty-five years, the main object of this Society has been to revive and strengthen churches that have been crushed almost, in their conflicts with religious error; to restore the discarded principles of faith and practice on which the churches of New-England were founded; to rekindle the torch of truth in temples where its light has been put out—an object as important as truth itself. Two-thirds of the whole field now occupied by your missionaries, answer to this description."

Home Missions—their importance and results.

A Home Missionary Motto.

The following is an extract from the "Annals of the Society for Propagating the Faith."
 "IT WOULD BE BAD ECONOMY TO DELAY THE ESTABLISHMENT OF CHRISTIAN INSTITUTIONS, WHERE THE LAND BELONGS—SO TO SPEAK—TO THE FIRST OCCUPANT." What an appropriate motto for the A. H. M. Society.

Home Missions not appreciated.

It has somehow become impressed on the public mind, that the work of evangelizing our own land is of minor importance, and requires smaller resources than the foreign enterprise. This opinion may have arisen from the greater extent and numbers of the unevangelized nations, or from the fact that various causes early combined to give the work of missions to the heathen a strong hold on the public mind, before Home Missions were attempted on a large scale. But whatever may have caused the existing proportion of public charity to these two objects, we are persuaded it is not according to their comparative demand on the churches of this country. In its just claims on American Christians, the HOME MISSIONARY CAUSE is second to no other.

Our duties modified by our relations.

Whatever duties we owe to the various parts of the world, it cannot be denied that there is a natural order in them. The people of Great Britain, for example, are under stronger obligations to spread the Gospel throughout that island than we are; and for this plain reason, that it is their own home—they are there, with all their knowledge of the case and their means of influence: we, on the contrary, with all our means, are far removed. For the same reason, American Christians have a paramount duty to discharge to their own country. That those with whom our relations are most intimate, to whom we alone have free access, have the first claim on our care, is a position too plain to need argument. This order of nature we cannot violate, without violating the divine constitution which has given us different relations with different portions of mankind. Moreover, if we do not make adequate exertions for the salvation of our country, who will make them? Who but ourselves ought to make them? The duty of laboring for the heathen, we share in common with other christian nations; the duty of converting our own land, we divide with none. The responsibility of the human agency in this work rests upon ourselves alone.

Facilities for Home Missions.

There are facilities for the successful employment of funds, in which Home Missions have great and unappreciated advantages. For example—the Home Missionary is not compelled to take up his residence in a foreign land, to sunder all the ties of kindred, and become an exile amid associations which, by their strangeness, prevent half his usefulness; he withers not in an ungenial clime, that enervates his system, and sends him away from his work, or consigns him to an early grave; but he dwells, comparatively among his own people and breathes his native air. He finds it not necessary to beg from any despot the privilege of laboring for his master. No time-honored barriers of caste oppose his access to the people. He need not spend his best years in gaining a doubtful mastery of different languages, nor in creating the elements of a scholastic as well as christian literature, nor assume the burden of the secular education of those whom he would save. These facilities are all provided ready to his hand; and he may lay out his whole strength, in direct labor for the spiritual good of men. These facilities are so many talents which God's people are bound to improve. It is not seemly—nay God will not hold us guiltless, if they be allowed to remain buried in a napkin.

What hinders?

What actually restricts our facilities for Home effort, but a restricted income? Why is it, that so many heralds of the cross, in our new settlements, labor under disadvantages, that quench their enterprise, impair their usefulness, and cut short their days? What, but the leanness of the missionary treasury hinders the employment of probably five hundred additional laborers in the next five years? It is a known fact, that there are scores of unemployed ministers, who, in continuing so, are suffering a living martyrdom; and yet are prevented by poverty from going where the ripening harvest is perishing for want of their labor. They are in debt for their education; or they have families or other dependants who cannot dispense with their presence and support; or that make their necessary wants too great to be met by the limited salary which missionaries receive. But the present restricted income of Home Missions almost compels the Society to pass by all these men, however varied and rich their qualifications, and to select chiefly young men, or those whose domestic relations admit of their being appointed at the minimum cost. Now, what a fact is this to be told of the church in this country—that a leading qualification of the agency she employs must be its cheapness! and if her waste places cannot be built without more expense, they must still lie desolate, and the laborers must stand idle!

An aged Missionary's Testimony for Home Missions.

My feelings with regard to the importance of effort for the spiritual welfare of this great valley, are stronger than language can express. There is, in my view, serious danger that Romanism, will have a predominant influence in this valley. I have in view some reasons which I have not seen stated, and which it perhaps would not be expedient to state publicly. We need not, however, despair of Zion's ultimate triumph, for her King is on the throne. If faithful in his service, we have individually, nothing to fear; and if the church as a body will be faithful, she need not fear. The hopes of millions hang on the A. H. M. Society, and the blessing of God attending her efforts.

Testimony of a Pioneer.

It is now more than thirteen years since I arrived in Michigan, under commission from your Society. There are now only three Presbyterian ministers here, who where then in this field. I have witnessed great changes. The population has increased from less than 30,000 to more than 200,000. Large villages now exist, where then was an unbroken wilderness. More than 100 churches now exist; then there were not more than 10 of our order. As a pioneer, I have struggled with difficulties and privations—but have never regretted that I came to Michigan. I thank God for sending me here, and permitting me to labor so long on this field. I have had the privilege, in my feeble measure, to aid in laying the foundations for many generations. I have had the privilege also of seeing the superstructure going up, and the wilderness blossoming as the rose.

Shall I then regret that my lot has been cast in these ends of the earth? Here I may feed those who are hungering for the bread of life; instead of expending my little energies upon those already surfeited. I rejoice then in my field of labor—I do not wish to exchange it. Here I have spent my best days of labor. Here I am willing still to endure privation, until my Master in heaven shall say, "It is enough," and call me to his rest. Here I expect to die, and hope to rise and joyfully meet some who, through my unworthy instrumentality, have been led to the Savior, and who shall be welcomed to his glorious rest.

Facts for Contributors to Home Missions.

Our church now numbers about fifty; of whom there were but twenty-five at the commencement of the year. Our prospects were never better, provided the ordinances of the Gospel can be sustained. This church owes its existence, under God, to your Society, and it now rests with the friends of Home Missions to say whether this field, with a vast many others, are to be left to be overgrown with briars and thorns. The people in this county are church-going; ministers they will have; and if not supplied by the church, the devil will supply them with something under the name of ministers.

Home Missions, or no Churches.

Ministers could not live here and preach the Gospel, without the aid which they receive from your Society. I have received during the last year thus far, from my society in cash, five dollars only, and that would not pay my postage; and my people are willing to do what they can. Some of my church have scarcely seen a dollar in money for several months. Lands around us are now in market. And one of my elders told me yesterday, that he should not attend the sale, for he could not get money to pay, and must let it rest and run the risk of losing his farm. And there are many in this situation in this section of the country.

Results.

A missionary says:—

Under missionary labor, within the past year, in this one church, God has brought into the kingdom near fifty souls; a neat brick church sufficient to contain a congregation of 350 or 400, has been erected; two students have been sent forth to prepare for the ministry, one of whom, we doubt not, has gone to glory. And an influence for good has been sent out all around.

Missionary aid indispensable.

I am distressed to hear of your empty treasury, for sure I am that neither churches nor ministers can live at the West without the aid of your Society. With all the economy and self-denial we can use, without your aid I could not stay here.

Encouraging.

Last season, a preacher was driven away from this place—and when I first began to hold meetings there, the conduct of many was quite disorderly—they seemed to spurn at the truth; but the Lord enabled me to preach fearlessly, and now I have not a larger or more still and attentive congregation in any place. I trust the way is preparing for a glorious revival. The impenitent seem troubled that there are so few professors of religion among them. The fact has particularly attracted their notice and they begin to inquire why is it so? I put up with a man, a few weeks since, who has recently built a frame barn. As there was only one room in his log-house, I went to the barn to study on Sabbath morning—he followed me, and seemed much affected at his condition, as an impenitent sinner.

A great Change.

The Washingtonian Temperance cause is going on finely. The public mind became aroused to the subject, and the cause asks no more. We had a meeting in our village a few nights ago, at which there was supposed to be five or six hundred persons, and but very few went home without having signed the pledge. I do not know that a half pint of spirits could be found within fifteen miles of us.

Visible improvement.

Both churches united now number about 100 members; whereas two years ago they numbered only 50. Then, each church had but a skeleton of a meeting-house, now one is fully completed, except painting, furnished with slips sufficient to accommodate 300 people, and in pleasant weather is filled with an attentive audience, while the other is completed, except the pulpit and slips. Then, neither church had a choir of singers; now, each have a respectable choir. Then, the Sabbath schools in both congregations, were mere cypfers; now, each has one, averaging, in favorable weather, 40 scholars; while most of the adult members form themselves into Bible classes in union with the Sabbath schools. But for the Home Missionary Society, these churches would have been without the means of grace, and probably soon without a name on earth.

A daughter of the Pilgrims comforted.

Early in the spring of 1842, I was called to a scene of this kind. The day was very hot; the roads extremely bad; the distance, 10 miles out, and my health quite poor. I wished to be excused; but the messenger was importunate. "Indeed," I said, "I do not think I can go; and besides, your people (he was a Catholic,) do not like to attend funerals where Protestant clergymen officiate." "Well," said the man, "but do come, if it is only for the poor old woman's sake. She is a Yankee, and feels dreadful bad. In a moment, the scene was before my mind—a widowed mother, in a land of strangers, weeping over the lifeless body of a beloved child. I accompanied the messenger to the house of mourning. Around the miserable log-cabin, were gathered some fifty Irish Catholics. As many more had crowded within. In the coffin lay the lifeless form of a female, whose sun had gone down while it was yet noon. On one side were ranged four little, weeping orphans, almost too young to realize the greatness of their loss. On the other side sat "the poor old woman," with her face hid in her handkerchief. Her frame shook violently; her heart was ready to burst. Her neat and genteel appearance indicated that she had not always lived in those associations. I took my place by her side, and in a low voice, said, "Mother, why weepest thou?" "Who calls me mother?" said she, hastily removing her handkerchief. "It's the clergy," whispered one of the women. The load was half removed. What followed, of unburdening her overladen heart, and of efforts of consolation, need not be detailed. She had indeed passed through deep waters. This was the last of her children. Acquaintance and friend had been put far from her. She was left with four helpless grandchildren. But she would not repine—the Lord gave, and the Lord had taken away, and "blessed be the name of the Lord." The services proceeded; the physician, one or two contractors, and perhaps half a dozen others, were Americans; the rest were Roman Catholics. Seldom have I enjoyed such freedom in speaking of the love of Christ to a perishing world. Many of my hearers were bathed in tears. I returned home, filled with peace and joy, and thankful that I had been permitted to dry that "poor old woman's" tears, and testify of the grace of God.

Diversity of Materials.

A minister serving those whose parents were served by his father, may not conceive of diversity so great as that which here exists. Our members (not over twenty in number,) come from Vermont, Massachusetts, New-York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky. In one family of three individuals, the father is from Pennsylvania, and the mother from Ohio; while the son is an Illinoisian.

On temperance, something may be added to my last report. No intoxicating drink is now sold within a circumference of one hundred miles.

Grateful retrospect.

In looking back to the beginning of last year, and tracing events along to where we now are, I can say, that in no year of my ministry, have I seen a change, that looked so much like new moulding the very foundations of society, as in the year just closed. And I rejoice and bless God, that he has enabled me to continue in this field, and to bear a part in this so glorious a work. Since I first came into this field, I have seen an entire change in the character of the population, over a district of 6 or 7 miles, by 15 or 18.

Indebtedness.

Our indebtedness to God is infinite, and we have nothing to pay. To the A. H. M. S., under God, we owe our very existence as a church, and we esteem it our duty and privilege to acknowledge it. May God bless our benefactors and enable them to go forward in the good work of clothing the naked, and feeding the hungry. In this way our brethren in the East are preparing a diadem for the Son of God in this far West. May they abound more and more in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as they know this work is not in vain in the Lord.

Progress sure though silent.

Those conditions of the physical nature which are most desirable, are the most gentle in their coming and their changes,—such as the lapse of the seasons; the silent growth and ripening of the grain and fruits; the unnoted circulation of the blood, and other functions of the body, which attract attention only when they become disturbed and painful. Something like this is true of the spiritual world. Often, where no progress is reported, there is a quiet growth of grace in christian hearts; a silent extension of the sway of truth over individuals, families and neighborhoods of the impenitent; a gradual increase of what may be called the fixtures and machinery of a well ordered congregation, as Bible classes, Sabbath schools, benevolent associations, libraries, accommodations for preaching, &c. These things occurring in steady succession, especially when attended by conversions, more or less frequent, prove that truth is doing its work, and that “the kingdom of God is” indeed “like leaven,” silently pervading the mass in which it is hidden. Such is the operation of the Home Missionary Society.

Hungering for the word.

Recently I have occasionally been out eight miles, where is a little handful of Christians, whom I helped to organize into a church last winter. They rejoice to see a minister of our order come and speak to them the words of eternal life. I often have families come eight, ten, and even twelve miles, and sit, and listen, and weep for joy, at the privilege of hearing the Gospel.

O, brethren, it would do your hearts good to feed these hungry sheep and lambs! Think not we have no sweets in the midst of our privations. O, we find a table in the wilderness! Manna is gathered in our log school-houses!

Privileges remembered.

While we have had some additions to our little church, our pecuniary ability is diminished—produce is so low, and the market is so far distant. Christians at the East do not know the value of their privileges. When comfortably seated in their commodious temples, let them think of their brethren crowded into log-cabins for worship, and they will, at least, offer thanksgiving for their own distinguished blessings; and it will be strange if they do not ask God to bless the means in use to provide their destitute neighbors with similar privileges.

New Church formed.

T. is a little village which formerly had the name of being one of the most wicked places in the country. There were some respectable people there, but they were covered up and hidden by a gang of dram-drinkers and gamblers, that collected in from the surrounding settlements, and gave character to the place. The Washingtonians, however, had been there, and had been successful. They prepared the way for the Gospel, so that when I commenced, the people were ready to hear; although we had no house in which to hold a meeting. I commenced preaching in a grove, but it was soon too cold to sit out door at night. A gentleman invited us into one of his rooms, but it was soon found that this was quite too small to hold the congregation. The people then procured a house where liquid fire used to be sold. They cleared out the counters, shelves and a partition, fixed seats and a pulpit; and thus soon had a comfortable meeting-house. Some of the people in the vicinity, when they heard what was going on, said if they had heard that T. was burned up, they should not have been much surprised, for they had been expecting the judgments of God would come upon it, for its wickedness. But to hear that it had a meeting-house and a protracted meeting, and that souls were converted there, was to them truly astonishing. On the second Sabbath in October, assisted by brothers L. and B., I formed a church at this place consisting of 13 members.

Scenes of blessing.

Here were seen sisters and brothers, wives and husbands, parents and children, all ages, from the child of ten to the hoary headed. The scene in the inquiry-room was also deeply impressive. One of the elders of this church has for years enjoyed the privilege of going to the Lord's table with all of his children, seven in number. A son of another elder was hopefully converted. A son of another entertained a hope and united with the church; likewise a son of another elder. Three sons of another, professed to have passed from death unto life. Four children of a member of the church, united with the church. At least five or six wives, who had long prayed for their husbands, were made to rejoice in their hopeful conversion. Twenty-two united with the church, thirty-five or forty hopefully experienced religion.

A beautiful sight.

We think there are not many congregations in the most favored parts of our land, that can present a more interesting spectacle, on the Lord's day, than the one exhibited in a missionary church, as described below.

Our Sabbath school is increasing in interest. This is especially the case with the adult classes, belonging to it. The elderly men have a large class, taught by an elder in the church. The elderly women also have one, taught by Mrs. M. or by one of their own number; while I have under my care at the same time a Bible class, of from 20 to 30 of the youth, who are, I trust, studying the Holy Scriptures with interest and profit. Other youth still, who do not come into the class, come so near as to hear all that is said. A large portion of my congregation on the Sabbath are youth, a few of whom have of late made profession of religion, and a few others have entertained hope.

Delavan, (Wis.)—No rum there.

This place and vicinity have never known much of the sin of intemperance. In fact, it is considered a temperance community, almost every individual belonging to the temperance society. The little village of Delavan never contained a rum tavern or store, and there has never been a glass of intoxicating liquor either sold or drank in the place. The people are generally intelligent, and manifest a disposition to hear the truth.

How the People regard the Gospel.

It has not been mine to witness special outpourings of the Spirit of God, but I have found, every where, kind treatment, an attentive hearing, and, in some instances, anxiety for the welfare of the soul. Christians who have left the regular means of grace at the East, value the gospel as they should, and multitudes favor it under the impression of its importance to the civil and social interests of the community. This impression, I labor assiduously to strengthen. And here I may say, that every month's residence in the West tends to deepen my own impression, that all the funds expended by your Society would be well employed, if we regard only the temporal advantage conferred on these new and rising settlements.

Importance of a first impression.

I have found this to be a fact in a new country, that the people who are not pious become attached to the denomination that first comes among them. This is not often spoken of, nor duly appreciated. When individuals become pious, they already have their predilections, and their homes previously chosen. This I have observed, and it may be of use to you in sending out your laborers.

Spirit of the Missionaries.

It is our conviction that if any class of laborers in the great harvest of the world, more than another, calls for the daily prayers and constant sympathy of the people of God, it is a portion of our Home Missionaries at the West. Poor in worldly goods, charged generally with the support of young and increasing families, the interests of Christ's cause and the sentiments of the churches alike adverse to their engaging in secular pursuits for a support, receiving oftentimes but the merest pittance from the people to whom they minister, (the amount actually subscribed remaining not unfrequently in whole or in part unpaid,) and deriving in many cases from the Missionary Society a sum entirely inadequate, with their other actual receipts, to support them comfortably—they have suffered, they do suffer, and they must continue to suffer, for the love they bear to the cause of the dear Redeemer,—to the precious souls whom he has purchased with his blood. Still they are regarded as being on christian ground, as sustained by christian sympathy, and are therefore too often, in their labors and trials and faintness of heart, though pressed out of measure, above strength—forgotten by the people of God, not indeed in their annual contributions, but in their daily sympathies and petitions at the throne of grace. [Marietta Agency.]

Fragments from reports.

We speak of the labors, but not of the trials of a new country. For although we have many privations, yet we have never tasted the luxury of doing good, as we have here; and after riding with my wife four or five miles, in a rude conveyance, over a road scarcely passable, and finding at length the desired habitation, which most would pronounce quite unfit for the abode of human beings, we are more than repaid, by meeting perhaps a poor, isolated, neglected disciple of Christ, who is overjoyed to behold the man of God come to administer consolation, and express sympathy under her trials and bereavements. O, it is good to give but a cup of cold water to a disciple, in the name of Christ! It brings a present reward. It is good to carry the lambs of Christ's fold in the bosom, to support the weak, and to raise up the bowed down.

It gives me great pleasure to go to such new places, and take my stand in the centre of one of those log school-houses, with an attentive crowd of immortal souls gathered around, and there point to "the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world;" and especially, if I can meet a little band of Christians, rejoicing again to be permitted to hear the truth from a minister of their own denomination, and sitting with tearful eyes and open hearts, devouring every word, and being carried back, in imagination, to their eastern homes with all their spiritual privileges. O, let not our eastern brethren think that if we do want temporal comforts and luxuries, that we lack spiritual enjoyments to overbalance all our privations!

A noble position.

The sober truth in regard to many of us is, we have adopted this country as our home under a deep conviction of duty as servants of Christ. We understand Him to require us to live and labor here where we must literally "endure hardness as his good soldiers." And the longer we endure the evils incident to such a choice or perform the duties assigned us, the more we feel the importance of the arrangement, and the more firmly have we resolved to abide the consequences, rather than abandon fields that have already nearly gone to waste for want of earlier cultivation. And could we command pleasant locations, or such as would be even more desirable, in some respects, in older sections of the country, I do not believe our ranks would be thinned by the hope of better society or more conveniences. So long as we can be sustained in such a manner that we can "give ourselves wholly to our work," I hope we shall feel most cordially disposed to do so.

The AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY held its Eighteenth Anniversary in the Broadway Tabernacle, New York, on Wednesday evening, May 8, 1844. HENRY DWIGHT, Esq., President of the Society, took the chair, and the meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. ERSKINE MASON, D. D., of New York.

An Abstract of the Annual Report of the Executive Committee was read by Rev. MILTON BADGER, one of the Secretaries.

The following resolutions were adopted.

Resolved, That the Valley of the Mississippi is a part of the territory between the river and the ends of the Earth, (Ps. 72 : 8, Zech. 9 : 10,) which belongs to Jesus Christ, by express grant from Almighty God ; and that Jesus Christ must have it.

4. On motion of Rev. JOHN TODD, of Pittsfield, Mass., seconded by Rev. E. P. BARROWS, of Hudson, O.,

Resolved, That the work of the American Home Missionary Society is commended to the friends of Christ, as an exhibition of the power of love over the human heart.

These resolutions were sustained by eloquent addresses from Rev. Messrs. BALDWIN, RODGERS, STOWE and TODD, setting forth the appropriateness of the instrumentality employed by this Society, and bearing testimony to its happy results.

EIGHTEENTH REPORT.

The closing up of a year of life, and especially of missionary action, is calculated to awaken reflections of the deepest interest and solemnity. Living, as we do, so near to the fulfilment of the promises, and engaged in a work which has upon its every feature the impress of heaven, and which fixes its firm grasp upon all that is hopeful to man, whether in his present or his future state of being, a year of privileged action is one of amazing responsibility!

We cannot but be pained at the thought, as the EIGHTEENTH year of the operations of this Society is finished, that so much which was before us to be done at its commencement, now remains unaccomplished—that the most favored moment for beneficent action has, in many cases, passed forever by—that evils, which adequate instrumentality might have removed or forestalled, have gathered strength by delay—that rising communities in our new settlements, where character and destiny are so soon fixed, have sustained an injury, by being left another year without the ordinances of the Gospel, which no efforts of future time—which eternity itself cannot repair.

But, gratitude and praise are also kindled up within us, that so many of the friends and patrons of this Society have been permitted to watch over its interests another year, and to accomplish so much for the honor of their Master. Some, indeed, have ceased from their labors. Among them, is the venerable DR. RICHARDS—one of the founders and distinguished friends of the Institution, and one of its Vice Presidents from its origin. He rests from his labors, and his works do follow him. But to us, life has been continued—light from the throne has illuminated the paths of our feet—sanctified affection has clustered around the work of our hands—God has blessed our humble instrumentality—souls, we trust, have been redeemed—foundations have been laid which are never to be removed—good has been secured to the church, to our country, and to the world, which no human or angel intellect can ever circumscribe.

And to God, only wise and all gracious, be glory forever!

The details of the Society's operations are embraced in the following.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

NUMBER OF MISSIONARIES, THEIR STATIONS, AND THE AGGREGATE OF THEIR LABORS.

The Society has had in its service, the past year, 907 ministers of the Gospel.

Of these, 670 were in commission at the date of the last report; and 237 have been since appointed.

The fields of their labor are in 26 different states and territories of the Union, in Canada and in Texas; distributed as follows:—viz.—in Maine, 75; New-Hampshire, 42; Vermont, 40; Massachusetts, 64; Rhode Island, 5; Connecticut, 42; New-York, 201; New-Jersey, 10; Pennsylvania, 44; Delaware, 2; Maryland, 2; Virginia, 2; North Carolina, 2; Georgia, 1; Alabama, 1; Kentucky, 3; Tennessee, 4; Ohio, 91; Indiana, 36; Illinois, 87; Missouri, 21; Arkansas, 1; Michigan, 63; Wisconsin, 30; Iowa, 29; District of Columbia, 1; Canada, 7; and Texas, 1.

Of the whole number in commission, 623 have been the pastors or stated supplies of single congregations; and 237 have ministered to two or three congregations, or extended their labors over still wider fields.

The number of congregations and missionary districts thus supplied, in whole or in part, with the preaching of the Gospel is 1,245.

The aggregate of ministerial labor performed is 665 years.

PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

By comparing these results with those of the preceding year, it will be seen that the Society has been enabled, not only to retain the ground which it occupied at the date of the last report, but this year also, to make important advances, in the work which God has given us to do. The number of missionaries in commission is greater, by 59, than that of any preceding year, and the number of congregations and districts supplied, shows an increase of 198.

ADVANCES WESTWARD.

The number of missionaries in our newer states and territories, is 75 greater than was reported at the last anniversary. In Ohio, Michigan, Illinois and Iowa alone, there has been an increase of 68. Thus, is the Society extending its operations westward, faster even, than is indicated by the increase of its laborers. Congregations in our older states cease to need aid, and the appropriations, which had been expended on them, are transferred to our new settlements. And this, we are sure, every patron of the Society will say, is, as it meets. For the great increase of our population is in the West. There, it is, ere long, to be decided through all coming time, who are to rule over us. And there too, Romanism and Infidelity are congregating their hosts, and challenging to conflict the armies of Israel; and there, if we are faithful to our trust, defeat, ultimate and utter, is to them as certain, as that the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth!

NEW APPOINTMENTS.

The Committee have made so large an increase in the number of their appointments during the year, not without much deliberation and solicitude. They have not felt warranted to do it, by the actual increase of their receipts. But, the providence of God and the urgent solicitations of the friends of missions have placed them in circumstances, in which they dared not do otherwise. Candidates for missionary service—young men from our Seminaries of sacred science, and others of fair promise of usefulness in our new settlements—have presented themselves for appointment, in such numbers and in such a spirit of self consecration and holy enterprise, as we have never before witnessed. And what could we say to them? The churches had been praying the great Lord of the harvest, to send forth laborers into his harvest. They had been inquiring, anxiously and devoutly, “Whom shall we send, and who will go for us?” And when these young brethren, in associated bands, and in apostolic temper, came and said, “Here are we, send us.”—could we stand between them and their perishing fellow countrymen, to whom they would rehearse the scenes of Calvary, and say, you cannot go? The perishing must perish on! We have chosen rather, in the name of the churches, and encouraged by the growing interest that we thought we every where saw in this work of missions at home, to say to them, Go, lift up your voices in the wilderness, prepare ye the way of the Lord, and your bread and your water shall not fail, and your garments, when waxen old, shall be renewed. It is for those, in whose name we have acted, to say, whether this pledge shall be redeemed—whether too much responsibility has been assumed—whether any portion of what has been done must now be undone.

THE NEWLY APPOINTED MISSIONARIES.

It is due to the company of youthful heralds, who went out from a single Seminary, the last autumn, into the territory of Iowa, to take their stations on the very outposts of Zion; due to those who went out from kindred institutions, with a like spirit, into other portions of the vineyard—if less distant, not perhaps less difficult of cultivation; and due, also, to those who have manifested so deep an interest in their mission, that we should say that, so far, the high hopes which were cherished in regard to them have not been disappointed. A kind Providence conducted them all in safety to their respective stations, and has graciously watched over them and blessed them. The manner in which they have been received, their spirit of contentment, and cheerfulness, and devotion to their Master's service, and the brightening prospects of usefulness before them, are such as cannot fail to be exceedingly gratifying to the friends of missions. Christian sympathy, we trust, will still encourage them; christian bounty, cheerfully proffered, sustain them; and importunate prayer bring down upon them, and upon the fields of their culture, the richest blessings of Heaven.

SABBATH SCHOOLS.

The Sabbath school and the Bible class, with the intelligent and devoted teachers called out by them to instruct and to care for the children and youth of his charge, the missionary everywhere finds to be a most important auxiliary in his labors. Not far from 60,300 pupils are receiving instruction in the great things of the kingdom, in the Sabbath schools under the supervision of the missionaries.

Grateful acknowledgements are due to the "American Sunday School Union," and to the "Massachusetts Sabbath School Society," for their generous donations of valuable Sabbath school Libraries, to many of the missionary churches during the year. The missionaries and their churches have been, thereby, greatly encouraged—the Sabbath schools have awakened new interest—the children and youth are held to them by stronger ties—and the enlightening and redeeming influences, thus superadded, we may hope will save many of them from the paths of the destroyer. Should the friends of Sabbath schools put at the disposal of these institutions, the requisite means for giving to every missionary church in the land a Sabbath school Library adequate to its necessities, they would be employing a most effectual instrumentality to render these schools rich and permanent blessings to the rising generation and to the church of God.

TEMPERANCE.

It is gratifying to perceive, from the reports of the missionaries, that the Temperance reformation, in the communities where they labor, still holds on its way. Not far from 151,000, in these communities, are to be reckoned as pledged to entire abstinence from all that can intoxicate—a larger number even than was reported the preceding year.

ADDITIONS TO THE CHURCHES.

The churches have not been blessed with special divine influences, to the extent experienced in some former years—especially the memorable year preceding the one now closed. It should be recorded, however, with gratitude and praise to Him, with whom is the residue of the Spirit, that 84 missionaries are permitted to make mention in their reports of revivals of religion, some of which have been of great interest and power; and that 266 missionaries report 2,769 hopeful conversions, as having taken place during the year, under their ministry.

The number added to the churches on profession of their faith is, as near as we can ascertain, 4,812; by letters from other churches, 2,881—in all, 7,693; which, though less, by 530, than the number added the previous year, exceeds, with a single exception—in 1832—the number added in any other year of the Society's labors.

GENERAL INFLUENCE.

A few of the more obvious results of the labors of the missionaries we have thus summed up. But how small a portion of them can be told! To have sustained more than nine hundred ministers of the Gospel, in their appropriate, divinely-appointed office of PREACHING to their fellow-men, in more than twelve hundred congregations, is no small work! Let those attempt the estimate of it, whose own experience has taught them the value of a preached Gospel and the kind offices of an affectionate, devoted pastor. What a loss would it be to Zion—what a disaster to the best interests of our country—what a blighting of hopes—what a sundering of the tenderest earthly ties, and what a parting with the most precious drops of human consolation, if these candlesticks were to be removed out of their places!

What it is, to have placed in a single state or territory, while in its very infancy, twelve or twenty chosen men, in the vigor and buoyancy of youth, educated and ordained to their high calling, there to lay the foundations of many generations, those can best judge, who have been careful observers of the progress of our new settlements—those can best judge, who can contrast Western New York and the Western Reserve, as we now see them, with what they once were, and with other sections of the country not blessed like them, and who know the indebtedness of these favored communities, for whatsoever is in them that is lovely and of good report, to the self-denying, hard-working missionaries, whose voices first broke in accents of mercy upon the solitude of their wildernesses.

What an influence these men are to exert upon the single cause of education, those can best judge, who have seen the foundations of the Colleges at Hudson, at Marietta, at Crawfordsville, at Jacksonville, laid deep and strong, by the sinews of the unostentatious, far-reaching, heaven-directed missionary, and who know the value of these light-houses of the West to our country's weal—to the cause of truth and human redemption. Many of the sons of these youthful Seminaries, that missionaries have planted, are themselves among the most enterprising and successful of missionaries on both sides of the Mississippi. And the sons of Institutions, which missionaries, who have this year been sent forth to their far distant stations will establish, will, ere many of us are in our graves, be preaching the Gospel of the grace of God, on the shores of the Pacific, in the Islands of the Sea, and in the uttermost parts of the earth.

What it is, thus to have promoted peace, order, brotherly kindness, charity, in so many christian communities—to have given encouragement, consolation, hope immortal, to multitudes whom we shall never meet in the flesh—to have set in motion unnumbered trains of educational, moral and religious influences, which shall go on, rolling down their blessings upon every generation of men, and peopling heaven with myriads redeemed, may every one, who has borne a part in this glorious enterprise, comprehend, with joy unspeakable, when we shall no longer see through a glass darkly!

THE TREASURY.

The balance in the treasury, April 15, 1843, was $2,589 02; the receipts of the succeeding twelve months have been, $101,904 99—making the resources of the year, $104,494 01.

The amount due to missionaries, April 15, 1843, was $9,608 40; and there have since become due, $106,832 12—making the liabilities of the Society for the year, $116,140 52.

Of this sum, $104,276 47 have been paid, The remainder, $11,864 05 is still due to missionaries, who have performed their labor and whose requests for payment are now daily being received. Towards cancelling these claims and meeting the further sum of $38,224 65, pledged for the coming year, the balance in the treasury is only $217 54.

The receipts above reported are but $2,092 05 greater than those reported at the last anniversary. It is due to the churches, however, that it should be stated, that the amount of their contributions has been increased $9,147 77—the receipts, in payment of legacies, being $7,055 72 less than the previous year. It is the living, therefore, rather than the dead, who have, the past year, praised the Lord, in sustaining the work in which we have been engaged. Had it not been for this increased interest in the churches, and their enlarged benefactions, the cause which they have committed to us, would have experienced the most serious and disheartening embarrassments.

NECESSITY OF ENLARGED RESOURCES.

The point of apprehension and deep concern is not, however, past. Our solicitude has never been more intense, nor our position more critical than at the present time. With a greater number of laborers in the field than ever before—many of the most expensive of whom must be paid a much larger amount the coming year than the last, as they have but recently entered, at distant stations, the service of the Society—with the past dues of these missionaries and the pledges for the coming year greatly increased, with a treasury well nigh empty, and with numerous applications for appointment yet unanswered, we enter upon the responsibilities of another year.

An increase, it will be perceived, of more than $12,000, in the receipts of the Society, the year to come, is indispensable, in order to sustain its operations on their present scale. And a further increase of a much larger amount, is equally indispensable, in order to make, in some humble measure, the advances to which the providence of God and the necessities of our kinsmen according to the flesh are urging us. Without the first named increase, the pledges to the missionaries, who are bearing the heat and burden of the day cannot be fulfilled. Without speedy returns from the churches of a portion of this increase, a large amount which is now due, and of which those who have earned it are in urgent need, cannot be forwarded.

Without the second named increase, the candidates for missionary service at the most distant and difficult posts, cannot be commissioned and sustained. The spirit of the young men, who went out last autumn from our Theological Seminaries, lives, in those who have come after them ; and these are desiring to go forth unto their elder brethren in the wilderness, to share with them their sacrifices and their toil. A much larger number, well qualified for their work, we have reason to believe could be sent out the coming year, than were sent out the last, if the funds at the disposal of the Committee would authorize their appointment. Those already in the field are calling for help, and fanning the missionary spirit in the hearts of their brethren. And must this spirit be kindled up, only to die out in hope deferred, or in absolute disappointment ? Our destitute fellow countrymen, too, are calling for the bread and the water of life. Can we find it in our hearts to deny it to them ? The fields are waving with the golden harvest. Shall not the waiting reapers be sent forth to gather it ? The day of our country's merciful visitation is passing away. Must the things of our peace be hidden from our eyes ?

ECONOMY OF HOME MISSIONS.

May we not ask every friend of Christ and of his country to ponder the work in which we are engaged—its nature and its relations to the best interests of men in this life, and in that which is to come. It is the employment of the MINISTRY—God's own chosen instrumentality for human salvation, unto which pertain the promises of the Savior's presence and the wonder-working power of the Spirit ! It is the planting of CHURCHES, to be radiant points of light and life to all coming generations ! How small the amount for which this instrumentality may be secured ! It will be perceived, by dividing the expenditures of the year, not by the number of missionaries employed, but by the number of unbroken years of labor performed, without any deduction for incidental expenses, that not far from one hundred and fifty dollars will secure the entire services of an educated, ordained minister of the Gospel in building up the waste places of Zion. This amount of the charities of the church, will bring out from the people to whom he ministers the balance of his support, where otherwise, nothing would be raised for the support of the Gospel, and no Gospel would be preached, and no parched desert become a pool of living water.

And this is not to be a perpetual charity in a given place. In a few years, the support of the missionary will be wholly assumed by the people of his care ; and the amount expended for him will be sent on, into settlements more new, more needy ; and the church which was the recipient of charity, will now become herself the benefactor of the necessitous, and pay back into the treasury of the Lord a hundred fold for all that she has received, and accompany the benefaction with her sympathies and her prayers. Such is the ECONOMY of Home Missions. Look at it in whatever light you will, and there is a vast amount of good accomplished at small expense. In what other form can an equal amount be invested, where it will yield richer or more abundant fruits?

PREACHING THE GOSPEL BY PROXY.

Are there not those whose hearts are glowing with love to Christ, and to the souls of their fellow countrymen, whom God has entrusted with a portion of this world, but who cannot go out and preach the Gospel in person—are there not many such, who will preach it by PROXY? The contribution of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS will enable them to do it! Are there not many families, who will esteem it their privilege to make up this sum among their number, and thus add to their happiness, as they gather around the family altar, the thought, that they are preaching the Gospel to the destitute and the dying? Are there not many Female Associations, that can secure the means of thus sustaining in our new settlements, a faithful minister of Jesus Christ? Are there not many congregations, who will make the blessedness their own, of reflecting, as they sit under the droppings of the sanctuary and around the table of their Redeemer, that ere partaking of their own meat, they have provided a like repast for many of their needy brethren whose dwelling place is by the going down of the sun?

We cannot but be deeply concerned to know how these statements of the condition and wants of the Society, will be received by its patrons. We must watch, with intense solicitude, the indications of the WILL of the churches. For, upon it, all our action hangs. Brethren, shall we go forward, in the work which you have committed to our hands, or must it decline? Shall we speak, in language of encouragement and hope to him that hath no helper, and to him who would consecrate his life to the relief of the needy? or, must we tell them, that there is no help for them out of Zion? May the response be such, as shall give joy to your hearts and ours, when we render an account of our stewardship—such as shall, through grace, call to life beyond the grave multitudes which no man can number!

AUXILIARY SOCIETIES AND AGENCIES.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The receipts of this Society, during the year, have been $7,639 53, including a bequest of $1,000 by the Hon. David Dunlap, deceased, of which the interest only is to be expended annually. Seventy-five missionaries have been in the service of the Society, and there have been expended in their support $6,236.

"The accounts of revivals of religion," says the Secretary of the Society, Rev. ELIPHALET GILLET, D. D., "are less cheering than in years gone by, though, in other respects, nothing in our work appears forbidding. As to the hold which the Society has on the confidence and affection of the churches, the readiness of the destitute to co-operate in efforts for their relief, and the fidelity and harmony of missionaries in their self-denying labors, appearances never held out better promise. Nothing seems to indicate any insuperable obstacle to the work's going on to its final completion. Patience, perseverance and dependence on God will effect it."

In the last annual report, the Trustees say, in relation to the field of their immediate supervision and its relations to the greater work of evangelizing the country and the world: "the field to be cultivated is long and broad—as large as all New-England besides; and this whole length and breadth, in every section of it, dotted over with moral wastes or embracing feeble christian establishments. In the newer parts, beginnings are to be made; in the older, the desolations of many generations are to be built up. There is a loud call upon christian charity, to cause the means of religion to keep pace with the rapidity of the population. Every village and hamlet should have spread over it the shade of christian influence, and in all the breakings in upon the forest, they should hear the sound of gospel salvation. But it should be remembered, that ours is only a branch of the National Institution, which has the supervision of the whole home department. That is called to follow with the Gospel of the grace of God, the immense tide of population that is pressing on to Wisconsin, to Iowa, to the Rocky Mountains, and the mouth of the Oregon. And Foreign Missions is only the same cause extended. Then, the field is the world; and these home operations are auxiliary in its universal cultivation. The light that has broke forth from the throne of grace, shall thus be caused to diffuse its beams farther and farther, and wider and wider, until every dark corner of the earth is illuminated; and the trumpet of the Gospel, like the trumpet on Mount Sinai, shall wax louder and louder, till it shall cause itself to be heard by every people, and nation and language in the world."

NEW HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Forty-two missionaries have been in commission from this Society, during the year—nearly all of them employed as pastors, or stated supplies of individual churches. The aggregate of labor which they have performed is 41 years. These missionaries and their churches have enjoyed the smiles of the Great Head of the church, though special reviving influences have not been so abundant as in former years.

The receipts of the Society have been $5,617 88, including legacies to the amount of $1,729 ; and its expenditures $4,911 27; leaving a balance in the treasury of $706 61. There have also been paid into the treasury of the Parent Society from the state, during the year, $826 84—making the whole amount contributed for the general cause $6,444 72 ; exceeding the amount of the previous year by $1,301 20.

The efforts of this Society to infuse life and energy into the feeble churches of its care, and to lead them on to independence and spiritual prosperity, have been greatly blessed of God. Sixteen churches, that have been nurtured by its bounty, have, within the last six years, assumed the responsibility of sustaining the Gospel at their own charges, and now count it their privilege to minister, as God has prospered them, to the necessity of others. But the most cheering evidence, says the Secretary, Rev. BENJAMIN P. STONE, in the report of the Trustees, that God has, during the same period, been gracious to the missionary cause in this state, is in fact that the Gospel, as a means of salvation, has not been preached by our missionaries in vain. Seventy precious revivals of religion have been enjoyed by the churches while under patronage, and not far from 2000 souls have been hopefully born into the kingdom of heaven. To have been the occasion of bringing into requisition that instrumentality, which the Holy Ghost has blessed to redeem so many of our fellow-men from the ways of sin, is enough. We would ask no brighter evidence that this is an institution dear to God and to his people."

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The number of missionaries in the service of this society, during the year, has been 40. The receipts have been $4,727 33 ; and the expenditures $4,042. There has also been paid from the state into the treasury of the Parent Society, the sum of $605 50, including a legacy of $200.

The last report of the Trustees, as well as the communications of the Secretary, Rev. ISAAC R. WORCESTER, give pleasing evidence of the lively interest which is felt by the friends of Christ in the state, in the appropriate work of the Society, and its rela-lations to the best interests of this country and of mankind. "We believe," they say, "that the churches of Vermont, are beginning to feel more deeply than ever, the importance of affording aid to our feeble churches—of supplying our own wastes with the institutions of the Gospel. And they greatly mistake, who suppose we are doing nothing for the religious interests of the West, by what we expend upon the feeble churches of Vermont. The root of the tree is here. The sources of influence are here. From New-England will go out a large part of the influence which will mould the character of our newer states. Very many of the teachers and preachers of the West, are trained at the East. The sons and daughters of New England are continually going, in great numbers, to the frontier settlements of our country. This state gives her full proportion of men to the West. Let them be christian men—sons of the church—well instructed and well trained for christian action, and the wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them, and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose. Nor, is it this nation alone, that is interested in our work. We speak not too strongly, when we say, that the religious hopes and interests of the WORLD, so far as man's agency is concerned, depend in no small measure on the religious prospects of the United States. The world looks to us for aid. And that we may render it, in such measure as is meet, our own land must be evangelized. Immanuel's kingdom must be established here. The nation's wealth and the nation's talent must be laid, as an offering, upon God's altar."

MASSACHUSETTS HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Sixty-four missionaries, under commission from this Society, have preached the gospel to not less than 9,500 souls, from Sabbath to Sabbath during the year. More than 2,500 families have been under their pastoral care; and the parents and the children have been taught by them, how to live on earth and how to live in heaven. During the year preceding the Society's last report, 741 had been added to the churches under patronage; 6,500 pupils had been instructed in Sabbath schools; and 15 congregations had ceased to receive missionary aid—most of them having become able to sustain their own gospel institutions, and counting it more blessed to give than to receive.

The receipts of this society, during the year, have been $21,350 21; the expenditures within the state, $9,182 87; and $11,704 70, have been paid into the treasury of the American Home Missionary Society. There have also been received into the treasury of the Parent Society, from the Hampshire Missionary Society, $1,100; from various individuals, congregations and auxiliaries, $2,344 95, in payment of legacies, $6,490 60,—in all, $9,935 55, making the whole amount realized from the state to the cause of Home Missions during the year, $30,823 12; which is $2,238 68, greater than the amount of any previous year.

The generous co-operation of the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society, and the liberal benefactions of the friends of Christ within the state, have been most important auxiliaries to us in the prosecution of our work. Without them, many a congregation, that has been blessed on each returning Sabbath with the preaching of the word, must have remained destitute; and many a youthful herald of the cross, sent out to preach Christ and him crucified, to his fellow countrymen in the wilderness, must have failed to attain this desire of his heart. To the Executive Officers of this Society, the thanks of the Parent Society are especially due, as well for the promptness with which they have placed so large an amount at our disposal in our time of need, as for the fraternal interest which they have ever manifested, in furthering, to the extent of their ability, the objects, which we, in common, have at heart. In their last report, drawn up by their Secretary, Rev. JOSEPH S. CLARK, in congratulating their patrons, in view of the enlarged operations of the American Home Missionary Society and the blessing of God upon its labors, they say, "The policy and energy of that Society, and more than all the brightening smiles of Providence that rest on the field of its culture, have secured it a place in the confidence of the good, which nothing but a departure from that policy, and a loss of that energy will ever unsettle."

RHODE ISLAND HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Five missionaries have been employed within the bounds of this Society during the year; $1,250 have been appropriated towards their support—$250 of it raised within the state, and $1,000 generously contributed by the Connecticut Missionary Society. Five hundred and seventy-three dollars have also been received from the state into the treasury of the Parent Society—the greater portion of it from the Beneficent Congregational Church of Providence.

The Directors say, in their last report, that there has been a decided improvement in the morals of the people, and in the system of common school education—that Sabbath schools are generally well sustained, and are bright spots in this field—that there are still many towns in the state where no Congregational church exists, which have strong claims upon the enterprise and the benefactions of the friends of Christ—and that could but a small portion of the immense wealth of the state, which is now spent in other ways, be employed in planting churches, their moral wilderness would blossom as the rose, and their barren fields become like the garden of God.

The Rev. THOMAS T. WATERMAN, of Providence, is the Secretary of the Society.

CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

There remained a balance in the treasury of this Society, April 1, 1843, of $3,831 80; and the receipts of the succeeding twelve months have been $5,260 77. The expenditures, within the state, have been $3,378 41; $1,000 have been appropriated in aid of the Rhode Island Home Missionary Society, and $1,500 paid into the treasury of the American Home Missionary Society.

There have also been received into the treasury of the Parent Society from various auxiliaries, congregations and individuals, $9,648 02, and in payment of legacies $1,583 12; making the whole amount realized to the cause of Home Missions from this state during the year, $16,491 91, and exceeding the amount of the preceding year, by $3,117 52.

To the Connecticut Missionary Society, and to the friends of missions in this state, special acknowledgments are justly due, and are most cordially rendered—by the American Home Missionary Society, as we are confident they are by the multitudes whom their bounty has relieved—for their continued and increased liberality in furtherance of a work, which as soon as the sons and daughters of Connecticut began to seek out homes for themselves and their descendants in our now settlements, was there commenced and prosecuted with great wisdom and efficiency, and to which this state, though among the smallest in the Union, is behind only the much larger states of Massachusetts and New York, in the amount of her annual contributions.

Forty-two congregations, within the state, have been aided during the year in sustaining the institutions of the Gospel. Thirty-three of these have pastors installed over them, and the remainder are furnished with stated supplies. "Not one of these churches," says the Secretary of the Society, Rev. HORACE HOOKER, "would, in my opinion, at this moment have a pastor, but for the past or present action of our Society. Our rule, adopted a year or two ago, not to aid congregations which needlessly defer settling a pastor, has had an admirable effect." The communication of the Secretary adds, "The year has been distinguished rather for the growing stability of religious institutions among our feeble churches, than for an addition to the number of their members. The erection of a new place of worship or the repair of an old one, the provision of a parsonage or a conference room, followed by the settlement of an efficient pastor, give ground for hope that the Gospel will have a permanent influence, where once it seemed about to lose its hold on the community."

PHILADELPHIA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society—comprising the states of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland—has had in commission during the year 59 ministers of the Gospel, viz;—10 in New-Jersey, 44 in Pennsylvania, 2 in Delaware, 2 in Maryland, and one in the District of Columbia. Twenty-six have had charge, each of a single congregation, 25 of two congregations each, and the remainder have occupied still wider fields. Ninety-one congregations have been supplied, in whole or in part, with the ministrations of the Gospel. Five hundred and sixty-three are reported as added to the churches aided during the year; and about 4,400 children and youth are in attendance on Sabbath school instruction.

Two churches have been organized, 2 houses of worship erected; 12 new fields hitherto unoccupied have been entered with encouraging prospects, and 14 congregations that have received assistance, have made arrangements during the year, to dispense with it in future. Several of the missionaries make mention of more than ordinary religious interest among the people of their care, and 12 report revivals which have greatly strengthened the things that remain.

At the commencement of the year, April 1, 1843, there remained a balance in the treasury of $968 51; and the receipts, since that date, have been $8,170 00. The expenditures, on the field of the Society, have been $6,290 61; and there remained a balance in the treasury, April 1, 1844, of $2,847 90. There have also been received into the treasury of the Parent Society, from congregations and individuals within the limits of this auxiliary, $1,300 33; and in payment of legacies, $365 82, making the total of Home Missionary collections on this field during the year, $10,336 15; which is $773 76 greater than the amount of the preceding year.

"The cause of Home Missions," says the communication of the Secretary, Rev. ELIAS R. FAIRCHILD, "is gradually gaining upon the hearts, the consciences, and the resources of the people within the field of our Society. Every year, for four years past, it has made some progress; and in several important particulars the results of the labors of the year now closed, are in advance of any year that has preceded it."

These results are truly encouraging to all who are engaged in promoting the best interests of our common country ; and especially so to the friends of Christ, scattered over the extensive territory comprised within the limits of this Society, in their vigorous efforts to bring its numerous villages and settlements, that are yet unoccupied, under the power of the world to come.

CENTRAL AGENCY, UTICA, N. Y.

Fifty-two missionaries have been employed on the field of this Agency within the year. These have performed 43 years of ministerial labor, in 60 congregations to which they were designated, besides extending their labors to several others. Eleven of these fields are now for the first time brought under regular culture.

These labors have been crowned with a happy degree of success. The temperance reform has been sustained and extended ; four new churches have been constituted ; four others have been so far strengthened as to require no further aid ; and eight congregations have repaired, or erected, or commenced houses of worship. Nor has the blessing of the Holy Spirit been withheld. The hopeful conversion of more than 200 souls is reported from 8 churches ; and the aggregate of additions to all the churches aided is 450 ; of whom 315 have joined on profession of their faith.

As may be inferred from these statements, there has been a general advance in the operations of this Agency during the past year. More missionary labor has been performed than in any former year. The receipts are also larger than have ever before been gathered from this field, in the same period, amounting to $4,004 85. This fact, when considered in connection with the embarrassments which stood in the way of its accomplishment, is justly regarded as indicative of a higher appreciation of the Home Missionary cause in that part of the state.

The Secretary of this Agency is Rev. ABIJAH CRANE, of Clinton, N. Y.

WESTERN AGENCY, GENEVA, N. Y.

Owing to a change in the time of closing the annual accounts of this agency, its present report covers only eleven months. During this period, 80 missionaries have supplied 88 congregations, with more or less ministerial labor. The receipts for the time reported have been $7,439 98, or $1,664 more than the sum appropriated on the same field.

The Secretary, Rev. JOHN A. MURRAY, states the interesting fact, as one to which his efforts have been especially directed,—that of the forementioned receipts, the churches assisted have alone given a sum more than sufficient to meet the necessary expenses of the Agency.

The moral results of the last year, within these bounds, are seen in the gradual consolidation of the materials of society, in the multiplication of all the good influences by which congregations are trained in the order and good works of the Gospel; in the supply, to a greater extent than ever before, of the ministry to feeble churches, and in the saving impressions made on many hearts. Although we cannot recount the victories of converting grace, as largely as in some other years, there are not wanting single churches, in which 50, 70, and 100 souls have been hopefully gathered into the ark of safety.

WESTERN RESERVE DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

For about twelve months previous to our last Report, this Auxiliary had endeavored to conduct its operations without the services of an agent. The Directors were led to this course by the general disposition of the churches to dispense with the labors of agents, where the cost of their support is large, in comparison with the amount of collections. The result was, that although the churches were apprized that the work of furnishing funds was left to their own action, and although the experiment was made at the time when the abler churches were accustomed to make contributions to this object, only $100 were received into the treasury in six months; and of this, more than half was secured by the personal efforts of the Secretary. The liabilities of the Society had, by this time, so far outrun its means, that to redeem it from impending disaster, the Secretary, Rev. MYRON TRACY, was requested to visit, so far as other duties would allow, those churches in which the remainder of the year would be the appropriate time for making collections. In six months, the income of the Society rose to $944 94;—and the total receipts of the year, ending April 1, 1844, have been $2,013 74. The hope is now entertained, that this Auxiliary, whose efficiency has been impeded by various causes, will speedily acquire strength to sustain all the missions needed in its own bounds.

Seventeen missionaries have labored, the last year, under appointment from this auxiliary, besides twenty others appointed by the parent Society in the same general field of Northern Ohio.

“As I become acquainted with our feeble churches,” writes the Secretary, "and see more of Home Missionary operations, I feel more and more deeply interested in the work. For more than sixteen years, I have been an eye-witness of the progress of our churches, and have seen many a feeble flock become strong, through the fostering care of the A. H. M. S. The influence of this Society has been worth more to the inhabitants of the Western Reserve, even in a temporal point of view, than millions of gold and silver; and the amount of good which has been accomplished, is what words can never express."

MARIETTA AGENCY, O.

The amount expended by this agency within the year, has been $225 93. The sum necessary to complete the appropriations to ten missionaries, on this field, has been furnished by the Parent Society.

That the amount of missionary ground is scarcely diminished by the labors of these ministers, will be readily understood, when it is borne in mind, that the Agency covers the counties of Lawrence, Jackson, Gallia, Meigs, Hocking, Athens, Washington, Morgan and Monroe. "Within these limits there are regions," says the Secretary, Rev. HENRY SMITH, "over which the darkness of spiritual death reigns, we had almost said, unbroken by a ray of light." Respecting the effect of the missionary labor which has been employed the last year, the report states—"we cannot refrain from expressing the conviction, that no other equal amount of funds expended within the bounds of this Agency, is accomplishing so much direct and perceptible good, as that expended for the support of your missionaries. The few scattered over this wide field have already wrought a great change in the moral aspects of many parts of it. Let this number be multiplied. It is the true way to save the West. It is the most economical way, the speediest way—and may we not add—it is God's way. 'Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel.' Other means are not undervalued. But our experience on this field proves this to be the only one on which we can rely for ultimate success."

CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF AGENCY FOR THE WESTERN STATES, AT CINCINNATI, O.

The operations of this Agency are directed chiefly to those portions of the West which have a natural relation to Cincinnati as a commercial centre. "The inquiry is often made," says the Secretary, the Rev. HENRY LITTLE, "Why do you employ so many missionaries in Ohio and Indiana, and thus keep them back from the newer states and territories? To this it is replied, that special attention is now demanded in those regions, where much had previously been done." Since this Agency was constituted the missionary organ for this section, the population of these states has more than doubled; and should christian zeal make no proportional efforts for its supply, three-fourths of a million of people would be consigned to hopeless destitution. "And the older fields," adds the report, "like our farms, can be made productive only in the ratio of the labor bestowed on their cultivation. The settler who should enter upon a section of unbroken, heavily timbered forest, and cut down but here and there a tree, would find gray hairs thickening upon him before he could have a cleared farm and fruitful fields. And if, meanwhile, the exuberance of nature were reproducing upon the same soil still other trees, how would the necessity for labor be increased. It is thus with our churches. The surrounding settlements spring up, five, ten, fifteen miles distant, where but a small portion of the people care for their souls, or think of the world to come. Immediate attention to their wants is demanded. Even where the condition of the central and more important points is of the most favorable character, it is difficult to pervade the surrounding region with wholesome influences; how much more so, when, in so many cases, these influential posts are themselves destitute of the stated means of salvation."

Contemplate now some illustrations of the opposite character. "One of our missionaries has had 40 added to his church during the year; another 50; another 90. One preaches to his little church in the morning, and then they disperse in different directions to the school-houses, and teach 400 Sabbath scholars, and return in season for evening worship. What impressions must such a man, abounding in labor, and like Barnabas, full of the Holy Ghost and of faith, make on these 400 pupils, and on the rest of the community, in various ways brought under his influence! And with the blessing of God on that influence, what results must ultimately follow! A little boy, eleven years old, heard Whitefield preach and became a Christian; and at a later period consecrated his household to the Lord. A century has passed, and now a hundred and thirty of his descendants give good evidence of piety. Thus does the stream of godliness spread wider and deeper as it flows on. Oh could the churches be convinced, how easily the work may now be done, and how difficult it will have become at some later day, they would pour their gifts into the treasury in such profusion, that, as at the erection of the tabernacle, their zeal would have to be repressed! But instead of this, we are now compelled to limit the appropriations of worthy, self-denying missionaries, so as to tie their hands, and hold them back from their work."

During the year, 29 missionaries have labored under the direction of this Agency, and its collections have amounted to $2,260.

MISSOURI HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Owing to the great urgency of other objects, connected with the planting of churches and providing houses of worship, but little has been done by this Auxiliary the past year, directly, for the appointment and payment of missionaries. The receipts have been $106 87.

In October last, the Rev. ARTEMAS BULLARD, D. D., who had greatly promoted the success of the Society, by his well directed efforts and appeals, was succeeded by Rev. JOHN BLATCHFORD, D. D., as its Secretary. Soon after his appointment, Dr. B. made an extensive tour, with a view to gain a more specific knowledge of the wants of the state. "Missouri," says the Secretary, "is under great obligations to the A. H. M. S., for the aid it has afforded in support of its ministers. With the exception of five or six, all who devote their whole time to the ministry, would have been compelled to leave the state, or to turn aside to secular pursuits, but for the timely appropriations of your institution."

"Two years ago, we were a small band, almost overwhelmed by the moral desolations by which we were surrounded, and not knowing the sources whence the famishing thousands of this interesting state were to be fed with the bread of life. Trusting in the promise of God, we made our appeal; and the response has been more than we dared to hope. We cannot express how much we feel indebted to your noble Society; nor can we ever be able to repay you, for you have come to our relief in the hour of our extremity. Nor have your prayers and ours been unheard and unanswered. The Spirit of God has blessed our efforts; and although the revivals of religion have not been as extensive as in the previous year, still we have been constrained to 'praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men.'"

This, however, is but the brighter side of the picture. Missouri contains a population probably two-thirds as great as that of Massachusetts, and scattered over a territory as large as all New-England. For that portion of the people which forms the subject of Presbyterian and Congregational effort, there are not more than 40 ministers, devoted to the appropriate work of the ministry. There is a territory on the northern boundary of the state, two ranges of counties in depth, and extending, from the Mississippi on the East, between two and three hundred miles westward to the Missouri river—larger than Massachusetts, and rapidly filling up with inhabitants—in which there is but one Presbyterian minister devoted to the distinctive labors of the sacred office. “I have travelled,” says the Secretary, “for 230 miles, much of the distance through a thickly populated region, and yet, in all this distance, we have but one solitary minister, and he is worn down by labor and sickness, supplying three churches, with none to aid or sympathize with him—except occasionally, affected by his cry for help, his brethren grant him a few days, taken from their own suffering fields.” In one case, there is a destitute church near the Mississippi, where the minister might have not only a whole county for his field, but might travel 250 miles in one direction, without trespassing on the province of a Presbyterian or Congregational minister.

The same sad tale may, with equal fidelity, be told of a strip of territory, 300 miles long and two counties in depth, on the southern line of the state. And, says the Secretary, “in all parts of the commonwealth, there are wide spread desolations. Ten or twelve important places, such as probably cannot be found destitute of preaching of our order in any other of the states, are now looking in every direction for ministers.” In some of them, we are assured, society is in the best possible condition for the entrance and success of the Gospel, and for exerting a wide influence over several adjacent counties. But in this condition they cannot long remain. In the name of the shepherdless lambs, now wandering unguarded and unfed; in the name of all the precious interests of the future, hanging in jeopardy, we appeal to the rising ministry, and ask, “Whom shall we send, and who will go for us,” to the moral subjugation of that prolific soil—to break up the fallow ground, to sow beside all waters, to gather the harvest, and to feed the flock of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood.

OTHER AGENCIES IN THE WEST.

In Southern Indiana, Rev. JOHN M. DICKEY has spent about three months in making a particular survey of the moral condition of the inhabitants, and in laboring among the feeble churches. His inquiries have developed an amount of destitution most affecting to the christian heart, and calling loudly on the friends of Home Missions, to redouble their zeal, if they would retain the ground already won; and especially, if they would push the triumphs of the Gospel in a densely settled portion of the Great Valley.

In Michigan, the Committee have employed 19 missionaries who were not previously in commission on that field. These have had their stations assigned them principally in the Western counties. Preliminary to this reinforcement, it was deemed necessary to employ one of the resident pastors, in exploring the ground and preparing it for the expected laborers. This service has been performed chiefly by Rev. CALVIN CLARK, acting in connexion with the advice of his ministerial brethren in that region. The missionaries assigned to this part of the state, have been advantageously stationed, are received with favor, and obtain an encouraging share of their support from the people.

An early friend of Home Missions—and one who has seen the results of which he speaks—remarks concerning the existing churches of the Presbyterian and Congregational order in that State—"I scarcely know of one that has not come into existence by the aid of your Society. In Western Michigan, not more than one church do I know, of whose missionary inception I have any doubt. In reply, then, to the question, What has the A. H. M. S. done for us? The answer is—every thing, so far as relates to laying the foundations of our churches. Nor do I see how it could have been possible for one out of ten of them to start into organized existence without such aid. Is it suggested, that by a few years' delay, these same elements of ecclesiastical organization would have come together by the force of their own affinity? A man who never crossed Lake Erie might reason so; but every man of Western experience knows, from sober and saddening observation, that the true way to plant churches at the West, is to do it in the infancy of the settlements. Wait till the people themselves are able and disposed, and in most instances, the prospect is about as encouraging as that of the idiot, waiting on the bank of the river for the water to get by, so that he might go over. Difficulties increase; the synagogues of Satan forestall you; and not unfrequently, professors of religion become the high priests of their worship! And I see, in the adaptation of the Home Missionary enterprise to meet this emergency, something far above the mere wisdom of man; I see distinctly, the unequivocal interposition of the Almighty. The result now is, that nearly all the important and advanced villages and settlements in this part of the State, are supplied with preaching, either the whole or a part of the time. Yet even now, very few of them could retain it without aid from the A. H. M. S. Should your Society now become so crippled, that it could extend to the churches around us no further assistance, full one half of our ministers would be obliged to abandon the field, or go to the farm."

Illinois.—Besides the gratuitous service rendered by individual pastors—which is gratefully acknowledged—the Committee have availed themselves of the labors of agents for a part of the year. Rev. THERON BALDWIN, as mentioned in the last report, for a few months devoted such attention to the interests of this cause, in visiting the prominent churches and conferring with ecclesiastical bodies, as was consistent with his other duties. Under his direction, a minute survey was made of the portion of the state which lies south of the National Road—the results of which will be of great value to the Society in its future operations. Rev. WM. KIRBY has attended to the interests of the Society for a fourth part of the time, in the western portion of the State. For the last six months, Rev. MARCUS HICKS has also been employed as an agent in the northern counties. His operations, in visiting the feeble churches and stimulating them to develop their own resources for the support of the Gospel, and in arranging the location of ministers to the best advantage, have already been productive of such results, as prove that the presence of a judicious and industrious agent, is a matter of economy, in a pecuniary as well as in a moral point of view.

The effect of gospel husbandry bestowed on this great and fertile state by Home Missions, like the effects of physical cultivation, have been gradual, indeed, but most cheering to the eye of philanthropy. One beloved pioneer, who entered the north-western portion of the state fifteen years ago, had then no neighboring church, nor Protestant clergyman, devoted to his profession, within 200 miles; and extended his occasional labors from the Rock River to the Wisconsin. Now, he counts within those limits, 15 ministers and 25 churches. Nearly all of these churches are spots of verdure redeemed from the wilderness by the missions of this Society, and on six of them the dews of grace have recently fallen in a peculiar degree. In expressing his gratitude to the patrons of Home Missions, this minister writes—"Let those who think lightly of the influence of your Institution, blot out of being those 25 churches, and drive from the state those 15 ministers, and disband 50 Sunday schools, burn 1000 Bibles, and recall as many volumes of religious books, and stop the monthly visit of a tract to 500 houses. And yet that work of vandalism would not be complete, until they had given back drunken fathers to 50 families, that are now rejoicing in the peace and plenty consequent on their reformation; nor until they had turned back that stream of heavenly influence which has, meanwhile, gone forth from this district to bless the heathen in our forests, and the heathen beyond the ocean; until they had recalled the company of young men who have gone from us to prepare for the ministry; nor even then, unless they ascend the heavens and abstract the gems that have been set in the Savior's crown, and take from his bosom the lambs that have been translated thither." "The name of your Society," says another, "comes up at our ecclesiastical meetings, very much as the name of a kind parent would come up in a circle of grateful and needy children."

Eighty-seven missionaries have been in commission the last year, in this state; which is an increase of 22 above the number reported for the preceding year. Towards their support, $817 68 have been collected within the state.

Wisconsin.—The history of the rise and progress of religious institutions in Wisconsin is without a parallel, in respect to their early establishment, their rapid advancement, and the harmony and success which have characterized the plans and labors of those who have been called to occupy this interesting field. Ten years ago, when our first missionary sailed up Lake Michigan, this splendid tract was one vast, natural garden, over which roamed the wild red man, and the scarce wilder prey which he followed in the chase. At the mines, and at the military posts, there were a few white inhabitants; and at Milwaukie, where now is a population of 6000, and two flourishing churches, there was but one white man. Five years ago, when our Agent passed over this territory, and explored its destitutions, he found but six churches, and three ministers of the Gospel, of the denominations represented in this Society. How rapid and how great has been the change! There is now on the same ground an ecclesiastical organization comprising 53 churches and 30 ministers; while the number of the people had become, a year ago, 45,000; and is now nearly 75,000—making an increase of 30,000, or 66 per cent. in twelve months! And the current of emigration is setting in with greater strength than ever. Some have settled in the villages, and places where religious privileges are enjoyed; but the largest portion of them have gone into the scattered settlements, or made their way entirely beyond the limits to which former emigration had reached, and spread far and wide over that fair and fertile territory. Such an astonishing increase and wide dispersion of population, cannot but greatly augment the necessity for missionary effort. Our Agent, Rev. STEPHEN PEET, remarks, "From the interesting and favored region bordering Lake Michigan—from the beautiful and fertile valley of Rock River—from the borders of the Mississippi and the 'mining region,' where the harvest is great and the laborers are few—from the North, the region of Fox Lake and the Winnebago, and beyond the Wisconsin, and far up that river to the 'Pineries,' where is a large population—the cry for the bread of life is heard. Never have I had my soul so deeply affected, as when listening to these calls, and could find none whom I might send to them, nor could even afford them the meagre benefit of a single visit." But while 30,000 have been added to the population, and 15 new fields have been opened during the past year, the number of missionaries sent to the territory has been only 6, making the whole number who have labored under the commission of this Society since our last report, only 30. In the mean time, several ministers have, for various causes, ceased their labors in this territory. One of these, Rev. David A. Sherman, has been called from the post, where he stood with burning lamp and girded loins, to enter into the joy of his eternal reward.

Iowa.—Until the last year, the Committee had appealed for missionaries to this territory almost in vain. The farmer, the lawyer, the physician—men in every department of secular enterprise, could encounter the hardships of emigration, led on by interest alone; but almost no herald of the cross, led on by the love of souls, had gone with them to lift up his voice amid the strife of worldly enterprise. While New-England and New-York had furnished but one such messenger in three years—and he had returned East of the Mississippi; Rome had sent five, with a still larger reinforcement for the purposes of education. At the time of rendering our last report, an addition to the territory one-third as large as the state of Pennsylvania, had just been thrown open to the settlers; and soon we were told, that counties but 2 weeks old, had already 2000 inhabitants, and none to break unto them the bread of life. It was to the power of such facts to move the pious heart—and more especially to the influence of the Holy Ghost, the savour of whose presence, left by the recent revivals, had been so generally diffused—that we attribute the increase of the missionary spirit, which it is our privilege to record. Early in the year, the Committee received overtures from many ministers, and from students of theology, desiring to be sent to Iowa. But the circumstance which has most characterized the religious history of that mission, was the appointment of eleven members of the late senior class in Andover, to go out together, and to stand side by side in the fore-front of the battle, there waging against the powers of darkness. On the 3d of September, a meeting was held at Andover with this youthful band, by a delegation from the Society, at which time the parting counsels of the Committee were delivered to them by one of the Secretaries. The interest of that meeting will not soon be forgotten by those whose privilege it was to be present at its hallowed scenes. The missionaries who were thus designated—(except two who were providentially detained)—and one graduate from the Theological Seminary in New-Haven—arrived in Iowa in the latter part of October. With what welcome they met from the brethren there, who were fainting under their burdens, may be inferred from the language of one who had long toiled and labored for the West. In describing their reception and consecration to the ministry, by the Iowa Association, he writes, "For three weeks past, I have felt like weeping all the time: my heart has overflowed. The sight of this day is worth almost a life!"

We trust that the prayers of many hearts will follow this consecrated band. Long associated as classmates in the Seminary, as friends in the arrangements of their enterprise, as fellow-travelers to their distant field; ordained at the same time and place to the holy ministry—they may well be supposed to feel all the ties of brotherhood. But the desolations of the land are too wide to suffer them to labor together. They have therefore dispersed themselves abroad—some in the earlier southern towns, where society is in a measure formed—some in the interior counties of the North, and others in the New Purchase. The testimonies to their industry, devotedness, and acceptableness with the people, are of a highly gratifying character. We believe that the language of one of them expresses the spirit of all. "I bless the Lord for sending me here. Here would I live, here would I die. I have a calm consciousness of being where God would have me. Not a moment of discontent have I had—not a tear, from wishing to return to the more favored parts of Zion. Let me hunt up the sheep of the wilderness; let me sympathize with them in their trials; let me impart to them the consolations of the Gospel. Never, since I indulged the Christian's hope, have I been more happy. But Oh, let the people of God pray for us—let them not forget that our work is intimately connected with the salvation of the world, that we need the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, that our labors be not unblest."

The whole number of those who have been sent to Iowa since the last report is 12—making the total of missionaries who have labored there under our commission during the year, 28.

Rev. ASA TURNER, of Denmark, has continued to devote a part of his time to the general interests of the Society, and has largely contributed, in various ways, to awaken the public interest in behalf of the land of his adoption.

CANADA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The resources of this auxiliary are almost wholly drawn from the American Presbyterian Church in Montreal, the Pastor of which, Rev. CALEB STRONG, is also the Secretary of the Society. The expenditures of the year have been $835 58. Five missionaries have been in commission from the auxiliary, and two others from the Parent Society. Although the labors of the missionaries have not been attended the past year with special results, yet it is a matter for devout thanksgiving, that amid circumstances calculated to try their steadfastness, they are in a state of general prosperity.

THE WORK BEFORE US.

Such is an outline of the history of the Society for the year now closed. Our goodly barque has been safely guided by her Great Pilot through another annual voyage. Of the future, all we know is, that as the stream rolls on, it is filled with rocks and dangers, that the overhanging cliffs rise higher and frown with a darker gloom, and the current sweeps with a broader and swifter tide. Every year becomes more and more momentous, as we approach the day when the American character shall be so fixed as to bid defiance to all direct attempts to mould it.

HINDRANCES.

The circumstances which combine to render the moral renovation of our country a work of continued difficulty, are such as these. First—that hereafter, the increase of our population will go, in a great measure, to swell the population of the West. We cannot expect that the farms of the East will continue to be subdivided, and that families will be content with scanty possessions, when boundless and fertile vales invite them beyond the Alleghanies. Hence, the increase of the people will be mainly in that part of our territory where the East can act on it with the least facility. The addition to our numbers will not be around our older institutions, and amid consolidated society, but away from them, where every thing is new, and moral influences comparatively feeble. Again—the general conviction, pervading not only the Church, but also the world—not our own nation alone, but likewise foreign lands—that now is the time to win the control of the West, imparts a tremendous energy to the efforts of all classes who are contending for that prize. There, every system of error puts on its boldest form, and acts out its spirit with the least restraint. From what part of the land comes the proposition, which lately grated on the ear of the nation, to deprive our army and navy of their chaplains? Where was it, that in open day, and in the halls of legislation, the bowie knife and pistol did their work of death? It was there, where also the Papacy is coiling its serpent folds around the limbs, and poisoning, with its pestilential breath, the life of the infant West. It is there, where Jesuitism confronts the advocates of a pure faith wherever they turn, buying up their embarrassed churches, planting its schools, and rearing imposing edifices with foreign funds, and thus forestalls the possession of the land. It is there, too, that the various sects of Protestant Christians are so commingled, yet subdivided, as to expend, against each other, much of the strength that should be employed against the common foe. And yet, amidst the tremendous action of these moral elements, is the arena on which our national salvation is to be lost or won. Another obstacle—and one of increasing magnitude—which may well fill the heart of philanthropy with deep concern, is the existence of that horrible anomaly in American institutions, slavery—covering so large a portion of our territory, and enthralling more than two and a half millions of souls, made in the image of God, in a bondage worse than Egyptian, that prevents the most direct and effectual efforts for their salvation. But a fourth source of difficulty—and one which is developing its influence now more than ever—is the tendency of emigration to disperse itself over wide and distant districts, instead of condensing on particular tracts. Hitherto, the settlement of our national domain has been immediately on its western border. For a quarter of a century, it has advanced cautiously, yet steadily, at the average rate of 30 miles in a year. This regular and compact movement has made it comparatively easy to supply the means of grace as they were demanded. But a change is taking place. The ardor of emigration has seized even upon the West, and the pioneer whose plough first broke the turf in Indiana or Illinois, is driving his herds on towards the Grand Prairie and the Platte Purchase. This restless enterprize disregards all privations and transcends all obstacles. It tracks the long course of rivers, through the lonely waste, to their distant springs. It threads the passes, or overleaps the cliffs, of the Rocky Mountains. And there, the same spirit of achievement which so recently converted the valley of the Connecticut into a garden, and lined the banks of the Merrimack with factories, has even now begun to open fields, and build towns, on the plains of the Wallamette, and to turn the current of the Columbia upon its water-wheels. It would seem that almost all parts of our vacant territory are to be settled upon simultaneously; and hence the augmented importance and difficulty of the work before us. The tokens of a new destiny open upon us, demanding more comprehensive plans and grander developments of christian enterprize. The term “Home Missions” must no longer be restricted by its association with the idea of our immediate neighborhood, and the sphere of our domestic life; it has a meaning as wide as the continent, and refers to the salvation of souls almost without number.

RELATIONS TO THE NEXT CENTURY.

It is idle to say, that all this is matter of speculation—that the emergency apprehended may never actually occur—and therefore we may dismiss all solicitude for the result. No man, who does not wilfully shut his eyes on the past, and on the present signs of the times, and disregard all the deductions of common sense, can counsel thus. Admit that our Union may not continue; its disruption would only increase our work, and call more loudly for the intensest effort. Admit that statistics may err in estimating the future numbers of people in this republic—that it is uncertain, whether our successors, a century hence, shall be 250 or only 150 millions; still, in either event, how vast the multitude that shall spread abroad over our territory, and what immeasurable interests depend on our decision! Although the history of this nation has rendered us familiar with rapid and eventful changes, it is impossible to look back, and trace the increase of population for 50 years, and deduce the probable law of its future progress, without a feeling of awe. There is something almost terribly sublime in this multiplication of being—this silent, steady accumulation of masses upon masses of immortal men! It is as if all the tides of the ocean were gathered upon our coast, and were advancing to burst in one vast deluge upon the continent. The fountains of the great deep are broken up. Day by day, we see the waters rise higher, but never ebb. The flood covers the eastern plains; it beats against the breast the hills; it swells above the mountain tops, and pours in a thousand Niagaras over into the great open bosom of the West. We see it rolling on, northward, and southward, and westward—sweeping away the forests from states and territories yet unnamed—until, at length, the turbulent waters repose on the bed of a vanquished continent! Every wave of this ocean is a tribe of men; every drop is a human soul—instinct with life—born in sin—to be converted and saved, or to live in rebellion and be lost. How will those thronging generations crowd after each other, over the verge of life, into the eternal world! Wherever there are combined with numbers, a general diffusion of intelligence and freedom, there must be activity—the struggles of ambition and the lust of wealth. Then, what developments will a few years unfold, of resources and energy in physical improvements, in politics, and in trade! What Joshuas, Howards and Washingtons, in benevolence and patriotism, will there be! what Judases, Neroes, and Robespierres, in treachery and blood! These are no mere possibilities; they are approaching history. These millions are coming; they will be here before we are prepared to receive them. And nothing is more certain, than that the institutions which will shape their destiny, must be founded and bequeathed to them by us. This generation must make haste, and have the Gospel ready to take hold of them and mould them, as soon as they are born.

ENCOURAGEMENT FROM THE PAST.

These convictions constrain the Society to urge the necessity of a speedy and generous enlargement of its operations, and of importunate, unceasing prayer for that success, which the Spirit of God alone can give. And what animating hopes do his past blessings warrant us to cherish! How different our relations to this work from what they were when this Society began its existence! Then, the ground which was to form the chief scene of its endeavors, was almost wholly unexplored. Then, emigration had largely the start of missionary enterprise; and a dark, dense mass of population lay between us and the frontier, through which the influence of the ministry, the sanctuary and the school had yet to be diffused. Now, by help from on high, the Society has pushed through this mass, and has overtaken even the vanguard of emigration. On the extremes of our settlements, from Madawaska on the east, and the Lakes on the north—round about by Green Bay and the upper Wisconsin, the new Iowa Purchase, and the Missouri Territory, whence caravans depart for Mexico and the Oregon—and down to the western limits of Arkansas, the heralds of this Society have sounded the gospel trumpet. And is it for an institution that has accomplished so much, to pause now? After having received help from God to lay foundations at three thousand points, scattered over half a million of square miles—after having its infant arm clothed with a giant's strength, and the enterprises of its manhood crowned with constant success—is it for a Society with such an experience, to hesitate whether it shall rise in its efforts, as the duty assigned it enlarges in magnitude and import? This must not—cannot be. Our work is before us; we are shut up to it; we cannot escape it in safety if we would. If the American Church recoil from this, her heaven-appointed mission, it will as really be rebellion against Jehovah, and as justly incur his wrath, as when Israel, through cowardice and unbelief, shrank from the conquest of Canaan, and on its very borders, sighed for inglorious bondage in Egypt.

In view, then, of our high calling and privileges—in view of the cross on which our redemption was achieved—in view of the judgment, to which we are so near—let us awake, and put forth our utmost efforts, with the courage of men and the faith of Christians. And if the Lord delight in us, he will give us this good land ; and will say of it, as of Zion, " THIS IS MY REST FOREVER ; HERE WILL I DWELL, FOR I HAVE DESIRED IT. I WILL ABUNDANTLY BLESS HER PROVISION. I WILL SATISFY HER POOR WITH BREAD. I WILL ALSO CLOTHE HER PRIESTS WITH SALVATION ; AND HER SAINTS SHALL SHOUT ALOUD FOR JOY."

APPENDIX.

Addresses at the Eighteenth Anniversary.

Address of Rev. Theron Baldwin, of Illinois.

In support of a Resolution to adopt and publish the Reports of the Treasurer and Secretaries.

Mr. President,

Let a traveller for the first time strike upon the banks of the Nile, and he could not but be interested and delighted, as he saw it roll its noble flood down into the "Great Sea," even though ignorant of its periodical overflow. But suppose him to remain there through a course of seasons, and witness the dependence of Egypt for its prosperity upon the annual floods, and how would that interest be increased! Let him see the great Nilometer rising from its bed, and, at a particular season, anxious crowds thronging its banks or floating upon its surface, and watching the indications of that instrument, as if life or death hung upon the result—let him see fertility and plenty, and joy and life succeed the overflow, and sterility and famine, and despair, and death, the failure of that overflow—and he would almost cease to wonder that the ancient Egyptians should put the noble river on the list of their deities! But his curiosity would not cease with the simple knowledge of what the river did for Egypt. He would feel an irrepressible desire to throw himself upon its bosom and ascend, till in the far off mountains he had discovered its sources, and if possible, the causes of its annual rise. When he saw the burning desert stretching away on either hand, and the drifting sands contending for the empire of the narrow belt which it fertilized, the inquiry would break from his lips, "To what mysterious agency can these wonderful results be traced?" Thousands upon thousands of travellers have felt these emotions, and raised these inquiries while standing upon the banks of this ancient stream; and yet, to this day, a deep veil of mystery hangs over the Nile!

How striking the resemblance in many respects, between that river and the flood of blessings which a Society like this sends out upon the needy and the perishing! For a long course of years, it has been my privilege to watch the movements of this flood, as it has rolled into the wilderness, and to witness the blessed results consequent upon it in the moral deserts of the West! Some fifteen years since, myself and a fellow student, with your commissions in our pockets, threw ourselves upon the great current setting Westward. We were the pioneers of a little company formed within the walls of Yale College, for the promotion of education and missions in the State of Illinois. Much of my time since has been employed in the service of your Society. As your exploring agent, I have ascended, and re-ascended, and descended the Ohio and the Mississippi—crossed and recrossed the Wabash, the Illinois and the Missouri, and traversed forest and prairie to the Northern Lakes. I have had the privilege of preaching the Gospel in the log-cabin and the fort, around which, but a little before, were the terrors of Indian warfare—in the barn, the steam-mill, and the grove. One such grove, I remember, away out in the prairie, like an island in the ocean—where the scattered disciples from the region around about, long deprived of christian ordinances, were gathered. There they stood up under the canopy of Heaven, and renewed their covenant with God, and entered into covenant with each other, and then sat down to the table of the Lord, spread under the forest oak, and wept tears of joy as they partook the memorials of a Savior's dying love! But this is not a solitary instance. Your agents and missionaries are planting these precious vines all over the Western wilderness. It has been my privilege to see churches and school-houses, and seminaries, and colleges rise, where, but yesterday, dominion was held by the savage—where the wolf still lingered, and where civilization and wildness were so commingled, that his howlings sometimes penetrated even classic walls, and mingled, too, with the voice of the preacher, as he told the story of the cross, in some of your "Doric temples" of the West. I have seen churches and missionaries, few and far between, increase in number to hundreds; and ecclesiastical organizations covering a cluster of states, contracted to a single state, and then divided and subdivided—and all this through the instrumentality of this Society.

But sir, the missionary work in the West is not all light and joy. Your pioneers, at least, in this work, are exposed to the burning sun, the driving storm, the piercing blast. They have to penetrate unbroken forests, plunge into swollen streams, traverse inundated bottoms, and breathe the deadly miasma. Sometimes, too, they make their bed at night in the deep gloom of the forest; or, bewildered in the driving snows of the prairie, like the lamented Brich, sit down and die, and become the food of wolves! Or, like the devoted Sabbath school missionary, Hawley, benumbed by the blasts of winter, sink into a watery grave. Oh! that dark forest, where we took him from his watery bed; that turbid river where he lay, that grave which we dug upon its banks; and the prayer that we offered, and the emotions that we felt, as we committed his remains to their mother earth!

The fever, too, often lays your missionaries low, among strangers or in their own rude dwellings; or their families are prostrated by sickness, caused by exposures incident to their work. The world may be ignorant of their case. For obvious reasons, they cannot, like the missionary among the heathen, spread out their true condition in all its details, that it may pass under the eye of the churches, and awaken universal sympathy, and call forth earnest prayer in their behalf. If such details are spread out at all, upon the pages of the Home Missionary, perhaps it is without a name, or date, or locality. There is no obvious point, where christian sympathy can centre; and in this very indefiniteness, it is in a great measure dissipated. Hence, as a general fact, the missionary must either suffer in silence, or pour his tale of sorrow upon the ear of private friendship. Oh, sir, the West is full of these unwritten, or rather unpublished tales! The unbidden tear has been silently wiped away, the bleeding heart has poured forth its bitterness in secret places, and the agonizing prayer died upon the passing breeze, and all have vanished!

I would not, however, cast a sombre aspect over the work of missions in the West. With all its trials, it is a glorious work; and the true missionary will count all these things but trifles, if he may preach Christ crucified amid those moral wastes.

But I must not wander farther along this blessed stream which you are sending into the wilderness; though after all I have said, of darkness and of trial, I love to linger there. It rises in the memory like enchantment, and awakens an interest immeasurably higher than that experienced by the traveller upon the banks of the Nile. And I have one source of enjoyment, too, absolutely denied to him—that is, of ascending the stream to its far off sources. This I have done, in days gone by, even to the remotest hills and vales of New England. I have looked on the gushing fountains which mingle their currents, that they may flow down into this great reservoir, and then go out to the extremities of our land. Trace this stream to its sources, did I say? No sir, not real sources. These are not earthly; they lie up amid the light unapproachable; they are to be sought for no where beneath the throne of God!

Your Annual Report, sir, I regard as the Nilometer, which marks the height of the flood; and that height, as indicated here to-night, gives promise of a most bountiful harvest. And we have infinitely higher reason to rejoice than the Egyptians, when they saw the sacred river spread out its waters on either hand, and inundate belt after belt, and terrace after terrace. You will, therefore, indulge me, while I point out a few of the characteristics of this blessed flood.

First, it is an annual flood; not rushing and innundating every thing this year and gone the next. Even through the dark period of our pecuniary history as a nation, and when most other channels of benevolence had well-nigh dried up, its annual tide of blessings spread itself over the West. For a season, it is true, it flowed with a diminished volume; but still it regularly flowed. And if we remember those who stand by us in seasons of darkness and trial, it is no wonder that this Society is cherished with a warm affection.

If we were to gauge that flood, and consider every missionary as one degree on the Nilometer, we should have the following result, viz:—first year, i. e. 1827, 169; second, 201; third, 304; fourth, 392; fifth, 463; sixth, 509; seventh, 606; eighth, 676; ninth, 719; tenth, 738; eleventh, (1837) 786. The flood then fell, in the twelfth year, to 684; in the thirteenth, to 665; then rose again, in the fourteenth, to 680; in the fifteenth, to 690; in the sixteenth, 791, (surpassing any previous year); in the seventeenth, to 848; and now, in the eighteenth, it stands at 907!

If we apply our gauge to the receipts of the Society, we shall arrive at similar results. From $18,000, they rise, in regular gradation through a succession of years, till in the tenth year, 1836, exclusive of a legacy of $10,000, they amount to $91,000. Then they sink, till in 1840, they fall to $78,000. Then rise again to $85,000; $92,000; $99,000; and now stand at $101,904 99.

These results show the steadiness with which the Society has pursued its appropriate work—the confidence reposed by the churches in its management—their deep interest in the objects which it has in view—and, above all, the constant smiles of Heaven. While the earthly sources of this blessed stream lie in christian hearts, those hearts are watered by the showers of grace, and those showers descend from the never-failing source of love, upon our guilty and lost race!

Second.—It is a wisely directed flood. It could hardly be expected that the keenest vigilance on the part of the conductors of this Society, could prevent all possible irregularities in the movements of so vast a flood. It does not flow (let it be remembered) in channels rigid and changeless, cut out by the hand of ecclesiastical despotism. It is every where pervaded by the elements of christian freedom, and yet it has ever moved with a well-directed and concentrated power. The comparative uselessness of mere diffusion, without regard to system, and the importance of concentrated and well-directed effort, will become more and more apparent, as the great West goes on in its expansion. It is already like a world, and can easily swallow up vast resources, while we hardly know where they have fallen.

Let any one denomination, then, or cluster of denominations, form schemes of evangelization, which embrace the West in its totality, and they must inevitably fail. We cannot save the entire West, if we would; and may I not say, that we would not if we could. There ought to be no such monopoly in this blessed work—there is none. Your missionaries are only a part of the band of laborers who are toiling in that vast vineyard. There are powerful christian denominations at work there, and some of them throw themselves upon the foremost wave of emigration as it rolls into the wilderness. The Society has a wise reference to this state of things. Its policy is to push its influences cautiously onward—to maintain the ground once occupied—to watch over the seed sown, till the harvest comes, and—whenever the work of cultivation can go on without its aid—to enter new fields. Here is wisdom.

3. It is a fertilizing flood. Every church to which it gives existence is an oasis in the desert—small in its beginning, but containing within itself the elements of expansion—continually enlarging its boundaries, and trenching upon the moral wastes. Could the map of our country be spread out, and every such oasis created by this Society be displayed, it would form a glorious landscape. Three thousand already created, and more than twelve hundred of these now under cultivation! The fertility produced by this blessed flood, is not like that of Egypt. Its productions are not “leeks and onions,” but the plants of righteousness which “bring forth fruit unto eternal life.” And each plant is immeasurably more precious than all the treasures of that ancient land.

What is the testimony of the Report to which we have just listened? The number of ministers employed during the year, 907; congregations and missionary districts aided, 1245; and scattered over 26 States and Territories, besides Canada and Texas; members of Bible classes and Sabbath-schools, 60,000; additions to the churches on profession of faith, 4,800; by letter, 2,581; in all, 7,693. And it should be remembered that these are mere summary statements. Let this summary be analyzed, and its details written out, and your office, Sir, filled to its utmost capacity, would scarcely contain the volumes that would be written.

But, notwithstanding the greatness of these movements, and the glory of these results, the volume of this flood must be vastly increased before you can do your proper share in the great work of recovering the Western desert. While these little oases are extending themselves, and that in a way which must rejoice every christian heart, it is also true that the Great Desert itself is enlarging its vast boundaries with an interesting but fearful rapidity.

The population of the Valley, which, in 1790, was 108,000, has since regularly doubled once in ten years, and now amounts to eight or ten millions. In 1790, three thousand emigrants had crossed the western boundaries of New York, and in the lapse of fifty years, the population of Ohio rushed up to 1,500,000. In the year 1800, some 5,000 emigrants had crossed the western limits of Ohio; and in 1840, Indiana numbered but little less than 700,000. Onward the tide rolled still, and Illinois, within the lapse of thirty years, increased from 12,000 to 476,000. The tide at last reached the Father of Waters, and was soon beyond, rolling westward, and Iowa is just about to be admitted into the sisterhood of States. And onward it will roll still, over the great American desert, and find its check only at the margin of the Pacific!

I say then, Sir, adopt this Report. Your last Report I did not hear, but I read it under peculiar circumstances. While performing a brief agency for your Society, it was put into my hands by a missionary brother in Illinois, as I left his dwelling. The road struck out into a large prairie. I gave my horse a loose rein, and commenced reading, and had nearly finished when I reached the opposite side. I found the facts, and principles, and suggestions, and pleadings which it contained, of great intrinsic interest; but that interest was essentially increased by the circumstances in which I read. I was then on a missionary tour, in the service of the Society, going from church to church, that had been the recipients of its bounty; in the country, too, whose magnitude and interests, and perils, and wants were so eloquently described in the Report. And as I occasionally raised my eye, and looked abroad upon the vast expanse of soil already sprinkled over with farm-houses and cultivated fields, I was insensibly "rapt into future times," and the exclamation broke from my lips—"Oh! that the tens of thousands of Christians in the eastern churches, who pray for this Valley, and fill your treasury, could read your Seventeenth Report under similar circumstances!"

I say then, again, adopt this Report,; print it, and let it go through the forests and over the prairies, and up and down the rivers, and into the churches of the West, and throughout the East. Were the 900 laborers in your vast field all here to-night, they would say, with united voice, "adopt it!" The thousand churches aided, and those which have filled your treasury, would say, "adopt it." And Oh! if the blood-washed company already before the throne, and who were saved by your instrumentality, could speak—but I forbear.

Address of Rev. William H. Rogers.

Resolved, That the American Home Missionary Society is admirably adapted to meet the wants of the West.

It is a solemn thing to feel the pulsations of an assembly, whose heart is moved like this. I feel them in my own soul. And others shall feel them too. Recent discoveries in magnetism have revealed the fact, that there is a beautiful connection between all the phenomena of this mysterious agent, so that any variation at the capital of Russia, is attended with an immediate and corresponding variation at every observatory in Europe. There is a sympathy in nature and in grace. There is a sympathy in the influences which pervade us here this night, and our missionaries, too, at the West, and at the ends of the earth. Many a Christian, burdened in soul, is glad this night the world over; they may not know why. But we know the reason, and they shall know it when they shall learn the spirit and the purposes, breathed now within these walls.

What are the wants of the West? They are the same with our own. They are the wants of sinful men, requiring a Redeemer. The population of the Valley is mainly composed of an emigration which has carried westward a representation of every commonwealth at the East, each proceeding on its own parallel of latitude, with the peculiarities of its birth place; while the uniformity of the current has been broken by the ease of communication with every point of the great West. Men are there what they were here. New England is renewed in Ohio and Michigan; Virginia in Arkansas; at the same time that the North and the South are more blended together than at home. I can find no fitter emblem of western population than the Father of Rivers himself, stretching his thousand arms from the Alleghanies to the Rocky mountains, and rolling by bog, and bluff, and prairie, and bearing away the taint and coloring of each, with the rift of the forest, the wreck of the log cabin, or the raft, the carcasses of animals, and snags and sawyers, and all other unmentionable things commingled with his yellow waters, at the same time that there is science and religion floating above them all. Stand at the levee of any western port, and as the boat discharges its motley crowd of passengers, you may note the Dutchman, like a steamer, smoking as he goes; the Frenchman, in his wooden shoes; the Yankee, cyphering in his head; with the Hivite, the Perizzite, the Jebusite, who are all there to possess the land. At home, each moved in a fixed circle, whose habits, and thoughts, and principles were definitely determined. But here, separated from the past, they are thrown together, a heterogeneous mass of fragments. We know that rock is nothing but sand consolidated, and sand, rock disintegrated. At the East, Society is the rock; at the West, sand. What we want is, a pressure like the everlasting mountains, which shall consolidate the sand into rock again, and make it the foundation stones of a world. That power we can find, for the West or the East, no where else than in knowledge and religion. The hopes and happiness of a man in every relation of life, domestic, social, civil, and spiritual, all rest on these. There is none other security for our country, or for the soul, than the knowledge and the fear of God.

This Society has it in charge to send forth, and with discretion to sustain an educated ministry, and for this reason, I believe it most admirably adapted to meet the wants of the West. There is no agency less expensive. The average cost to the Society of a year of missionary labor, is $150, and when you remember that it is the labor of an educated man, and a minister of Christ, whose services are secured by this pittance, it is plain enough that no scheme yet devised can compare with it in efficiency at a moderate cost.

The ministry proceeding from this Society, is a permanent agency, and this is a matter of essential importance. They do not pass over the broad valley to turn the furrow where no one will plant the seed, to sow the seed where no one will gather the harvest, or to gather the harvest and let it rot in the garner. They are on the ground and they stay there. They become a part of the West. They mingle the knowledge and life of their own souls with the spirit and usages, and principles and institutions of the forming West, and give it a higher vitality. Much has been said of sending books to the West, and I have not an objection to so wise a course, but I had rather depend on the living preacher. Men will hear when they will not read. You may send out "Doddridge's Rise and Progress," but if I could, I should rather send out Doddridge himself. You may circulate "Baxter's Call," but I should prefer the old Puritan himself; or, if I cannot have him, his spirit in the living preacher.

And this is the object of this Society. It meets most admirably the wants of the West, by a living ministry, because, wherever the ministry is established, the church, the Sabbath-school, the day-school, and all the institutions which are indispensable to the welfare of a people, in time and eternity, follow of course. This Society, have chosen the ministry, because Christ has himself chosen it as his own divinely appointed means to the conversion of man. Any scheme which attempts to provide for the social and moral wants of man, without the ministry, and which would hamper or undervalue it, must come to nought. God is not with his church now in the form of miracles, or incarnate in his Son, to quell her foes and give her victory. The nearest approach to a Savior, present and visible, is in the ministry of his choice. "He that receiveth you receiveth me." Here is strength, here the right arm of God for the conversion of a world. And hence every people who have ever received the Gospel, have received it. Africa, Italy, Britain, the Scythian, the Hindoo, the Cingalee, all and each, in every generation, turned to God, have gotten the Gospel from a ministry divinely appointed and divinely blessed. Who planted and sustained the institutions of New England, and wrote upon her walls, salvation, and on her gates, praise, but the ministry of Christ. And how came it, when the fathers of the Revolution had accomplished the object of that struggle, and had wrested the sovereignty from England, in all this broad dominion, that they stopt short of monarchy and a crown? A diadem would have become the brow of Washington as well as that of men of loftier birth, why did they not give it him? They gave him their hearts, but they kept the crown themselves, and they have got it now—and why? Because they had been trained to freedom at the altar—because they had received from the ministry of Christ the principles of liberty, as a revelation from heaven; and because the first truths which the church taught them, was God's sovereignty in heaven, and man's equality on earth.

But, Sirs, so much is said about an apostolic succession in this day, that this Society must be sure that they send forth only ministers who are in the line of the succession. In New England, we point to a people industrious and thrifty, intelligent, lovers of order, and obedient to law; we point to the sterile soil, quickened to a generous harvest; to the returns of a shrewd commerce; to the blessings of the sea, gathered by line and net; to the winds of heaven, and the turbid river, made tributary to the wants of man; and as we look on the plenty, midst sterility, the thrift, and peace, and gladness of ten thousand hamlets on her hills and valleys, we point to the school and the church, and the ministry, giving life to both, which has made New England what she is. Here is the warrant of our apostleship. Here the voucher of our succession. Here is the sign manual of God himself to our ministry. It is written on the institutions, the character, the spirit of a nation. Ah, Mr. President, it is to send forth such a ministry as this, nay, the very children of that ministry, that this Society is organized. God grant them a like spirit and like success.

Address of Professor Stowe,

In support of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Valley of the Mississippi is a part of the territory, BETWEEN THE RIVER AND THE ENDS OF THE EARTH, (Ps. 72 : 8, Zech. 9 : 10,) which belongs to Jesus Christ, by express grant from Almighty God; and that Jesus Christ must have it.

There are many places at the West, which, to the eye of the Christian, look dark and forbidding, and as if it were impossible to subdue them to Christ; but I believe there is no place there which is not situated somewhere between the river and the ends of the Earth; and if so, there is no place there which does not belong to Christ, and Christ will surely have his own. Then why should we be discouraged in our labors?

I do not imagine or pretend that the Valley of the West is all the world, or that all the resources of the church ought to be employed there. I will content myself with saying that it is a very important part of the world, and one in which we have as deep an interest and as intense a responsibility as in any other that can be named. Of the extent of this territory, of its capabilities, of its increasing population, of its inevitable political influence, of the unspeakable interest of this its forming crisis, you have heard enough. You are all disposed to help the West, you are all anxious to save the West. You only wish to know how it can best be done, and you are ready to do it. Allow me, then, in few words, to give my views as to the best way of doing this great work.

1. It cannot be done by any one measure, by any hobby. We are a very hobbyhorses people. We seize upon an idea good in itself, and press it altogether beyond its capabilities—and because we find it cannot do what in its own nature it is incapable of doing, we then view it with disgust and anger, and abandon it altogether. Thus many a good idea for the help of the West has first been ridden to death, and then utterly abandoned. It did no good while it was in vogue because it was overloaded, and then it is abandoned, and never has opportunity for a trial of its real powers. Because an ox cannot hunt a deer as well as draw a plough, oxen are condemned as good for nothing. This hobby-riding is most ruinously wasteful.

2. It cannot be done by transient itineraries, of any kind. Itineraries are often necessary, but they can only begin a work, they can never complete it; and if there is not some one to take care of the matter after the itinerant leaves it, there is nothing gained. This was illustrated by an old missionary of Ohio, in a homely but striking manner. The agent, said he, comes along and piles up the green buck-eye logs, pours a basket of shavings on them, applies the torch, and goes away and tells how nicely he left them burning. But he is scarcely out of sight before the shavings are consumed, and the logs are just as they were before, only a little blackened. The next agent finds the same pile of logs, and he also brings his basket of shavings and sets them on fire, and reports that he found an organization all ready, and he set it well a going; but the shavings, even before he has made his report, are all burnt out, and the logs are yet no more on fire than when they were first piled up!

Now this is all true, as every man who has lived at the West knows. We need permanent laborers, we cannot live on mere itineraries.

3. It cannot be done by evanescent excitements, and occasional, spasmodic efforts. These always produce reaction, and are never to be resorted to except in a case of life and death, when the only alternative is to do it or perish; as one would sometimes administer brandy to a man dying from exhaustion. We are already suffering prodigiously from just such causes.

4. It cannot be done by any one denomination of Christians, and no one denomination ought to feel as if the whole responsibility rested on itself. Besides Presbyterians and Congregationalists, we have Methodists there, who outnumber us, two or three times told, and who have great zeal, activity and energy; and they have probably been quite as prosperous as is consistent with their own spiritual good; though, if in any thing they have wandered, I doubt not God will chastise them back again. There are the Orthodox Baptists, good, straightforward, evangelical preachers; there are Lutherans worthy of the name; and Episcopalians who believe the 39 articles, and practice accordingly. I know there none of that mongrel brood denominated Puseyites. There is no occasion for such a sect there. All that kind of element goes directly into the lap of old Mother, who is there so well dressed and fashionable a dame, that men take off their hats to her as they pass her in the streets. Let each evangelical denomination do its own part of this great work. Ours, I have no doubt, will do it the best of any, because we are nearest right—at least I think so, for if I did not regard our denomination as the best and the nearest right, I should certainly leave it, and join the one which is nearer right than ours, if they would receive me.

5. It cannot be done by combined efforts which overlook denominational distinctions. To a certain extent these can go, especially in the beginnings; but they stop short of the ultimate result. Every man thinks his own denomination the best, and therefore feels bound to labor especially for that. If there be one or two sects more liberal than the rest, who act with the others on this principle, they will be like a free trade nation in the midst of others with protective tariffs—the better material will be all used up to increase the quantity without much bettering the quality of the poorer. It is true that Christianity at first was but one denomination, but it is by no means certain that, all things considered, it would be better to have it so now. Once, the whole human race was one family, now it is divided into several—and this is no evil while the race is so numerous, provided the families do not pirate on each other. Formerly every clan plundered its neighbor, but advancing civilization has remedied this evil, and now each family promotes its own particular good, and that in the way best calculated to advance the general good. So it is in sects, only sects are not yet quite civilized. They must be taught to live together as friendly, not as hostile families; and it is vain to attempt to amalgamate them by any ecclesiastical Fourierism—at least for the present. Like every other community of civilized families, each must seek its own interests, thereby promoting the interests of the whole. No family can work for all others except itself without losing its daily bread. We must take care of our own interests, and in doing this with a right spirit we but take care of the general interests of Christianity; especially if we have the best form of Christianity, as we certainly think we have in the churches embraced in the American Home Missionary Society. Here is the true Puritan element, and let every effort be made to diffuse it through the land—we are not different denominations, but only local varieties of the same denomination, and we work together as one.

Some who see that the times are out of joint, suppose that the true remedy for all exciting evils is to combine the best elements of all the different sects into one new compound. Even if it were possible to get the best, and the best only, I am not so sure that the compound would be so very excellent; for, many things which are good by themselves, work badly when mixed. I once attended the lectures of that patriarch of medical science, Dr. Nathan Smith; and he used to tell of a physician, somewhere in Vermont, who was very saving in his habits, and he kept a bottle for odds and ends, and whenever he had a little calomel or a little rhubarb, or a pill or two, or a few drops of laudanum, or whatever remnant was not sufficient of itself for a dose, he put it all together in that bottle; and whenever he had a case that he did not know what to do with, he shook up his bottle and gave a dose of the mixture. He thought it a pity if some of the stuff would not hit somewhere. Just so, in my opinion, it will be with these amalgamation churches, which some regard as the sovereign remedy for the evils of our times; with this difference, however, that the materials generally ferment, and burst the bottles before the patient gets a single dose. We want no such practice for the West.

6. What, then, is the way to save the West? It is by each evangelical denomination making permanent lodgements of the right kind, in the right places, and nurturing and sustaining them to a healthful growth. The first and most indispensable of these institutions, are those which this society proposes to establish, namely, the ministry and the church. Without these nothing can be done. The Lord Jesus himself established them, and they are the only ones which he did establish. It is sometimes said, we ought to make no comparison between the different kinds of benevolent effort; but, surely, we ought to make a distinction between the primary institutions established and made perpetual by the Head of the Church himself, and the auxiliary aids subsequently devised by the benevolence and wisdom of man. To insist on equality here, is akin to the feeling which places the prayer-book on an equality with the Bible. Who among us doubts the divine establishment of the church and the ministry? Who among us pretends to a jus divinum for any other institution? And shall we place our own inventions, however excellent, on an equality with the ordinances of God? Will God permanently bless any effort which puts his arrangements in the shade, for the sake of placing in the foreground others which are of human origin? The permanent church and the ordained ministry, then, first of all and most of all, out of respect to our Lord Jesus Christ, if for no other reason, we must seek to establish, at every accessible point throughout the West. This is essential to every thing else; and without this, whatever else you may give us, we are lost, lost beyond the reach of recovery. You cannot feel this so intensely here as we do at the West; for here the church and the ministry have for a long time been permanently established, and you daily receive the blessings, without being always aware of the source from which they come. But at the West, all is new and nothing settled, and the rarity of the blessing gives us an appreciation of its value. Even where the wall of Zion is built, the cement is not yet hardened, and the driving rain may sweep it all away again. The church and the ministry are imperiously needed to gather up and retain the fruits of all other efforts; and without them it is, at the very best, but ploughing and planting without ever fencing or harvesting, and what good would that do? For the eleven years I have been in Ohio, I have labored very earnestly in the cause of common school instruction, a cause immensely popular there, and which, if any, it might seem, could be made to go without the help of religion; but my experience has taught me to despair of establishing, with any permanency, even a good district school where there is not a good church and an intelligent ministry to watch over and sustain it. If even a district school cannot be made permanently useful without the ministry to aid it; how absolutely chimerical must be every scheme for "evangelising the West," which does not look to the ministry, which has the Word of God for its foundation, and which uses the Word of God for its weapon, as the chief instrument in the accomplishment of the work! You may make the experiment if you choose, but you will find it a most hazardous one; and while you are making it, the organized ministry of Rome will sweep the whole country and take possession of all the important points.

It is our bane and mischief to look always, and only, at immediate results, without reference to the future and permanent good. Our people want an immediate return, but all permanent good is of slow growth. One good settled pastor is of more importance to the moral interest of the West than a hundred revivals produced by transient evangelists, with none to nurture and mature the fruits. The buckeye grows very fast, and when used for timber, it is very soft and quickly rotten ; the oak is growing for centuries and when you frame it into your house, centuries do not injure it. The West particularly needs strength and permanency to its institutions, and it is the very last place on earth where it is safe to try temporary and time-saving expedients. You can very soon build a steamboat of shingles, nailed together with carpet-tacks, with an invalid tea-kettle for a boiler, and engine to correspond ; but if with such a boat you embark on the Mississippi, your voyage will be short and your profits small. We have had too many such boats already. We must build with more solid material if it does take a little longer ; and as good old John Eliot used to say, we must learn to stay a little that we may speed the faster.

Our Puritan fathers never acted in a hurry, nor with a view to temporary good. They acted on broad, general principles ; they laid their foundations deep and strong ; they waited patiently for the fruits, and the fruits came ; and when they did come they were worth the having. So must we do, if we would make any real progress, or even retain the characteristic excellencies of the Puritan race. This is the policy of our opponents, the Romanists, and it is a wise policy, and they pursue it with an energy and a perseverance, which, if they only had the truth on their side, would make them irresistible.

The men that are needed there, are not men who do things with a flash, and then leave all darker than before ; but men who can look far ahead, men who can form and carry out large views ; men who, for Christ's sake, are willing to labor amid obscurity, and hardships, and privation, when they know all the while that they would at any moment better their worldly lot by quitting the field. When I was a boy, and lived in Massachusetts, Caleb Strong was the Federal candidate for Governor, and his party were accustomed to placard on the walls and posts in every direction, "A long pull, a STRONG pull, and a pull altogether." Now this is just what we want for the West : A long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether—and it is only such men as are capable of helping at such a pull, that we can make good use of in the great Valley. An old campaigner, who served in the peninsular war, told me that in one battle, when they were about to engage in one of those terrible bayonettings so common in those engagements, eager as gray-hounds for the conflict, and tremulous with excitement, Sir Arthur Wellesley (now Duke of Wellington,) rode slowly along, in front of their ranks, as straight and as dry as a broomstick, and called out in his peculiarly determined and apathetic tones : "Steady, boys, steady." He would not suffer them to engage while under such excitement, he would not allow them to move a step till they were sufficiently cool to do their work in a workmanlike style ; and this, his uniform policy, was one great secret of his uniform success. And when I see our spiritual soldiers all flaming with enthusiasm, and thinking to gain the battle by one fierce onslaught, I wish we had some spiritual Wellington to call out with equal authority, "Steady boys, steady."

We have thousands of places already at the West, where, if a good missionary could be stationed two or three years, and supported, he would easily gather around him a church able to sustain itself ; and I know no kind of religious expenditure capable of yielding so large an interest on the investment. One of our oldest and best ministers tells me there are five hundred such places within the bounds of the single synod of Cincinnati, and the number throughout the country is every year increasing. Who will help us to go up and possess the land ? But some say : "Why does not the West maintain its own missions ? There is wealth enough there, and abundant resources." So, in China, there is wealth enough and abundant resources—and why do not the Chinese sustain their own missions ? Whatever may be the wealth of the West, I know there is comparatively little of it in our churches ; that nine tenths of our churches are obliged to apply for aid to the Home Missionary Society, and that they really need all the aid they get. There is some mistake about the wealth of the West. It is true, the soil is rich and the resources abundant; but except in the great thoroughfares, which are very few compared with the extent of the country, there is very little money; all manufactured articles are very dear, and it is almost impossible to turn produce to any advantage. Many a wealthy farmer in the interior finds it extremely difficult to realize money enough to pay his taxes and clothe his family. Make the calculation. A pair of shoes costs a dollar and a half; and to pay for them he must carry corn over muddy roads twenty or twenty-five miles, and sell it for eight cents a bushel. One pair of shoes, then, costs a hard day's work for himself and two horses, and eighteen or twenty bushels of corn besides. Supposing a man has eight or ten children, after clothing them all, at that rate, and paying his taxes, how much money will he have left to pay his minister's salary, or help clothe his minister's children? Corn, wheat, pork, wood, he has in abundance, and of these he freely gives; but cloth, leather, books, medicines, money, he has none to spare, and these must be had from abroad. You must help us a little longer, and then we will pay you for it by helping our neighbors who will spring up still further in the West; just as the European churches helped you in your infancy, and now you are paying them by helping us at the West.

God, I believe, has in store good things for the West, if our faith and patience fail not. For three years past, we have had constantly at the Seminary between sixty and seventy theological students, most of them sons of the West, and of the right kind for the missionary work in that region. The venerable Dr. Beecher now devotes his whole time to the Seminary. God has blessed his preaching there the past winter with the outpouring of His Holy Spirit; the hearts of the young men have been greatly revived; and they will go out among the churches, this vacation, with a revival spirit. Nor do we confine our views to our own field, important and needy as it is. Already we have sent missionaries to Siam, to the Nestorians of Persia, to Palestine, to Africa, to the Western Indians, to Oregon, to the Sandwich Islands, and there are others now in the Seminary panting for the foreign field. True, we are struggling with embarrassment and poverty, because God has not seen fit to entrust us with much money; but so long as He blesses us with all spiritual blessings in Christ Jesus, we can trust that our labor is not in vain in the Lord. Brethren, remember us; forget not the needy, and God will not forget you.

Address of Rev. Mr. Todd, of Pittsfield, Mass.

Resolved, That the work of the American Home Missionary Society is commended to the friends of man, as a powerful exhibition of the power of love over the human heart.

I am not too certain, Mr. President, that my eloquent brother, [Rev. Mr. Rogers] who has just resumed his seat, may not have conveyed to this audience an impression of the willingness of New England to aid in the work of saving the earth, beyond what we should all dare to claim. The fact is that many of us feel poor! There are not a few among us who would point you to our severe climate, our cold hills and our rocks bright with shining mica, and tell you that we are poor. We could tell you, too, how much we have done for the West—which is identified with this Society. We have given of our means freely. Our young men leave us and go off to the West. One of our poor farmers cultivates his little domain. He raises up a virtuous family. He has one or two daughters and four or five sons. Four of these sons out of the five, go from us. The fifth takes the farm, and engages to send four parts of it to the West after his brothers. By hard toiling and the utmost economy, he gets it paid for just before he dies, and then the process is gone over again and again, with every generation. So that we are contributing our money, but our choicest sons—and then our farms are scraped to follow them. Nor is this all. Our sons come back and carry off our daughters also—so that they not only take our farms, but come to our very gardens and transplant our roses to the West! So, many of us feel!

But we are not so impoverished yet that we can let go the cause of Home Missions. If our climate is cold, it enables us to raise beautiful harvests of ice, which we send the earth over. And if our hills be rocky, we can send you the granite pillars which adorn this and other cities. And if our sons go off, we have some daughters left, and we can yet braid the straw, and we can make clocks enough to measure time all over the earth, and our tin shops will show what is bright. With our own hands, in good old Massachusetts, we can, and do annually, manufacture what is worth one hundred millions of dollars. So we are not too poor to help you yet.

We are all aware that the term Home Missions means a very different thing in this country from what it does in any other in Christendom. In our mother country it may mean, to go and preach the Gospel to the illiterate in the large manufacturing towns, or to go down into the mines and preach it to those who live in the bowels of the earth—or go to those who live among the highlands and the deep glens of Scotland, or to the mountains of Wales—or, peradventure, to the moors of Ireland. But when you send out the missionary in this land, he knows that, whatever may be the political or the moral destiny of the nation, we are destined, and that very shortly, to have full a quarter of the inhabitants of the globe swarming here. It can be demonstrated, and it has been demonstrated—amazing as the result may seem to us, that full a quarter of the inhabitants of the earth are to have their character for eternity committed to us for forming. Is it any wonder that he who believes the Gospel to be the wisdom of God and the power of God unto salvation, should love the cause of Home Missions?

There is something, too, in the very spirit of this mode of doing good, which is most unaffectedly beautiful and most astonishingly powerful. I look on St. Paul as a model of a missionary. And if I were to give the key to his character in a word, I should say but little about his powerful mind, about his impetuosity and vehemence, united to a prudence the most consummate, and a perseverance the most untiring—but I should say it was a heart acting under the pressure of a Savior's love! So that, whether he stood among the marble porticos at Athens, or was in the dungeon with Silas, or was cheering the shipwrecked crew in the midnight storm, or standing before kings in chains, he had but one emotion—the love of Jesus Christ, or, as he calls it, “the great love wherewith he loved us.”

And the strength and the glory of every man whom we sent out in the name of this Society, sustained by the charity and the prayers of God's people, is the same thing that moved Paul. What made them, in olden times, take joyfully the spoiling of their goods, and rejoice to suffer reproach for the name of Jesus Christ? What makes our own sons and daughters take their lives in their hands, and go, and live, and die, among the low, the debased, and the polluted heathen? You have seen one of our own daughters lie down in the little mud hut, sixteen feet by eight, with a few sticks and leaves thrown over it for a roof, and there, on the earth, lying down to die, with no one to close her eyes but her solitary husband, and no one to follow her to the grave but this single mourner—and then sending word back to her mother, that she never regretted having left all for Christ! It is not for a name, or for riches, or honors, that they do so—but it is the same love that moved the missionary Paul.

The philosophy of all that we do through this Society is—that there is nothing so powerful upon the human heart, as such an exhibition of love as Jesus Christ made in redeeming this world by his blood.

Suppose I now come and tell you one of our every day stories in the history of this Society.

Far up the Missouri river, thousands of miles in the wilderness, there is a single log cabin built. The next year a second, and then the tide of emigration sets in fast. The mighty forest is cut down, and the rude habitations of men rise in its place. They are pioneer people—coming from all parts of the United States, and also from various countries in Europe. They are beyond the reach of society, and become a little community by themselves. Gathered from all parts of the world, they have their own prejudices, and notions, and habits. They are also very poor. Few of them own so much as a cow, and the land on which they have stopped is a part of the public domain. They have no schools for their children, and no means of instruction. The Sabbath sun sheds his beams over the forest—but they know the Sabbath only by name—not its use. For ten years they have thus lived between civilization and the savage state. Their number is gradually increasing—but there is no improvement in education or in morals. There is no elevation of character manifest. They are low in their taste, profane in language, and their sensibilities all seem blunted.

At length a stranger comes among them. They gather round him to ask who he is, and what he comes there for. He tells them that he is a minister of the Gospel, who has been sent by this Society to live with them. They now understand what this man professes to be. By the very term missionary, they understand him to profess—that he loves men—that the ruling motive of his heart and life is love to men. He professes to love to that degree, that you cannot insult him so that he will resent it; you cannot abuse him so that he will not pray for you. In a word, unquenchable, unconquerable love, is the ruling motive of his life. They understand that he professes to come not to seek for money. If he could acquire a fortune, by relinquishing his mission, he would not do it. Should great bargains tempt him, he will not meddle with them. If property changes hands, it will not fall into his hands. They understand him to profess not to have come to seek honors. Offices there will be to be filled, honors to be awarded, distinctions to be allowed, but none of these fall to him. Others will build up their families by wealth, by office, by honors; but his children must be the children of a poor man, and a man who lives and dies without honors. They know that he professes to come to live and die with them—for their good, and as their friend—the property of the poor man, as well as the rich. He has consecrated himself to the work of loving men—of loving them though they may be poor, and lonely, and ignorant, and unholy. Nothing this side of the grave can quench this love. Such are the professions which they understand this man to make.

Now then, what do they do? Give him their confidence at once? No. Withhold it all? No. But they put him on trial. They let him live among them. They let him go to work to do his errand—but they watch him very closely, to see if his life proves these professions to be sincere—to see if his life is a life moved by love. Gradually and slowly they are convinced that he is the man whom he professes to be—and at the end of about two years, they are convinced that it is so. Now what do these people do? Why, they give this man their confidence—entire and unshaken. He may come into their schools and instruct, or superintend the education of their children. He may gather them into the Sabbath-school, and put such books into their hands as he pleases. He is admitted into their houses at all times, and under all circumstances. He may gather the whole population together every week, and instruct them in religion, and in their duty to God and to man. They come to him for advice when they are in doubts. When in trouble and sorrow, they send for him to sympathize with them, to comfort and counsel them; and when they come to lie on the bed of death, they admit him when they will nobody else—they will open their hearts to him, confide the secrets of their lives to him, and place in him the highest confidence which one human being can place in another. And now that man comes to live in their confidence and love, and the poorest man loves him no less than the richest. You must recollect that the great majority of those who value the missionary's labors are poor in this world's goods. They have nothing of splendor to exalt them—nothing of brilliancy to which they can look forward. They are shut away from the noisy world by distance. Hence it is that the missionary is the all which the poor man can share equally with the rich. He loves to talk about his minister, to think of him, and he fills much of his thoughts: and where the man comes to have the love of Jesus shed abroad in his heart, he loves much. To give the Gospel to the rich is a precious boon; but when you give it to the poor man it is double charity; and the minister becomes the centre of all that is holy and pure in that man's thoughts. Said a man whose eyes God had opened—"When I felt my heart too full, and when the gushings of love were causing my eyes to weep, there stood up my minister before me—though I was hundreds of miles off—and the first prayer I ever offered was, God bless that man!" We have but faint ideas of the intense emotion which the poor may and often do have on the subject of religion, nor how full the heart may be of this subject, though empty of all other things. A poor Scotch girl went to her pastor's study to be examined for admission into the church of Christ. He put many questions to her in the kindest voice, relative to her hopes, her experience, and her knowledge of Jesus Christ. To all this she answered—not a word. Her lips moved, but she could say nothing. After trying every way to sooth her, he says to her, "Perhaps you will feel more composed after a little time, and then you can call again, and I will be most happy to see you." On rising to go, and reaching the door, she turned round, with the tears running down her cheeks, the face as pale as marble, and with a kind of convulsive scream, she forced her tongue to break silence, "Oh! Sir, I cannot speak for him, but I could die for him."

The minister of the Gospel wonders why it is that his sermon is so much more efficient at one time than another: may it not be because he has more love for his hearers at one time than another? He wonders why the same sermon does not weigh down as deeply upon an audience of strangers as upon his own flock—may it not be, because he cannot love any people as he does his own people! The Sabbath-school teacher wonders why one lesson takes so much deeper hold on his class than another: the reason is not so much in the lesson as in the pulsations of his own heart. The tract distributor wonders why the eloquent and the powerful tract left at the door, with a polite bow, does not affect men as if it were accompanied by the kind word spoken in meekness and love. A little more than a year since, and in the mercy of God there was a powerful revival of religion among the people of my charge. In the very midst of it there came snow-storm after snow-storm, till there was next to no passing. It seemed impossible for people to meet. In this state of things we thought we would try a substitute for preaching. So we sent by express to this city and procured three hundred copies of "Baxter's Call to the Unconverted." On the Sabbath, I gave notice from the pulpit, that on the two days following these little books would be left in three hundred families. I urged the heads of families to read them, and to see that all their family read them within the two coming weeks. I believe the request was faithfully complied with. The church prayed for a blessing on the work, and hoped and expected to see great results. I suppose that not less than from one thousand to fifteen hundred minds came in contact with that masterly work within the two weeks. And what were the results? The experiment was made under the most favorable auspices. And what were the results? Why, from that day to this, I have never heard of a soul that was either awakened or converted!

And yet my confidence, neither in that book, nor yet in the tract system, has been in the least shaken. But we made one great mistake, and I learned one important lesson. We ought to have gone from house to house and followed it up with personal conversation—with the tones of the voice which love only can send out. The book was eloquent, and terse, and powerful; but it was cold compared with the breath of love, as it comes warm upon men from the heart. And if you will notice in the wonderful reports of the effects of tract distribution in the city, and through the country—it is not the tract which does the good in most cases: the tract is the letter of introduction, by which the humble colporteur and distributor can come and manifest his love in the countenance illuminated, and the voice softened, and the eye melting with LOVE! Oh! if Christians and christian ministers do any good in the cause of their Master, they must be moved by love—a love that is as unquenchable as life. Such a question, as whether a man were his friend or his enemy—whether he caressed him or persecuted him, did not weigh with Paul a single moment. His love to men did not come and go with their feelings. He was a missionary, and it made no difference in his feelings whether the king mocked him as he stood before him in chains—whether the Jews lay in wait to assassinate him: he could not feel the insult of the one, and could wish himself accursed from Christ if the other might be saved.

Here I say is the philosophy, the strength, and the glory of the missionary whom we send, through this Society, to those scattered in the wilderness and among the mountains. How many hearts have been gladdened by this Society! Some, because through it they have received the precious gift which Christ left the world at his ascension; some because they have through it had the opportunity to impart their charities; and some, because through it they have been enabled to give themselves to this work of love. I have seen those who live far away in the wilderness. I know the poor man who broke his path through the deep snow, and was nine days and as many nights, sleeping under and in the snow, that he might get in some christian books which had been sent to his little settlement. "It was very cold," said he, "but my heart was so warm for joy I didn't mind it." And I have known the young missionary as he girded on his harness, to go to these scattered sheep, because he loved them. And where are our sisters in this work? I will tell you. On a late visit to our largest manufacturing town, I was told of the daughters of deceased clergymen—men of the first respectability—who are now operatives in the factories, toiling twelve or fourteen hours daily, with but fifteen minutes to sit down to dinner. Why do they do this? First, to help their widowed mothers, and next to educate their younger brothers—to send them to college—to fit them for usefulness—to be missionaries of the cross: and no higher reward would those noble minded daughters wish in this life, than to see their brothers fitted to become missionaries of this Society; and to know that they would go forth upon the mountains and in the wilderness; and that the wilderness and the solitary place should be glad for them.

Our Country.

TABLES AND ESTIMATES OF POPULATION.

The following articles are from different pens, and present the conclusions of men of dissimilar associations and pursuits, and not likely to derive their opinions from any common source. We record them as shedding light on our present duty to our country, and to serve as the means of future reference, when the lapse of years shall supply other facts with which to compare them.

How impressively do the conclusions involved in the following articles, teach us, that NOW IS THE TIME TO STAMP UPON OUR COUNTRY the image of a pure Christianity! How can any thinking man behold the haste with which our nation is rushing to her destiny, without having his soul stirred to its inmost depths, and without straining every nerve to direct her from the rocks on which she is in danger of being wrecked!

Growth of our population according to a fixed ratio.

[From the Cincinnati Chronicle.]

Many tabular views of the growth and ratios of the population of the United States, based on the successive censuses taken by the Government decennially, from 1790 to 1840 inclusive, have been made, and the Statistical Laws on this point fully established; but we have seen none going back beyond 1790. It is a curious fact, however, that the ratio of growth which now prevails in the United States, is the same which has prevailed for one hundred and fifty years, which shows that it is a fixed Natural Law of increase and will remain the same, while there are unoccupied lands, and no great epidemic pestilence.

In looking over some old annals, we are able to make up a census of the colonial population tolerably accurate, at three different periods. By applying the ratio which has prevailed since 1790, it will be seen that the actual results are very nearly what that ratio would give, if applied to the population a hundred years since.

In "Holmes' American Annals," the census for 1701, is given on the authority of De Humphreys, who was Secretary to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in foreign parts.

In 1732 the population of six colonies is given in Holmes, on the authority of various writers, and materials given for a tolerable estimate of the others.

In 1763, also, the entire population of New England is given, and the white population of the Southern States, with which, and other materials, the then number of inhabitants in the colonies is very nearly obtained. It stands thus:

	1701.	1732.	1763.
Massachusetts,	70,000	125,000	240,000
Virginia,	40,000	90,000	200,000
Connecticut,	30,000	50,000	145,000
New-York,	30,000	70,000	165,000
Maryland,	25,000	90,000	160,000
Pennsylvania,	20,000	32,000	280,000
New-Jersey,	15,000	47,269	60,000
Rhode Island,	10,000	17,935	35,939
New-Hampshire,	10,000	15,000	34,000
South Carolina,	7,000	40,000	130,000
North Carolina,	5,000	10,000	105,000
	262,000	587,204	1,554,939

In the above table it will be seen that Pennsylvania and South Carolina increased very rapidly from 1732 to 1763. The course of emigration shows how this happened. In 1737, a large body of Irish laborers and husbandmen, went to South Carolina, and settled on the Santee river. In 1753, sixteen hundred foreign Protestants settled in that State; at the same time large quantities of negro slaves were continually imported from Africa, and the West Indies.

Pennsylvania was settled later than the Northern Colonies; but, after it was established, had received great accessions by emigration. For example, in the year 1750, Pennsylvania received 4,317 Germans, and 1,000 English and Irish. During this period, also, the commerce of the Colonies very greatly increased. Since 1790, the regular growth of the United States has been just about $33\frac{1}{3}$ per cent. each ten years, a rate which doubles the population in 22 $\frac{2}{3}$ years.

The parallel between the Colonial and the National growth may be easily seen by taking the actual growth of the Colonies, and comparing it with that which the present ratio would give on the basis of the Colonial census, thus:

	Actual results.	Results by the ratio.
Population 1701,	262,000	262,000
" 1733,	587,202	621,036
" 1763,	1,554,939	1,521,066
" 1790,	3,929,326	3,372,562

The results are very nearly the same, except that the actual growth from 1763 to 1790 went much beyond the present ratio, and reached the enormous amount of 40 per cent. in 10 years. This is most probably the consequence of the very great emigration, and confidence produced by the establishment of American Independence.

The fact established in the successive censuses of the United States and the Colonies, during near 150 years, of a great nation growing at a fixed rate of 33 per cent. each 10 years, and doubling every 24 years, is one of the most remarkable facts recorded in the history of man. It shows us that number, and physical growth in all respects, is a fixed quantity.

But, what is our moral condition? Have we grown at the same rate in the cultivation of virtue, and that self-devotion, loyalty, and love of whatever is good and honorable? Alas! The same records make it certain that we have not. If we are not absolutely worse than our forefathers, it is certain that we have no higher ideas of goodness, of patriotism, of honor, or self-sacrifice than they had. To what end is this great nation tending? We confess it appears to us a fearful era in our national life.

Progress of the Great Valley.

A late number of Hunt's Merchants' Magazine, has an interesting article on the Internal Trade of this country, which contains some curious but ingenious calculations in regard to the future progress of the nation, in wealth and population. We give below the writer's estimate of the increase of population for the periods of 50 and 100 years. It will be seen that in the "Great Valley," he includes the whole region drained into the Gulf of Mexico and the St. Lawrence.

"In 1840, the United States had a population of 17,068,666. Allowing its future increase to be at the rate of $33\frac{1}{3}$ per cent. for each succeeding period of ten years, we shall number, in 1940, 303,101,641. Past experience warrants us to expect this great increase. In 1790, our number was 3,927,827. Supposing it to have increased each decade, in the ratio of $33\frac{1}{3}$ per cent. it would, in 1840, have amounted to 16,560,256; being more than half a million less than our actual number, as shown by the census. With 300,000,000 we should have less than 150 to the square mile for our whole territory, and but 220 to the square mile for our organized states and territories. England has 300 to the square mile. It does not, then, seem probable that our progressive increase will be materially checked within the one hundred years under consideration. At the end of that period Canada will probably number at least 20,000,000. If we suppose the portion of our country, east and south of the Appalachian chain of mountains, known as the Atlantic slope, to possess at that time 40,000,000, or near five times its present number, there will be left 260,000,000 for the great central region between the Appalachian and Rocky mountains, and between the Gulf of Mexico and Canada, and for the country west of the Rocky mountains. Allowing the Oregon territory 10,000,000, there will be left 250,000,000, for that portion of the American states lying in the basins of the Mobile, Mississippi, and St. Lawrence. If to these, we add 20,000,000 for Canada, we have 270,000,000 as the probable number that will inhabit the North American valley at the end of the one hundred years, commencing in 1840. If we suppose one-third, or 90,000,000 of this number to reside in the country as cultivators and artisans, there will be 180,000,000 left for the towns—enough to people 360, each containing half a million. This does not seem so incredible as that the valley of the Nile, scarcely 12 miles broad, should have once, as historians tell us, contained 20,000 cities.

"But, lest one hundred years seem too long to be relied on, in a calculation having so many elements, let us see how matters will stand fifty years from 1840. The ratio of increase we have adopted, cannot be objected to as extravagant for this period. In 1890, according to that ratio, our number will be 72,000,000. Of these, 22,000,000 will be a fair allowance for the Atlantic slope. Of the remaining 50,000,000, 2,000,000 may reside west of the Rocky mountains, leaving 48,000,000 for the great valley within the states. If to these we add 5,000,000 as the population of Canada, we have an aggregate of 53,000,000, for the North American valley.

Ratio of increase.

To indulge in doubtful speculations with respect to the future is an idle and unprofitable employment. But where the events that lie in the future may be certainly known by means of calculations based upon accurately ascertained data, they ought to exert upon our minds all the influence of present realities. Now, the rate of increase of our population is not a matter of uncertain conjecture, but of accurate and long-continued observation.

The following table exhibits the rate for every ten years since 1790.

" 1800 " 1810	36.45 "
" 1810 " 1820	33.35 "
" 1820 " 1830	32.26 "
" 1830 " 1840	32.66 "

As the native population goes on increasing, the relative increase from immigration must be diminished, even though the absolute number of immigrants should be greatly increased. From this source a gradual diminution of the total rate of increase will follow. But, as the addition to our population by immigration bears but a small proportion to the whole increase, this diminution cannot be considerable. Nor can any diminution of the rate of increase of our native population be expected, so long as vast tracts of new land remain, as now, to be occupied. When the whole territory of the United States shall have become settled, then the uniform experience of other nations shows that the rate of increase must be checked. But, for a very long period of time yet to come, it cannot be expected to fall as low as twenty-five per cent. for every ten years.

What an amazing prospect, then, does the future present! According to the present rate of increase, the number of souls in the United States doubles in a little less than twenty-five years. The estimated population for the year 1850 is 22,577,000. If we suppose that, for the half century following, the population of the United States shall double once in 25 years, (and in all human probability it cannot fall much short of this) then it will amount in the year 1900, to more than 90 millions of souls.

But here will not be the limit of this overwhelming wave of population. It will still roll onward, pouring forth its myriads on every side, until it is reckoned by hundreds of millions. It will not stop until it has filled up all the immense basins of the Mississippi and the St. Lawrence; has flowed over the Rocky Mountains, and lined the shores of the Pacific with populous cities and villages.

There is another mode of estimating the future population of the United States, which conducts us, with equal certainty, to results no less astounding. Rejecting the belt of barren land, about 300 miles broad, which lies east of the Rocky Mountains, the territory claimed by the United States may be stated in round numbers at 2,000,000 of square miles. The population of the state of Massachusetts amounted in 1840 to 93.36 to every square mile. If we suppose this whole territory to be populated with equal density, the sum will be 196,720,000. But the state of Massachusetts has by no means attained to the highest limit of population that can be supported with comfort; and besides, a large portion of the soil of the United States is of a better quality than that of Massachusetts. Its average excellence is fully equal to that of France. According to Balbi, the population of France is 208 to every square mile. This will give 416,000,000 as the amount of inhabitants which the soil of the United States is capable of supporting with comfort. It is believed that this estimate falls far short of the actual capacities of our soil under the most improved mode of culture. But it is not the object of the present discourse to show what is possible with respect to the future population of our country, but what is certain. It is as certain as any event lying in the future that is known by the power of human reason, that the limit of 400,000,000, at least, will be reached in this country. [Prof. Barrows.]

THE PROVIDENCES OF GOD, AS INDICATING THE USE HE INTENDS TO MAKE OF THIS COUNTRY.

Preparation of the soil and the seed.

When we look at the wonderful providence of God towards this nation, and consider what elements of power it has combined and accumulated, and is still combining and accumulating in it, we cannot but think, he has some great design to accomplish for his church through its instrumentality. He built these Islands of the blest—this more than golden Atlantis of ancient story and song, and reserved it for thousands of years, or rather, for thousands of years was fitting it up, to be the abode of his chosen people. Meanwhile he was preparing the people themselves, with no less care and pains-taking, to perform their part on so grand a theatre of action. He taught them to endure hardship, to brave danger, to value freedom, to love their women and children, to delight in the simple pleasures of home and fireside, by the discipline of centuries amid the "wilderness" of Germany. He brought them off from the Continent, to save them from absorption in the great monarchies of the middle ages, and gave them the British Isles, at once to reward and to cherish their enterprising, aspiring spirit. There he disciplined them again by the wars of the Saxon Heptarchy, and melted them down into a homogeneous mass in the crucible of the Norman Conquest, and purged them still further from the dross of aristocracy in the wars of the "roses," and finally purified them of the last ingredient of servility and superstition by the ever glorious Reformation, and brought them out seven times refined—the true Nobility of England and the world—English Yeomen and English Puritans. The English nation was born of the best blood in all Europe—the Anglo Saxon; and the best seed in old England was sifted out by persecution and sown in the Western wilderness. The first settlers of our country were the most active, adventurous, independent, and unconquerable spirits in the Old World; and all the circumstances of their location and history in the New World, conspired to foster those lofty traits of character. They left behind them the shackles of prescription—for Providence did not suffer them to remain, till they had bowed to wear and hug the fetters of the English Church and State. They brought with them no guide but the Scriptures of unerring truth. They found nothing here to hamper their free spirits. And they established institutions as new, as the world on which they had set foot—as fresh and free, as the atmosphere they breathed—as vast and comprehensive, as the continent which was open to their enterprise.

HOME MISSIONS.

Results and encouragements.

Already the results of Home Missions are of inestimable value, for transcending the expectation of the earlier friends of the cause. Great success attends the recent missionary efforts in that region. The Spirit of the Lord is moving on the face of that great deep, and a new creation is begun. On the other hand, also, he is moving on the hearts of the ministry, awakening unusual solicitude for the West. A missionary spirit—a spirit of enterprise and self denial—a willingness to encounter privation and toil, is poured upon our young men, in the Theological Seminaries, and they come in unprecedented numbers, and with a noble devotedness, and solicit the privilege of going forth in the van of Immanuel's army. And never before, we are persuaded, was there so much prayer for our country. The public attention is aroused to her prospects; and the East as well as the West, expects this Society to arise and meet the emergency, by sending forth these willing, waiting servants of Christ, to the field to which their Master calls them.

Favorable crisis.

In the work of evangelizing our western settlements in particular—and this is now the great work of American Home Missions—unquestionably there are more facilities and fewer obstacles at the present moment than will ever again be found. "Five or six good, active, holy ministers of the Gospel," writes an intelligent pastor in Missouri, "will do more now, to secure this State, in all its opening wealth and influence, to the cause of enlightened, liberal Christianity, than fifty can do some ten years hence." Similar testimony is constantly coming from other parts of the field.

Comparative inaction.

And how has this exigency been met? It is a humiliating fact, that in disseminating the elements of truth and righteousness over this land, we are every year outdone by those who are scattering abroad the seeds of error and delusion. Not only was the enemy allowed to sow tares while we slept, but even when both have been in the field together, the tares have been cast abroad with a more bountiful hand than "the good seed of the kingdom."

Catholic expenditures in the U. S.

By a comparison of the doings of the two Societies for the year embraced in their last published Reports, it appears that the "Society for the Propagation of the (Catholic) Faith" expended on the field of our home missions, $45,000 more than the American Home Missionary Society expended! Yes, while we, and the many thousands associated with us in the effort, were affording $92,000 to maintain the faith that made our fathers free—to rekindle the torch of truth in temples where its light has gone out, and to shed its radiance over millions of our countrymen who sit in darkness, a foreign Roman Catholic association were disbursing over the same field $133,170 to destroy that faith—to extinguish that light. Why has this been? Is there—or was there ever one assignable reason for the extraordinary zeal of European Catholics in this matter, which does not address itself to us with ten fold greater force?

Importunate appeal for laborers.

Let not the friends of Home Missions grow weary of this cry for ministers. The time, we fear, is far distant, when it can be suffered to die away. The very loudness of the call for laborers, is a proof that those who have already gone, have not gone in vain. Before missionaries penetrated the West, there was no such cry. The East knew not the condition of the new settlements, and consequently, no deep anxiety on their behalf agitated the public mind. But now, just enough has been done to show how much more is required; enough to prove that the West can be pervaded with the Gospel, and brought under its power. Let the success of the last twelve years—the churches planted, the souls gathered, the impulse given to education—be regarded as the pledge of what may be done, if Christians, and especially the ministry, will but listen to the voice of God's providence and Spirit, and "go in and possess the land."

Ministers called for.

The various fields around are sending for help constantly. "Do come and stay one Sabbath with us if no more," is their constant cry. I am pressed with labors at home and abroad. May the Lord enable you soon to send us some help!

Ministers for the West.

My mind may be different from many others; but I have reasons why I prefer, that at least a large proportion who are sent to the West, should be young men recently from the seminaries. One is, their own health and that of their families. It is a much easier thing for a young man, with a small family, to get acclimated, than for an elderly man with a large family. Too much should not, however, be made of this, for it is a much easier thing to become acclimated now, than it was some years ago; as the country is more under cultivation, and the management of prevailing diseases here is so much better understood. Another reason is, that it is more difficult for an elderly minister to leave eastern habits and adopt western, than for a young one. The success of a minister here depends very much on his being able to adapt himself to the state of his people. In our older and abler congregations, a man of eastern customs and habits will succeed. But of these there are comparatively few, and they are generally supplied. Your missionaries go mainly to a different class of people. Generally, they must collect their congregations, and hold them together. This cannot be done without some good degree of adaptation to the state of their minds. Now, a young man, recently from the seminary may fail the first year, and perhaps the second, and be compelled to change his congregation, and yet by the third or fourth year succeed admirably. But these three or four years use up an older man. Generally, a young man will learn this adaptedness quicker than an older one. He comes here, perhaps, with little experience, but is determined, by the help of God, to do good—he lays himself out—he studies the people—he is in school, at once—he has a disciplined mind, and makes rapid improvement. That will be the man to make the kingdom of darkness at the West tremble.

Gratitude for the existence of the A. H. M. S.

What could we do in the West without this noble institution? Were it not for this Society, who would gather these scattered sheep into the fold of Christ? Who would plant seminaries? Who would found churches, and who point these wandering souls to "the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world?" It is my sincere belief, that we could better dispense with the operations of every other benevolent institution than this, it is absolutely essential to our spiritual existence; and I desire to commend it to the patronage and prayers of all who have compassion upon the multitudes scattered abroad over these vast plains, as sheep having no shepherd.

A word for the settlers.

Last winter was a very severe one for new settlers. They have their lands to clear and fence, and their houses, &c., to build, yet they need the Gospel, and feel that they must have it; but they are not able to sustain it. It does seem to me, that if our eastern brethren could just spend a year or two in this country, and realize its destitution, and witness the sacrifices that are often made to sustain the Gospel, or to get to the place of meeting on the Sabbath, there would be a deeper interest manifested in behalf of this western wilderness—or rather, this western garden.

Why aid is needful.

The wants of a new country, settled by persons of different religious opinions, or of no established opinions whatever, are not, I fear, duly appreciated by our more favored brethren at the East. The scarcity of money, and the necessity of supporting their families by industry and toil, in a region where every thing is new, imposes upon the people a heavy burden. The last winter was severe and expensive. The present wheat crop is good; but the prospect now is, that the price of wheat will be so very low, that those who have some to part with, will realize but little from it.

Refining influence of the Gospel.

I have been interested to remark the reform which has been silently effected in the manners of the people. Formerly, no regard was paid by the inhabitants in general to public worship, and almost as little to what would elsewhere be considered good breeding. When I commenced my labors, there was much disorder in the public assembly, such as whispering and smiling; and not unfrequently, when persons came into our meeting, they stood about the stove with their hats on; and when they walked through the house, or closed the door, it was with no little noise and consequent disturbance. But I am happy to say, that these defects have given place to perfect order and propriety of deportment. Members of different denominations, also, who had “slumbered and slept,” have become wakeful and devout. Family duties, public worship, and the Sabbath-school have become their delight. Infidelity, which, before the stated means of grace were used here, was rife, is now on the wane; and instead of prompting to the disturbance of public worship, (as it actually did in several instances,) retires from the face of truth, abashed, though not reformed. The young, who were so giddy and volatile, now seemed inclined to reflect; and a few have expressed a hope of salvation. Temperance, which was far in the back-ground, commands a respectful hearing, and finds a few volunteers to abstain from all that intoxicates.

An interesting Bible class.

At F., my Bible class has become as interesting as any one I have ever known. Until within the last few months, it has consisted only of the young ladies in the Female Seminary, but it is now attended by persons of both sexes and of various ages. Ministers, matrons, lawyers, doctors, merchants, mechanics, farmers and students, now attend as members of the class. Several come a distance of from three to six miles, and a very deep interest is felt by them all. My hopes are greatly raised in regard to the usefulness of this Bible class. Indeed, my prospects of usefulness, if I do not misjudge, are becoming much more encouraging, and my field of labor is continually enlarging.

The people wish the Gospel.

I will mention a circumstance illustrating the tenacity with which impenitent men often cling to the religious habits in which they have been educated. Most persons know that in this country families often reside fifteen or twenty miles from any minister of the Gospel. Of course, they often bury their dead without improving the occasion by any religious exercises. The Gospel minister, whose services in the house of mourning are so eagerly sought and so highly valued, cannot be obtained. As a substitute for religious services at the burial, the family go into mourning, and wait until the minister comes, and then request him to improve the occasion. Thus a funeral sermon is often preached three, six, or even twelve months after the death occurs. On a bitter cold day, last winter, I was passing through a small settlement on the banks of the Mississippi—I was informed that a child was shortly to be buried about half a mile distant. I rode to the house, not knowing but a door of usefulness might be opened; and arrived a few moments before the child was to be carried out. It was an irreligious family, with which I was entirely unacquainted. But I was no sooner introduced, than it was inquired if I could remain long enough to preach a sermon. Of course, I rejoiced in the opportunity. It was then inquired whether I could wait an hour while notice was sent to the neighbors. I consented. Immediately one messenger was despatched in one direction, and another in another, and in less than an hour, the house was crowded with an intelligent and attentive audience.

Roman Catholic schools and Protestant children.

I ought to mention that the Roman Catholics are untiring in their efforts to secure this ground. One chief instrumentality relied on, is schools. They have now about fifty scholars here, and among them many Protestant children. A prominent lady of my congregation, informed me a few days since, that the Bishop had been personally to see her, and engaged her daughters to attend a school which is to be opened on the 18th of June, under the care of some "Sisters of Charity," whom, he said, he was intending to bring on from Philadelphia. Their plan is to have good schools, with low terms, and thus draw in Protestant scholars. Besides their fine cathedral, they have here a very large brick building, and another smaller one for schools and other purposes. There are two public lectures preached during the week in their church, at this time, on the Catholic doctrines.

A Good investment.

There is now in this vicinity, (in Illinois) a church which once depended on missionary aid for sustaining the means of grace, which is now large and strong, and which not only sustains its own minister, but is sending out streams of good far and wide—and whose minister once stood the only watchman of Zion in our connection, in a region of one hundred miles in diameter, who has exerted an untold influence in advancing the cause of Christ. Every dollar then contributed in aid of that church was worth thousands in the end, to the cause of benevolence. It was investing money where it would produce a revenue of good a thousand fold, in stocks that will never fail, and never cease to be productive.

Instability.

The features of our little communities vary essentially, according to the mould of influence into which they are cast. The prevailing tendency in this region is, however, as I humbly conceive, latitudinarian. Too much indifference exists to ecclesiastical order, as well as evangelical doctrine; and the scarcity of sound religious teachers induces a disposition to encourage those who propagate error. Excitement appears to be the great thing of religion, and he that has the most of the one possesses the largest share of the other. This disease infects not only those denominations whose general usages favor it, but it is a general malady of all denominations—a spiritual epidemic. My whole course has been directed to the removal and curing of this fitful epidemic. Indirect efforts have appeared to me the only means that promise any considerable or lasting success.

The successful operation of Bible class instruction, and such other means as bring Bible truths extensively to bear upon the conscience, are those upon which the more intelligent part of the christian community rely, as those that will render more solid the piety of the church. There are those who thirst for, and labor to effect this desirable reform.

"Brethren, withhold not your aid—withhold not your prayers!"

I have said, once and again, that this is a hard field. We have just had a most solemn illustration of the pitiable condition of many families in the surrounding community—families who stand entirely aloof from the sanctuary, and lightly esteem the holy Sabbath. The father and husband in one of these families was found, a few days since, on his hands and knees, with his neck lying across a bag, the ends of which were fastened to a pole over his head, and quite dead; but with his hat on and not the least appearance of struggling. Hence, as the sons have frequently wished him dead, and as there was little if any more cordiality between the husband and the wife, the neighbors were in doubt, whether the death was the result of suicide or parricide. Had I not voluntarily attended the meeting of neighbors to inter the dead, no religious exercise would probably have been called for by the family. O let brethren from the East see, from this and similar instances, how people would live and die here, if the withholding of foreign aid should call away the missionaries from these dark fields!

Log Church.

The PLAN OF A LOG CHURCH, is intended to illustrate the identity of a simple log structure, with the perfect Doric Grecian Temple. It will be seen that a log cabin may be a classical structure, and therefore that it is not necessarily, ungenteel. Indeed, "all the early ornaments of Doric architecture are but actual needful parts of the log structure, and evince its origin from the woods. The Doric circuit of columns, are nothing but the cabin's upright frame work of logs—the frieze, its necessary plate, binding them together—the cornice, its projecting roof covering—the 'tryglyphs' in the frieze, the ends of timbers morticed into the plate—and the 'mutules' in the cornice, simply the ends of the projecting rafters that go to form the construction of the roof. We can readily conceive that a structure of this kind, if executed according to the accompanying plan, with such mechanical skill as may be found in almost every settlement, will be not merely adequate to the purposes for which it is intended, but likewise be truly ornamental. How often do gentlemen of taste and fortune construct rustic cottages and other buildings, in which the rudeness of the most primitive log-house is laboriously imitated, at no small expense; and where the surrounding scenery is of a rural character, the effect is always pleasing. If, therefore, we endure, and even approve, the affectation of rusticity in cultivated grounds, why should not such an edifice be regarded as tasteful and becoming, even for the worship of God, amid the green prairies and the majestic forests of the West? At any rate, when a congregation is able, by the labor and gifts of its own members, to put up such a building as is here suggested, ought they not to do it, and to be contented with their accommodations, until they are able to build more expensively, rather than to appeal to the charity of other churches for aid?

Log meeting-house.

A week or two after I arrived, several of the members of the church in P., met with their axes on their shoulders, and in an hour they decided where they would have a house of worship. They went right to work, "for they had a mind to work," and on the third day they raised a house of logs, 32 feet by 26. This is small, but large enough for the present. Between that time and harvest, they made the shingles, and then immediately after harvest, they put them on, and had the house ready to be occupied at our protracted meeting. We had very good congregations for this country. Our little church was nearly filled every day, and on the Sabbath could not accommodate near all.

NINETEENTH ANNIVERSARY.

The AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY held its Nineteenth Anniversary in the Broadway Tabernacle, New York, on Wednesday evening, May 7th, 1845. HENRY DWIGHT, Esq., President of the Society, took the chair, and the meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. NATHAN S. S. BEMAN, D. D., of Troy, N. Y.

The Treasurer's Report was read by Mr. JASPER CORNING, Treasurer of the Society.

An Abstract of the Annual Report of the Executive Committee was presented by Rev. MILTON BADGER, D. D., one of the Secretaries.

The following resolutions were adopted.

1. On motion of Rev. JOSEPH S. CLARK, of Boston, seconded by Rev. L. P. HICKOK, D. D., of Auburn Theological Seminary ;

Resolved, That the Reports now read, be adopted and published under the direction of the Executive Committee.

2. On motion of Rev. JOSEPH P. THOMPSON, of New York, seconded by Rev. N. S. S. BEMAN, D. D., of Troy, N. Y. ;

Resolved, That the influence which the Protestant missionary exerts for the proper organization, regulation, and general welfare of society at the West, entitles him to the confidence and support, not only of the Christian, but also of the Patriot.

These resolutions were sustained by eloquent addresses from Rev. Messrs. CLARK and THOMPSON, and Drs. BEMAN and LYMAN BEECHER, setting forth the necessities of the Home Missionary field, the appropriateness of the instrumentality employed by the Society, and the good already accomplished by its labors.

The exercises were agreeably diversified by the execution of appropriate music by the Choir of the Tabernacle, under the conduct of Mr. GEO. ANDREWS.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. HENRY WILKES, of Montreal; after which the Society proceeded to elect officers for the ensuing year.

NINETEENTH REPORT.

IN presenting to the Society and the christian public, their NINETEENTH REPORT, the Executive Committee are deeply impressed by the consideration, that it is but a small part of the results of their operations, that lies within the present comprehension of human powers. Some of the immediate effects of their labors, which come under the observation of men, they have embodied in the annual narrative now submitted. But they remember, that another report of their transactions has already been written in heaven—an unerring and imperishable record of motives as well as of deeds, of omissions as well as actual results, of prayers and alms, of tears and toils for the cause of Christ, that none but God has seen; and trains of influence set in motion, whose working and effects, throughout all future time, He alone can estimate.

The year now closed has not been without its embarrassments and trials. A Vice-President of the Society, Hon. ROGER MINOT SHERMAN, LL. D., one of its earliest, most intelligent and efficient supporters, has passed away from the sphere which he so much dignified and adorned. Several of the missionaries have also been called to render their account and receive their reward. But, viewed as a whole, both in comparison with the past and with reference to prospects for the future, the history of the year is well suited to awaken gratitude and hope. He who is Head over all things to the Church, has continued to use this Institution as an agent in building her waste places, has given it the confidence and favor of his people, and opened wide and effectual doors of usefulness, into which we may enter with the strongest assurances of success. In the name of our God, then, let us set up our banner, and confiding in his guidance and support, hope for greater things and attempt greater things, during the coming year, for the promotion of his kingdom and glory.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

NUMBER OF MISSIONARIES, THEIR DISTRIBUTION AND THE AGGREGATE OF THEIR LABORS.

In the foregoing enumeration, are embraced the following results of the year.

The number of ministers of the Gospel, in the service of the Society since the last anniversary, has been 943.

Of these, 734 were in commission at the date of the last report ; and 209 have been since appointed.

The whole amount of labor performed within the year, is equal to 736 years.

The missionaries have been distributed in 23 states and territories of the Union, and in Canada and Texas ; viz :—In Maine, 82 ; New Hampshire, 45 ; Vermont, 39 ; Massachusetts, 66 ; Rhode Island, 7 ; Connecticut, 46 ; New York, 188 ; New Jersey, 10 ; Pennsylvania, 51 ; Maryland, 1 ; Virginia, 1 ; Kentucky, 7 ; Tennessee, 3 ; Alabama, 2 ; Ohio, 99 ; Indiana, 46 ; Illinois, 95 ; Michigan, 65 ; Missouri, 20 ; Wisconsin, 34 ; Iowa, 28 ; Arkansas, 1 ; District of Columbia, 1 ; Canada, 6 ; Texas, 1.

The number of congregations and missionary districts to which the Gospel has been ministered, for the whole or a part of the year, is 1,285.

ENLARGEMENT DURING THE YEAR.

All the former history of the Society is but a record of the gracious dealings of God, in giving it increasing favor with the churches, and a gradual and steady advance in the work accomplished from year to year. The same general features have characterized the twelve months now under review. The number of missionaries employed is greater by 36, than at the date of the last report, and the number of congregations assisted is greater by 40, and the years of labor performed, by 71.

The endeavor of the Society to evolve the resources of the feeble churches at the East, and thus to allow the aid afforded to them, to be transferred to the more needy settlements of the West, has been continued with success. In the state of New York alone, the missionaries appointed are fewer by 13 than in the previous year ; while the additional laborers commissioned for the Western States, have been 36—exactly equal to the total increase on the whole field ; and deducting the loss by death and other changes, the net increase in that portion of the country is 33.

TESTIMONY IN BEHALF OF THE MISSIONARIES.

Such is the interest, with which the christian public regard the recent multiplication of laborers in that portion of the land, towards which all eyes are directed, and for the moral sway of which so many influences are contending, that it is proper here to advert to the manner, in which these messengers of the churches are fulfilling their important trust. The Committee have the satisfaction to express their belief, derived from various sources of information, that for abundance of labor and cheerful endurance of personal privation ; for singleness of aim, and conscientious devotion to their appropriate work ; for soundness in the faith, and firm adherence to the great principles that are imbedded in the best institutions of the East, our Western missionaries, as a class, are meeting the just expectations of their patrons and of the churches ; that they are exerting an influence of incalculable benefit to the social and civil, as well as to the religious interests of the communities where they dwell. In doing this, they are moved chiefly, if not wholly, by philanthropic considerations ; since, after all that can at present be done for them, by the people among whom they labor, and by the Missionary Society, their work must still abound in sacrifices and discouragements, with small prospect of emolument or ease. Let not those who hope to see the future temple of God arise in the West, in millennial beauty and glory, withhold their prayers and their substantial sympathy from the laborers who have gone forth amid the hills and vallies, to quarry and rough-hew the rocks, that are to lie deep in its foundations, to the end of time.

Nor ought less regard to be extended to another class of missionaries, the obscurity and difficulty of whose position withdraws them from the public eye, and thus too much deprives them of the sympathy of their brethren. We allude to those whose lot is cast amid the waste places in the older states—regions possessing no temporal attractions, and which are subjected to a constant drain of the better part of their population. In such districts, little physical or moral improvement can be expected ; and to labor faithfully in such places, merely to keep the feeble churches from extinction, without the stimulus of visible progress, requires a high degree of christian principle. The soldier of the cross must needs be loyal and brave, to maintain his post, while aware, that after many a hard fought contest, he will have little to show besides his poverty and his scars.

SABBATH SCHOOLS.

Apart from the effects of sickness in portions of the West, which interrupted for a season the operations of Sabbath schools and

Bible classes, these forms of christian instruction have been prosecuted with some advantages over former years. The system is becoming more familiar to the public mind, and prejudices are wearing away, and better plans of organization and helps for teachers are introduced. The number of pupils instructed during the year, is not far from 60,000.

The Executive Committee are happy to renew their acknowledgments, for the liberality of the "American Sunday School Union" and the "Massachusetts Sabbath School Society," in furnishing libraries to the missionary churches, in many cases gratuitously, and in others on easy conditions. These supplies have the effect not only to increase the attachment of the pupils to the schools, but also to propitiate the feelings of parents towards them. This indirect influence of good libraries is becoming, more and more, an important element in the account of Sabbath school usefulness.

CIRCULATION OF TRACTS AND RELIGIOUS VOLUMES.

The diffusion of evangelical publications, in the more distant and destitute portions of the country, is another form of pious effort, which admirably coincides with the aim and is suited to the circumstances of the Home Missionaries. Scattered very extensively throughout the land, traversing repeatedly their respective fields, and becoming familiar with the general and individual wants of the people, they are most advantageously situated to distribute religious publications with the best effect. So deeply impressed are the missionaries with the utility of this auxiliary to their labors, that they express the most earnest desires to avail themselves fully of its aid. To meet, in some measure, this demand, the "American Tract Society" has, for several years, made the liberal grant of 5,000 pages of tracts to each of the missionaries, to whom they can be readily transmitted, besides occasional donations of books. In this way, since April, 1844, there have been appropriated 1,164,700 pages of tracts, and about 1,000 evangelical volumes; and also 2,700 volumes to be disposed of by sale or gift, at the discretion of the missionaries. Should the friends of the Tract Society, place at its disposal the funds requisite to furnish all our western laborers with a sufficient supply of its larger publications, it might greatly increase their means of usefulness.

TEMPERANCE.

The impulse given to this reformation, three years since, it will be remembered, was as extraordinary in its degree as in its origin. In many sections, the promotion of the cause was taken out of the hands of the churches, by which it had previously been mainly carried on, and assumed the character of a popular movement, that felt not its need of the alliance of religion. As might have been expected by all, whose acquaintance with the human heart teaches them how little reliance can be placed in any moral enterprise, where the sanctions of the divine law are not paramount, it has become necessary, in many places, to commence this work anew. The last year, has therefore been one of earnest effort among the missionary churches, to revive the temperance cause with augmented intelligence and principle. In doing this, they have had to struggle against the counteracting influence of the numerous political gatherings of the past season. Nevertheless, not far from 107,000 persons are connected with temperance societies, in the communities where the missionaries are laboring.

ADDITIONS TO THE CHURCHES.

In common with other vineyards of our land, the missionary churches have had occasion to mourn the suspension of those heavenly dews, which make glad the garden of the Lord. For a large part of the year, a succession of events, absorbing the public attention and producing strong excitement, powerfully counteracted the labors of the missionary. First, were the long continued rains, that, early in the year, prevailed over a large portion of the North Western States, suspending the labors of the husbandman and causing the seed to perish in the earth. Then followed the devastating overflow of rivers, laying waste large tracts of country occupied by missionary congregations, and succeeded, still later in the season, by severe sickness. After these dispensations, came the excitement of the presidential election, which pervaded every portion of the field with unprecedented intensity. But since these causes have ceased to affect the churches, and as the year was drawing to a close, the hearts of the Committee have again been gladdened by evidence that the missionaries, who for months had been sowing in tears, were beginning to reap in joy. From 66 congregations assisted by the Society, information of more than usual religious interest has been received. If we may judge from the reports that have reached us of these visits of mercy, they have been unusually silent and solemn in their character, and marked chiefly by high religious enjoyment and fervent affection among the people of God, and the power with which eternal things have been borne in upon the consciences of the impenitent. The fruits of these seasons of refreshing, it is yet too soon to compute, as but a small portion of them have been enrolled among the visible followers of Christ; and, in a number of instances, the revivals alluded to are still in progress. During the year, there have been reported as added to the missionary churches, as near as can be ascertained, 2,386 on profession of their faith; and by letters from other churches, 2,543; making the total of additions, 4,929.

GENERAL USEFULNESS.

While the causes above adverted to, have tended to hinder the spiritual prosperity of the churches aided, it is nevertheless true, that in no previous year have equal advances been made in all that respects their external welfare. The policy of the Society requires the missionaries to aim, as far as possible, at permanent results; and for this end, to concentrate their labors on specific points, and bring the communities where they preach, under the steady and continuous effect of divine truth. The influence of this course is seen, in a visible improvement of the missionary congregations. Greater order and efficiency prevail in the management of their fiscal concerns. Less complaint is made, than formerly, of the failure of the people to fulfil their engagements for the support of the missionaries. Houses of worship have, in many instances, been erected or repaired. From almost every quarter of the field cultivated by this Society and its Auxiliaries, there is a general testimony to increased attendance on public worship. And as larger numbers are thus brought within the sound of the Gospel message than in former years, more seed has been sown, to spring up and yield future harvests to the praise of God. The immediate, collateral effects of this regard for the sanctuary, are seen in the diminution of profaneness and Sabbath-breaking, in a healthful progress of the temperance cause, and in the general improvement of the people in personal habits, and attention to the training and education of their families. For the progress thus made at hundreds of points, and for the preparation for substantial and permanent results to the church, and to our country at large, the Society has great occasion to bless the name of our God.

THE TREASURY.

The last annual report showed a balance in the Treasury, April 15, 1844, of $217 54. The receipts of the succeeding twelve months have been $121,946 28—making the resources of the year, $122,163 82.

The unpaid claims of missionaries for labor performed up to the last anniversary, amounted to $11,864 05. There have since become due $118,660 71—making the total liabilities of the year, $130,524 76.

Of this sum, $118,360 12 have been paid. There is still due to missionaries for labor performed, $12,164 64; to cancel which, and to fulfil pledges to the missionaries for the coming year, amounting in all, to $51,040, there is a balance in the Treasury of $3,803 70.

At the last anniversary it was stated by the Executive Committee, that in obedience to what they regarded as the obvious indication of Providence, a larger number of missionaries, than in any previous year, had been commissioned for the new states; and that to meet this additional responsibility, and to sustain the operations of the Society at the point which they had then reached, an increase of more than twelve thousand dollars in the receipts of the year would be indispensable; while another increase of a much larger amount, would be equally indispensable, if the Society should make any such further advances as the necessities of the country and the duty of the church required. The Committee record, with fervent gratitude to Him, whose is the silver and the gold and who hath the hearts of all men in his hand, that he hath disposed his people so to respond to this appeal, that the Treasury has received during the last twelve months, an increase of $20,041 29—being $13,804 60 in donations from the living, and $6,236 69 from bequests of the dead, more than the corresponding items in the previous year. This addition of nearly one-fifth to the means at their disposal, has therefore supplied the Committee with the $12,000 required to continue the missions of the Society, on the same scale as reported last year; and has also furnished $8,000, towards enlarging its operations to a limited extent. This enlargement, as appears from what has already been stated, has been principally made in that portion of the country, which christian philanthropy at present regards with special solicitude.

Faithfulness to the cause requires the Committee to state, that the smallness of the surplus above mentioned, is the only reason why a greater extension of the Society's work has not been undertaken during the year. There has been no diminution in the urgency of the demand, nor any special lack of enterprise in the sons of the church. On the contrary, the openings for missionary labor have been multiplied beyond all precedent, by the simultaneous settlement of immense tracts of the Western country. For example, the occupation of Wisconsin and Iowa, alone, by a population of 175,000, diffused in six years over 72,600 square miles, has produced the most urgent demand for religious teachers, to be sent at once in all directions, to break, in these scattered hamlets, the bread of eternal life. The same necessity exists in other portions of the Mississippi Valley. And every successful attempt to establish the Gospel in a central point, results invariably in creating other points of interest around it, demanding a like supply; so that what is already done, produces, as one of its happiest effects, the necessity of doing more. Meanwhile, all experience demonstrates the desirableness of occupying these positions, at the very moment of their formation, and the impolicy of lingering till every evil has fixed its impress upon them, and they acquire a rigidity of character, which it will take a generation to remould. Nor is this all; the old world is pouring into our open bosom, some of its most baneful social elements. The emissaries of the Man of Sin are seen walking to and fro in the land, selecting their points, forestalling the possession of local advantages, and laying their trains for future operations, with fearful deliberateness and perseverance. Facts, like these, have urged the Committee to multiply their appointments. The missionaries have begged for helpers, to come and save the harvest from perishing ungathered around them. The destitute themselves have sent up the cry of distress. The christian press has borne its testimony to the importance of the ministry as the means, and of the present as the time to make full proof of its power. Patriots and statesmen, despairing of all merely political expedients, have avouched that the only hope of our country, is in the timely infusion of high moral principles into that part of the nation, which is soon to sway the rest. And while volunteers have stood ready to go forth to the thickening conflict—some in the ardor and buoyancy of youth, just girding on their armor, and some of riper years, whose weapons have been proved in many a well fought field—the Committee have been under the cruel necessity of sending out only the limited reinforcement already mentioned, instead of the hundreds so urgently required.

Such is a general view of the missionary work, as conducted by this Society, for the year past. Particular illustrations of its trials and successes, will now be given in connection with the following

PRINCIPAL AUXILIARIES, AGENCIES AND MISSIONARY FIELDS.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Institution was founded in 1807. From the beginning, its policy, like that of the American Home Missionary Society, has been, to place its missionaries, so far as could be done with a due reference to the fields around them, in particular stations, or at least in limited and definite fields. Of the two hundred and eleven churches in the state, at the last annual meeting, one hundred and seventy had been established, or at some time aided by the Missionary Society. And the same Institution presents almost the only available means, for supplying the Gospel to portions of the state that are still destitute. In pursuance of its obvious duty, the Society has the last year extended its operations, especially in the eastern part of the state, adjoining the long disputed boundary line. Since the apprehensions of war in that vicinity have been quieted, an unwonted tide of emigration has set in that direction, creating a pressing demand for the means of grace. "We have now," says the Secretary, Rev. ELIPHALET GILLET, D. D., "from the South Western to the extreme North Eastern settlements, a line of 350 miles, where there is, for the most part, a continuation of feeble churches and waste places ; and a range of similar extent stretching toward every point of the compass."

In occupying these wide fields, the Society has expended, since April 1st, 1844, $8,497 41, and has a balance in its treasury of $186 47 ; making a total of resources of $8,683 88—the largest amount at the disposal of the Society in any one year since 1839.. The number of ministers of the Gospel employed has been 82, several of whom are commissioned for whole counties ; and, in one instance, the field of a single laborer, embraces a region of eighty miles in extent.

Although this year has been distinguished for its spiritual drought, yet four or five different places are favored with revivals of religion, which, at the date of the Secretary's report, gave promise of great interest. "But, while the enlargement of the churches, by the conversion of sinners, has been less in proportion to the labor bestowed than in some former years, the period under review is regarded as marked with signal success, in the harmony which has prevailed, and in the laudable exertions of the destitute to co-operate, in securing for themselves the means of grace. Indeed, as to the outward economy of religion, no year has done more than the past for the promotion of the cause."

NEW HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The disbursements of this Auxiliary, since April 1st, 1844, for missionary labor within the state, have been $4,085 39. A remittance of $500 was also made by the Society to the National Institution, and proved a most timely assistance in a season of embarrassment. Various other collections for the A. H. M. S., amounting to $504 47, were received through the same channel ; making, with a small balance of $29 22 now on hand, an aggregate of $5,119 08, received by the state Society during the year. This sum exceeds the collections of the previous year, by $740 35. In addition to the foregoing items, there have been transmitted, by various contributors in New Hampshire directly to New York, $627 99 ; making the total of Home Missionary receipts from this state, during the year, $5,717 85. Of this $1,632 46 have gone to publish salvation amid the desolations of the West—a larger sum than has been designated to this object, from the same source, in any previous year.

The number of missionaries in commission has been 44 ; and they have labored in 47 churches and congregations. Although, in common with all other portions of the land, these fields have lacked the early and the latter rain, they have not been wholly given up to barrenness. "We rejoice," says the Secretary, "in being permitted to report, that the feeble churches in this state, are, for the most part, harmonious and prosperous. Though small and poor, and beset with many influences that are hostile to their existence and more or less disheartening, they yet make a gradual progress, and are of incalculable importance to the interests of religion in this state and country. They return into the treasury of the Lord, about 27 per cent. of the whole sum expended for their benefit. Aside from the loss of this income to the cause of christian benevolence, the decline and extinction of these churches, which would inevitably follow the abandonment of the Home Missionary work in New Hampshire, would in a great measure leave sixty-five towns and villages in the 'Granite State' a moral wilderness; and thousands of our population would live and die, with no better prospects for eternity than the worshippers of Baal."

The facts embraced in the last report of the Trustees of this Auxiliary, abundantly sustain the indispensableness of an Agent, in order to the best development of the charity of the churches, and its wise and efficient application to the relief of the destitute. By a comparison, extended through a period of twenty-three years, the following results are obtained. Before a permanent Agent was employed, the average annual receipts of the Society were only $2,055. Since the appointment of an Agent, the average has more than doubled, being $4,916. The donations from the state to the Parent Society, during the former half of this period, amounted to $339; but in the latter half, in which an Agent has been employed, they have risen to $8,473. Similar benefits are seen in the good accomplished. The labor performed in equal times has been more than doubled, and the cost of each year of labor so far reduced, that the whole amount annually saved is equal to the salary of the Agent. The number of feeble churches has also been reduced from 80 to 52; and thirty churches, which sixteen years ago were dependent on missionary aid, now sustain the Gospel at their own expense. Before the appointment of a permanent Agent, only two or three had risen to this degree of independence, during all the previous existence of the Society.

At the annual meeting in August last, Rev. BENJAMIN P. STONE resigned the office of Secretary and Agent of the Society, which he had filled for seven years with fidelity and skill. No successor having yet been obtained, Mr. Stone has continued to perform the duties of the office to the present time.

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The communication of the Secretary, Rev. I. R. WORCESTER, states, that the number of missionaries in connexion with this Society, the past year, has been 39. The receipts in the same period were $4,456 76, including $270 25, forwarded to the Parent Society for the promotion of its general objects. There were also received by the latter, from individuals and churches in the state, $1,032 50, including legacies to the amount of $700; making the total of Home Missionary collections for the year, $5,489 26.

For several years, the liabilities of this Auxiliary had exceeded its income, until decided measures became necessary to extricate it from embarrassment. At the last annual meeting, the Directors announced, that the debt had been so far cancelled, that the Society would commence a new year, in better circumstances than for several years preceding. But while this relief had come partly through the increased liberality of the churches, it was principally owing to a different cause. The Directors state, "We have paid our debt, by diminishing our appropriations; by withholding what was urgently needed by the feeble churches, and by greatly embarrassing the missionaries." This measure the conductors of the Institution could not avoid. The burden which had encumbered the Society they were bound to shake off, and they were allowed no alternative as to the means of its accomplishment. But it is most affecting that such a necessity should have been forced upon them, while half of the Congregational and Presbyterian churches in the state, stand in need of the aid that is thus withheld, to say nothing of the waste and unoccupied ground where efficient churches ought to be planted. Meanwhile "perhaps no state in the Union is doing more than Vermont, in proportion to her population, to mould the character of the newer states." She is annually giving to the West many men of enterprise and influence, and with them, she gives more or less of the moral tone which they have received under her training. How important, then, that her sons should be nurtured in such principles, as to render them a blessing instead of a curse to the communities into which they are cast! And may it not reasonably be asked, whether any object ought to take the precedence of the domestic wants of the state, in the regards of the churches, until those lamentable desolations are furnished with missionaries, and the society with the means of sustaining them?

MASSACHUSETTS HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The income of this Society, for the last twelve months, has amounted to $21,920 67. It has paid for missionary labor within the state and for incidental expenses, $9,730 22; and $12,454 58 have been remitted to the Parent Society. These sums, as compared with the corresponding items of the previous year, show an increase of receipts of $570 46; of expenditures $547 35; and of remittances to the A. H. M. S. of $749 88, above the preceding year. There have also been received by direct remittance to the Parent Society, $2,000 from the Hampshire Missionary Society; and $6,213 27 from various other societies, individuals and churches—making the aggregate from this state for the Home Missionary cause, $30,398 07. This is some $400 less than the aggregate of last year; but when it is stated that the receipts from legacies have been only $2,926 36, it will be seen that the contributions from the living have increased $3,035 08.

The number of missionaries laboring under commission from this Auxiliary has been 66. They have preached the Gospel to 2,376 families, embracing not less than 10,000 souls, of whom about 4,000 are connected with Sabbath schools and Bible classes. Nearly all the members of these families, who are old enough to understand the nature of the pledge, are committed to the temperance cause. A sum equal to 43 per cent. of all the aid granted to these missionary churches is, during the year, returned by them into the treasury of benevolence—amounting, since the last report, to $3,500. Most of the 165 places in Massachusetts, where the missionaries of this Society have been stationed since 1816, were, at that time, mere moral wastes, overgrown with the thorns and thistles of religious error; or new ground that had never been broken up—the neglected corners of the Lord's vineyard. "Such," says the last annual report, "was the soil. And what is now the aspect of these waste places? If we except eight or ten, where no distinct organization was ever attempted, living churches of Christ are there; the moral and religious influence of 13,890 church members is there, accumulating new strength by fresh accessions every year; while fountains of christian benevolence are flowing forth in all directions from these places, that were so recently like the 'valley of Baca.' During the last year, these churches and congregations contributed to the single object of Foreign Missions, $6,358. If we suppose, (which is probably within the truth,) that an equal sum was disbursed in other religious charities; the cause of christian benevolence realized $12,716, from those portions of Massachusetts, which have been redeemed by this Society from a state of moral desolation. Where is the bank that pays so large a per cent.? The principal that would have yielded this sum at lawful interest, is nearly equal to the whole amount of the Society's expenditure, on all its missionary fields, since the day of its organization."

But Massachusetts is only a small portion of the ground, on which the beneficence of this Society has been felt. The cordial co-operation of its Executive Committee and the prompt and generous aid of its treasury, in promoting our great national missionary enterprise, we have renewed occasion to acknowledge.

Since the last anniversary, the Secretary, Rev. JOSEPH S. CLARK, at the joint request of the Auxiliary and the Parent Society, has made an extensive tour in the Western States, the results of which are regarded as of essential advantage to the cause, in increasing the information and directing the liberality of the friends of Home Missions.

RHODE ISLAND HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Seven missionaries have labored within the limits of this state, under the direction of its Missionary Society, during more or less of the year past. The circumstances of the churches to which they preach have required a larger average appropriation, than is usual in the other Eastern states—making the sum necessary for the year, $1,650. Of this, there has been raised within the state, principally in the Evangelical Congregational churches in Providence, $650; and for the remainder, the Society is dependent on the continued kindness of the Connecticut Missionary Society, who have appropriated $1,000 for this object, $800 of which have already been paid. The churches above referred to, have also paid into the treasury of the Parent Society, $683 46.

The last report of the Executive Committee of this Auxiliary, drawn up by the Secretary, REV. T. T. WATERMAN, contains interesting notices of the progress made since 1804, when there were but two Congregational ministers in the whole state, where there are now sixteen churches, all of them interesting in location and hopeful in labors and influence, and fifteen Congregational ministers, twelve of whom are the pastors of the flocks over which they are placed. In concluding this review, the Committee say, "The Lord has hitherto visited and helped us. He has given us strength from within, and sent us efficient co-operation from without. To the churches whose beautiful and rich inheritance forms the western boundary of our state—that early home of Missionary effort—do we look with grateful feelings. To the Connecticut Missionary Society, we tender sincere acknowledgments, for the aid they have so cheerfully and continuously imparted to sustain our enterprise. Freely have they given, freely may they receive of the Lord."

CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The amount received by this Auxiliary during the year, has been $6,290 24. The expenditures have been $3,868 22, within the state, $800 paid to assist the feeble churches of Rhode Island, and a remittance of $2,000 to the Parent Society. Additional contributions have been received by the latter, from churches, individual donors and various associations, amounting to $10,316 90; and from legacies, $2,088 02—making the total realized from Connecticut for this cause, during the last year, $19,061 14; which is $2,569 23 more than the largest amount realized in any previous year.

This gratifying result—so worthy of the descendants of those who based all their hopes of civil prosperity, as well as of eternal happiness, on the Gospel of Christ—has been attained without any other agency than that of the pastors, and the liberal diffusion of missionary intelligence. This steady increase of liberality, towards the feeble churches at home and the destitute beyond the mountains, fully justifies the remark of the Directors, in their last report, that the growing interest in behalf of Home Missions in that community is "from no feverish excitement, on the re-action of which we may look for an empty treasury, but from an intelligent conviction that they are essential to the extension of pure Christianity, and that on this extension, rest the dearest hopes of our country. This conviction is fastening on our churches with the power of an elementary truth, and time will only add to its efficiency."

Forty-six missionaries have labored in connexion with the Society, during the whole or a part of the year. Appropriations were also made to sustain two missionaries under the more immediate direction of the Parent Society, out of the state.

From a review of the reports of these missionaries, the Secretary, Rev. HORACE HOOKER, derives evidence, that "the attendance on public and social worship has been good—better in most cases, than usual; truth seems to have been faithfully taught, and listened to with at least an ordinary degree of seriousness; Sabbath schools have been sustained with increasing interest in many congregations; the cause of temperance has, for the most part, not only held its ground, but made considerable advances; missions, both Foreign and Home, have maintained their place in the public estimation, and collections for them have been larger than in many former years; harmony of feeling among the members of these churches, with here and there an exception, has prevailed, and regard for religious institutions has been shown by liberal contributions for their support. But the influences of the Spirit have not been manifested in the conversion of sinners, and comparatively few additions have been made to the churches. Still, shall we say that such a year is barren of fruit? Another day may show, that our work of faith and labor of love have not been in vain, even as pertains to the turning of the disobedient to the truth. There is a process of preparation going on, during the dark and dreary hours of Winter, for the beauty and fragrance and variety of Spring. Indications like those just noticed, are suitable preparatives for a spiritual reviving, as they are not seldom its harbingers."

PHILADELPHIA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

From the statement of the Secretary of this Society, Rev. E. R. FAIRCHILD, we learn that the number of missionaries on its field is 63. They have extended their labors to 92 congregations. Three new churches have been organized; four houses of worship have been erected, and four others commenced. While the missionaries mourn the general suspension of the spiritual blessings granted in some former years, eight churches have enjoyed more than ordinary religious interest. The additions to the churches on profession have been 159, and by letter 91. In nearly all the communities reached by this Society, the house of God is becoming more frequented, and the Sabbath is more regarded. The instruction of the young in Sabbath schools and Bible classes is attended to at all the stations, and 3,528 pupils are reported. The public mind is more deeply impressed with the adaptation of Home Missions to the wants of the country, and the Society has consequently been enabled to carry the Gospel to 13 new places, and to commission 17 laborers who were not before in its service.

The receipts of the Society for the year just closed, were $7,793 63. It expended within its field $6,886 58, or $595 97 more than last year. In addition to these amounts, the generous sum of $1,000 has been paid to the Parent Society, to be expended in the valley of the West. For the same object, there have been received $2,481 29 from other sources within the field of this Society, of which $1,252 13 was in payment of legacies—making the total amount $10,367 87, which is more than has been received in any previous year.

The four states, which constitute the field of this Society's operations, contain an area of not less than 70,000 square miles, with a population of two and a half millions. Evangelical institutions have already done much in clothing it with verdure and beauty, and no inconsiderable portion of this is the result of missionary labor. But still there remaineth very much land to be possessed. It is estimated that more than 56,000 of the white population, scattered over this territory, and upwards of twenty years of age, are unable either to read or write. A corresponding deficiency of the means of grace will be readily inferred; for where does the prevalence of an intelligent Protestant ministry ever permit a degree of popular ignorance like this to remain? In Delaware, the proportion of Evangelical ministers to the entire population, is about one to 2,000. In Maryland, it is supposed that there is not a Presbyterian or Congregational minister in half of the counties of the State. In New-Jersey, are many destitute places. In Pennsylvania, a wide district, comprising the counties that lie along the northern and north-eastern boundary, with a population of from 45,000 to 50,000, (for the most part the descendants of the Puritans,) is a field for missionary effort, as destitute as can be found in almost any part of the Union. When we consider the immense mining, manufacturing and agricultural resources of this state, their rapid development, and the influx of population, which will probably raise the number of inhabitants to 2,300,000 in ten years, the importance of doing quickly whatever christian zeal can ever hope to do, is seen to be unspeakable. And every friend of Zion and of our country must cordially pray for success to the well directed endeavors of the Society, that has this portion of the missionary work in charge.

CENTRAL AGENCY, UTICA, N. Y.

Fifty-one missionaries have been in commission, a part or the whole of the year, within the bounds of this Agency. Fifty-eight congregations have received the benefit of their services; and the aggregate of labor performed is equal to 39 years. Five churches have taken themselves from the missionary list, and are now sustaining the institutions of the Gospel without assistance; 7 church edifices have been built or completed; 1 pastor has left his charge for a larger sphere of usefulness; and 5 have been inducted into the pastoral office.

In but two or three instances, has there been in these churches during the year, what may properly be called a revival of religion. In one congregation, however, more than 60, it is hoped, have been born again. While the absence of the special influences of the Spirit in so many of the churches, is ground for deep humiliation, there is cause for gratitude to God, that his favor has not been wholly withdrawn. There is pleasing evidence that there has been an increase of knowledge, that the faith of the saints has been confirmed, and institutions of the Gospel greatly strengthened.

The ordinary contributions to the cause of Home Missions from this field, during the year, have amounted to $4,959 02; exceeding the amount of the preceding year by $954 17. From a bequest of Deacon J. W. Brewster, late of Sacket's Harbor, deceased, the Society has also received the sum of $4,833 68—making the whole amount realized to the cause, $9,792 70. The expenditures of the Agency have been $4,319 31. There have been $5,473 39, therefore, gathered from within its limits, added to the general funds of the Society, to gladden the hearts of those more destitute in the new settlements of the West.

"If these churches," says the Secretary of the Agency, Rev. ABIJAH CRANE, "have furnished a less amount of funds in past years, than older and more favored ones, for the establishment of evangelical institutions in the distant parts of our country, they have made generous contributions of their sons and daughters—many thousands having gone out from our bounds, the last fifteen years, not a few of them imbued with the spirit of the Gospel, to live and labor and pray for the advancement of Zion, on the other side of the Alleghanies."

WESTERN AGENCY, GENEVA, N. Y.

The receipts from the field of this Agency during the year, have been $10,207 78; which is an increase of $2,767 80 over the receipts of the preceding year; and exceeds the amount appropriated within the Agency by $3,329 69.

Seventy-eight missionaries have labored during the year in 81 congregations, and 4 of them have been installed pastors of their respective charges. Nine houses of worship have been commenced or completed; 4 parsonages secured, and 3 churches have expressed their determination to be no longer recipients of missionary aid, but to return many fold for what they have received for the relief of others. Sixteen of the missionaries make mention of more than ordinary religious interest among their people during the year, and in a number of congregations, the preaching of the Gospel is, at present, accompanied with the demonstration of the Spirit.

"The year just closed," says the Secretary of the Agency, Rev.

JOHN A. MURRAY, "has been one of greater prosperity to the missionary churches than we had feared, from the general dearth of religious interest throughout the country. There has been a pleasing and encouraging advance in almost every one of them. They have enjoyed peace and harmony, have been edified by the regular administration of the word, and—walking in the fear of the Lord and in the comfort of the Holy Ghost—have been strengthened."

WESTERN RESERVE DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY, OHIO.

The Western Reserve was entered, forty years since, by the Connecticut Missionary Society, and became a prominent field of their well directed and successful operations. A very large proportion of the older and more able churches, were planted and nurtured by its care. To these early efforts, in connexion with the character of the people who here sought a home for themselves and their posterity, it is chiefly to be ascribed, that this section of the country now exhibits in her churches, in her educational advantages, in her social order, and in all her moral and religious influences, so much to gratify the pride of the patriot, and encourage the heart of the Christian.

The Domestic Missionary Society is now in the nineteenth year of its operations; and has been striving, for several years past, to assume the entire support of the laborers on its own field. The last year, it has had in its service 29 missionaries, the aggregate of whose labor is $21\frac{1}{2}$ years. These missionaries have been sustained from the resources of the Auxiliary, on an expenditure of \$2,114 52; and \$400 have been forwarded to the treasury of the Parent Society. The receipts of the Society, for the year ending April 1st, were \$2,217 36—exceeding those of the preceding year.

The last report of the Directors gives a gratifying account of the influence of the Gospel on their feeble churches, and encourages the hope that the hundred missionary fields within their own bounds will, ere long, be yielding the choice fruits of their generous culture, while their charities, in unstinted and increasing measure, go forth to bless the remotest sections of the country, and the ends of the world.

The Rev. MYRON TRACY, of Hudson, O., is the Secretary of this Society.

MARIETTA AGENCY, OHIO.

This Agency embraces 9 counties, in the vicinity of Marietta, viz.:—Washington, Munroe, Hocking, Morgan, Athens, Meigs, Gallia, Lawrence and Jackson. Their population is probably not less than 140,000. In these limits, there are but 20 Presbyterian and Congregational ministers devoted to the preaching of the Gospel. But a small proportion of the people have the opportunity of attending public worship. There are, here, regions of desolation and gloom, scarcely surpassed in any section of the country. The college at Marietta, however,—itself the fruit of missionary enterprise, and favored with frequent and gracious visitations of the Spirit, and the past year with one of most extraordinary interest—is pouring light in upon the darkness, and her sons are now taking their stations around her, preaching, with great acceptance and power, the Gospel of the kingdom.

Twelve missionaries have labored within the bounds of this Agency during the year; $269 95 have been received by the Treasurer of the Agency towards their support, and the balance requisite for sustaining them has been appropriated by the Society.

The whole region has been visited during the year, with such outpourings of the Spirit of God, as have blessed, within the same period, no other portion of the land, and such as are here wholly without a precedent. In some congregations, the work has been peculiarly “deep and powerful, subjecting the church to a most searching ordeal, dispelling delusions, testing deceivers and self-deceived, filling the impenitent with terror, and bringing the church and the world to the foot of the cross.”

“It would certainly be erroneous,” says the Secretary of the Agency, REV. PROFESSOR SMITH, “to single out any one instrumentality and ascribe to its operations the honor of having accomplished, so far as human agency is concerned, this blessed and glorious work. Doubtless there have been ‘diversities of operations,’ and ‘the same God working all and in all.’ A residence, however, of twelve years on the field, and a knowledge of the principal efforts which have been made to promote its spiritual welfare, have produced a conviction, which nothing can shake, not only that God honors, beyond all others, that great means of bringing men to Christ which He himself has specially designated, but that in its absence, nothing else can be resorted to, on a large scale and as a permanent reliance, with a reasonable hope of any considerable success. I rejoice that we are not straitened in the use of means, in laboring for the advancement of Christ’s kingdom. If we were shut up to one mode, the religious history of the field occupied by Marietta Home Missionary Agency would say, most emphatically to Christians, send hither the ministers of Christ—give to this people established pastors. No other means can be permanently depended on—not even occasional preaching, without pastoral labor.”

“Whatever other good devices, then, the people of God may resort to, to save the WEST—and I hope I rejoice in every thing which contributes to this great end—our experience, our observation says to them, in language most earnest and solemn, place first in your affections, your hopes, your prayers, your benefactions, the great instrumentality ordained by God for the salvation of the world—THE MINISTRY OF RECONCILIATION. In its train, every other good device will follow and prosper ; in its absence, all others will come to nought."

CINCINNATI AGENCY, OHIO.

This Agency embraces, chiefly, such portions of the States of Ohio and Indiana, as can most conveniently communicate with Cincinnati as a common centre. The receipts into its treasury, the past year, have been $2,204 19 ; making the amount realized from the field, including donations forwarded directly to the Society, a little less than $4,000. Thirty-five missionaries have been sustained by the Agency, viz :—23 in Ohio ; 11 in Indiana ; and 1 in Illinois. In the congregations in which they have labored, there has been an increasing attendance on the means of grace, and a growing attachment to permanently established gospel institutions. During the fervor of political excitement, there were few revivals of religion. But, the last three months have brought us cheering intelligence of the effusions of the Spirit in many of the congregations.

The destitutions of this field, and the importance of a speedy and large increase of the number of missionary laborers may be seen, by an extract from a recent communication of the Secretary of the Agency, Rev. HENRY LITTLE. "If you draw a line," he says, "from Terre Haute on the Wabash river through Bedford, and intersect the Ohio at New Albany, there will be 17 counties south of that line in the State of Indiana, and but three ministers, who co-operate with the American Home Missionary Society. The Synod of Ohio embraces 30 large counties, extending from the Ohio river through the middle portions of the state, with a population of 600,000. Nine of these counties have no minister and six of them no church in our connexion ; and the county, better supplied with ministers than any other of the 30, has only one minister to every two and a half townships. The Synod of Cincinnati embraces about as much territory, in the south-western part of the state, and calls as loudly for your help."

"An intelligent lawyer in Ohio recently remarked, that many families from New England came into his neighborhood years ago—that they were well educated, and very moral and careful in the observance of the Sabbath. But, as those families had not since enjoyed the privileges and ordinances of the Gospel, their descendants had strangely deteriorated. Thus it is, and must be, with all those families, partially instructed in the principles of Christianity, who come West and settle in places, where they cannot enjoy the privileges which God has appointed for perfecting his saints and edifying the body of Christ. Two weeks since, your Agent sat down in a pious family, and learned that the grandfather had died three years before, at the age of 72. A pioneer minister settled in Ohio nearly fifty years ago, and found this venerable father, then a young man, with a letter of dismissal from an eastern church. As the minister went forward with his work, the wife became pious and both united with the church. The household was consecrated to the Lord, and taught the Shorter Catechism, in the good old way. Including the first couple and the companions in marriage, the family now numbers 82. Forty-two of these have professed religion; and this number includes all the adults, but two or three, of the whole family connexion."

"We give these facts," says the Agent, "not because they are very striking or remarkable, but to illustrate the truth which is constantly emblazoned before our eyes, that whatsoever is lovely and of good report is rapidly disappearing, in regions destitute of an efficient ministry; but that where the institutions of the Gospel are enjoyed, even the wilderness becomes a fruitful garden—these long, widening lines of pious descent are established, and the foundations of many generations are laid on eternal rock."

KENTUCKY.

Seven missionaries have been in commission in this state during the year. Their labors have been highly appreciated; and the grateful acknowledgments of the churches to which they have ministered are tendered to the friends of missions.

The Synod of Kentucky, which, somewhat more than a year since, took the relation of an Auxiliary to the Society, has forwarded to us, through the Secretary of their Committee, Rev. A. C. DICKERSON, their first annual report; from which we learn that, since their organization, they have collected $640, for the support of the missions within their bounds; and that vigorous and successful efforts have been made to strengthen their feeble congregations, and to increase the number of those who shall break unto them the bread of life.

"Kentucky, as a missionary field," says the report, "is truly needy, and yet very promising. There are from fifteen to twenty counties, in the southern portions of the state, exceedingly destitute of the means of grace. One feature of our missionary field is peculiarly prominent. There is some sort of preaching almost every where, and in most places, every Sabbath. A large proportion of the adult population are professors of religion. And yet, in districts where three-fourths of the adults are professors and connected with nominally orthodox organizations too, there is urgent necessity for the introduction of educated and truly evangelical laborers. The whole mass of the professedly religious community, needs to be taken by the four corners and lifted up. The standard of piety is low—that of religious intelligence deplorably so. Though orthodox denominations prevail, there is so much ignorance and superstition, and plain truths are so encumbered with what is objectionable in manner and hurtful in matter, that what of the Gospel is preached, seems to have little power for good. Religious interests, in such districts, hold much the same relation to a good and salutary condition, that frontier society does to that of the well regulated and older settled countries. In the parts of Kentucky to which I have referred, there is a vast deal of 'frontier religion.' It is, however, rising and improving. Evangelical orders are educating their ministers, Sabbath schools and Bible classes and Tract operations are extending. The present is the forming period—that which is to give shape and coloring to coming generations. Give us now an enlightened and evangelical ministry, to scatter every where the incorruptible seed, and a glorious harvest will ensue."

MISSOURI HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Twenty missionaries have been in commission in Missouri during the year, and $376 have been paid into the treasury of the Auxiliary towards their support. The labors of these missionaries have been arduous, their trials severe, their faith and hope strong in the Lord, and their success such as has gladdened their hearts and awakened joy in heaven.

"Without your timely assistance," says the Secretary of the Society, Rev. ARTEMAS BULLARD, D. D., "very few of these brethren could have remained in the state, and devoted their time and strength to the work of the ministry. Neither your Society nor its patrons can conceive the amount of good done to Missouri in particular, and to the country in general, by the liberal appropriations you have made to sustain these devoted men. Even with the statistical evidence of the rapidity with which this state is multiplying the number of her inhabitants before your eyes, you cannot comprehend the importance of a single year's ministerial labor performed here now. You can have no adequate idea of the condition of the thousands of our people, who were educated in connexion with some branch of the great Presbyterian family, (and I include in this, Congregationalists, Lutherans, Associate and Dutch Reformed,) that are wholly destitute of the means of grace in connexion with any of the denominations named. Nor can you conceive of the sad consequences, which almost necessarily follow the settlement of young men, and even young families, in a new country where there is no opportunity for them to hear the Gospel preached, by ministers belonging to some denomination strongly resembling the one with which they and their parents were connected. The loss of hopes, and christian character and usefulness is appalling, among those who are thus far removed from all their early associations and friends, even when they have long been consistent and active members of the church in the places of their nativity. The necessity of meeting the new settler with the institutions of the Gospel, in some such form as that which influenced him before his removal, can only be appreciated by those who understand it and feel it, after having long lived in a state like Missouri, that is doubling its population in twelve years, or in a city like St. Louis, which has doubled the number of her inhabitants in about five years. In such a community, every intelligent mind can perceive that the ruin must be rapid and awful, without the most prompt and efficient efforts on the part of Christians. A little delay, and the amount of population destitute of the means of grace becomes so great, that the whole character of the place is formed by it, and the most zealous and active Christian shrinks from the effort of staying the stream of death, which so suddenly gains a depth, breadth and velocity, that defy all human opposition."

"Thousands," continues the communication, "perish every year in Missouri for lack of the bread of life. In a population of over 500,000, scattered over a territory larger than all New England, we have less than sixty Presbyterian ministers, devoted to their appropriate work, including Old School and New School. In one Presbytery with thirteen churches, there are but six ministers. And the number of churches there would be doubled in less than twelve months, if the ministerial labor were increased in that ratio. This is true of that portion of the state, which is better supplied than any other. There are now two sections of the state of Missouri, each larger than the whole of Massachusetts, without a single Presbyterian or Congregational minister devoted to the work of saving souls. The demand for holy, self-denying, efficient preachers for the destitute places in this state, is more urgent than can be described or imagined. We have more important places rapidly increasing in population, influence and wealth, which are destitute of Presbyterian or Congregational ministers, than can be found in any other of the United States. In some of these places, there are churches organized, which are ready to make up the whole or by far the greater part of a pastor's support. In other towns of commanding influence, the missionary must commence his work at the very beginning. He must build on his own foundation. Still, even here, he will have much to strengthen and encourage him in his self-denying labors. In no part of the land, has the preaching of the Gospel been more abundantly blessed or more glorious in its results, than in the bounds of this Auxiliary. Some of our churches have increased four fold in a single year. In one case this was true, where all the additions, except two, were on examination."

"But we do need more men to preach the Gospel. We have written, we have entreated, we have prayed for help, and yet we have only kept the number of our ministers good the last year. It is impossible for any one to exaggerate our need of twenty, or at the very lowest estimate, of twelve good, efficient, self-denying ambassadors of Christ. Now, is the time to save Missouri. In ten or twelve years, we shall number a million of souls! In view of our unsuccessful efforts to obtain more laborers, who can think of this and not tremble for the future?

But, we can only say, beloved in the Lord, we look first of all to Heaven, and then to you. We come as children of the same common family to you, our brethren, and beg for the bread of life. As you love your country, as you value the souls of thousands here, who are famishing for the means of grace, as you regard the advancement of his kingdom, who died for you, we beseech you to intercede for us, when you have access to those ministers who are deciding where they shall labor in the vineyard of their Lord. Do entreat them to come over and help us, before help shall be in vain. Could you send as many to Missouri this Autumn, as went to Iowa a year and a half since, the wilderness and the solitary place would be glad for them, and the desert rejoice and blossom as the rose."

To the youthful ambassadors of Christ, who are girding on their armor and inquiring, "Where hath the master need of our willing services," we would say, in view of the foregoing appeal to our hearts and theirs, Whom shall we send?—and who will go for us?

MICHIGAN.

The work which the Society has been instrumental in accomplishing in this state, must be truly grateful to the friends of Christ. A missionary, who went into the western part of it in the Autumn of 1835, says, "When I took my station here, there was no minister of our denomination, who devoted himself exclusively to the work of preaching the Gospel, within fifty miles of me. Draw a line north and south from the eastern boundary of Jackson county, and all west of that line, except here and there a little church, like an oasis in a desert, was a wide desolation. St. Joseph's Presbytery, embracing all the western part of Michigan and a part of Indiana, contained six or seven ministers. Perhaps, of the Presbyterian and Congregational order, there were twelve or fifteen churches on this whole field. What a mighty change have nine years produced! These beautiful plains and prairies are becoming the habitations of civilized man, and towns and villages, and churches, are springing into existence as if by magic. What a multitude have come along after me! Instead of one Presbytery of six or seven members, we now have four Presbyteries and Conferences, containing each on an average ten or twelve ministers; and in the state, where there were then but three ecclesiastical bodies of the Presbyterian or Congregational order, there are now ten or twelve, averaging from ten to fourteen churches each. A very large proportion of all these churches have come into existence since I have been here. Their history is identified with that of the American Home Missionary Society. As far as my knowledge extends, there are not more than three or four exceptions. Without the assistance of your Society, many of these churches would never have had a name."

It will be recollected that the last year, there was a large addition to the number of missionaries in this state. The whole number in commission during the year now closed, is 65. It gives us great pleasure to present to the patrons of the Society, the testimony of an intelligent eye-witness, who has had large opportunity for observation, in regard to the character and labors of a portion at least of the ministry which they are sustaining in this section of the great missionary field, and to the encouragement which they have to continue and enlarge their benefactions. "I have never known," he says, "in any part of the East, an abler body of practical men, than you have sent into this region. In the vicinity about me, are several of them who have gone, within the last two years, into fields entirely new and overspread with the rankest growth of the worst forms of error. But they are equal to their work. Some, by their open and bold assaults, have stormed the strong holds of the enemy; while others, by a more silent, but by sure advances, are taking them by siege. But they all conquer. Before such sons of Zerubbabel the mountain becomes a plain."

"Now what we want is more such men, and enough of them. Every year is presenting new fields, and demanding the same aggressive movement. It is easier to forstall the enemy, than to dislodge him. The necessity, therefore, for Home Missionary efforts was never greater in Michigan, than it is now. Your patrons can have no idea of the good they are effecting, unless they come on to the ground and live here, and look on, and see what I have seen, in the changes of the last five years, and what is going on all over the West. Blot out the results of Home Missionary labors in this vicinity, and I scarcely know what solitary star would be left to glitter in the firmament of our Zion! And as it is, our supply is very inadequate. We have several whole counties, considerably settled and rapidly settling, with no minister of our order, and several others with only one. Indeed, we have not more than two or three in any one of the counties in Western Michigan. We call that a tolerable supply. And what we want now is, to see that they are all as well provided for. If success can inspire courage, the friends of Home Missions have every reason in the world to go forward. True, we have not seen of late, the descending showers of salvation. But we see the fields preparing, so that when the showers do fall, they will produce a wide and glorious harvest."

NORTHERN INDIANA.

The Wabash country in the northern part of Indiana, connected at one corner with Lake Michigan and the north-west ; at another, with Lake Erie and the East ; at another, by the Wabash River with the Ohio ; and at yet another, by canal with the "Queen of the West," has internal resources and natural advantages, seldom surpassed, for inviting the settlement and stimulating the enterprise of a vast population. This country is now becoming peopled with a rapidity greatly increased, in consequence of the facilities for immigration and commercial intercourse, furnished by the opening of the Wabash and Erie canal ; and it is pleading for the institutions of the Gospel, with no less importunity than the southern section of the state, noticed in connexion with the Cincinnati Agency.

"The Presbytery of Logansport," says a communication from that body, "includes thirty-five counties, covering 14,000 square miles. It embraces more than one-third of the state, and is larger than the whole of Massachusetts. Its present population is about 160,000. One hundred and twenty miles of the Wabash and Erie canal lie within its territory. Its climate, soil and commercial facilities are such, as to give promise of its becoming soon one of the most delightful portions of the land. The population of the country is rapidly increasing, and all the principal towns, especially on the canal, are becoming the centres of extensive commercial business. One of them, Lafayette, contains more than forty dry goods stores, and thirteen or fourteen organized churches. It is no uncommon thing to count 400 trading wagons in that place in a single day."

"We invite your attention to its present moral condition. Some of our towns and villages contain cultivation and refinement, with the means of grace ably administered. But in most places, there is an alarming destitution of intelligent, discriminating preaching. We say "intelligent and discriminating," for with the Catholics, the Campbellites, the Universalists, and the sects, the burden of whose proclamation is invective against an educated ministry, there is no lack of preaching any where. This fact, however, increases, rather than diminishes, the obligation of intelligent Christians to render us assistance. 'If the light be darkness, how great is that darkness !'

"We need twenty ministers of our denomination, to give to each unsupplied county within our bounds one preacher. Our hearts die within us, as we survey these moral desolations. We want at least the number above stated immediately ; and we can look only to the American Home Missionary Society to furnish us the men. What we do, must be done quickly. The enemy is striving to possess this land. The Romanists have founded a college at South Bend ; and are establishing churches and schools at nearly every important point in this region. And shall the friends of a pure, spiritual, life-giving Christianity, be less zealous and self-denying, than the votaries of a cold, dead formalism—the emissaries of the man of Sin !"

The young men whom our western Colleges and Seminaries are introducing into the ministry, are now looking with interest upon this field, so ripe for the sickle. Two missionaries have been sent into it from the East, within the last few months; three others are now under appointment; and we hope to be able to secure, the coming year, a sufficient number to give at least one to each of these destitute counties named, if the friends of Christ will furnish the funds requisite to sustain them.

ILLINOIS.

In Illinois, in which, in 1822, there was but one Presbyterian minister who soon after left the state, there have been, the last year, 95 missionaries of this Society employed in preaching salvation by the blood of the Lamb. In the northern half of the state, there are now not far from 150 Presbyterian and Congregational churches, which have been planted and nurtured by the agency of this Institution. The changes which have taken place in this portion of the missionary field, within the last few years, seem almost incredible, even to those who have been upon the ground, and had a leading agency in producing them. Says a devoted minister, in the north-western corner of the state, who has looked off from his commanding watchtower, not only upon these changes in northern Illinois, but upon similar ones in Wisconsin and Iowa, "Without any forecast of mine, I was sent to this place sixteen years ago. I remember, the second Sabbath morning I walked over the grave-yard, for want of a better place of retirement, and there pleaded with my Master his own promise, "Lo, I am with you," before I went into the bar-room to magnify my office and assert his claims over the hearts of my fellow sinners. I remember, too, that on one of my preaching tours, I ascended a high ridge, overlooking the Mississippi for many miles. It was a magnificent sight. And I made my reflections audible. "Lord Jesus, I take possession of this whole land for thee." And if Father Hennepin had previously claimed it for the Virgin Mary, it was a usurpation long since given up, for he had no one in all this region to defend his claim. If we take the log cabin, which served me ten years for a church, as the centre of a circle whose radius measures two hundred miles, that circle, sixteen years ago, so far as I can remember, would not include another clergyman than myself, either Catholic or Protestant, devoted exclusively to the care of souls. Now, if we should reckon up only the Presbyterian and Congregational ministers, we should doubtless find from one to two hundred; and these, intelligent, self-denying, hard working men—nine-tenths of whom have been, or are now sustained by your Society. In this mining country, we have had a reinforcement of missionaries, within the last few months, which has made our hearts glad; and triumphs of grace have followed their labors in four or five places. Some, who have been among the most hopeless cases from our early history, are now sitting meek and penitent, I trust, at the feet of Jesus."

The Rev. MARCUS HICKS, who has continued his labors as a missionary Agent, chiefly in the northern part of the state, says, in his report to the Society: "We have special reason for gratitude, for the indications of divine favor during the year. Though few places have been visited with extensive and powerful revivals, yet there has been much to indicate the Savior's presence. Christians have been quickened in the discharge of duty. The churches generally have increased in the knowledge of the truth, and become more firmly established in the fundamental doctrines of the Bible. As the acquaintance of individuals with each other has become more intimate, there has been a gradual assimilation of moral and religious feeling. Christian confidence and brotherly love have increased; and the disciples of Christ have been striving together with greater harmony and efficiency, for the furtherance of the Gospel."

But, much as has been accomplished in Illinois, our work here is not yet done. In one section of the state, which we were informed in the Autumn of 1843, had all its existing churches and its principal villages tolerably well supplied by the reinforcements then sent on, we were told by the same Committee, in the Autumn of 1844, there were then needed twenty additional laborers, to enter into the fields white for the harvest. So rapid is the influx of population, and so energetic and untiring must be our movements, to keep pace with the wants of the people. On the area, where now exist the 150 churches just alluded to, "there is room," says one who has recently surveyed it, "for 150 more, which ought to be built up, in less time than has elapsed since the Home Missionary Society here laid its first foundations." In the southern portion of the state, there is a district, which has within a short time been thoroughly explored, for the purpose of ascertaining its moral and religious condition, and its professed religious teachers, all told, amounted to one for every 300 souls. And yet, there is the most abundant and painful evidence, that few sections of our country of equal extent and population, are more entirely destitute of an educated, evangelical ministry. Our brethren in this vicinity are doing what they can of themselves, and are making praise-worthy efforts to call the attention of the churches and the ministry to their destitutions, that they may secure the needed instrumentality before it shall be too late. We hope it may ere long be their joy, to welcome the desired fellow laborers, to share with them their responsibility, their toil and their recompense of reward.

One missionary in this state, the Rev. E. W. Champlin, of Naperville, has been called suddenly from his earthly labors during the year. On one Sabbath, he was pleading with his people to embrace the Savior. Before the next, he stood in the presence of that Savior, to receive, we cannot doubt, an immortal crown !

WISCONSIN.

The past year has been characterized by a manifest advancement of the interests of religion in this Territory. The increase of ministers and churches, the number of pastors settled and of houses of worship erected, the ingathering of the fruits of precious revivals and the power of truth over the hearts and lives of men, bear grateful testimony that the seed which has here been sown, has not fallen upon stony ground or among thorns. The annual flood of immigration has swelled the numbers of the people, and with their increase, there has been an accession, from our eastern seminaries and from the pastoral office in the older settlements, to the number and power of the ministry ; so that every county seat but one, and very many of the more important villages, are now occupied. Thirty-four missionaries have been in commission in this Territory during the year ; and the settlements that are forming, the villages that are springing up, the new churches that are organized, and the new fields that are continually opening, create a constant demand for additional laborers.

"Wisconsin," says the Agent of the Society, Rev. STEPHEN PEET, "presents a specimen of Home Missionary operations, and of the fruits of eastern benevolence, highly gratifying and encouraging to the friends of the West and the patrons of the American Home Missionary Society. In 1839, there were only six small churches, three ministers and one house of public worship in the Territory. At the present time, there are sixty churches and forty ministers, in connexion with the denominations that co-operate with this Society. There are also nineteen houses of public worship ; some of which are large and elegant, and all are neat and commodious sanctuaries, adapted in size and expense to the circumstances of the people. Our ecclesiastical organization, which combines the Congregational and Presbyterian ministers and churches in one body, after a trial of five years, proves to be eminently adapted to secure peace, good order, soundness and efficiency. Great harmony and interest have always prevailed in our ecclesiastical meetings."

"The religious institutions of Wisconsin, bear, in a good degree, the impress of New England. A large proportion of our population is directly from that region. Our ministers are nearly all of eastern origin and eastern education. The doctrines, which have made that section of our country lovely and renowned and have given it such a wide spread influence, are the doctrines adopted by our Conventions, preached by our ministers, and received by our churches. And even our Plan of Union, in respect to the great principle on which it is founded, is the result of New England wisdom, rather than a scheme of western invention. To a great extent, also, the order which characterizes the churches in that region, prevails among us. And it is occasion for devout thanksgiving, that our churches have been preserved from the errors, disorders and divisions, which have of late years afflicted some portions of Zion. But, what is best of all, God has set his seal to the efforts which have been made to lay foundations, and build up his kingdom. He has not only given us peace and general prosperity, but has graciously sent his Spirit, and refreshed his people, and gathered precious souls into the fold of Christ. Revivals of religion have been enjoyed, to a greater or less extent, every year, and have increased the strength and moulded the character of our churches. At the present time, God is displaying the wonders of his mercy, in several of the congregations in the south-western part of the Territory, and many, of all ages and classes and character, appear to be humbled in the dust before Him."

"This interesting state of things in the Territory—this great amount of good," continues the communication, "has been effected mainly, under God, by the American Home Missionary Society. It is the result of its early efforts, and its efficient aid. These sixty churches and the hundreds of converts which have been gathered into them, together with the multitudes who shall, in future years, enjoy the privileges thus secured to the Territory, will hereafter rise up and call that Society and its patrons blessed. With such happy results before them, the eastern churches may surely be encouraged, in their efforts to furnish the West with religious privileges and the institutions of the Gospel, and to continue their important operations, until 'Our Country,' in its length and breadth, is saved from the delusions of error and the desolations of sin."

IOWA.

The missionary work which has been prosecuted so successfully in other new settlements of the country, having been commenced more recently in Iowa, is here giving promise of the same glorious and permanent results. Says a devoted pioneer, who became a resident in the Territory six years since;—"At the earnest solicitation of three or four settlements, some one hundred and fifty miles apart, I made my first visit to Iowa, from Illinois where I was then laboring, in the spring of 1836. The first night, I encamped in the woods. On the second day, I found one of the settlements and preached Christ to them. The points of the compass were the chief guides in travelling; and often, we could not learn even the direction of what are now the principal places. The bark houses of the Indians were standing, just as if left only for the summer's hunt; and the stalks, from which they gathered their roasting ears and made their samp, were still to be seen round their lonely habitations. The whole Territory, aside from the mining district around Dubuque, did not then, probably, contain more than 5,000 inhabitants. Now there are thirty-one organized counties, where there were then but two. The wild prairie has been converted into the fruitful field; and the frail tenement of the Indian has given place to the substantial habitations of civilized men. Not less than 100,000 immortal beings have made Iowa their home; and the Congress of the United States has invited her to take her seat in the councils of the nation, as a sovereign state."

In April 1839, a Presbyterian church was organized at Fort Madison; and in May following, a Congregational church at Denmark. A Presbyterian church had been gathered, a few months previous at Dubuque. These were the first churches, in our connexion, organized in the Territory; which had not, at that time, a Presbyterian or Congregational minister. One missionary of this Society became permanently located in the Territory, during the summer of that year. Six years have since elapsed, and we find that during the last, twenty-eight missionaries have been upon this field, preaching, with great fidelity and with encouraging success, the Gospel of the grace of God. These missionaries are stationed in twenty different counties in various parts of the state, occupying in each, the most favorable location for gaining access to the people, and laying foundations for permanent good. Thirty-nine churches have received the benefit of their labors; and each one of these churches is a centre of moral influence, from which the light of life falls upon those who are sitting in darkness, in all directions around it. Under the superintendence of the missionaries, not less than two thousand children and youth have been carefully instructed in the word of God on every returning Sabbath, in a land, where, nine years since, scarce a white man, a Bible or a Testament had ever come. The temperance reformation, which the missionaries have arduously labored to promote, is preparing the way for their more direct and hopeful access to the hearts of the people, with the claims of the Gospel. From some of the settlements, intoxicating drinks have been banished, under the conviction that they were the people's greatest curse; and there are some of those beautiful prairies, over which the drunkard has never yet reeled, and which the spirit-cask and the rum-jug have never yet polluted, and, we trust, never will. Our brethren here have most of them been obliged, hitherto, to preach in public halls, in court-houses, in school-houses, in the family cabin and often in the open air—wherever they could get souls to listen to their message. Embarrassments and inconveniences, arising from such a source, and which are incident to all new settlements, are beginning, however, to pass away. Ten houses, now in progress, will probably be completed the ensuing season, and dedicated to the worship of God. But, that Spirit, on which the ministry is dependent for all its success, no less in the splendid temple than in the humblest tenement, has not withholden his presence, nor his convicting, renovating power. In four or five congregations, we have recent reports of an interesting work of grace—in one, more than thirty are numbered among its hopeful subjects—the stout-hearted and the infidel are sitting at the feet of Jesus. The providence of God has, also, during the year, laid low in death the Apostle of Atheism, who had located his ‘Elysium’ on the banks of the Des Moines, and thought to train up there a generation that should know ‘no God.’ The Prophet of Mormonism, too, who had selected his sites for building twelve temples, according to the number of the tribes of the children of Israel, has gone to his account, leaving his first temple, on the eastern side of the Mississippi, but half completed, and bequeathing to his followers a legacy of shame and inextricable confusion. And, hear we not, in these providences, a voice from heaven saying unto the faithful in Christ Jesus, “Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father’s good pleasure to give you the kingdom.”

One missionary, Rev. Samuel Payne, of Yellow Springs, has died during the year. He went into the Territory more than two years since, with health somewhat impaired, and has fallen amidst his arduous labors, from the progress of disease which was then upon him. The testimony of his brethren concerning him is, “We all felt that he was a man of God. His conversation was in heaven. He rests from his labors and his works do follow him.”

The following extract from a communication of one of the “associated band,” that went into the Territory in the Autumn of 1843, and which breathes the spirit, we trust, of all our brethren here, will be truly grateful to their many friends at the East, and to all the patrons of this Institution. “By the mercy of God,” he says, “we have all been kept in life and health. Scarce a single appointment has been lost, by any one of us through ill health, for these nearly eighteen months of our labors here. Some plans, formed in ignorance of what would be our circumstances here, have been thwarted; some hopes, based on the expectations of youth and the romance of a new country, have been disappointed. But, we have, in exchange, such experience and such corrected views, as by the blessing of God, will prepare us for more steady and permanent effort. Nor are we discouraged or discontented. The hearty feeling in every case, I believe, is, ‘Iowa is my home. Here would I live and labor, and here would I die.’ The toil of every day binds us still stronger to each other and to our work. We have not all met, since we first separated—each to his respective field. God only knows, whether we shall ever do so or not. Occasionally, as we have crossed each other’s path, have we pressed the hand of affection, lifted the prayer to God, and passed on. Thus bound to each other, with harmony in our views and plans, we hope to unite in closer christian sympathy the churches and the people with whom we labor. Nor shall we or our churches be unmindful of the beneficence of the East; but be bound there, also, by the relation of grateful recipients. O, this religion of the Savior! What a bond of union! The past history of the world has been that of wars and animosities. When converted to God, it will be the unfoldings of christian love. The transforming process is going on. Who would not be an actor in it? We have, indeed, in coming here, broken away from many a strong tie of natural affection—from the intercourse of friends, of brothers, of sisters and of parents. But if, in so doing, we can multiply and strengthen the bonds of christian love and sympathy—if our lives can enter in, as the least of those threads that are to compose the golden cord, which shall at last bind together a redeemed world, it is enough. Thanks be to God, and thanks be to your Society which sent us here, and which, under God, is sending out its ten thousand influences to harmonize the jarring elements of this nation—to produce peace within itself, and to unite its resources and its energies in converting the world.”

Encouraging as are the foregoing statements, it will be borne in mind, we trust, that our work here is but just begun. Eleven counties yet have no minister in our connexion, and but five have more than one. Many important points need now to be occupied without delay. The population is rapidly increasing. And every inch of ground, that is here to be won for the Savior, is yet to be contended for, face to face with the great adversary of God and man, as if this were his last hold, and here his last hope of this country.

The Rev. ASA TURNER has continued his services, as a missionary Agent of the Society in this Territory, one half of the time the past year.

CANADA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The patrons of the American Home Missionary Society have been informed, in previous reports, that the embarrassments to American Missions in Canada, growing out of the recent border difficulties; the urgent and increasing demand for the resources of this Institution in our own country; together with the fact that an English Missionary Society was in operation, having reference to the wants of such churches in their colonies as we were aiding, rendered it desirable, in our view, that the Missions in Canada connected with this Society, should be transferred, as soon as it could be done without detriment to the cause, to the care of British Christians. They have learned also, that a correspondence, no less creditable to the “Colonial Missionary Society,” than grateful to us, has been held with their Secretary in London, with reference to this object. During the last year, a union of the Presbyterians and Congregationalists in Canada in missionary action has been effected, and a new impulse given to their operations; in consequence of which, the contemplated transfer has been completed. The auxiliary relation of the Canada Home Missionary Society to this Institution was terminated, therefore, on the first of January last. This Society had six missionaries under its care, during the portion of the year in which its connexion with us continued ; and $1,180 were expended in their support.

The Secretary of the Society, Rev. CALEB STRONG, says in his last report, "Our auxiliary relationship to your Society has been to us a pleasure and an advantage. There have been periods, when your assistance was absolutely essential to our existence as a Society ; and we can bear testimony to the generosity and cheerfulness with which you have responded to our appeals. We regard the dissolution of our connexion with you, though on the whole expedient, with regret. But, we still consider it as a merely technical change, which will not, in the slightest degree, interfere with the exercise of mutual sympathy and affection, or hinder our prayers for one another. We observe your proceedings with great interest, and rejoice in your success. Indeed, all true philanthropists must rejoice in your labors, if for no other reason, at least for this, that you are diffusing those influences, which elevate and dignify a people, and bind together, in the ties of a common brotherhood, the great family of man."

In behalf of the patrons of this Institution, we tender to the Secretary of the Canada Home Missionary Society the assurance, that the kind sentiments which he has expressed, are by us most cordially reciprocated, and that the missionary operations of our brethren in Canada, we shall continue to regard with unabated interest, and that upon them and their efforts to build up the kingdom of our common Lord, we shall not cease to invoke the richest blessings of Heaven.

CONCLUSION.

As we thus glance at some of the leading features in the operations of this Institution, we cannot but exclaim—"What hath God wrought"! How short the period of its existence ! How humble the instrumentality ! And yet, how wide spread, how lasting, how glorious the results ! How far beyond the vision of its founders, is the record we are now permitted to make of the diffusion of its labors and the triumphs of divine mercy ! No one, at the organization of this Society, comprehended fully the necessity for its existence. No one anticipated the extent to which our forests were, in so short a time, to be penetrated—the rapidity with which communities were here to be gathered, society to be consolidated, character to be formed, destinies to be sealed. These, were among the secrets of the throne ! And our, most sanguine expectations, with respect to the future developments of the divine economy, may fall as far behind the reality. Great events are succeeding each other, in the day in which we live, with a rapidity unparalleled in all time. The vast designs of Providence are fast being accomplished. The end of all things is drawing near. The destiny of our country, and the part which it is to act in the work of a world's redemption, will soon be matter of unalterable record.

How deeply interesting, then, is our present attitude ! How full of encouragement is the surveyal of the past ! How big with hope, and high privilege, and solemn responsibility is the opening future ! Our needy kinsmen according to the flesh, are stretching out to us their supplicating hands. The youthful ministry are begging us, to aid them in carrying out the beneficent desires of their hearts. Our country calls us to diffuse over it that glorious Gospel, which will correct all its errors, deliver it from every danger and make it, evermore, the dwelling place of the blessed of the Lord. Our Savior hath committed unto each one of us his goods, and bidden us to occupy until he come. And of the day and the hour no one knoweth ! What, but infinite grace, can sustain us under our responsibilities, or prepare us to give account of our stewardship ? Lift upon thy servants, O Lord, the light of thy countenance and show us thy salvation !

Relation of Auxiliary Societies, Agencies and Committees of Missions to the A. H. M. S.

State and other large Auxiliaries.

Most of the state Missionary Societies were in existence before the formation of the National Society, and some of them—as the Missionary Societies of Connecticut and Massachusetts—were among the earliest organized efforts in our country for sending the Gospel to the destitute. They have voluntarily connected themselves with the A. H. M. S., from a conviction that greater unity of plan and efficiency in action would thereby be promoted.

The terms by which the Auxiliaries are connected with the Parent Society, are such as to secure the following objects, viz :

First—The Auxiliary is not superseded or overshadowed by the National Institution, but, on the contrary, is invigorated and sustained by connexion with it. This is secured by the provision that the Auxiliary is the sole agency for this cause that operates on its field. It controls all appointments in the state to which it belongs. From it alone the feeble churches receive assistance. Thus a direct relation and strong attachment is cherished towards it, in the hearts of the ministers and churches.

Again—While the local operations of the Auxiliary are thus encouraged and sustained, its connexion with the Parent Society is such as to awaken an interest in the destitute beyond its own limits, and afford facilities for reaching them. It is not only a Society for local purposes, but it is also a branch of the National Society, and as such, has the control of all agencies for the collection of funds within its own field, and can direct the manner in which its surplus resources shall be expended beyond its own limits. Thus the state and other large Auxiliaries are not merely organizations to help the Parent Society; they are integral parts of it, bound together in one whole by a common interest in, and free access, through the Parent Society, to the great field to be occupied, and governed by the same general principles and rules in carrying on their work.

Agents and Agencies.

Besides taking up contributions for Home Missions, the Agents of the A. H. M. S. exercise a general superintendence of the operations of the Society within their respective fields. By correspondence and personal visitation, they ascertain the wants of the destitute; assist them to obtain the preaching of the Gospel; and instruct and encourage them to develop their own means for its support. They receive applications for aid, and make such preliminary examination as may be necessary before submitting them for the action of the Executive Committee; and in other ways, labor to insure a judicious and economical application of the Society's funds. At present, the Society has in its employ no merely collecting Agents, nor any whose services are not required for other purposes in the regions where they labor. The Secretaries of several of the larger Auxiliaries, are also the Agents for this cause in their respective bounds.

In certain districts, where the duties of an Agent are likely to be peculiarly responsible, there is associated with him a board of counsellors selected from the region of his labors, called an Agency. These Boards of Agency differ from Auxiliary Societies, in that they have no independent existence, but are appointed by the Executive Committee from year to year, and are governed by rules which the Committee prescribe. Their duty is to counsel and direct the Agent in carrying out the principles of the Society, and to give advice in relation to such local matters as may be submitted to them by the Executive Committee. The persons composing a board of Agency, are selected for their intelligence and interest in this cause, and their influence in promoting it; and are so distributed over the field as to secure a personal acquaintance with its condition. The Agent of the Society is also the Secretary of the Agency with which he is associated.

These boards of counsel might not have been necessary, had the ecclesiastical bodies on the ground been able and disposed to pay sufficient attention to the missionary work, and to act as its directors in their respective bounds. But the ministers composing them are usually scattered over a wide extent of territory, and meet but seldom, and only at seasons when they are much occupied with other business; and accordingly, it has been necessary in some cases to organize agencies for this specific work. But, in other cases, Synods, Presbyteries and Associations have chosen to act as Auxiliaries of the Society, availing themselves of the provisions of its constitution, which gives them the general control of missionary operations in their respective churches. Ecclesiastical bodies thus related to the A. H. M. S. act through

Committees of Missions.

The A. H. M. S. has ever regarded the ecclesiastical bodies as the appropriate judges of the standing of their own ministers, and of the wants of the churches in their connexion. Accordingly, the commission issued to every missionary requires, that his credentials be acceptable to that ministerial body of his denomination within whose bounds he is appointed to labor. And the various Presbyteries, Associations, &c. are invited to appoint, each, a Committee of Missions from its own members, to receive applications from its churches, and suggest to the Society the action proper in each case. Such a Committee constitutes the official source to which reference can be had for information and advice, in all matters pertaining to missions in the connexion to which it belongs. This mode of co-operation has been preferred by numerous ecclesiastical bodies, from the first formation of the Society. It guaranties to the churches of each denomination represented in the Society, that their respective claims shall be fairly considered with all the advantage of having the endorsement of the body to which they belong. It also relieves the Parent Society, in a great measure, from the responsibility of any error that may be committed in a given appointment, and transfers it to the Committee of Missions, by whom it is recommended, and on whom it properly devolves. The advice of such a Committee is therefore regarded as the highest authority, and has the same influence with the Society as that of a Board of Agency appointed by itself.

There is one limitation to this influence, however, which ought to be stated. Should any ecclesiastical body so far swerve from the principles of truth and Gospel order, as not to retain the fellowship and confidence of the great body of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches in our land, that fact would cause its recommendations not to be respected, as a basis of action, by the Executive Committee.

As cases may occur in which the feeble churches may not be aware of the existence of any board of Agency, or Committee of Missions, through whom to apply for aid, a general provision is made, that applications may be vouched by any two ministers of known and approved standing, who can certify to the facts of the case. If the information thus given is not sufficient, other facts are sought by the Executive Committee, from the most authentic sources from which they can be obtained.

Such, briefly, are the relations of the American Home Missionary Society to the various organs, through which the community seeks to act out its missionary feeling. It will be seen that this plan secures the united action, in the missionary work, of those whose views of doctrine and church order admit of co-operation, and whose interests in the great field are essentially the same. This combination insures a homogeneous policy as to the manner and amount of appropriations, and the qualifications of missionaries; it has discouraged sectional feelings, and diffused throughout each part an interest in all the rest; and thus has formed ties between the West and the East, along which have passed, from the latter to the former, a silent and invisible current of moral influences, more valuable, if possible, than all pecuniary grants. At the same time, the connexion of the Parent Society with the various Associations that act with it, is such as to secure to them entire freedom in the missionary work, in their respective spheres, and an influence beyond them, in cultivating the waste places of our common country.

MR. PRESIDENT.—I have watched the progress of this Society from its beginning to the present time. I have read its reports with care. Each one has interested me more than the one preceding. Each has, in fact, been a better report than any one before it, inasmuch as it has presented stronger developments of christian benevolence and the grace of God. The one just presented by your Secretary, is numbered the nineteenth; and although he has given us but a mere abstract of it, we have heard enough to assure us that it is the best of the nineteen; for it is a record of greater progress than has ever before been reported in one year. An advance of $20,000 in the free-will offerings of the christian public, is grateful evidence that the cause of Home Missions is gaining stronger hold on christian hearts. It will cheer all who read it. An addition of 36 preachers to the number already in the field, will be still more cheering to all who can believe that “the foolishness of preaching” is God’s chosen way of saving men. But, most of all has my own heart been gladdened by the announcement, that the whole of this increase of laborers has been given to the Great West—that section of our country, which, by any rational rule of judging, must be regarded as emphatically THE FIELD of American Home Missions. Not that any portion of our goodly heritage can be safely neglected; but the intimations of Providence are exceeding plain, that this portion MUST, at all events, receive our present and prompt attention.

A tour of nearly 4,000 miles, performed last summer through the Western States and Territories, left many deep impressions on my mind. But, Sir, the deepest and most abiding of them all is, that the importance of your work in the West has never been over stated. Perhaps I should come nearer the truth by saying that it has never been appreciated—not even by those who have been foremost in carrying it forward. To preach "the gospel of the kingdom" to perishing souls under any circumstances, is to fulfil Heaven's purpose of mercy, in the way of Heaven's own appointing. This, Sir, is what your Society is doing. To give this divinely chosen instrumentality perpetual action on the same community, by securing for it a permanent lodgement, and connecting with it the pastoral office, is to carry that purpose more fully into effect. To this object, the American Home Missionary Society is devoting its undivided energies, among the destitute in all portions of the land. But, when this work is viewed in connexion with circumstances existing in the newer portions of the West, it assumes an importance which cannot well be exaggerated.

* With the exception of the first, we have relied mainly on the reporters for the copy which we have followed, and the last two we have had no opportunity to submit to their authors for correction.

One of these circumstances is the character of the population. It is the young, the enterprising, who penetrate the wilderness first, and begin the new settlement. Whatever their national origin or occupation, they are generally men of strength, and fortitude and forecast—such men as cannot be easily baffled by emergencies, nor driven back by hardships, nor depressed by ill-adventure. No others will seek a new home in our frontier settlements, or find one there if they seek it. These elements of character are elements of moral power. They give to their possessors an influence that will be felt, for good or for evil, throughout the land and the world. Now, it is to such that the missionary goes, whom you send to labor in these opening fields. And when, by the blessing of God on his labors, only one such community is brought into subjection to the Gospel, who can calculate the results? What finite mind can fully comprehend them, even were they revealed to our view? It is not affirmed that the conversion of one sinner is, in itself, more important than that of another. I do not know that it is. But, it is affirmed, because it is a fact, that the instrumentality of one converted sinner in converting the world, is incomparably greater than that of another. This we see—this we know. And it will be found that He, "who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will," has usually sanctified and called into his service just such elements of character as I have been describing, whenever he has had some great work to achieve in furtherance of his kingdom. The German Reformers, the Scottish Covenanters, the Puritans of Old England, and the Pilgrims of New England, are examples of this. And that agency, be it what it may, which God employs in waking such instrumentalities into life, must be regarded as an unspeakably important agency. Such an agency I see in this Society—divinely adapted to the accomplishment of just such an end.

And then, the condition of these new settlers is another circumstance, which magnifies the work of missions in the West. It may appear strange to some—it often has to me—that a population, so instinct with energy and enterprise, should not be able to provide and maintain their own religious institutions. If these be the predominant elements of their character, why do they look to us for aid? But, Sir, those who take this view, and reason thus, overlook the fact, that these first comers are generally men of small pecuniary means—none of them rich, and many of them able to bring absolutely nothing with them to their new wilderness home, but their own hard working hands, and iron constitutions. Nor, do any of us sufficiently consider how many things are to be done by the first settlers of a town, where even the ground is to be broken up for the first time since its creation, and the house to be built, and the farm to be fenced, and every road and every bridge to be constructed—things which it cost the labor of successive generations to make ready for us; and which we find to be very great conveniences. I need not tell those who have travelled in the West, that even a good road and a passable bridge are things to be thankful for. All these things, I say, are to be provided by the first generation, if they have them. Let these facts be pondered, and it will not appear so strange that years should pass away, before such a community can find the leisure and the means to build the Lord's house; especially, when that community has been drawn together from every quarter of the world, bringing with them every variety of religious belief. After preaching one Sabbath to a congregation of some two hundred souls in the Territory of Iowa, I was astonished to ascertain, as I did by actual examination, that eight distinct nations of men were represented in that one congregation; while those who derived their origin from this nation came from fifteen different states; and when they first came together, were attached to six different denominations of Christians. How soon ought we to expect such a community, of their own accord, to unite in procuring and sustaining an evangelical ministry, or, in fact, any ministry? To me it seems more rational to ask, will they ever do it, even if we give them our sympathy and our aid? The history of that congregation answers this last question, for it is the history of hundreds of others in the West. Let me briefly give it. A missionary was sent among them by your Society, and supported the first year almost wholly from your funds. Encouraged by so generous an act, the people, mixed and miscellaneous as they were, did something for his support themselves that first year. The next year they did more, and became more united. Union gave strength and inspired confidence. And now they are moulded into a well ordered society, a harmonious church. Not a church, in this city or state, is more so. And I am persuaded, that there is not a congregation of the destitute in all our frontier settlements, which is not equally accessible to your efforts—not one, where a faithful laborer might not be stationed with equal hope of success.

But, Sir, it will not always be so. Strong barriers will ere long interpose between you and them. There are other agencies in the field that will gladly supply your lack of service, and are even now doing it on a broader scale than is generally supposed. Romanism is there exerting her giant energies to pre-occupy the ground, and forestall the triumphs of Protestant Christianity. And this I name as another circumstance, which gives immeasurable importance to the work of Home Missions in the West. It cannot have escaped your notice, that the Valley of the Mississippi is viewed by Catholic Europe, at the present time, as the land of Canaan was by the Hebrews in Egypt; while, with far more energy and enthusiasm than marked the career of those halting, hesitating Hebrews, they enter upon the work of possessing this “promised land.” In a beautiful village in Iowa, situated on the banks of the Mississippi river, only five years old when I visited the place, and yet containing 1,000 inhabitants, the only church edifice to be found was surmounted by “the cross.” A stranger would naturally infer, that a colony of Catholics had located there. And yet, I was told that there were but four Catholic families in the town! “Count them,” said my informant, “any way you please; count them up, or count them down, you will find but four families.” Your missionary, a most estimable young man, had been laboring there nearly a year; and his feeble, but united and enterprising church of about twenty members, were making a vigorous and exhausting effort to build a house of worship. I looked at the subscription paper, and saw the name of one man with $100 against it, and $50 against the name of another—both of them hard-working men, and in the East would be accounted men of small means. Others were subscribing in proportion. And yet, this Catholic church went up with the utmost apparent ease, on the central lot in the village, and for only four families. As I was wondering at the strange sight, I was told that $10,000 from Europe were expended in that Territory last year, in support of Catholic Missions. Their object, Sir, can be nothing less than the subjugation of the entire West to the spiritual dominion of Rome. This object they endeavor to accomplish, by seizing upon the centres of influence, and fortifying them with ecclesiastical and educational institutions. Here is wisdom. We cannot but commend them, in acting thus wisely for themselves. Were I a Roman Catholic, with my present views of the importance of that section of our country, I would do just as they are doing. So would we all. Let us, as Protestants, try to be as wise. Nothing short of an able, permanent, and well sustained ministry of the Word, together with those moral and educational appliances that always accompany it, can interpose an adequate check upon these encroachments of Papal power. And those friends of God and their country, scattered through all our new settlements, who rush together and unite their feeble forces to uphold this ordinance of Heaven, look to your Society with more intensity of interest than words can express. The rise and fall of contributions in its treasury, regulate the pulsations of hope and fear in thousands of hearts.

Nor do they over-estimate the value of this aid. The results that have already crowned your missionary labors in the West, show that they do not. These results, I am persuaded, are greater and more glorious than is generally imagined ; and as they strikingly illustrate the importance of this Society's work on that field, I shall be pardoned, I hope, if I occupy a few moments longer in alluding to them. Scarcely has one generation passed away, since the subject of "Western Missions" first began to be generally talked of in these eastern churches. It is but little more than half that time, since a national organization was attempted, with any reference to such an enterprise. It is true that missionaries from Connecticut and Massachusetts, and I believe from the eastern part of New York, were sent into some portions of that field 30 or 40 years ago, and continued to be sent from year to year. And wherever they concentrated their labors, there is now, comparatively, the garden of the Lord. But over other sections of that field, they were as lights, hung out at dreary intervals—just enough to make the darkness visible. The whole operation, thus far, was preliminary—"the voice of one crying in the wilderness"—till the organization of this Society was completed in 1826. And now, Sir, there are to be found in the Western States and Territories more than 1,000 churches of "like precious faith with us," that have been planted there and nurtured through the period of their infancy, by the friends of Home Missions. Yes, Sir, a thousand living churches of Christ, on that new field, brought into being by the instrumentality of Home Missions in so short a time ! Suppose these were all blotted out ; how many churches, that are one with us in christian doctrine and that co-operate with us in benevolent action, do you think would be left on that field ? To obtain an answer to this question, I have consulted the statistics of ecclesiastical bodies, in company with brethren on the ground, who were able to trace up each church to its origin. And the astonishing result is as follows. In Ohio, the best supplied state in the West, and which has been called "New England transplanted," there are but 16 churches, in our connexion, that sprung up without missionary culture. In Michigan, there are but 2. In Indiana, not one. In Illinois, there are 6. In Missouri, 4. In the two Territories of Iowa and Wisconsin, only one. And yet, there are to-day 345 churches in Ohio, which sprung into being under the auspices of Home Missions ; in Michigan, there are 142 ; in Indiana, 134 ; in Illinois, about 200 ; in Missouri, 51 ; in Iowa and Wisconsin, 99. So that in all these great states and Territories, where now more than 1,000 churches of Christ are "striving together with us for the faith of the Gospel," if you blot out those which have been planted and nourished up by the friends of Home Missions, there will be less than thirty ! Not thirty—on that important field, where the great battle is waging that will decide the fate of Protestant Christianity in this country, if not throughout the world, for ages to come—not thirty churches in a thousand, in our connexion, have been mustered and marshalled without the aid of Home Missions ! And even these few, which seem at first like exceptions to the general rule, can hardly be regarded as such ; for in four cases out of five they are colonies, sent off from those which were dependent on missionary aid in the days of their helpless infancy.

And what I have said of the churches, Mr. President, may with equal truth be said of those Colleges and Theological Seminaries in the West that are in sympathy with them. They sprung from the same seed. They grew from the same stock. It was the missionary, surveying the golden harvest fallen to the ground for lack of laborers from the distant East, who first felt the necessity of training up reapers on the field. It was the missionary, meeting his fellow missionary in the deep and lonely recesses of the wilderness, whose prayers first consecrated the spot of ground, that was destined to become a seat of learning in the new state. It was his voice that was first heard, invoking our christian charity in behalf of these educational efforts, that have given such glory to that section of our country. Our missionaries have been the founders and guardians, and the members of their congregations the chief and steadfast patrons of these institutions, wherever they have risen in the West. These must all be demolished, and the streams of holy influence that have emanated from them in every direction must be turned back, and we must look at the field as it would present itself to our view unblest by these redeeming influences, before we can fully understand how great and how glorious the results of this Society's labors have been. God be praised, that we can never attain to a full knowledge; for these can never be blotted out. These 1,000 churches, springing so suddenly into life, and out of weakness so soon becoming strong—these Colleges—these Theological Seminaries—these streams of holy influence that have issued and are now issuing from them—are as indestructible as that divine energy, working through christian benevolence, which brought them into being. Thus much we are permitted to know, with full assurance:—that our labor on this field "is not in vain in the Lord." An angel's tongue—an angel's trumpet—could not add emphasis to the assurance which the facts supply!

Address of Rev. Joseph P. Thompson, New York,

In support of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the influence which the Protestant Missionary exerts for the proper organization, regulation and general welfare of society at the West, entitles him to the confidence and support, not only of the Christian, but also of the patriot.

We are apt, Mr. President, to contemplate the Missionary, whether at home or abroad, too exclusively in the character of a minister of Christ, and to estimate the results of his labors by the number of souls which he gathers into the kingdom, or of churches which he organizes and sustains. Unquestionably, this is the grand view of his character and work, and should be prominent in his mind and ours. But, this is not all that he accomplishes. He sustains other relations—he does another work, which though secondary and subordinate to his great work, is second to it alone. He goes forth as the pioneer of civilization. Among the heathen, he is a great social reformer. At the West, he lays the foundations of society, and moulds the character of a new and growing people. His influence tends to elevate and purify the mass, to raise men in their physical, social and intellectual condition, as well as to impart to them the saving knowledge of the truth. This influence is generally less prominent than the other, yet it is one of the most important features of his work.

I need not enter into an extended argument to show the influence of Christianity on the social condition of man. We see it, as in a model, in the Sandwich Islands. Within a single generation, a people have there been raised from the depths of barbarism to a place among the civilized and christian powers of the world: A race of cannibals, now send their ambassador to the court of St. James. Even the land speculator acknowledges the value of the Gospel, as he marks out a site for a church here and there upon the map of his imaginary town or city, to promote the sale of adjacent lots. He knows that a town without churches is not fit to live in; that neither property nor life can be safe without the Gospel. No man is competent to trace the progress of society, and write the history of the past eighteen centuries, who is unwilling to concede to Christianity, degenerate as it was for ages, a most potent influence in producing that high state of civilization which we now witness in Europe. Infidels have often failed as historians, because through moral perverseness, they had neither the faculty to perceive, nor the candor to acknowledge the appropriate influence of the grandest moral element concerned in the work of human advancement. We owe all our civil privileges to the Gospel. To the Gospel we must look for the preservation of our freedom. Society every where will advance with the increasing purity and power of Christianity. Especially must Christianity organize and mould society at the West, if this nation is to become what it may, or continue what it is. The missionary must bear an important part in the work of civilization and reform.

But, the resolution speaks of the Protestant missionary as peculiarly fitted for this work. In my further remarks, therefore, I shall attempt to contrast his qualifications for it with those of the Romish priest. Let us compare these individuals in personal character and as related to their respective systems. I am not about to boast of the morality of the clergy. This is not the time, nor the exact latitude for that. Yet, Protestant clergymen as a body, need not shrink from a comparison with the Romish priesthood, in point of morals. I am perfectly willing to leave the comparison to be made, by those who cannot be accused of being religious partizans. Do not the men of the world know, that cases of immorality among the Protestant ministry of the United States, grievous and reproachful as they are, are comparatively rare—the exceptions to the general rule? And do they not know as well that cases of eminent piety, of marked purity of character and devotion of heart, are the exceptions among the Roman Catholic priesthood; that we must go back to a Thomas à Kempis or a Pascal, or search here and there in the cloister for those who can give character to the clergy of the Romish church? Is not the delinquency of a Protestant clergyman felt to be more calamitous to religion, more grossly inconsistent with his supposed character and principles, than that of a Romish or even semi-Romish bishop or priest? I ask these questions not in triumph, but in grief. The comparison is necessary, to show us what class of religious teachers are most to be desired at the West. It is as interesting to the patriot, as to the Christian. Moreover, an offender among the Protestant clergy, with few exceptions, is speedily deposed from his office. The clergy as a body, are jealous of their character. But is it so on the other hand?

Look, too, at the relations which these men respectively sustain to society. The Protestant missionary is ordinarily a man of family. He follows closely the example of Peter. Peter had a wife, for his wife's mother was sick of a fever. He follows the direction of Paul to Timothy; "a bishop, must be the husband of one wife;" that is "of one wife"—not more than one; but we may put the emphasis on the word must, and say that a minister should be a married man, if he would be thoroughly furnished for his work. The eccentric Emerson once said, that a preacher should so pervade his discourse with "the fire of his own soul," that his hearers could judge from it whether he had father, mother, wife or child. There is philosophy in the remark, though it is said that nothing could be conjectured from his own discourses, except perhaps, that he had had a father! The preacher should have all the sympathies of his nature in full play. He should be linked not only with the past—which he cannot avoid—but with the present and future generations. He should sustain the complete relations of a man to society. This is especially important, if he is to have part in the organization or moulding of society. The man of family, who has a wife and children to nourish and protect, feels, of necessity, a deeper interest in the laws and morals of the community, than he who has no one to care for but himself; certainly, far more than he who is under a vow never to marry. The Protestant missionary identifies himself with the community. The Romish priest can form no domestic relation, no local attachment, can have no home, no love for the soil on which he treads, as the birth-place and home of his children. He is, therefore, just the man to be employed as the tool of a foreign despot; just the man to place his allegiance to the Pope above his allegiance to the government that affords him protection. The celibacy of the clergy, tends directly to despotism and corruption. Let the patriot inquire if it is desirable that such men should obtain the ascendancy at the West.

Again, contrast, if you please, these two classes of men intellectually. And here I freely admit, and rejoice to do so, that among the Romish clergy there are many men of high intellectual standing. I honor their Wiseman for his scientific attainments, and their Moehler for his profound discrimination in theology. But, what is the intellectual character of the Roman Catholic clergy, as a mass? They may know enough of barbarous Latin to go through their services, but are they competent to instruct men in the important doctrines of the Scriptures? Can they command respect for their general intelligence? Look, on the other side, at our missionaries. I refer, particularly, to those who are sent out under the auspices of this and kindred institutions. They are, for the most part, educated men—men of learning—often of high scientific acquirements—men, worthy of the name of scholars. Which of these is best fitted to organize society at the West, and mould its heterogeneous elements into one? Which can contribute the most to the general welfare of the place in which he may be located?

I might pursue these contrasts to a greater extent; but I must turn your attention to these individuals as related to their respective systems. What are those systems, and their bearings on society? Romanism, on the one hand, degrades those who come under its influence. I am not about to enter here on the disputed question, whether the Roman Catholic church allows her members to read the word of God. We all know that the decrees of her Councils and Bulls of her Popes, forbid any such privilege to the laity at large; and we know, on the other hand, that the force of public sentiment in this country has led to the publication of their version, for general diffusion. We should rejoice at this; for the Douay Bible is far better than none. In some respects, it is a most excellent version. But, as I have said, the Roman Catholic system degrades all who come under its power. It puts the individual away from God, and under the power of his priest. It is a system of salvation, not by faith, but by ordinances, by sacraments, by manipulations and these things are valid when performed by a certain set of men, who affirm, that what is done by them on earth, is accredited in heaven. Once persuade me of this fully—make me feel my absolute dependence on another for the pardon of sin and everlasting life, and I am ready to endure any torture, make any sacrifice, undergo any privation which he may exact of me. He has the most complete sway over me, that one human being can have over another. There, lies the tyranny of the system. It is terrific in practice, as well as in theory. But, it is the foundation of the whole scheme of salvation by merit. It is in the system, and you cannot get it out.

But look, on the other hand, at Protestantism in its treatment of the individual. It interposes nothing between the soul and God, but the One Mediator. It makes man great, by giving him great things to do, and showing him that God has done great things for him. It makes more of the man, than of the priest or king. Hence, the spirit of Protestantism is the spirit of freedom. The freedom of the world, is Protestant freedom. What is the freedom of Great Britain? Freedom, won by the nerve and blood of men who went from their knees to the field of battle, and who marched to the burial of their comrades, singing the Psalms of David! And whence came the liberty which we enjoy? It was the desire of religious liberty—the Protestant spirit, that led our Pilgrim fathers to brave the storms of winter, and the perils of the sea, and of the wilderness. On that bleak, frozen rock, they raised an altar at once to freedom and to God.

“Amid the storm they sang;
And the stars heard, and the sea,
And the sounding aisles of the dim wood rang
With the anthem of the free.”

Surely, this is the spirit most congenial with our institutions; this the influence which is to sustain and perpetuate them.

Again;—the Romish system not only degrades, but corrupts those who come under its influence. In proof of this assertion, I need only refer you to one single feature of the system. I should be ashamed—I would not dare to repeat in the hearing of this audience, the formulas of confession given in Den's Theology—a work studied by every Irish Catholic priest before he comes to this country. The schedule of questions to be asked at the confessional is such, that one who had studied all the forms of vice which the most bestial sensuality ever indulged in, or the most bloated imagination ever invented, could not have prepared any thing more disgusting than is here presented. Yet, this is the system now working its way at the West. On the other hand, Protestantism purifies, and aims at a higher elevation of character. The first great thing it asks for, and with which only it is satisfied, is a thorough renovation of the heart.

But not to dwell longer on this topic let us look a moment at facts. Compare the effects of these two systems, as seen upon the page of history. Look at the face of the world now. Look at Spain, that region of darkness and evil; at Italy, the land of oppression, pollution and defilement. Compare the Catholic states of Germany with the Protestant—the Protestant cantons of Switzerland with the Catholic. Look at the general thrift prevailing under Protestant, and the degradation under Romish influences; and you have a fair illustration of the nature of the two systems, and of what we may expect from either in our own land. I think, then, I can venture to make the appeal not only to Christians, but to patriots, to give their support to those who are interested in and are working for the temporal, as well as spiritual good of the West.

And as an encouragement to the support of our Home Missionary efforts, let us look briefly at the prospect of the success of Protestant influences at the West. They are congenial with the spirit of our country and of the age. It is only where the people are uneducated and destitute of spiritual knowledge, that the Romanist has any advantage over us. He has it, when he goes to heathen lands and finds a system shaped to his purposes, which he has only to baptize and forthwith he counts a nation of converts. But, it is not so here. The Romanist must meet us on this soil, and our western missionaries, not with the dungeon, with the fire or faggot, but with argument. Neither will he meet a people sunk in degradation, ready to embrace any new system which may offer any apparent relief; but he will meet New England people, the descendants of an intelligent race—men having the Bible in their hands; and he must meet sermon with sermon, book with book.

It is interesting to notice how gradually, yet surely, the authority of the Romish priest is breaking down under the freedom of our institutions. I was very much gratified at an address on that point, this morning, before the Tract Society; and it called to my mind an incident that occurred on board of a steamboat the other day, showing the gradual emancipation of the Roman Catholic mind here, from the bondage of the priesthood. I entered into conversation with a gentleman respecting the Catholics, and advocated the kind and generous treatment of those whom God had cast upon our shores to be enlightened and saved; that while opposing the system, we should deal gently with its victims. Among other things, I said that it was better to educate the Roman Catholic without the Bible, than to tell him he must read our version of it, or not be educated at all. An honest looking son of the Isle, who had been an attentive listener, now stepped up and said, "I like your way of speaking on this subject, sir; if every body talked as you do, we would not feel hard against the Protestants." I asked him why he supposed I spoke thus kindly. He replied, "I suppose you learned it out of the Bible, and that you are a good man." "But," said I, "are there any good men out of the Catholic church?" he said, "there were many who would go to heaven." "Well now," said I, "if, as you admit there are good men out of your church, there must be some reason for it. What makes them good men? Are they not so because they read the Bible, and live according to its precepts? Does not this prove the truth of their religion, for you have admitted that if a man lives according to the Bible, he will get to heaven?" He started at this conclusion, but he could not retract his words. "Now then suppose," said I, "that a man does not live up to the Bible, will he get to heaven? How will he manage? Suppose I lived up to the Bible, and you did not, could I give you any of my goodness to make up your deficiencies?" "Ah!" said he, "I see what you are coming at; but I don't know as you could." "Then," continued I, "you have admitted that no man can deliver you from sin, that unless you believe in the Lord Jesus Christ you cannot be saved." "Oh but," said he, "you must believe in the church too. Doesn't the Bible say, Whosoever's sins ye remit, &c. Has not the priest power to forgive sins." "No," I replied; "for allowing your interpretation of the passage to be correct, how can you show that the priest has the power of an apostle? Could a priest raise a dead man from the grave?" "No." "Could the Pope do it?" He hesitated to answer this question, and it was interesting to watch the movement of his mind—the struggle between native good sense and engrafted superstition. "Sir," said he at last in his fine rich brogue, "Sure an' I'd like to see it first; an' faith if I'd believe it then!" So you see I made him a Protestant, though he wouldn't own the name. And it matters not what name he lives under, if he thinks for himself. He invited me to visit him at his house on arriving in the city. Thus, Romanists may be approached and won to the truth by candor and kindness, and we have every advantage. The Catholic priest must meet the Protestant missionary, in the field of argument. He must concede the right of private judgment, and when he does that, his "occupation's gone." The Pope couldn't do a better service to Protestantism, than to visit this country and show that he is but a man, and not much even at that. He could make no impression by his gorgeous trappings; not half as much as Herr Driesbach with his wild animals. He would gain no converts by performing high mass. He must enter into argument; and the young Chinese who appeared on the platform to-day, could make converts faster than he. We have nothing to fear from Romanism, if we sustain our schools and colleges and missionaries. But, to enable the missionary to do his work, we must furnish him with the means of mental discipline. His greatest want is the want of books. Let us see that it is well supplied. Let us remember that his is a work like that of our fathers. Their's was not the work of a day. It was an enterprise for time and for the world, and time is revealing, and the world is beholding more and more of its naked and imperishable grandeur.

Address of Rev. N. S. S. Beman, D. D., Troy, N. Y.

Dr. Beman having been called upon unexpectedly remarked in substance as follows:

I always regret the necessity of standing in another man's place, as I find it somewhat difficult to fill my own; and I assure this audience, that when I promise a very short speech, it will be short. And that promise I make now. My theme is this Society. We all know what Society means, we shall not need to open Webster's Dictionary to ascertain what it is. We are associated together for missionary purposes; and a missionary society, is nothing more nor less, than the church of Christ, operating in one of its authorized modes of spiritual action. Not an ecclesiastical arrangement particularly, but an organization to carry out the command of the Lord Jesus given to his disciples as ministers and christians, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." And we are assembled for this purpose. It is an AMERICAN, Home Missionary Society. We are all Americans; and the very name, as it stands associated with missions, with the sweet word Home interposed, thrills along every heart-string, and touches the very finest sensibilities of our nature. Four sweeter words were never joined in human language, AMERICAN—HOME—MISSIONARY—SOCIETY. I was present at its birth. I have traced, with the better sensibilities of my heart its early and more recent history, and if there is an institution under the broad heavens which hang over us, that stands firm as an eternal rock, or that engages more of my affections than any other, it is the American Home Missionary Society, the church of Jesus Christ—upon the soil of our birth and our affections, the land of Puritan Christianity—carrying out the command of Jesus Christ to evangelize the world.

Are we doing enough for this Society? I was delighted to hear, in common with others, that it is supporting 940 missionaries. It seemed good to hear it.

It was like news from a far country. And I rejoice that 23 out of the 26 of these United States are embraced in these benevolent operations; and that congregations to the number of 1,285 have had the bread of life broken unto them through this Society. Why, my heart is full when I think of it, and I want to lift it up in holy gratitude to Heaven, and give my humble thanks to those servants of the Lord, and of this Society, who are performing this great work! I say this as no empty compliment, but because my heart feels it. But are we doing enough? The brother, to whose remarks I can respond with every sentiment of my heart, and every feeling of experience, has stated what has been done for the West. We understand from the report that you have raised $122,000, a large portion of it for the West. But do you know the fact, that the same Romanism that has been so clearly depicted before us, is expending much more than this? Seven hundred thousand dollars have been laid out in this country, in four years for planting and propagating the abomination of all spiritual abominations! In the years 1840-'41-'42 and '43—but four years—there were between 7 and 800,000 dollars expended by Romanists to convert the land, that boasts of her Plymouth rock, and of her patriotism, and that endorses, in her Home Missionary Society, the religion of the Bible—the religion which consults no Pope, but places all ministers on an equal footing, and makes every man individually responsible to God. Are we doing enough for this Society? Let us do our duty, our WHOLE DUTY to God and our brethren, and we shall receive a recompense on earth, and a more blessed crown in heaven!

Address of Rev. Lyman Beecher, D. D., Cincinnati, O.

[It had been announced that he would offer a resolution.]

I have no resolution to offer, but my determination to sustain the cause of Home Missions, with all the powers of heart and mind God has given me. This is my resolution, and it is a resolution which I made not for the Home Missionary Society particularly, but for Home Missions in general—every mission to the new settlements. It is the resolution I made when licensed to preach the Gospel, and when I was settled on the confines of the Atlantic. Why, I remember when there was no Home Missionary Society—when there was no Connecticut or Massachusetts Missionary Society for the new settlements.

But, I think I had better not look so far back, for it may tempt me to an egotism I should not like to be guilty of. And yet, it seems proper to talk of years gone by, in connexion with this Society and many similar institutions—to recount the great things that have been done and to say, "What hath God wrought!" I remember this, that the first missionary that broke out of Connecticut went to Vermont, following the emigrants from Connecticut, at a time when Dr. Dwight thought it was a matter of painful doubt, which would predominate in that state, Christianity or infidelity. The pulpit of the man who went out, was supplied by the neighboring ministers; and, on his return, another took his place, and so on; and that was the beginning of our domestic missionary societies.

Well, where were these missionaries sent to, besides Vermont? Why, they went, some up the Hudson, some up the Mohawk to Utica, and some beyond. Then, the Great West was Central and Western New York. I remember when the Genessee country was first explored, by a wealthy family who lived in my own neighborhood. They swore they were born to be rich, and would be. But, they had to cut their way to their possessions, for forty or fifty miles through the woods. And what do you think of the efforts made for Home Missions in those days? Why, the Society had to get a brief from the Governor to take up collections in all the churches in the state once a year. And when the government was revolutionized by the democracy, there was trembling all through the state, lest our Missionary Society should fall, because we had no governmental authority. And what contributions do you think were made? In the congregation in which I was settled—after leaving Long Island, in 1810, after a service of 10 years there—at Litchfield, there were two families, worth half a million a piece; and the authorized contributions amounted sometimes to $15—sometimes $20; when we got up to $30 we stared and felt large! There is not one of the volunteer associations of this day that does not now collect double the amount at every contribution—Home Missions, Foreign Missions, Education, Tract, Bible, and all.

I recollect when I first went to Long Island, a youth of 23 or more, 24 perhaps, I got up one morning very early and went to the door, and it was a most beautiful morning; it made my heart glad. I looked over to the hills by the church, and I saw a man raising his jacket on a pole, as a signal to the fishermen that there was a whale in the offing. I turned on my heel, went in, took my hat and went off in silence. And when I got to the shore, I found a boat all manned, but one man. And without saying a word, I jumped in and took the oar. We pulled hard, and very soon drew near the whale. But that was all that we could do. The pot boiled just ahead of us, and the harpoon man would get just ready to strike. But we could not come near enough; and the cry was, "Pull boys, pull!" And we did pull, almost half a day, until I began to be so tired, I longed to strike the whale, so that she might carry us, and I might rest. And now, having been forty-five years on this track, pulling and pushing, and more of pushing than pulling perhaps, I began to think that it was time to rest. But, on looking round me, and seeing the young men coming up and chasing away the darkness of which they speak, and feeling the sympathy of their young, beating hearts, I begin to feel young again; and I ask for a furlough from heaven, if God pleases, to work with you. I don't want to enter into rest, till the whale is taken—till my country is safe. Then I shall feel at ease, for that will turn the balance for the world.

In those days of which I have been speaking, I little thought I should come from the West—from Ohio, where there was not then a single settler, to New York, and New England, and Philadelphia, again, and again, and again, and again to plead the cause of the West. And I really have sometimes had hard work. At first, things went easy; and afterwards there came a retrocession, and an almost total forgetfulness of the interests of the West. And the last time before this that I came here, it was hard; my soul sunk within me. And yet, I could perceive that the waters were beginning to flow again, and since, they have been flowing on; and that, which was at first a rivulet which a man could step over, has been growing deeper and broader, till it promises to become an impassable river, which shall make glad the city of our God.

It seems to me to be the will of God, that the energies of the eastern churches should be concentrated especially on the West. For there never was a field opened by Heaven before, with such an extended boundary, such a multitude of present and prospective population, such power of mind, such stimulation of motives, such exuberance of soil, such facilities for arts and commerce. The sun has never shone on such a nation, rising up so suddenly as this has risen, and will rise. It is one of those that are born in a day. The New England states grew up in the slow progress of two hundred years. But, if we do not settle the destiny of the West in fifty—nay, I believe in thirty—in twenty years, it will be settled by governments beyond the Atlantic. What we do, we must do quickly. And my confidence is in God. What he has determined, he will accomplish. I believe he has opened this field to the American Home Missionary Society, and that he will open the hearts of his people to aid them in their blessed work.

In former speeches I have said, give us a foothold at the West—plant churches for us, and we will soon shake hands with you across the Alleghany; and then if you want any thing, come to us. I believe that will come to pass. We are coming together more and more; and there is a willing heart and an open hand there. And now, if we labor in unison, we are two great bands of mighty strength, and nothing will be withheld from us that we desire to have. I have said that this work is the greatest ever committed to human agency, and that it must be done soon. And it would be a great work, if we had only to enlighten the ignorance of our own population. If we had to furnish religious and literary institutions for a people well-disposed and homogeneous, it would still be a great labor, to do that in twenty or thirty years, which our ancestors took two hundred to accomplish. But, not only have we this to do. We have also to encounter the various eccentricities of strangers, of different tongues, and habits, and systems of government and of worship. And the question is, how shall this array of difficulties be met; for it cannot be denied that they are formidable. I answer, we must not despond. God forbid. It would be high treason against Heaven, to discredit the promises of God and the signs of the times, and would paralyze the hands and heart of the church. Nor is there cause for it. All these indications are in our favor; and there is mind, and heart, and property enough in these two bands on each side, to do the work. Nor is there the least danger, provided—we—do our duty. But, we must not presume. If Noah had presumed, and folded his hands because God was able and could do the work, he would have been swept away with the unbelieving world, and so shall we. The work of primitive Christians was a great work; but ours is greater; and it calls for such concert and energy, as have never been seen before. The influence, by which this great work is to be achieved, must be permanent, constant, not ephemeral. This is the analogy of Heaven's works. If God had entrusted the illumination of the material system to man, it would have been unsteady and flickering; and so he appointed the sun to rule the day. So is it in the moral world. Great works are never entrusted to ephemeral action. There must be organization and a permanent concert of action, to make the work mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds. And in this manner, we may do what we will.

I shall take the liberty, without binding myself to a very strict method, to suggest some of the things, which a long residence and attentive observation on the ground have satisfied me that the West needs. And I remark, in the first place, that we do not need constitutions or laws; we have good ones now, if they are well administered. We do not need armies and navies, nor is any intellectual culture, any correct morality of life, or any nominal Christianity sufficient to meet the exigencies of the case. No munificent endowments, or ornamental accomplishments can do it; no power of argument, no fascinations of eloquence will avail; all these are like splendid sepulchres instead of the birth-place of souls. How then can our national prosperity be consummated? I answer, by the foolishness of preaching and by the power of the Holy Ghost. Here, we have the whole secret. We must have ministers, organized churches, and the preaching of the Gospel with the Holy Ghost sent down from on high. And if there ever was a cheaper or a more simple expedient for national prosperity, for present well-being, for terrestrial immortality, I have never heard of it. Nothing but a revival of religion, pure and rapid and powerful and continued, can save us, and this can.

Now, to secure such a result, we need at the West, clear, discriminating, doctrinal preaching. The doctrines of the Bible, comprehending the moral power of God's government, the remedial system, the incarnation of Christ, the atonement, justification by faith, the free agency of man, his incorrigible enmity to God, and his dependence on God to make him willing to accept his offered grace—these are the doctrines that first broke the Papal power, and blew the resurrection trumpet of civil and religious liberty. Brought hither by our ancestors, of blessed memory, they gave birth to a revival which lasted 60 years. Then came a holding back of these doctrines, a lowering of them down, and an approximation to cold formalities, which brought in a suspension of the divine influence in New England for 70 years. And then was Jonathan Edwards raised up, by God, to blow the trumpet again. With him, commenced another era when the doctrines of the Bible were preached in purity and power. His defence of the Calvinistic system, built up the ministry of New England and of half the continent. His expositions became New England doctrines, which have been associated, from that time to this, with revivals and missions. There have been no such revivals on earth, as those which followed the preaching of Edwards and his disciples. Slow and infrequent at first, they continued to increase, until now we see pale faces, because there has been a suspension of the divine influence for one or nearly two years. Once, revivals were thought to be frequent, if they came once in twenty years, and then in ten; and I remember, when one came after five years suspension, that we thought the millennium was at the door. We used to think that cities were incapable of a revival. Now, they are the strong holds of God and of his Son. It was never thought that a revival could occur in college; and now, we have an annual prayer meeting for colleges, and in every case, they have been answered in more than one college.

The doctrines of Calvin, as sketched by Edwards, should be defined, stated, and thoroughly explained, so that they cannot be misunderstood. If we do not preach them so as to make them felt, we preach them in vain. When the doctrines have been fairly stated, and objections to them drawn out, they should be answered. And, then, the application of them should be clear, affectionate, pungent and powerful, so as to make every sinner feel that they are directed to him, and to no one else. General truths, never awaken any body. Truth must be put in a rifle, and you must take sight—then you will do execution. If you scatter general truths at random, it were as well to empty an apothecary's shop upon a patient, and expect the right medicine to hit him. No man ever followed the track I have indicated, so well as Edwards. He is full of definition. He never beat the air. He knew exactly what he meant, and he stated it with the simplicity of childhood and with the clearness of the sun. And then he proved what he had stated, by scripture argument which was perfectly unanswerable. His arguments were overpowering, his answer to objections demolishing, and his application, as terrible as the day of judgment. I have never read any thing like them. And I have thought, that if I had heard them with an awakened conscience, they would have killed me, as they did kill many a sinner. There cannot be, it seems to me, greater trembling at the day of judgment, than there was at East Windsor, when he preached on "Sinners in the hands of an angry God," and was forced to stop till the sobbing ceased, before he could conclude. I hope the day may never come, when any master of logic shall supersede Edwards; or when any sentimental sermons shall take the place of his, or any painted rainbows be substituted for his strong, clear, terrible preaching. God forbid, that the bones and sinews should become effeminate in this way. Let the sword of the Spirit be wielded, as Edwards wielded it, and who is afraid of Popery? There is more power of argument in the writings of Edwards, than in all books ever published besides. No other man ever wrote like it. If there ever was another such I thank God for it, for then we have two, greater than any other two. I have been pained at the apprehension expressed, that the style of our preaching is becoming effeminate, beautiful—the worst attribute a style in the pulpit can possibly have. Such as I have described, as the preaching of Edwards, was the preaching also of Brainerd and of Payson. And such, I may say too, was that of Bellamy. He had very little eloquence, but that of doctrinal preaching. Many supposed he must be a great orator, but when they came to hear and admire, they were pricked in their hearts. Though sometimes too dilatory in bringing his strong points before his hearers and going too much into detail, yet his preaching was clear as crystal, and mighty to convince, and no audience were ever better indoctrinated than his.

I cannot close without saying, that experimental preaching is needed at the West,—to secure purity of revivals, and to give clear and just conceptions of holiness. Rarely have I found a student, who could give a precise and original definition of holiness; and yet, it is nothing but love to God—that disinterested benevolence which is the fulfilling of the law, and the formation of christian character and christian graces. It is the generic principle of all religion, and it is necessary that correct views of it should supersede deception in revivals, confidence in natural affections, in amiable dispositions, and in a selfish love of God, based on the fact that he loved and saved us ; and supersede many other counterfeits of holiness, which are not holiness. In the time of Edwards, knowledge in these subjects had declined, and the revivals therefore degenerated through a false zeal, into fanaticism and fallacious indications of religion. It was at this time, that Edwards was called forth by Heaven to write his Treatise on Religious Affections—a book, comprising more scientific knowledge of man and of the controlling principles of the human heart, and more scriptural discrimination and doctrinal exposition of true religion, than were ever embodied by man before. I would recommend to all young men, who intend to preach the Gospel as it should be, to read it ; and to read Bellamy on the “Glory of the Gospel.”

I have nothing to add, but to state that we need at the West, not so much common schools, as such schools under evangelical influences ; for education, without religion, is worse than none. and common schools, where the Bible is excluded and children have little restraint and little religious instruction, are invariably corrupting in their effects. We need also academies, in which the influence of the Bible shall predominate. In some respects, the Roman Catholics are ahead of us—in their choice of locations—their endowments—their costly edifices. In one thing, however, we have the advantage of them. Their cathedrals cannot speak, their churches cannot talk, and their Bibles don't talk ; and they cannot stand before the evangelical preaching of the word of God.

These things are only relatively lacking at the West. We have some schools under evangelical influences, and colleges and seminaries whose students are establishing a high character as doctrinal preachers, and are founding churches at the West on this firm basis. We need, too, more care in examining candidates for admission to the churches ; one of the greatest obstacles to our growth, is the haste so frequently manifested in this respect. It causes a low estimate of the church in the eyes of the world, and neutralizes her power.

Let these thoughts lodge in your minds, and let us give thanks, and take courage ; and let the ministry, which you send us, be baptized in these views ; and then direct all your energies to the multiplication of ministers. Here is the point. Gain this, and you gain all. We have room for all you will send. The day of battle is approaching ; the enemy stands in close ranks awaiting our approach ; we should be so prepared, as to run to meet him !

Our Country.

Consequences of a failure to bring our country under the Gospel.

If our land should ever experience a famine of the Word, the world at large would suffer deeply, while here at home there would be exhibited a fearful picture of depravity. The terror of such a scene imagination can scarcely conceive, or the pen portray. When that famine shall come in its fulness, should the neglect of the church ever provoke God to send it upon us, it will distance in horror all the anguish and desolation of physical starvation. Then the pulpit will be stricken dumb, or the voice that shall issue from it will be that of a lying spirit. Then our churches will be tenantless of worshippers, or crowded only with those who bow before a polluted deity of the imagination. Then the Word of God will be a book for the study of the antiquarian. Then Venus will be a goddess, and brothel temples to her honor will open their gates to a crowd of worshippers. Then Bacchus will be a god ; the smouldering fires upon his altars will blaze out on every hill and every wall ; the smoke of his distilleries will cloud the heavens ; the streets will again resound with his infernal orgies, while youth, and manhood, and age, will celebrate his worship in free libations of the sparkling goblet. For when once the truth is cast down, and the voice of God is unheard, your resolutions and pledges will prove straws in the whirlwind. Then, side by side Infdelity and Popery may rear their halls of reason and their proud cathedrals; for a religion that lives in forms is a natural and tolerant ally of that infidelity which seeks to exterminate not the outward show, but the inward life of true piety. The mummery of the priest will hide the heart of the infidel, and the corruption of hypocrisy strike hands with the corruption of the bold blasphemer. Then the state will be the synonyme of anarchy—Law the refuge and charter of violence—Justice the incarnation of partiality and revenge. Then stations of power will be the prizes of an ambition instinct with outrage and crime. Then the domestic altar will be overturned, the fireside will become a polluted place, and home will speak only of hell.

Your schools, if they still live amidst such a storm, will educate men to villany, and stimulate children to crime. Revivals will cease; the Sabbath bell will be heard no more, or heard only as the dirge of all that is holy and lovely. The most sacred truths and ordinances of religion will become the sport of ribald tongues. Then the theatre, ever living with greatest vigor in times of greatest corruption, will be the crowded resort of the multitudes, who seek to drown their terrible present ills in its fictitious scenes and baseless excitements; while by its side will be seen the hall of the gambler—the steaming fountains of the drunkard—the temple of the courtesan. Then nightly merriment will issue in nightly broils, and frivolous amusements will consume the time that labor claims for her own. Then war will become the sport of the nation, and her heartless myriads will rush like blinded insects into the flame of that all-consuming fire—glory.

In such a sea of terror, crime and wo, our national institutions will go down; while energetic men, bold in their aims and strong in their purposes, will rise to the surface, and on the wreck of all that is excellent, rear the fabric of their despotic ambition. And to consummate the scene, the curse of Jehovah resting on the people, will consume their spirits, and send them in unregenerate crowds and premature age, down to the abode of the lost.

The Contrast.

It becomes us to learn wisdom from the history of other nations. Need we be pointed for the thousandth time to the example of revolutionary France, in proof that no nation can retain her liberty when she has lost her religion? On this point, the history of the South American Republics is to us full of instruction. Why have they been the theatres of continual discord, civil war and military despotism? The answer is at hand. The founders of these republics have not the wisdom and comprehensive views of our ancestors: they had never breathed the pure air of civil and religious freedom; they were not thoroughly acquainted with the word of God, and did not make its principles, the basis of their institutions; they understood not that first great principle of religious freedom, the right of private judgment: they were educated under a system of religion which forbids men this right: which takes both their consciences and their intellects into its own keeping: which dreads as the greatest possible evil, the general diffusion of knowledge: whose two main pillars of support are the ignorance of the people, and the despotism of the priesthood. The governments which they founded are like the minds of their founders, destitute of all the essential elements of liberty and perpetuity.

Our ancestors, on the contrary, understood the principles of freedom: they saw that the amount of personal liberty which the members of any community can enjoy, must always be as its knowledge and piety: and they begun, like wise master builders, by laying broad and deep the foundations of freedom in the thorough religious and intellectual education of their children.

To the prevalence of the Gospel of Jesus Christ in the hearts of our countrymen we are indebted for the national prosperity which we have hitherto enjoyed, and to the same source must we look for our future prosperity.

The Saxon race.

There is no nation in the world that possesses greater energy of character or mightier resources than the United States. As the Saxon is the predominating element in our language, so is it also in our national character. The history of England from the landing of Hengist and Horsa on her shores to the present hour is an illustration, on a stupendous scale, of the energy of the Saxon race. To this race we belong. It was because our fathers were Englishmen, and felt the blood of Englishmen coursing through their veins, that they took up arms, in their poverty and weakness, against the oppression of England, and maintained a successful conflict with the fleets and armies of the richest, the bravest, the best disciplined, and the most powerful nation on the globe. And the same vigor of character which carried them through the war of the revolution, is now manifesting itself in all the departments of civil and social life.

Catholic Missions in America.

Rome has laid her plans broad and comprehensive to take this mighty region captive to her superstition, and is expending more money upon it than the American Board upon all her stations in the foreign field. If we do our duty, she cannot succeed. But if we prove slothful servants, God may allow her to triumph, and this will be such a curse to the world as fills the imagination with horror at the bare idea of its possibility.

The West.Probable distribution of population and political influence in this country.

There are many reasons why the population of this country will not accumulate as rapidly on the Atlantic slope, as in past periods of our history. It has already reached a degree of density, in which competition in all the pursuits of life is so great, and the soil so valuable, as to hold out inducements to migrate towards regions where the lands are less costly, and the energies of every man may find free scope. Hence the ratio of increase is, and must long continue to be, greatest in the regions lying west of the Alleghanies.

In illustration of this subject, let the following facts be considered:

When the census of 1790 was taken, the population was found mainly on the 300,000 square miles of the Atlantic slope, and presented an average of about 13 to the square mile.

In 1800, the settlements had spread into the region watered by the Ohio and its tributaries, and towards the Gulf of Mexico. This was "the West" of that day, containing about 484,727 souls, on an area of 350,000 square miles; or less than 1.4 to each square mile.

In 1810, Illinois, Missouri and Michigan come more into view, and their area added to that previously considered, gives to the West 526,000 square miles; and the census showed a population of 1,098,319—a fraction over 2 to the square mile. Even the densest portion of the western settlements, (parts of Kentucky, Tennessee and Ohio,) did not reach 8 to the square mile.

At the time of the census of 1820, the area above included in the West, had about 4 to the square mile—having risen to 2,217,464—or more than doubled in ten years, from 1810 to 1820.

In the next ten years, ending 1830, the census showed an aggregate of 3,672,569, the ratio of increase was about 1.7, and the distribution fell short of 7 to the square mile.

The fifth census, (that of 1840,) shows on this field, including a few settlements in Wisconsin and Iowa, 5,302,918 inhabitants, and yet only a fraction over 10 to the square mile.

It may also be called to mind that the combined region under immediate review, does not include all of the "Western country" embraced by the census of 1840. Every principle applicable to the sections named applies also to the western parts of New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

---------------------------	-------------------

But the above calculation does not extend to the whole of the available territory which is destined to belong to the "central basin." "If a line be drawn from the Gulf of Mexico, along the western borders of Louisiana, Arkansas, and Missouri and from the northwestern angle of the latter up the Missouri river to Mandan villages, and thence due north to latitude 49°, the space left between such a line and the Atlantic ocean, comprises, to a small comparative fraction, 1,300,000 square miles. We have already seen that the Atlantic slope contains 300,000 square miles, which, if deducted from the whole extent as above, leaves 1,000,000 of square miles between the Appalachian mountains and the central line we have traced. This great central region, by the census of 1840, had a distributive population differing little from eight to the square mile."

Now, what are the conclusions which we are to draw from these facts?

Obviously they are such as these.

1. The West has but taken its first infantile steps in that career of progress to which it is destined. It has, after all its increase, reached only ten to the square mile, which is less than one-sixth of some of the Atlantic portions of inferior soil. If, with all the disadvantages of an untamed wilderness, covered with forests and infested with savages and wild beasts, it has risen in so short a period to its present prosperity, and yet has so great a portion of its capabilities unoccupied, what may it not be expected yet to become!

2. Another inference from this progressive growth of the West, respects its political control over the destinies of the whole nation. This million of square miles which will thus lie along either side of the Mississippi, it will be seen, includes no territory that is either broken by rocky ranges of mountains, or covered by deserts. It is all adapted to the use of man, and perhaps there is none of it, that will not favorably compare for agricultural purposes, with the North Eastern States of the Union. Its population, we have seen, was, in 1840, 6,756,422. The ratio of decennial increase for forty years has been 1.82; which in 1850 will give to the West a population of 12,296,708. Deducting this from the whole population of the United States for 1850, as estimated in the foregoing tables, and there remain for the Atlantic slope, 10,841,256. It follows therefore, that in five years, the population of "the central basin" will have a majority of nearly a million and a half, enough to send twenty representatives to Congress, and to hold effectually the balance of power in all national questions. This is rendered the more probable by the fact, that by the last apportionment of representatives, the Eastern states lost 31, while the Western gained 11, making a difference of 42 votes.

In view of such conclusions as this, how immeasurably important is the PRESENT HOUR in forming the character of those who are to be the masters of this Great Republic? Whatever work of benevolence be postponed, this must not be; whatever portion of our country is neglected, the West must continue to receive our most strenuous efforts. With some sections of our land and the world, five or ten years may make little difference,—may even increase the facilities for their conversion. But with regard to the Valley of the West, no tongue can tell the preciousness of every passing day in its bearings on the destiny of America and the World.

The West as it was.

I recently met an aged disciple, who well recollects the time when there were but three Presbyterian and not one Congregational minister west of the Allegany Mountains. The great West was then the habitation of wild beasts, and "men more fierce and wild than they." In imagination I beheld the large and populous states—the growing towns—the teeming cities, and the ceaseless tide of immigration rushing on to the western ocean; and I could but exclaim—"What hath God wrought?" in the age of one man! Did the eye of man ever behold the like before? Hath the ear ever heard it? Can the annals of history show its parallel? Is not the past, the precursor of a coming population, that for multitude shall astonish the eyes of every beholder; and of events of such thrilling interest—"At which the ears of every one that heareth them shall tingle?"

Now is the time!

In looking over this field of labor, and seeing the importance of now bringing the public mind under the control of religious truth, I often feel as though I wanted the strength to do the labor of ten ministers. I am sure I should not want for work. How much easier is it now, when society is in a forming state, to mould its feature, than it will be to change them when once formed. The metal in a state of fusion is easily fashioned. Let it congeal, and it will require much labor to reduce it to the same state of fusion again. This illustrates the present and prospective condition of the West.

What would the West have been, but for Home Missions?

If any can tell what the population, holding in their hands the destinies of this country, would by this time have become, without the Gospel—what they would have made the country, by their influence in the councils of the nation, and by the unrestrained development of the selfish principle in its commercial transactions—what, moreover, would have been the character, which, by the accelerating accumulations of depravity, they would have transmitted to the multiplied millions of the next generation—and what, beyond all, would have been the destiny for eternity of the men of the present, and the untold millions of succeeding ages—then may they begin to estimate the importance to the West, and to our whole country, of the cause of Home Missions. But before they can approach a computation of the real magnitude and importance of this enterprise, they must calculate the influence which our nation is yet to exert upon the world.

The church not aware of her position.

We are not yet, as a people, sensible of the dangers that threaten us; and of the importance to ourselves and to the world, of greater efforts to sustain and extend, especially through this Great Valley of the West, the influence and institutions of the Gospel. The fact, that hitherto the population of this valley has doubled every ten years, and now amounts to near eight millions, is familiar to very many; and it is equally easy to understand, that continuing to increase in the same ratio, we shall, in ten years more, have here a population of fifteen millions, and in twenty years, of thirty millions, and that still it will go on, rapidly increasing until it shall have doubled again and again. But do we equally feel the important influence which the vigorous prosecution of the Home Missionary work at the present time, even during this now present year, will have upon the moral character and destiny of these millions, and through them, upon the destiny of our land and the interests of the world? Time will not wait the tardy movements of the church. These gathering millions will not wait. They will soon be here. And if they are to be enlightened and pious citizens, whose influence shall be safe to our country and a blessing to the world, the parents who are to train them must now be brought under gospel influence, and enjoy with their families gospel institutions. But this cannot be done without a very great increase of missionary effort.

Infancy of Christians in the West.

The stern old fathers in the communities of the East, long fed on the "strong meat" of Christian doctrine, and habituated to the staid and regular operation of causes, woven into the texture of society by their ancestors, can scarcely make due allowance for the immaturity of principle, and unsteadiness in practice, often seen in churches in the new states. They forget that the missionary has to deal with society in its forming stages—that the Christians who constitute the "good seed of the kingdom," are often of most dissimilar origin and associations, and that frequently they must be managed with tenderness and forbearance, as babes in divine things. While this is true of them as Christians, it is also true that as men of trade and politics, and other worldly interests, they are intelligent and shrewd; and hence, much wisdom and tact is needed rightly to direct their energies.

Home Missions in Wisconsin.

The longer I tarry here, and the more I travel, the more I see and feel the great need and usefulness of Home Missions in this Territory. Not far from sixty churches now exist of the Congregational and Presbyterian order. Fifteen or twenty of these have but little preaching. I suspect that more than half of all must perish were it not for the aid from your Society. I know of but two country churches in this county (Milwaukee) able to go alone.

A specimen of church discipline.

But there was a case in a neighboring church of a woman being excommunicated for joining a temperance society. She and her husband were members of a ——— church. He became a drunkard, and his drunken frolics were so base and so frequent, that the church at last expelled him. Sometime afterward he agreed to join the temperance society if his wife would put her name down. They both did so. The church brought her up, and excommunicated her for signing the temperance pledge!

Rapid increase of population.

A new census of the State of Missouri was taken in 1844, and has just been made public. The following is a synopsis of the leading facts.

Number of counties in the State,	-	80
White population, Males,	233,097
Females,	206,989	440,086
People of color, Free,	1,551
Slaves,	70,300	71,851
Free whites can read and write, (in 77 co.'s),		168,246
Deaf and dumb,	do.	165
Blind,	do.	111
Total population,		511,937

The gain since 1840, has been 128,235, or more than 33 per cent. in four years. This result is altogether unexpected, considering the causes which have operated to turn the tide of emigration to Iowa and Wisconsin. The new county of Platte, situated in the extreme west, has now a population of 13,994, and is exceeded only by St. Louis and Boone.

The State of Missouri has doubled its population in twelve years; and the city of St. Louis has doubled its inhabitants twice in ten years!

Relation of the West to Foreign Missions.

The operations of the American Board, and of other Boards operating on the foreign field, are seriously impeded, not because there are no resources in the country, but because there is not enlightened piety enough to place these resources at their disposal. Instead of $240,000 a year, the American Board needs, and could economically expend at least $1,000,000. Let the domestic field be so cultivated as to be made as productive as the State of Massachusetts, and this amount could be annually realized. Every effort of Home Missions in the West eventually contributes to swell the income of our Board of Foreign Missions. There are multitudes of churches on this Reserve, that were formed and nurtured up to maturity under the fostering care of Home Missions, which now send their annual contributions to the American Board, and some of them have already given more to the cause of Foreign Missions, than they ever received from the Home Missionary Society. Let this good work of evangelizing the West go on, and be consummated, and there will be no want of means for prosecuting the work of Foreign Missions.

But the foreign field demands not only money but men; well educated, self-denying, enterprising men. Convert the West, and she will furnish such men—men of intrepid spirits, and indomitable perseverance, ready to go any where and subject themselves to any privations and hardships for Christ's sake.

Moral Builders.

Generations have arisen at distant intervals, whom God seems to have selected and placed in a commanding position, suited to the putting forth of a wider influence, and one that should reach farther forward, than pertains to the lot of other generations. Such were the men who lived at the opening of the Christian era, whom God employed to introduce the new dispensation. Such were the German Reformers of the fourteenth century, whose movements shook the moral world to its centre, breaking up the moss-covered foundations of superstition, and remodeling, for future ages, the frame work of human society. Such were the Puritans whom God honored as the founders of New England two centuries later, and whose indelible impress, in a thousand living forms, is felt at this day. The nation feels, and to the end of time will this nation continue to feel, the influence of those earnest, costly, prayerful efforts which were made by the fathers of 1620, for the gospel's sake and for ours. Who of us can send our thoughts back to the time of their embarkation, and picture in imagination the scene that was then enacting at the small fort of Delft-Haven, without feeling a thrill of gratitude to God for unnumbered blessings which had their origin there? And when we have contemplated the moral sublimity and high privilege of the position which God called them to occupy, as the authors of good, the almoners of heaven's best bounties to unborn millions, did our hearts never prompt us to say, that we would have gladly cast our lot with them?—would have welcomed their toils, to have shared their destiny? Very much like theirs is the position which we now hold. An influence as far-reaching and as salutary may be thrown by us into the rising States of the West. The Territories of Iowa and Wisconsin alone, which have but just been added to the field of American Home Missions, cover a space on the map of the world more than four times as large as all New England. Over the whole of this broad field our influence may be diffused, in planting the same institutions which our fathers planted here ; in sustaining the young men who have already commenced this work, and who, if sustained and blessed, will be regarded by future generations as the Pilgrim Fathers of that land. Nor is this all. The line of new settlements has moved 1,000 miles westward during the last 30 years, while the ratio of its present progress exceeds the most extravagant of former calculations. Over all this open and opening territory, among all these risen and rising millions, our influence, by the felicity of our position, may be made to circulate in streams of salvation and eternal life.

Who shall be sent to the West ?

It is sometimes said, that as human nature is essentially the same in the West as at the East the man who can do good in the latter must be equally adapted to the former. This plausible proposition covers several mistakes. The communities in the newer sections differ from those in the old, in that they embody more than the average amount of the extremes of character. Few but persons of buoyancy and enterprise—or else of desperate character—break through the difficulties attending the settlement of a new country. And then the very circumstances in which they are placed, excite mental activity, and compel men to inquiry and discussion. Conflicting land claims are to be adjusted ; town and counties to be organized. Public buildings, bridges, highways, the establishment and control of schools, the various details of political strife—all afford occasions for the collision of intellect, and develop the ambition to exert an influence. Hence there grows up in a western community a shrewdness and wakefulness of mind, and an earnest and direct address, to which the didactic style and solemn composure of manner of the majority of eastern ministers is uncongenial. Consequently, if a minister, through prejudice, will not adapt himself to the taste of the people, or—what is more likely to occur, through the force of old habit, cannot do it—they may endure, but will not respect him, or profit by his ministrations.

Except in extraordinary cases, missionaries to the West should be persons in the early part of their ministerial career, of good constitution, possessing a knowledge of men, and disposed to accommodate themselves to a state of society not yet settled. Their domestic relations ought not to be such, as to make a regular and ample support indispensable to keep them from suffering. Their piety should be forbearing, yet resolute ; looking kindly on things as they are, even while laboring assiduously to make them better. Their mental furniture should be at ready command, and their whole bearing earnest and sincere, so as to impress all with the persuasion. “WE SEEK NOT YOURS BUT YOU.” The motives and spirit with which they should go to the West, are such as have been expressed by some already there. “We have adopted this country as our home under a deep conviction of duty as servants of Christ. We understand Him to require us to live and labor here, where we must literally endure hardness as good soldiers. And the longer we endure the evils incident to such a choice, or perform the duties assigned us, the more we feel the importance of the arrangement, and the more firmly have we resolved to abide the consequences, rather than abandon fields that have already nearly gone to waste for want of earlier cultivation. And could we command pleasant locations, or such as would be even more desirable, in some respects, in older sections of the country, we do not believe our ranks would be thinned by the hope of better society or more conveniences. So long as we can be sustained in such a manner that we can “give ourselves wholly to our work,” we shall feel most cordially disposed to do so.”

The kind of ministry needed.

Since I have been at the West, I have been repeatedly impressed with the idea of the necessity of the Home Missionary Society's operations, to the religious advancement of the western people. The people are poor, in many instances. When their wheat crop fails, as it does in this vicinity this year, they are obliged to buy their bread stuff, and often run in debt in doing it. What then could the people do without your Society ? Again ; there are elements in the character of the people at the West that demand the preaching your Society furnishes. Some other denominations may pioneer, but they pioneer like the wood-cutters in the slashes ; they leave a mass of impassable rubbish. They lead the way, but by no means clear the way. One may be said to burn over the land. Another, as in this region, to submerge it.

The result of much of the preaching at the West, is a fastidious taste in some hearers ; in others, a perfect dislike of all preaching. Another kind of preaching is then wanted ; your Society, I think, furnishes that preaching. May the Lord bless your Society, till it is able to supply all the places destitute of such preaching ! The firm entrenchment of Christianity at the West depends upon such preaching. I am no bigot, and will concede that other denominations than those that compose your Society may do much in forming religious society at the West, but there needs to be the stamina of a sounder orthodoxy co-operating with them, else the whole structure of society will have to be torn down and remodelled in a few years, like most of the western houses. A solid foundation is wanted to build upon. When that is obtained every thing will not rack, or look piteously, as if it asked mercy of the elements to remain in its place. I speak figuratively, but I think I do not speak error or nonsense.

Other Testimony.

Some think it requires little talent, or learning, or religion, to qualify one for a western missionary. But the reverse of this is true. There are a plenty of ministers, such as they are, in some parts of the western country. In the words of a learned Professor in a Western Seminary, "Uneducated ministers are as numerous as musquitoes, and about as useful. We know a place at the West," he adds, "where there were seven ministers in an audience to hear an educated man preach; only two of the seven could read a chapter in the Bible." Are these the men to pour through the valley of the Mississippi the light of Divine truth? How can they teach the christian religion there, who are unable to read a chapter in the New Testament?

A Baptist missionary writes as follows:

"I have heard much of the destitution of ministers in this country and presume it is really so, but if the remark applies to the number of men known as such, it is not true. In this sense there are plenty of them, more than is needed and some of them could be spared for New York, for they are of no manner of use here as ministers. I have more or less of them in my congregation every time I preach. The first Sunday I preached, there were four of them present. Men who are willing to neglect their ministerial duties, or can be tempted to engage in worldly business, would do better to stay in the old States. But if the remark is used concerning self-denying, faithful ministers, of such we are greatly in need.

Cries of the Destitute.

Last week I was at ——— thirty miles north of this, where I had not before been able to preach. There I found three members of our church very desirous to hear the Gospel. One lady, not a professor of religion, with a full heart and flowing tears, solicited me to preach at her house. I left an appointment. I trust God gave her a new heart on the Sabbath.

The operations of your Society are highly appreciated; may God bless its enterprises!

Hard to say no.

The country is as needy as ever; the people as ready to listen to truth; "the harvest truly is plenteous, BUT THE LABORERS ARE FEW." It is hard to send a negative to pressing requests for assistance from feeble churches, which have not perhaps enjoyed a sacramental season for a year. It is hard to say "no," to some elder or member who has ridden forty miles, and alighted weary at your door to urge you to find time to come and preach a day or two in his neighborhood. But all this we are compelled to do until the heart sickens, and faith in the accomplishment of Zion's hopes well nigh staggers.

Who will feed the Lambs?

A missionary who has been laboring hard, without the co-operation of any who were like-minded, thus speaks of the prospects of the children:

A large Sabbath-school might be formed here at any moment, but hitherto all efforts have been unavailing, from the fact that I have not been able to influence any one to teach them. Numbers of the children have come to me of their own accord, and besought me to establish a Sabbath-school; but mournful as has been the office of declining, I could not comply with their request, because it was not in my power to attend to it myself, and others could not be obtained.

Wide Wastes.

Seven ministers, in 18 or 20 counties, is all we have belonging to our body. These 18 or 20 counties must comprise half as much territory as the whole of New-England. It is well settled, for a new country, and the population is daily increasing.

Demand for labor.

I returned two days since from holding a meeting in an outpost, and found a messenger from another place after me, to go and hold a meeting of some days' length in his neighborhood. And yesterday another called me to go with him; and he was so importunate that I promised him to preach in his vicinity, and remain some days. If I were to answer one half of the calls made on me to preach and hold meetings, I might bid my wife and little ones adieu for ever.

Two fields, 25 miles apart.

Each field is sufficient to occupy the whole of a minister's time. So I feel and believe. But both are precious people and important places. I love them both, and both are unwilling to give me up. But I cannot give both the labor they require. Oh, my dear brother, how we need more laborers! It is painful to hear their petitions, and to decline their solicitations. We want men ready to any good word and work. Now is the time for laying the foundations of society. May the Great Head of the church furnish your Committee with means and men, answerable to the exigencies of this wide and extended field.

Feelings of Western Men.

Oh! this Valley—what will become of its teeming thousands of immortal beings, grasping after these beautiful prairies, and inviting groves, regarding not God, drinking in the error and delusions which are rolling over us like a mighty wave? The missionaries of darkness are many, and are rapidly increasing; while comparatively, there is but here and there a faithful sentinel upon Zion's watch towers to herald the truth. Oh, that the American church felt more deeply the importance of making haste to take possession of this fertile West, in the name of Jesus Christ, the King of the whole earth! The conflict is coming on—already has it commenced, and upon the issue hang the destinies of unborn millions. This Valley is destined ere long to give character to this whole nation, and shall it not be redeemed? Shall it not be saved? Our strong hope, under God, is in your Society. It must be sustained, and enlarge its work. Daily are hearts springing up to bless God for the Home Missionary Society. It is the daily prayer of your missionaries, that the church will give you abundantly the means for multiplying the laborers in this part of the Lord's moral vineyard.

I sometimes feel distressed when I reflect how rapid'y time flies, and how little has been accomplished. I am not, however, conscious of being a loiterer in the vineyard of my God. But there is much to be done, and so few to do it—so many souls yet out of Christ, and so few to bear to them the glad tidings of salvation! Could I perform the work of a hundred, it would still seem small and altogether inadequate to the great and pressing necessity! It does seem so overwhelming to know that souls are going down to hell within my sight, and under the sound of my voice, that I am often led to cry out in agony "Lay not this sin to my charge." The longer I live and the more I preach, the more sensibly I am impressed with the deeply interesting truth that the power and excellency of the Gospel is of God, and not of us. How can the members of Christ's church slumber over a ruined world?

Kneeland and Joe Smith--Changes in 1844.

The year 1844 will be memorable to those in this vicinity, for the death of two distinguished leaders in the ranks of opposition—the Mormon Prophet, by the hand of violence. He, who had surveyed the country far and near, and stuck his twelve stakes where he was to build twelve temples answering to the twelve tribes of the children of Israel, has gone to meet his God, ere one temple is half completed. His followers are divided and scattered, and his schemes are ere long to come to naught. The prophet of Atheism, too, who some years since, in a public assembly, in the metropolis of New-England, dared the Almighty to strike him dead and gave him five minutes in which to do it, and held his watch in his hand with his arm extended until the minutes had expired, and then said, "Where is now your God?"—and who, for the last six years, had been propagating his Atheism in Iowa, with a zeal and a self-consecration worthy of a better cause—he too, has passed, unconsciously, to the judgment seat! Under the ragings of a fever, he has sunk into a deep sleep, which terminated in the sleep of death. At evening tide, he was flattered with the hope of a speedy recovery, but ere the morning light, his soul was in eternity! Directly over his head hung the prayer of a Free Thinker written by himself, and around his room the pictures of Tom Paine and Voltaire and their infamous associates. On the banks of the Des Moines, where he located his Elysium, and hoped to see a generation come up, who should openly proclaim, "There is no God," behold, now, five christian churches, and five educated, ordained ministers, of the Gospel, preaching salvation by the blood of the Lamb! So have perished the champions of Mormonism and Atheism; and so will perish the champions of infidelity and the unrepenting legions of the Man of Sin.

Home Missions.

An Example.

The missionary came into a settlement that was destitute of the ordinances of the Gospel. He found, perhaps, a handful of spiritual Christians who had long been praying that God would send to them one to break to them the bread of life. He found also a number of poor wandering backsliders from the Atlantic States, who had once made a profession of godliness, but in emigrating to this western world, seemed to have left their religion behind, and were living in a wretched and dreary condition, with too much conscience to enjoy the world, and too little devotion to enjoy God's service. He found also a number of respectable men, who had never made any profession of religion, but who had lived long enough without the institutions of the Gospel to witness the deplorable results of such a destitution. To complete the picture, he found a motley assemblage of believers and errorists of different names. A meeting for divine worship was appointed: a few assembled; another was appointed: more came; the Christian, in the place besought him with tears to abide with them: he consented: their hearts were encouraged, and their faith was strengthened: one backslider after another was reclaimed: the attendance upon public worship steadily increased: a Sabbath school was formed: a church was organized: God poured out his Spirit and converted a goodly number of the impenitent: their place of meeting became too strait for them, and they set themselves to the work of erecting a sanctuary; another, and still another revival followed: they felt that it was now time for them to relinquish their claims upon the Home Missionary Society, and to sustain the Gospel by their own exertions: and now they contribute annually a handsome sum to the cause of Foreign Missions. And in that community temperance, good order, neatness, refinement of manners, and schools for the education of the young have all followed in the train of the Gospel.

Heterogeneous materials.

The following enumeration reminds one strongly of the various assemblage at the Pentecost, (Acts ii: 9—11.) Can any wonder that it needs great piety, great tact and zeal, and perseverance to be a successful missionary among such a people; or that the individual who attempts it should be sustained by the prayers and contribution of the older churches?

I have, at one time, preached to persons from England, Scotland, Ireland, France, Switzerland, Germany, Norway, Poland, New Brunswick, Canada, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Maine, New York, Pennsylvania, District of Columbia, besides the representatives of the Western states, called, in the unique geographical nomenclature of this region, "Hoosiers," "Wolverines," "Badgers," "Suckers," "Buckeyes," &c. When I learned the heterogeneous character of the population, and was told, moreover, that eastern men, and especially Presbyterian ministers, were looked upon by many with peculiar suspicion and prejudice. I will not conceal that I had many misgivings in relation to my ultimate success. But I have found the people frank, intelligent and kind hearted; and have not been treated with intentional discourtesy by a single citizen of the place.

The enemy awake.

Besides Infidelity, Campbellism and Universalism we have the influence of Popery. Wherever there is an opening, they rush in and fill it. They have built the best churches in this whole section. Every thing here is in motion. You have not first to rouse their dormant energies, the mind is awake; every thing is on the move. That which looks fair and promising to day, may, ere one year rolls away, present a different aspect. Habits which give character to a people, are rapidly forming, and, consequently, where they have not the means of grace the obstacles to the missionary work increases.

The way a man did good.

A short time since, this whole section of country was almost entirely in the hands of errorists; so much so, that a leading character among them made his boasts that no evangelical denomination could get a foothold there. But two years ago, a very godly Presbyterian moved into this neighborhood, and soon found, from his own observation the great desolation of Zion around him. He longed, like Nehemiah, to see these waste places built up. He at length found two men, one a Baptist and the other a Methodist, whom he persuaded to engage with him in a prayer-meeting. They three agreed to meet every week during the year, without fail, to pray for their ungodly neighbors. Often these men met alone; still they were not discouraged—they trusted in God. Near the close of the year, their meetings began to increase; their impenitent neighbors began to feel troubled in their minds on account of sin. The result was a powerful revival of religion, in which more than 30 were hopefully converted. A Congregational church was immediately formed. They are now desirous to engage my labors one third of the time. They have subscribed 80 dollars, to be paid in provisions and money.

A great change.

Our congregations have been solemn and attentive, and constantly increasing. The Sabbath-schools, though small, are doing well. At Atkinson, they have just completed a fine school-house, which will for the present afford us a comfortable place of worship. Last Sabbath it was occupied for the first time. You can imagine our gratification on entering such a place of worship, after having been so long subjected to the inconvenience of private rooms. The assembly appeared highly gratified, that they were able to welcome a missionary to a Wisconsin meeting-house. And I could not but thank God for the glorious Gospel, and the efficient means he is employing to urge its hallowed blessings upon the world. The Home Missionary enterprise, which brings a sanctifying influence to bear upon our own country, arose in its magnitude before the mind. What a noble, soul-stirring enterprise is that, which is aiming to send "the glorious Gospel of the blessed God" to every nook and corner, to every settlement and hamlet of a nation, destined to exert an almost unlimited influence upon the nations of the earth.

Thus when I found myself seated in our neat meeting-house, (for so I must call it,) with a crowded, respectful and an intelligent audience before me, my emotions were deep. How strange the change, in these so lately wild retreats! We occupy the place where the untamed beast lately roamed, and the native red man as wildly wandered, where the heavy tread of Atkinson's soldiery of late hushed the savage war-whoop. And now the native camps have vanished away; the instruments of war rest undisturbed, (may they ever rest!) and instead of the signal for the war-dance, or the rolling drum calling to arms, civilization puts on her smiling face, the stillness of the Sabbath morn invites to the house of prayer, and the cheerful settlers are seated together to listen to the Gospel of salvation.

Papal policy—the way to meet it.

A favorite agency with them in the U. S. is the establishment of schools, so conducted as to disarm prejudice, and thus make the most favorable opening to inculcate the peculiarities of their faith. Quite a number of youth, and these from Protestant families, have been sent out of the state to Catholic schools. All these became Catholics. If the Romanists establish such schools extensively in this state, (three are already in operation,) they will be patronized by great multitudes, especially of the wealthy planters in the South and East. If it be asked now, what ought to be done to provide for the dangers thus threatening us, the answer is obvious. First, we must labor and pray, and pray and labor for a revival of religion, and continue to do so till the blessing is obtained; and then continue to do so that the blessing may be continued. The revival must be one which shall bring Christians together and bind them together. The pure fire of love must be kindled up in their hearts to consume sectarian strife and selfishness, and lead to a whole-hearted consecration to God and his service. Then sinners will be converted, and error, and formalism, and idolatry, and false religion will flee away. Second; pious, prayerful, faithful, and well-qualified ministers must be brought into this field, and sustained here to preach the pure Gospel, and to watch over and feed this whole people. Third; schools, seminaries or colleges, must be established for the education of all the people. The schools must be of a character fairly to compete in literature with the Catholic schools, and we must equal them in the parental kindness with which the pupils shall be treated, and in the fidelity and zeal with which we inculcate the religious principles of the Puritans. Fourth; Sabbath schools and Bible classes must be set up and sustained in every town and neighborhood. Fifth; God helping us, we must win, by love and benevolence, the Catholics to the truth, as it is in Jesus.

I trust that we shall not be forgotten by you, when before the throne of grace. O, that you may be able to send us more ministers!

How a mother feels.

We give an example of the feelings cherished by some of the people of God scattered through the wilderness. Mrs. M., who is truly a "mother in Israel," when she first moved to Indiana and found herself with a large family, where there was no stated preaching, was so deeply affected with the destitution with the desecration of the Lord's day, and the apparent indifference of the parents to the education of their children, that she spent many sleepless nights. She felt that she could not rest, until some one should be sent to preach the Gospel to that famishing community. When, at length, a preacher came, she told him, "she had been looking for him." Indeed, such had been her anxiety on the subject, that her husband, who professes to disbelieve the Scriptures, feared that it would injure her health, and was most cordial in welcoming "the priest" to the settlement, and in contributing to his support.

An affecting scene.

Two Sabbaths since, I received a note requesting me to go and attend a funeral about nine miles out. I went, and found two families that had lately moved from New Jersey. In consequence of a scarcity of dwellings, they were compelled to live in their wagons until they can build. These served as kitchens, bed-rooms, and parlors. Here, in this condition they were subject to great exposures; these, together with a change of climate, &c., brought on sickness. Their first child sickened and died, and these strangers in a strange land buried their child alone upon the lonely prairie. Their second child, a little girl about 11 years old, sickened and died also. It was her funeral that I was called to attend. I could not help thinking, as I stood over the lifeless body of this little girl, how different her circumstances, had she died back in her native state. Here, she was scarcely sheltered from the scorching sun, and the driving storm—had no physician to assist her; but little medicine to counteract a raging fever. She died, and went to rest in the bosom of her Savior. She gave evidence to her friends that she was prepared for death. It was a pleasing thought to her that heaven was as near from "the wagon," and this rude dwelling, as from more favored circumstances. Her parents mourned—yet not without hope. They felt that Christ had taken her to himself.

Poverty.

I have been here nearly four years, and with one exception, have not preached in a church building. We hold our meetings in school-houses, private dwellings, and temporary court-houses. As yet we are not able to build comfortable dwellings, and I know not when we shall have churches.

There is some mistake about the wealth of the West. It is true, the soil is rich and the resources abundant; but except in the great thoroughfares, which are very few compared with the extent of the country, there is very little money; all manufactured articles are very dear, and it is almost impossible to turn produce to any advantage. Many a wealthy farmer in the interior, finds it extremely difficult to realize money enough to pay his taxes and clothe his family. Make the calculation. A pair of shoes costs a dollar and a half; and to pay for them he must carry corn over muddy roads twenty or twenty-five miles, and sell it for eight cents a bushel. One pair of shoes, then, costs a hard day's work for himself and two horses, and eighteen or twenty bushels of corn besides. Supposing a man has eight or ten children, after clothing them all, at that rate, and paying his taxes, how much money will he have left to pay his minister's salary, or help clothe his minister's children? Corn, wheat, pork, wood, he has in abundance, and of these he freely gives; but cloth, leather, books, medicines, money, he has none to spare, and these must be had from abroad. You must help us a little longer, and then we will pay you for it by helping our neighbors.

An interior view.

Will you bear with me, while I say a word in relation to the amount of support I actually receive from my two little churches. They are always much more ready to subscribe than able to pay. And when I see them struggling to get the comforts of life for their own families, and unable to do it, my heart always softens to tenderness, and would prompt me rather to aid them, were it in my power, than to exact of them the payment of pledges for my support. I often wish that our dear friends at the East might but pass a night with some of the most liberal supporters of the Gospel in my parish, or others in the West, and partake of the homely fare in the miserable, smoked cabin, destitute of almost all kind of furniture, and the inmates of comfortable raiment. Let them then look in the corner of the only room in the house, and see the best accommodations for lodging, the rude bedstead made of poles, or small sticks from the forest, with the bark peeled off, and made as well as in their power. Let them take a bare look at the bedding, coarse, and fast going to decay, and all their objections to helping sustain the Gospel in the West would vanish at once. When I see such want among my parishioners, I am ready to say to those trying to collect, "Mark Mr. A., B. and C., paid." In this way much of my $100 pledged in the two churches is cancelled. The $100 pledged the past year, would not equal to me $50 in cash.

Relish for the Word—Efforts to Attend meeting.

We know not when we have met with an instance of attachment to the house of God vouched by more unequivocal proofs than the following:

"About a week ago, on a week day, I preached at the house of an aged member of our church, six miles distant, to about twenty persons. Some of these came three and four miles, as the country is but thinly settled there. One man present said, it was six years since he heard a Presbyterian preacher; others never heard one before. A little more than a year ago, I preached there once to about seven persons. At that time, this old gentleman and his family were not much in the habit of going to church; but were induced, I trust, to attend, and also to pray, through the instrumentality of my visit. He and his wife united with the church last May, and have been regular at church ever since, notwithstanding the difficulties in their way. They have a thick forest of six miles to come through, and a small river to cross, which, during the summer, has often been too deep to be forded; they then crossed in a canoe and swam their horses by the side of it. Some would suppose this too dangerous a business to undertake, merely to attend church. The old gentleman and his son have just finished cutting a road through the thick woods for four miles, the sole object of which is to travel on to the house of God. For some time they devoted one half day each week to work on this road. O that many more such families, in like manner, may be influenced to serve God, and make efforts to attend the means of grace!"

TWENTIETH REPORT.

ASSEMBLED, as members of the American Home Missionary Society to celebrate its TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY, a voice saith unto each of us, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might, for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave whither thou goest." Two of the Vice Presidents of the Society,—Hon. JOHN COTTON SMITH, LL. D., and Hon. JACOB SUTHERLAND, LL. D., and one of its Directors,—FRISBY HENDERSON, Esq., have been called, since last we met, from the scenes of their earthly labors to their recompense of reward. The youthful missionary, in the noontide of his promise; and the missionary, care-worn and weary, have fallen in the field of their toils. And patrons, who while with us contributed of their abundance, or who, as generously consecrated their two mites, have heard, we doubt not, from the lips of him whose love constrained them in all their offices of charity, "Inasmuch as ye have done unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

How short, too, the period in which this Institution has existed! And yet how starred the catalogue of its Founders! How changed its Officers, its Executive Committee, its missionaries, its supporters! Many of us occupy the places of the dead; and are, in our turn, as soon to give place to those who shall come after us. With what emotions, then, should we give thanks to the Father of Mercies, that he has given us another year of associated action in the extension of his kingdom, and crowned that year with the riches of his goodness. And, as we thus survey the past, with what singleness of heart, what heavenly-mindedness, what self-consecration, what humble reliance upon the promises and grace of God, should we enter upon the privileged responsibilities of the uncertain future.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

NUMBER OF MISSIONARIES, THEIR DISTRIBUTION AND THE AGGREGATE OF THEIR LABORS.

The Society has had in its service, the past year, 971 ministers of the Gospel.

Of these, 748 were in commission at the date of the last report; and 223 have since been appointed.

They have been distributed in 26 different states and territories :—in Maine, 80; New Hampshire, 45; Vermont, 45; Massachusetts, 56; Rhode Island, 8; Connecticut, 40; New York, 211; New Jersey, 6; Pennsylvania, 53; Delaware, 1; Maryland, 1; Virginia, 4; Georgia, 1; Alabama, 1; Kentucky, 6; Tennessee, 6; Ohio, 103; Indiana, 51; Illinois, 98; Michigan, 67; Missouri, 25; Arkansas, 1; Wisconsin, 36; Iowa, 24; Florida, 1; District of Columbia, 1.

Of the whole number in commission, 683 have been the pastors or stated supplies of single congregations; and 288 have ministered to two or three congregations each, or have extended their labors over still wider fields.

The aggregate of ministerial labor performed, is equal to 760 years.

The number of congregations and missionary districts supplied, in whole or in part at stated intervals, with the preaching of the Gospel, is 1,453; while many others have enjoyed the occasional labors of the missionaries.

PROGRESS DURING THE YEAR.

By a comparison of these results with those embodied in the last report, it will be seen that, through the good providence of God, the Society has been enabled to retain the advanced position which it occupied at the last anniversary; and not only so, but this year, also, to make important progress. The number of missionaries in commission is greater, by 28, than the number then reported; the years of labor performed exceed those of the previous year, by 24; and the number of congregations and districts, which have been blessed with the ministry of the word, shows an increase of 208.

And what is specially gratifying, also, the increase now reported, as well as that of preceding years, is chiefly in our western country. In some of the eastern states, the work is advancing towards a completion. The number and necessities of feeble churches are diminished, and the men and the means of their support are, therefore, transferred to our frontiers; to establish in these infant communities, those institutions which have been the prosperity and are the glory of the older—which inculcate every where that righteousness which exalteth a nation, and that faith which is the assurance of a better life.

SABBATH SCHOOLS.

The "American Sunday School Union," and the "Massachusetts Sabbath School Society," have continued, through the year, their generous endeavors to furnish the Sabbath schools connected with the missionary churches appropriate and valuable libraries; and to put such libraries also, so far as their means would allow, at the disposal of the missionaries, for the encouragement of Sabbath schools in the vicinity of their congregations. An impulse has, thereby, been given to effort in the Sabbath school cause, and an interest awakened in its privileges, which have had an important influence in increasing the number under Sabbath school instruction.

The missionary finds, in the immediate neighborhood of his charge, or scattered over an area more or less extended between him and his nearest fellow laborer, many families as unblessed by the means of grace, as if they were hundreds of miles from any sanctuary. If he can visit them occasionally—establish here and there a preaching place—gather their children into a Sabbath school, and, through the agency of the members of his church, secure their instruction,—if he can present to this Sabbath school a library of useful books, to be kept in perpetual circulation and to give interest and permanency to the school, he has taken, perhaps, the most important step in his power to bring these children and their parents under the influence of divine truth, to attract them to the house of God, to lead them into the kingdom of heaven. Great good has, in this way, been accomplished by the missionaries of the Society during the year. One has formed and kept in active operation four such schools; another six: another nine.

The whole number of pupils, in the Sabbath schools under the supervision of the missionaries, is not far from 76,700; 16,700 more than we reported the last year.

CIRCULATION OF RELIGIOUS PUBLICATIONS.

The "American Tract Society," as in former years, has made the liberal grant of 5,000 pages of tracts to every missionary to whom they could be transmitted; besides many valuable donations of religious volumes, for circulation in the congregations of the missionaries and among the destitute around them. For such appropriate and important helps in their great work, the missionaries express their grateful acknowledgments, and give the most gratifying assurances that they have not been rendered in vain.

The "American Doctrinal Tract Society" have also, recently presented this Society three hundred copies of each of their tracts, and one hundred of each of their small books, for distribution in the western states. Brief, lucid and able expositions of the cardinal doctrines of the Gospel, as well as direct and complete scriptural refutations of the prevailing heresies and religious errors of the day, are greatly needed in the hands of all our missionaries. There are reading, thinking, reasoning members of their churches, who might each of them, if furnished with such materials, be set for the defence of the Gospel. There must be doctrinal reading, as well as doctrinal preaching, if we are to expect those who are gathered into our feeble churches, surrounded as they are with irreligion and infidelity, to continue grounded and settled and be not moved away from the hope of the Gospel. There is an increasing desire, the Committee believe, for reading of this description, and they rejoice, therefore, in every effort to supply the means of so useful an auxiliary in the missionary work.

TEMPERANCE.

The manufacture, sale and consumption of intoxicating drinks is still, in not a few of the missionary districts, one of the most formidable obstacles to the legitimate influences of the Gospel; in others, the temperance reformation has been the harbinger of glad tidings of great joy. There is grateful evidence that this reformation has, in many places, recovered from the reaction noticed in the last report, by which it had been retarded; and that it has been carried forward, the last year, with renewed vigor and encouraging success. The whole number pledged to entire abstinence from all that can intoxicate, in the communities where the missionaries labor, is, as nearly as can be ascertained, 135,000; which is 28,000 more than were reported the last year.

ADDITIONS TO THE CHURCHES.

The number added to the churches, during the year, is not far from 5,311; viz:—2,272 on profession of their faith, and 3,039 by letters from other churches. While the aggregate exceeds, by 282, the number reported the last year; it is a fact, which it is painful to record, and one which calls for deep searchings of heart and humiliation before God, that the number added on profession of their faith is not only less than that of the past year, but less than the number reported in any year, for the last sixteen years; carrying us back to a period, when the churches assisted, numbered but a little more than one third as many as at the present time.

There is thus melancholy evidence that the missionary churches, as well as those by whose bounty they are sustained, have participated largely in the afflictive, and shall we not say, chastising absence of the special influences of the Holy Spirit,—a characteristic so generally and distressingly prominent in the religious history of the year. If any exception is to be made in favor of the feeble churches, it is in reference to our new settlements, and in the closing months of the year. In these sections of the field, there have been recent instances of revivals, of great interest and power, but the fruits of them have not been gathered into the churches.

Little will be accomplished, by prosperity in every other form, if this greatest of all blessings—the descent of the Holy Ghost—be withholden. Whatever else may be done, of the great end of our labors we shall utter fail, if the souls of men be not saved! Will not those then, who love our Lord Jesus Christ, every where set their faces unto the Lord God, to seek by prayer and supplications, with fasting and sackcloth and ashes, saying, O our God, hear the prayer of thy servants and their supplications, and cause thy face to shine upon thy sanctuary, which is desolate! O Lord, hearken and do; defer not, for thine own sake, O our God, for thy city and thy people are called by thy name!

GENERAL IMPROVEMENT.

But, while so few of the fruits of the special influences of the Spirit have been gathered into the churches, yet, as in Sabbath schools and temperance, so in various other interests there is gratifying evidence, in very many of the congregations, of decided improvement and general prosperity. These evidences are seen in numerous houses of worship erected or repaired, by the enterprise, and in some cases the exemplary sacrifices of the congregations; in church debts paid; in parsonages built; in the installation of pastors; in the relinquishment of missionary aid; in contributions to benevolent objects; in the increase of Sabbath congregations; in the improvement of morals; in the growing interest in common schools and family training; in the imparting of light and life to surrounding communities; in the promotion of whatsoever is lovely and of good report among men; and in the preparation which, we trust, has thus been made for bringing multitudes of souls into the kingdom of Christ, when the times of refreshing shall return from the presence of the Lord.

THE TREASURY.

The balance in the Treasury, April 15th, 1845, was $3,803 70. The receipts of the succeeding twelve months have been $125,124 70; making the resources of the $128,928 40.

The amount due to missionaries, at the close of the last missionary year, was $12,164 64. There have since become due

Of this sum, $126,193 15 have been paid. The remainder—$12,865 37—is still due to missionaries, who have performed their labor, and whose requests for payment are now daily being received. Towards cancelling these claims, and meeting the additional pledges to missionaries on commissions already renewed—the amount of both being $58,208 17—there is a balance in the Treasury of $2,735 25.

The receipts above reported are $3,178 42 greater than those of the last year; and the advance has been, almost wholly, from the regular contribution, of the churches.

It will be observed, also, that the pledges of the Society are now more than $7,000 greater than they were at the last anniversary; so that a much larger increase of receipts will be indispensable the coming year to sustain the Society, even if no enlargement of its operations should be attempted. But specific demands, as is shown in detail in a subsequent part of the report, are now most importunate from many sections of the country pre-eminently necessitous and inviting, for an immediate and large increase of the number of able and devoted men, to preach Christ and him crucified. Not less than one hundred are requisite to answer this importunity; and as many more could be advantageously located in the course of the year, if the men and the means of sustaining them were under the direction of the Society. And many more of the men than the Committee now feel authorized to encourage, it is confidently believed, might be secured, if the Society could be justified in guaranteeing to them a competent support. With earnestness and solicitude we ask, therefore, shall the operations of this Society be sustained and enlarged, as the necessities of our fellow countrymen, for this life and that which is to come, so imperiously demand? We ask the friends of the Redeemer, the lovers of their country and of the best interests of man. We ask, in view of our common responsibilities as stewards of God, and of the account so shortly to be rendered of that stewardship, at the coming of our Lord!

PRINCIPLES OF MISSIONARY ACTION.

The Committee would allude, briefly, to several principles of missionary action, which they regard as vital to the happiest influence of this Institution, and worthy to be commended anew to the special consideration of its Auxiliaries and Agencies, and of the Committees of Missions who correspond with it.

In enlarging, the past year, the number of congregations and missionary districts partially supplied, more than they have been able to increase the number of missionaries, the Committee have not overlooked, nor been less deeply impressed with the importance of aiming at the establishment of a permanent ministry. To give, ultimately, to every church the undivided labors of a pastor, is the end which this Society seeks to attain. And the itinerant labor, which it designs to encourage, is that only which is introductory to such a result. In new and sparsely settled communities, or where churches consist of but few members, and have almost no means of aiding or sustaining the ministry and there is little prospect of a rapid increase, the best provision for their wants that can at first be made is, undoubtedly, by means of that general exploration and those occasional services, which shall awaken desire and hope, and prepare the way for more frequent ministrations. But this should, by no means, be regarded as a fixed arrangement. Rather, every church in such a district, which begins to acquire strength and put forth promise, should be encouraged and aided to secure, without procrastination, the regular administration of Gospel ordinances; and if there are those which exhibit no signs of ever being able to do this, it is desirable that they should become so consolidated and allied to each other, that two or three together may enjoy the privileges, which neither could hope for alone.

In churches, too, where the Gospel is regularly preached, the Committee feel it to be of the first importance, that the appropriations of the Society should be so made, as to be an encouragement to the institution of the pastoral relation. Churches which depend upon stated supplies, and are unwilling to enter into engagements for a longer period than a year; and ministers, who are not disposed to cast in their lot with the people whom they serve and take upon themselves all the responsibilities of a permanent connexion, are not of that class, as the Committee suppose, which it is the special design of this Institution to aid.

And to facilitate the institution of the pastoral relation, great care should be exercised by those who, in behalf of churches and ministers, seek and recommend the aid of the Society, that only such ministers be introduced to our feeble churches, or have given them encouragement of receiving missionary assistance, as possess the requisite qualifications for the pastoral office in these circumstances, and are willing to remain permanently with the churches, if their labors should be acceptable. Especially, should it be regarded as indispensable that, whether a pastor or a stated supply, the missionary should reside with his people, and be wholly devoted to their spiritual improvement. Applications in behalf of non-resident ministers, or ministers devoted mainly to teaching, to agriculture, to any thing aside from the appropriate duties of the sacred office should, in the judgment of the Committee, be declined.

It should be borne in mind, also, by all, that it is the church, and not the missionary, that is the beneficiary of the Institution. The laborer is worthy of his hire. And such laborers only as are worthy of it, can this Institution consistently employ. If there are those in necessitous circumstances, whose infirmities unfit them for the full service which the prosperity of a church demands, they should receive commiseration and kindness; but to yield them that relief, which their condition requires, does not come within the objects contemplated by the founders of this Society.

The Committee are deeply impressed, also, with the importance of special care, that no church be placed or continued on the list of beneficiaries, whose condition is not manifestly necessitous and hopeful; so much so, that it may, without unseemliness and incongruity, receive of the charities of churches and individuals, many of whom give, not of their abundance, but of their penury. There is a tendency among churches which have been the longest and the most liberally aided, to be among the last to relinquish their hold on charitable assistance. A grant from the Missionary Society is called on as a matter of course, and the question then is, how shall they supply the deficiency? The improvement of farms, the building of literary institutions, and even charitable donations, scarcely less to individual objects than the amount they ask for, are sometimes regarded by churches, as sufficient apologies for seeking missionary aid. Appropriations in such cases, the Committee cannot doubt, would be justly regarded as a perversion of missionary funds. A life annuity to any church, it is no part of the design of this Institution to insure. Nor is its design to aid a church, for the purpose of enabling it, indirectly, to accomplish other objects than the support of the Gospel, however good and important those objects may be in themselves. Its design is to aid and encourage the really feeble and needy, on such conditions, and to such an extent, and for so long a time only, as shall be most wisely adapted to bring them, in the shortest practicable period, to the dignity and happiness of self-supporting churches. And the success of the Institution is indicated, by the number of such churches that spring up under its fostering care—by the number which it thus gets off from its list, rather than the number it takes on.

The Committee are gratified in being able to state, that the great body of the churches aided, exhibit a most commendable spirit in regard to their dependence, and put forth appropriate and praiseworthy efforts to diminish and to terminate it; while among the supporters of the Society, they know of no churches whose contributions are more generous and cordial, than those which, in days past, were the recipients of its bounty.

PRINCIPAL AUXILIARIES, AGENCIES AND MISSIONARY FIELDS.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Eighty missionaries have been in the service of this Society during the year; more than one hundred feeble churches have enjoyed the benefit of their labors; and nearly half that number of waste places, in addition, have received from them, more or less frequently, the messages of grace. The receipts of the Society, for the year ending April 1st, were $7,354 81, and its expenditures $7,160 23; leaving a balance in its treasury of $381 05.

"The more destitute parts of the state," says the Secretary, Rev. ELIPHALET GILLET, D. D., "have been occupied, especially the far East, with good prospect of ultimate success. But though great progress has been made in the missionary cause, much land yet remains to be possessed. Efforts through the year have been made in the temperance movement; the interest in Sabbath schools and Bible classes has been increasing; and there has been no falling off in charities to sustain the missionary enterprise in its Foreign and Home departments. Indeed, if we look at the zeal to secure the means of religion, the attendance on the ministrations of the Gospel, and the outward order and economy of Christianity, the prospect was never more promising. But, there has been a lamentable and almost universal withdrawal of the special influences of the Holy Spirit, so that the churches have not been enlarged. Three or four places only, on the whole ground, have had opportunity to witness and rejoice in the goings of God; and the number of converts is, probably, not more than sufficient to fill the places made vacant by death and removals."

The Trustees of the Society, in their last report, say, "One half of our state is yet a dense forest, in all the range of which is heard the sound of the woodman's axe, constant breakings in upon the wilderness, with a pressing and accumulating tide of immigration. And the means of religion must be made to keep pace with the rapidity of population, or there will be error and confusion and every evil work. And the other half of the state which is inhabited, is all dotted over, here and there, with feeble churches and waste places. None of us may live to a period late enough, to witness the consummation of our blessed work. But, we see it advancing; and have the promises of God, (and faithful is He who hath promised,) for its final and glorious issue. This should sustain us in our labors—cheer us on in the self-denials and toils of life; so that when our day of action closes, we may lie down and die in peace and in hope, as Moses did on Pisgah, having in prospective vision the promised land."

NEW HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The number of missionaries in the employment of this Society the last year is 45. These, with one or two exceptions, have been the pastors or stated supplies of single congregations; and the aggregate of their labors is equal to that of one individual for a period of thirty-six years. The year has been less distinguished for spiritual blessings upon the churches, than any which has, for a long period, preceded it. "It is not our privilege," says the Secretary of the Society, Rev. BENJAMIN P. STONE, "to report a single revival of religion, and but very few souls as gathered into the kingdom. Many of our churches are suffering severely, too, from emigration, which deprives them of some of their most valuable members, and greatly diminishes their pecuniary ability. Death is, also, doing its work among them. And should the Lord continue long to withhold from them the reviving influences of his Spirit, their prospects will be dark indeed. But we will not despair. The promises of God are large and precious. We will yet labor, and pray, and doubt not that the seed sown in faithfulness, though it lie long buried in the earth, will yet spring up and bring forth fruit unto everlasting life."

The receipts of the Society have been $5,079 85. Of this sum, $704 62 were designated for the general objects of the National Institution; and $4,233 26 have been expended in aid of feeble congregations within the state. There have, also, been received into the treasury of the Parent Society from legacies, individuals and congregations, within the bounds of this Auxiliary, $1,431 33; making the whole sum realized for the cause of Home Missions in the state, $6,511 18—which is an advance of $793 33 on the amount of the preceding year. A larger sum than ever before—$2,135 95 in all—has gone from this state, during the year, to carry the blessings of the Gospel to its sons and daughters, who have sought their home in the infant settlements of the West. And yet, the Trustees of the Society say, in their last report, "Were the annual contributions of the churches to this Society to amount to only fifty cents on an average to each member, it would realize a fund of more than $10,000, with which it could not only meet the wants of its own field, but pay over to the American Home Missionary Society a surplus of at least $5,000. This we believe is a low estimate of the quota of means which the 22,000 Christians in New Hampshire ought to furnish, for carrying forward the great Home Missionary enterprise. Is it too much to be realized? We do not despair. The spirit of the Pilgrims yet dwells in their descendants, and it only awaits the enkindling of the Spirit from on high, to restore it to its ancient energy and beauty."

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The receipts of this Society, during the year, have been $4,550 57; including $551 91 forwarded to the Parent Institution. There have also been received into the treasury of the latter, from individuals and congregations within the state, $407 90; making the whole amount raised for the cause of Home Missions, $4,958 47. Of this, $3,365 67 have been expended in sustaining the missionary operations of the Auxiliary; and $959 81 devoted to the promotion of the same general objects, in our western states and territories.

Forty-five missionaries have been in commission in this state, laboring amidst the discouragements for which the year, in our older settlements particularly, has been so distinguished. "Under the influence of a spirit of emigration," says the Secretary of the Society, Rev. ISAAC R. WORCESTER, "in addition to the ordinary causes which diminish churches when there is no increase by additions from the world; and being without the special influences of the Holy Spirit, the churches generally in this state are, I fear, becoming weaker rather than stronger; and the prospect before us is dark indeed, except as we look to the Great Head of the church, and hope for the reviving of his work."

Of the work yet to be done in Vermont, and the difficulties under which it is prosecuted, the Directors, in their last report, say, "There are more than sixty towns in Vermont, containing in all a population of about 40,000, in which there are no Congregational churches, and in many cases, no churches of much strength or efficiency. In addition to this, about twenty churches, in towns containing in all at least 20,000 inhabitants, though they have a name to live, have, we fear, hardly more than nominal existence, at least so far as present action, or probability of present action, for the support of sound religious institutions is concerned. And not far from twenty other churches, perhaps more than this, are unable permanently to support a pastor without assistance from abroad. There is much, therefore, very much, to be done. Ought it to remain undone? We are well aware of the discouraging circumstances under which, in many cases, Domestic Missionary operations are prosecuted in Vermont. Could we see the churches which receive aid rapidly increasing under the fostering care of the Society, and numbers of them, from year to year, ceasing to ask assistance, and in their turn rendering liberal aid to others, those who contribute for this object would be animated and encouraged to a more vigorous as well as cheerful prosecution of the work. We have some encouragement of this kind. One church, which has been aided for many years, has ceased within the last year, to ask aid. Eight churches which were aided in 1842, are now, as is supposed, supporting preaching without assistance. Most of these, however, are still very feeble, and while we rejoice in their efforts, and hope they may go on, we should not be disappointed, if some of them should be constrained again, ere long, to call for aid. It is true, and we have no wish to conceal the truth, that churches are not rapidly built up in Vermont. Our population is not much increasing, and emigration from the Congregational churches is not less probably in proportion, than emigration from other classes in the community. But we should not think it best for the community to suffer a good man, a useful citizen, to die, because his health was feeble, even though he might require much nursing, and though he could not do the good he might with firmer health. And would it be best for the people of Vermont, that one half of our Congregational churches should be allowed to perish? Let them ponder well the consequences before they entertain the thought, cost what it may to sustain them."

MASSACHUSETTS HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The receipts of this Society, during the year ending April 1st, have been $26,315 01; the expenditures within its bounds, $7,770 31; and $16,624 17 have been forwarded to the American Home Missionary Society. A comparison of these items with the corresponding ones of the preceding year, shows an increase of receipts of $4,394 34; a diminution of expenditures within the state of $1,959 91; and an increase of remittances to the Parent Society of $4,169 59. There have also been received into the treasury of the American Home Missionary Society, from the Hampshire Missionary Society, $1,256 50; from various individuals, congregations, and auxiliaries, $2,559 08; in payment of the legacy of the Hon. Daniel Waldo, $10,000; and in payment of other legacies, $1,367 75—in all, $15,183 33; making the whole amount realized from the state to the cause of Home Missions during the year, $41,498 34; which is, $10,675 22 greater than the amount of any previous year.

Fifty-six missionaries, the pastors or stated supplies of as many congregations, have been in commission within the limits of this Auxiliary during the year. This number is less by ten, than that of the year preceding. Four of the congregations, also, on the list of the missionary churches at the beginning of the year, have, during its progress, ceased to receive charitable aid.

This decrease of missionary stations, and the consequent diminution of expenditures within the state, by which, as well as by her increased contributions, Massachusetts is enabled to do so much for establishing the institutions of the Gospel in the distant West, have their explanation in the last report of the Executive Committee of this Society, drawn up by the Secretary, Rev. JOSEPH S. CLARK. They say, "The diminished number of applications for missionary aid in Massachusetts affords evidence, that the work which God has given us to do in this portion of his vineyard, is tending towards its consummation. The tide of prosperity which seems gradually rising in almost every channel of secular enterprise, will hasten it on, by enabling feeble parishes to relinquish their hold on the hand of charity. Especially will this be the result, if God shall be pleased to impart the quickening Spirit, which not only adds to the number of believers, but energizes their faith; and while it teaches men the Gospel's priceless value, stimulates them to put forth a corresponding effort to possess it. It was a principle with the founders of this benevolent institution, as it is with the 'Father of Mercies,' to help those who are endeavoring to help themselves. And it has long been a part of its policy to assist feeble churches in that way, and only to that extent, which will most effectually draw out their own resources. And years of careful observation have left the Committee without a doubt, that this is the surest method of promoting their growth. Under the steady action of this policy, more than forty of these churches in Massachusetts have risen from a state of dependence to the condition of self support, during the last six years. And although in nearly every instance, the feeble church let go its hold on the Missionary Society with fear and trembling, they all live to this day and flourish; and as a general thing, are among the foremost to commend that course of policy whereby they were even hastened to a reliance on their own resources. The exceptions to this remark, (and it is an instructive fact,) are cases where the appropriations have been largest or longest continued, and not where the greatest pecuniary sacrifice has been made. With these facts before us, we cannot doubt that the same line of policy, pursued without obstruction, will enable this Society to accomplish for every church under its patronage the object it has in view; which is, not to sustain the Gospel there by means of perpetual charity, but, by seasonable and temporary relief, to bring the feeble church into a condition to sustain the Gospel perpetually itself, without any charity at all."

RHODE ISLAND HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Eight missionaries have been employed within the limits of this Society during the year; $1,800 have been appropriated towards their support; $444 78 of it have been contributed by the churches of the state; $1,000 received from the Connecticut Missionary Society; and the balance, it is expected, will be raised within the bounds of the Society before the termination of its missionary year. The congregations aided have been increased and strengthened, and two of them give promise of soon becoming independent of charitable aid.

The President of the Society, REV. THOMAS T. WATERMAN, in a recent communication, says, "This state is increasing in business, population, intelligence, morals and wealth. The cause of Sabbath consecration is exciting the attention of the entire people. An association is formed to further its claims. A copy of the "Sabbath Manual" has been put into every family in the state. The subject of Common School education is likewise receiving the special approval of all classes and all sects. Ignorance on the bench of civil justice, in the pulpit, and in all the responsible influences of a common citizenship, is being appropriately and fearlessly adjudged and condemned. The principle of total abstinence, as a common beverage, from all that intoxicates, is passing from conquering to conquer through the state. Twenty-two out of thirty-one towns allow no legal sanction to the sale and use of the same. More than 50,000 of the people are, probably, pledged to sustain this noble enterprise. Sabbath school instruction too, is being more and more appreciated and perfected; and benevolent contributions are rapidly increasing in amount. These, and other evidences of intellectual and moral progression, are bright and joyful signs in the firmament of our hope as a people, and a state, whose sublime motto has been, and is, 'In God we trust.'"

CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

There remained a balance in the treasury of this Auxiliary, April 1st, 1845, of $2,457 60; and the receipts of the succeeding twelve months have been $6,996 42. The expenditures within the state amount to $4,833 34; $1,000 have been appropriated in aid of the Rhode Island Home Missionary Society; and $3,000 have been paid into the treasury of the American Home Missionary Society. There have also been received into the treasury of the Parent Society, from various auxiliaries, congregations and individuals, $8,049 02, and in payment of legacies, $1,737 70; making the whole amount realized to this cause from the state, during the year, $16,783 14.

While Connecticut, as of old, contributes so largely for the evangelization of our frontier settlements, the work which she is accomplishing for her own destitutions is a no less essential part of the great Home Missionary enterprise. Forty churches have been aided, the last year, in sustaining the institutions of the Gospel. Not a few of these, as well as many others now independent, have been reclaimed, under the present Home Missionary economy, from among the old wastes, the desolations of many generations; or built up in villages newly settled, where, but for the patronage of this Society, no churches in our connexion would probably have existed. The Secretary of the Society, Rev. HORACE HOOKER, in the last report of the Directors, says: "The very fact that our waste places are brought into sympathy with the other churches, and have a common history with them, is a just cause for congratulation. It was not so once. Whatever change for good or ill came over the vigorous congregations, these wore one melancholy aspect of desolation. Like withered branches, their appearance, in the budding Spring and the ripening Autumn, was unvaried. Revivals might bless the churches around, but in these there was no reviving. A spirit of missions might spring up in the other churches, but bitter prejudice against benevolent objects found an undisturbed lodgment in these. Sabbath schools might gather the young for instruction in other churches, but the children in these too often spent the sacred hours in hurtful amusements. Neat, or even elegant houses for worship might rise to adorn other villages, but from year to year theirs were disfigured by structures as uncomfortable and forbidding to man, as unworthy to be temples for the living God. While other churches rejoiced in permanent and beloved pastors, our ecclesiastical minutes, year after year, exhibited only the disheartening 'vacant—vacant,' for them. But these deplorable distinctions no longer exist. Through the blessing of Heaven on Home Missions, they have been obliterated. The work of restoration has, indeed, been gradual, sometimes seeming at a stand, or even going backward—but still, with unobtrusive efficiency piling stone upon stone, and rearing pillar after pillar, till a building, strong, massive, and, as we hope, durable, meets our delighted view."

PHILADELPHIA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The receipts of this Society, which comprises within its limits the states of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland, have been $6,177 65; which added to a balance of $2,832 67, in its treasury April 1st, 1845, have made the resources of the year $9,010 32. Of this sum, $7,259 08 have been expended on the field of the Society's operations, and $500 remitted to the Parent Institution. There have also been paid into the treasury of the latter from various sources, $1,654 04; making the whole amount realized to the cause within these limits, $7,831 69.

The number of missionaries in commission during the year is 62; viz:—6 in New Jersey, 53 in Pennsylvania, 1 in Delaware, 1 in Maryland, and 1 in the District of Columbia. About half of the number have preached statedly, each to a single congregation; while the others have extended their labors over wider fields, so that no less than 105 different communities have enjoyed, to some extent, the benefit of their ministrations. The missionaries report 131 hopeful conversions; and 211 as added to the churches,—82 on profession, and 129 by letter. Two only make mention of revivals of religion; while the general testimony is, that the year has been marked by an unusually large attendance on public religious services, especially on the Sabbath; by the serious and respectful attention of their congregations to the outward duties and forms of religion; and by a general improvement in the morals of the communities associated with them. Four houses of worship have been finished and dedicated to God; and five others commenced, with the hope of their being completed the current year. Fifteen new missionary stations have been occupied during the year; and two churches have acquired numbers and strength sufficient to enable them to dispense with missionary aid. Since 1840, more than fifty new fields have been entered within the limits of this Society, where previously the preaching of the Gospel had not been established. During the same period, also, twenty-five churches have relinquished the character of beneficiaries of the Society, and are co-operating vigorously with the older churches as the benefactors of the needy. A progress in the missionary work is here exhibited, which must be truly grateful to all its patrons.

But a vast and exceedingly difficult work is yet to be accomplished within the bounds of this Auxiliary. "Besides our numerous organized churches," says the Secretary of the Society, Rev. ELIAS R. FAIRCHILD, "that have no ministers, or enjoy their services but occasionally or at long intervals, there are many in the agricultural and manufacturing districts, and in our large boroughs and towns, and who constitute a highly important class of our citizens, who are comparatively unprovided with the means of grace or of moral and religious instruction. There are multitudes with us who are of foreign birth; and vast numbers also, who, though born in this land, are of a foreign tongue. Many of these are properly the objects of Home Missionary care; and within the year, this Society has sent to several congregations of them competent and faithful ministers. There are many and peculiar difficulties, however, in reaching this class of our citizens, and the progress of the work must be slow. The American citadel of the Man of Sin, is, also, within our territory. Here are his principal defences, his most splendid and costly establishments, and means the most various and captivating by which to deceive and to carry away the people from the true Gospel. Vast numbers of the people and extensive districts are under his control, in matters of religious faith and practice. To break up his power, and to bring the multitudes now in his train to seek and to embrace the truth in its simplicity, opens a great and difficult work before the friends of the Gospel and the patrons of the Home service of the churches; and yet it must be attempted, in humble reliance on the promises and the mighty power of God, and, eventually, we know, it will be done."

CENTRAL AGENCY, N. Y.

Under the direction of this Agency, the number of missionaries, the past year, has been 62. They have performed 49 years of ministerial service, in 80 congregations and missionary districts. Seven of these missionaries, and the people composing nine of the congregations, are emigrants from Wales and Germany. Of the twenty-one congregations which have been taken under the patronage of the Agency since the last report, fourteen had been assisted in former years. That these should again seek for missionary aid, after having attained strength to sustain themselves, is explained by the fact, that every year large numbers of their most enterprising members go to the great Western Valley. But, notwithstanding this process of diminution, and although no signal effusion of the Spirit has been enjoyed the last year, the field, as a whole, is in a condition of increasing prosperity. More missionaries have been employed, more years of labor performed by them, and a greater number of congregations have had the regular ministrations of the Gospel, than in any previous year. Churches have been organized, houses of worship completed, and two congregations assume, henceforth, the support of their own ministers. Six of the missionaries make grateful mention of special revivals of religion, in their respective parishes; and in some other churches an unusual amount of spiritual blessings has been enjoyed. The receipts of the year, from the field of this Agency, have been $5,463 80, which is $504 more than the collections of the previous year,—a legacy excepted;—and the expenditures have amounted to $4,402 95.

Rev. ABIJAH CRANE is the Secretary of the Agency.

WESTERN AGENCY, N. Y.

The Western Agency was the earliest of the organs constituted by the conductors of the A. H. M. S., for carrying out in detail the principles on which the Society was founded. As twenty years have now elapsed, since this Board was established, it is proper to review some of the results which have been realized. During this period, $149,000 have been collected on the field, for the cause of Home Missions. Eleven hundred and twenty appointments have been issued to missionaries, who, in fulfilling their trust, have performed 1,075 years of ministerial labor. During the same time, the Presbyterian and Congregational churches have increased from 190 to nearly 400; and the number of communicants from 10,000 to 30,000. As a striking illustration of the productiveness of timely and judicious missionary aid, it may be mentioned, that, while the field now occupied by the Western Agency received from the eastern benevolence only about $10,000 of missionary aid, before it undertook the supply of its own destitutions, it has already contributed five times that amount, through the channel of this Society, to give the Gospel to our destitute countrymen, besides $95,000 expended in aiding its own feeble churches; and it now furnishes some $50,000 annually to the various departments of christian benevolence. Still nobler returns for the pious sacrifices by which this work was begun, are seen in the consecration of living souls—the sons and daughters of the churches—who, as ministers, or as helpers of those who labor in word and doctrine, are building up the cause of the Redeemer, both at home and in foreign lands.

The portion of this usefulness which has been realized during the year past, is thus reported by the Secretary of the Agency, Rev. JOHN A. MURRAY. "The whole number of missionaries in the employ of the Agency has been 78, and the churches aided 90. The receipts of the year amount to $11,210 66—which exceeds the income for any previous year. The amount appropriated to sustain the laborers was $6,025, of which the churches assisted undertake to refund $1,325, by collections among their own people. Four of the fields cultivated have been taken up during the past year, and 21 new appointments of missionaries have been made. While a pervading spiritual drought has afflicted this as well as other portions of Zion, the missionaries have not labored in vain. Increased stability has been given to the various auxiliary institutions, which grow up under the shadow of living churches. Parsonages have been built; pastors have been installed; debts which for years had clogged the wheels of christian enterprise, have been paid off; three of the churches assisted have signified their intention to ask no further aid; three edifices for public worship have been finished and dedicated, and nine others are in the process of erection. In most of the churches, Sabbath schools and Bible classes have been in operation during the year; and very energetic efforts have been made to stay the ravages of intemperance, by drying up its streams and destroying its fountains." The missionaries report 334 added to the churches, 131 of them on profession of their faith.

Besides the foregoing, five missionaries and as many churches have received assistance through the Missionary Committee of the Rochester Presbytery. The collections in the churches connected with the Presbytery, have amounted to $718 77.

WESTERN RESERVE AGENCY, O.

For nineteen years, the missionary operations in this section of Ohio, have been conducted mainly through a Board auxiliary to the A. H. M. S., appointed annually by the Synod of the Western Reserve, and known as the "Western Reserve Domestic Missionary Society." At the suggestion of the Synod, this arrangement has been recently superseded by a Committee of Agency, appointed directly by the Parent Society,—a change from which important advantages are anticipated, in a greater unity of plan and simplicity of details.

The year covered by the action of both Boards has yielded an income of $2,208 53; of which $2,056 53 have been expended in sustaining thirty-three missionaries. Eight others have been aided by the Parent Society on the same field.

The Secretary of the Western Reserve Agency, Rev. MYRON TRACY, in reporting the embarrassments which have attended every species of enterprise in that region, in consequence of the severe drought of last summer, bears a testimony highly honorable to the spirit of the churches. "Many Christians," he remarks, "seem deeply to feel that it will not do to stop giving to benevolent purposes, even if the times are hard; that our Home Missionary and other Societies must be sustained by a steady income; that private convenience must yield to public interests; and that to stop giving to sustain the cause of religion, is no way to remedy the general embarrassments of the community. This has shown me," he adds, "that sound principles, upon this subject, prevail to a pleasing extent." As corroborative of this commendation, we are happy to state, that the income of the year from this field has suffered no diminution, although the temporal circumstances of a large portion of the churches have been greatly impaired. It is also worthy of note, that forty-five churches on the Western Reserve, which at some period of their history were dependent on the Missionary Society, and nurtured by its care, now enjoy the labors of a stated ministry the whole of the time, without foreign aid; and it is from these very churches, that by far the greater portion of the Home Missionary contributions of the region are received. It is confidently expected, that ere long, many others will be added to the number, with equal gratitude for past favors, and equally disposed to manifest it by a consistent liberality.

MARIETTA AGENCY, O.

Of the 14 missionaries on this field, 4 are sustained by the Agency; for which the churches in that section of the state have contributed $436 28. Some of these laborers have entered the field since the last report, while a number have occupied portions of it for several years. "They are all of them," says the Secretary of the Agency, "men of energy and self-denial, and are, we think, earnestly devoted to their great work. No inconsiderable progress has been made during the year upon our field, in securing the great interests for which your Society is laboring; and although we cannot report revivals of religion, as wide spread and powerful as were witnessed within our bounds during the previous year, the presence and power of the Holy Spirit have, nevertheless, been manifested in several of our missionary churches; and all of them, so far as we can ascertain, are in a healthful and prosperous condition."

By the blessing of God on the enlightened and truly evangelical co-operation of the officers of the college at Marietta, and of the pastors in the vicinity, all but two or three of the churches which have been organized on this field, are now supplied with the stated ministrations of God's word.

But there is yet much land in that portion of Ohio, where no laborers have been stationed and no churches organized. The Agency has recently explored large sections, which can be supplied by no instrumentality but that of Home Missions. East of the meridian of Marietta, and south of the Western Reserve, in a region comprising six entire counties, and large portions of six others, and spreading over 2,300 square miles, the only ministers who sympathize with the patrons of this Society, are, so far as we are informed, the two missionaries in Washington county. At least one missionary should be immediately stationed in each of these counties, and sustained from abroad, until the obstacles which have arisen from a long destitution of the regular ministrations of the Gospel, shall have been overcome.

Rev. THOMAS WICKES has recently been appointed Secretary of the Marietta Agency, to supply the place of Rev. HENRY SMITH, who resigned at the close of the year.

CINCINNATI AGENCY, O.

The number of missionaries connected with this agency, the past year, is 26. The receipts amount to $2,376 33, and the payments to $2,067 54.

Rev. HENRY LITTLE, the Secretary of the Agency, reports, that notwithstanding an unusual amount of sickness in the West, the last autumn, the missionaries have labored with encouraging success, as well as with zeal and self-denial. Their annual reports show, that several of them have been favored with interesting revivals of religion.

Covering so wide an extent of territory, over which the regular institutions of the Gospel have been but partially established, the Cincinnati Agency is importunate in its appeals for an increase of the number of missionaries. To show the reasonableness of this urgency, we have but to compare the statistics of the two states of Ohio and Indiana, in 1836 and 1846. Ten years ago, those states contained an aggregate population of 1,836,000, among whom 104 missionaries were laboring. Now, the people number 2,582,000, and the missionaries are 160; that is, the subjects of evangelical effort have increased 746,000, while the increase of the heralds of the cross whom we have sent to them is only 56. "There is scarcely a minister upon our field," says the report, "who does not need another to assist him at some point in his immediate vicinity; and such an assistant would scarcely be located, before the two would prepare a place for a third. And this process must be often repeated, before even the most favored portions of the field will be supplied; while other sections, into which no laborers have yet penetrated, are in still greater need of attention. The distance from New Albany to Evansville is, by the Ohio, nearly two hundred miles, and there are flourishing towns on both sides of the river; and yet we have not one minister in the whole distance. Follow the Ohio from Evansville to the mouth of the Wabash, and then go up the latter river to Terre Haute, and you will not find one devoting himself to the work of the ministry. From Indianapolis, pass by the national road to the Big Miami, in Ohio, and for a considerable distance, on either hand, no missionary of our Society is stationed. On the course of the Miami canal, from Piqua, north to the Junction, or from the former place north west to Fort Wayne, we have not one man. And, although evangelical ministers in other connexions are occasionally found in the districts thus designated, they are too few to modify, in any perceptible degree, the general aspect of spiritual destitution. And when it is remembered, that, compared with other sections of the West, the settlements in Ohio and Indiana are already old, it will be understood how the fathers may have forgotten, and the children have never known the blessings of the stated ministrations of God's house, and that a generation is already on the ground, devoid of those associations and habits which facilitate the spread of the truth among them. There are districts where it is needful, not only to impart instruction in religious doctrine, but also to vindicate the divinity of Revelation itself, and even to lay the foundation for the elements of human knowledge—where common schools are few in number and inferior in kind, where many are unable to read, and there is, of course, a want of general intelligence, and of the comforts and refinements of life. Sabbath-breaking, intemperance, profaneness and licentiousness, and all other evils whose only antidote is the Gospel, flourish in such communities. Here, every thing pertaining to the physical, mental and spiritual welfare of the people needs a transformation; and the process will not even be begun, until the new creating energy of the divine word shall pervade the moral chaos. Much of this work devolves on the A. H. M. S. and every succeeding year increases its magnitude and multiplies its difficulties.

There is reason, however, to cherish the expectation, that faithful and persevering endeavors will not be in vain. The Head of the Church is prospering his own cause, not only by the influences of his Spirit, but by making secular enterprise open channels for the diffusion of knowledge and virtue. He is raising up, on the ground, men of faith and toil to prepare his way. The college at Crawfordsville, itself the product of missionary culture, and the Lane Theological Seminary, are becoming radiant points of general intelligence, and are already furnishing a ministry which, in addition to professional training, is by birth and habit adapted to the emergencies of western society.

MISSOURI HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

During the year now closed, Rev. Dr. BULLARD has been succeeded by Rev. J. B. TOWNSEND as Secretary of this Auxiliary. Earnest endeavors are making by its Committee to bring the churches in the state to a proper sense of their obligations to give the Gospel a more liberal support, and especially to diminish, as soon as practicable, the proportion of its cost which is derived from the A. H. M. S. The receipts for the year have been $650—nearly double the income of the year before. The number of missionaries of the Society in Missouri is 25, of whom 10 have been commissioned and sent out since the last report. This is the largest reinforcement ever sent to that state in a single year. With what emotions of gratitude to God and the friends of Missions, these were welcomed by their brethren on the ground, those only can appreciate, who have themselves borne, in unassisted loneliness, the burden and heat of the day. "We had long prayed," says the report, "for more laborers to occupy this part of the vineyard. We had written to different parts of the East, we had waited till our hearts were faint within us; but until now, no general response was wafted across the Mountains to cheer us in these ends of the earth. These brethren have, thus far, proved themselves a true and faithful band, ready to face trials and hardships with self-denying fortitude. So far as we can learn, they give satisfaction to the people among whom they labor; and we regard them as kind, noble-spirited young men, from whom we expect much. For this reinforcement, and for the steady hand with which your Society sustains our feeble churches, we cannot be sufficiently thankful to God, and to his people acting through your Institution. Had their aid been withheld, at least two-thirds of the ministers on this field would have been compelled to abandon their places, or devote most of their energy to securing a support for their families. Nor should the patrons of Home Missions grow weary of their kindness to us, through apprehension of a want of success. Under the genial smiles of the Great Head of the Church, much fruit is reaped from their bounty. The churches aided are increasing in strength, so as to give promise that some of them will soon be able to provide for themselves. Two of them have within a few months past enjoyed the reviving influence of the Spirit of God, and many hearts have been filled with the peace of pardon, and the joy of their first love."

MICHIGAN.

Since the last report, Rev. CALVIN CLARK, who had previously labored as a missionary, visiting the destitute settlements in the western part of the state, forming churches and strengthening the things that remain, has been appointed Agent of the Society, and entered on his work in October last. The effect of this arrangement is already seen, in an increase of contributions to the Home Missionary cause, and in a more extensive enlistment of sympathy and co-operation, on the part of both ministers and people. It had come to be true in this, as in some other sections of the West, that more interest and liberality were manifested for almost any other benevolent object, than for the Institution, by whose steady kindness the churches had been planted and nurtured through seasons of the severest trial, and on which they are still to a great extent dependent. The hope is now entertained, that Home Missions will take their proper place in the regard of the churches of Michigan. If this can be done, it will not be many years before this new state will be able to sustain the expense of her own missionaries. But, for the present, the unabated sympathy and assistance of the Society are requisite. Of the 160 Presbyterian and Congregational churches in the state, all but four or five came into existence through the agency of the A. H. M. S., and not more than thirty are yet able to sustain the Gospel without help. It is apparent therefore, that what has been done, only commits the friends of Home Missions to go on, if they would not see the temple of God, whose foundations they have laid, and whose walls they have begun to raise, fall into speedy dilapidation and decay. Sixty-seven, or more than half of the Presbyterian and Congregational ministers in the state were thus sustained in their places, the last year; and without such assistance, they would have been compelled to abandon their posts, and leave the state, or resort to other employments, to the injury of their ministry, and of all the valuable interests which are fostered by their influence.

"Could the friends of missions behold the success and progress of their past efforts," says the Agent, "they would not regard their encouragement on this field as small; but on the contrary, would exclaim, 'hitherto hath the Lord helped us.' They would enlarge their desires; they would become more fervent in their prayers, and more liberal in their contributions. The course here has been onward, and is still onward."

During the last six months, the Agent has visited many of the missionary churches, and labored, in connection with their pastors, to elevate the standard of piety, and to draw out their liberality in sustaining their own privileges. "To many churches the past year has been one of mercy. The members of one have been doubled in a day. The Spirit has shed down his reviving influence on several congregations; and souls have been led in goodly numbers to the foot of the cross. But apart from the revivals enjoyed, there has been a happy advancement. Several meeting-houses have been completed and dedicated to the worship of Jehovah. The congregations have been on the increase. Sunday schools are sustained, and flourishing. A less fluctuating state of things is beginning to obtain. Several pastors have been settled; and the convictions and preferences of the public mind are becoming more disposed for permanent relations between ministers and people."

ILLINOIS.

Early in the year now reported, Rev. MARCUS HICKS resigned the Agency in Illinois. He was succeeded by Rev. WILLIAM KIRBY, who entered the state as a missionary of the A. H. M. S. in 1831, and has had a personal knowledge of the progress of its settlement and religious history. Mr. K. began his labors in July, and has been diligently employed in visiting various sections, and ascertaining their wants, in assisting applicant churches to develope their own means of support, in removing church debts, and in making pecuniary collections. Ninety-eight missionaries have held commissions from the Society, in this state, during the year.

"Nine months experience in this service," the Agent writes, "convinces me that the churches and people generally, regard your missionaries with favor, and feel under great obligation to the Society and its patrons. They hail them as benefactors. They rejoice in the good already done, and look forward to its indefinite enlargement. I know of no one thing, that, by the great body of the churches, would be regarded as a greater calamity, than for your Society to withdraw from further efforts to sustain Gospel institutions among them. It would be to them a famine of the bread of life. Nor do they ask to be eased, and other men burdened. They put their own hands to the plough—their own shoulders to the wheel, and labor according to their ability, yea, and beyond their ability, to sustain the preaching of the Gospel. Individual subscriptions for this purpose in the feeble churches, not unfrequently rise as high as one hundred dollars, and are of every varying amount below. Since the month of November, I have received contributions from the churches I have visited amounting to $345; which has a double value, as aiding the work thus much in dollars and cents; but more especially, as evincing the deep interest felt in the prosecution of the Home Missionary enterprise.”

The field possesses a two-fold interest to the friends of American evangelization. On the one hand, it contains regions of great spiritual necessity—fields which every argument that christian compassion and patriotism can supply, urges us to enter without delay. On the other hand, the blessings which have followed in the train of our missions there, are not surpassed in the history of Gospel effort in any part of the land. Several important districts, in various parts of the state, are now in want of from five to ten additional missionaries in each, the present year. In one section of the state, embracing 13 counties, there are only 4 ministers of the Presbyterian and Congregational denominations. One of these finds half of the population around him unable to read intelligently. In some sections, schools are rare, and their importance not understood; or rather, they are opposed, “lest by education the children should learn to be bad.” Temperance in such communities is far from being popular. Not more than one-tenth of the 7,000 inhabitants of one of these counties, who are old enough to drink it, abstain from whiskey; and three-fourths are reputed to be in the habit of intoxication, some once or twice a year, and others every week. “In one town which has four or five physicians, all were drunk on Christmas day.” Nor is the character of the religious instruction such as to render this state of morals surprising. Although in a statistical table, where figures alone are suffered to speak, no portion of our land would present a more imposing array of preachers and church members than this; yet, not a few who are recognized as christian ministers, are opposed to temperance, and to Sabbath schools, and teach the people that benevolent societies are schemes for making money, or for uniting church and state.

But when we remember, on the contrary, what the Providence and Spirit of God have already done for Illinois, and what portion of the improvement there has taken place in connexion with Home Missions, we scarcely know whether more to regret the scantiness of our past enterprise, or to rejoice in the encouragements for the future. "Fifteen years have elapsed," says our Agent, "since I first entered the state. It was spring; the country then lay before me in the wild luxuriance of nature. The prairies, with their gentle swells, were carpeted with green, with no interruption of their cheerful beauty by the labors of the husbandman. Farms skirted the edge of the prairie; but like timid mariners, the inhabitants did not venture out into the broad sea. They sought the shelter of the groves and forests from the winds and storms which sweep across our plains. The early settlers supposed themselves happy to find some nook of prairie jutting into the timber, like an inlet from the ocean, where they might safely weather the storm. They anticipated but a sparse population, in their day, upon the immense prairies, supposing that they would remain an unbroken range for herds of cattle and horses. But the exhaustless fertility of the soil became known abroad; the densely populated states sent out their sons to break up the ground that had been gathering richness for ages. Those vacant lands were destined soon to wave with golden harvests, or teem with the bustle and activity of civilized life. Over the very track which I travelled on my entrance into the state, I have passed within a few days. I have stood on the very spot, commanding a prospect of several miles, where it was asked with an air of incredulity, 'Will this big prairie ever be settled?' Now, every acre is enclosed, and has been for years. A thriving village sleeps upon its bosom. Tasteful dwellings greet the eye here and there, with lowing herds and bleating flocks. So is it in almost every section of the country. Villages and cities spring up as by enchantment. From an uncultivated wild, our state has advanced in population and improvement; we have cities whose inhabitants number from 3,000 to 10,000; we have steam mills and water mills; while our rivers are almost hourly stirred by the swiftly gliding steamer, bearing away the product of our soil. The traveller, as he passes over our prairies, can scarcely credit his own senses, as he contrasts the present with the past, and sees what changes the hand of industry and art has effected in the short space of fifteen years."

"Nor is the moral and religious aspect less gratifying. Fifteen years ago, there were but fourteen Presbyterian ministers in the state, and about as many churches, not one of which was able to sustain the ordinances of the Gospel without missionary aid. There was then not a finished frame or brick house of worship within our borders. Sabbath schools and Temperance societies were just introduced to the knowledge of the people, and encountered violent opposition from many professed followers of that which is good. One venerable man, who had put out the fires of his distillery and crushed the viperous worm, still lives to rejoice in the progress of this and every other good work. But such triumphs of the truth were seldom to be found. Now, instead of fourteen churches, we have nearly two hundred, which are to a great extent supplied with the regular preaching of the Gospel. Probably, seven-eighths of them are furnished with comfortable places of worship, frame or brick, which in a majority of instances are paid for. Of the twenty-four churches sustaining their own pastors, there are but five that were never aided; and it is doubtful whether they would have ever existed, but for aid extended to neighboring churches, where their members were nourished until they acquired strength to go alone. I do not know a church in Illinois, in connection with Congregationalists or New School Presbyterians, which is not directly or indirectly indebted to the A. H. M. S. for its existence. That Society has done a glorious work, both for the kingdom of Christ and our country. Its agency is still indispensable. We have a population of nearly 700,000—having increased nearly 200,000 in five years. This is no time to arrest the work of Home Missions. It need not be said that other denominations will do the work. They may do the work which they are called to do. But they cannot do the work of the A. H. M. S. That Society has its appropriate mission from God, and it may not shrink from its responsibility.”

WISCONSIN AGENCY.

Thirty-six missionaries have held commissions from this Society the past year in Wisconsin; and 45 churches have enjoyed a greater or less portion of their labors. Several churches have been visited with revivals, as the result of which many souls have been added to the Lord. Sabbath schools are sustained in all the congregations, and vigorous efforts for promoting temperance are reported. Fourteen new churches have been organized, some of them in a region where gospel privileges had not before been permanently enjoyed. New stations have been occupied, and the standard lifted up at points far in advance of former operations. “We are extending our efforts,” says the Report of the Agent, Rev. STEPHEN PEET, “and following up the wave of emigration as it rolls on westward and northward. One of our missionaries has been laboring nearly two years in the region beyond the Wisconsin river, preaching the Gospel among the frontier settlements as they crowd on, and still on, in that direction. Another has within a few months taken his station on the west side of Lake Winnebago, where, but recently the children of the forest roamed unmolested among those beautiful prairies and groves. It is truly wonderful to see the progress of this country—to behold the rapid increase of population, churches multiplying, laborers coming in, revivals enjoyed, Sabbath schools established, literary institutions founded, pastors settled, houses of worship erected and dedicated to God; in short, the religious institutions enjoyed at the East extensively inroduced, and established almost at once, among the growing population of this rising territory. It is a luxury to be a witness of such scenes, and engaged in such a work."

"The happy results which have been realized in this territory, and the preparations made for future labors and conquests, are all to be traced to the influence and efforts of the American Home Missionary Society. Its early occupancy of the field, and its continued fostering care, have placed us in our present advantageous position. Every church in this territory was either organized by the missionaries of that Society, or has been at some time aided in the support of the ministry by its funds. Those churches which now sit pleasantly under their own vine and fig tree, enjoy their own commodious sanctuaries, and are able liberally to support their own pastors, look back with gratitude to the time, when, in their feeble infancy, they were cherished by its kind assistance."

But these encouragements from the past, are all needed to stimulate the friends of missions to go on with the work, which, after all, is but just commenced. The tide of emigration, the past two years, has thrown a large and excellent population into the central and southern parts of the territory, which has made numerous fields for missionary cultivation. Under the direction of the Agency, these settlements have been visited, and all practicable measures taken to supply them with the institutions of the Gospel. It is a matter of disappointment to the Society, that it has been able to furnish so few additional missionaries for the openings in Wisconsin. After deducting those who, from various causes, have been withdrawn from the work, a net increase of only two has been secured during the year. Meanwhile, twenty vacant churches, and extensive regions where churches must soon be formed, are but portions of the field already white unto the harvest. So many masses of population are accumulating simultaneously at different points, that it is with no little solicitude that the Committee inquire, "Whom shall we send, and who will go for us"; and whence shall come the resources to sustain those who offer themselves to go? And the emergency admits of no delay; for while we linger, errors are spreading themselves with much activity in various parts of the territory. The Man of Sin has begun to trespass on this fair portion of the Redeemer's heritage, which, until lately, was comparatively unvexed by his presence. Some even of those who have enjoyed the light and privileges of this Gospel land, but who had been exposed to kindred influences, have received "the mark of the beast," and are paying homage to "Gods that have come newly up, whom their fathers feared not."

IOWA.

REV. JULIUS A. REED, since the last annual meeting, has been appointed Agent of the Society, in the place of Rev. ASA TURNER, who, for several years, had devoted a portion of his time to the general interests of Home Missions in this Territory.

The missionary history of Iowa has been characterized by no remarkable events during the last year. There has been a general and steady advance. Congregations have increased in size and regularity, and Sabbath schools have been multiplied, and extended instruction to a larger number of pupils. Three neat and suitable church edifices have been completed, two others will be finished soon, and four more during the season. Some of these houses have been built with extreme difficulty, and some of the congregations, in erecting them, have exhibited a spirit worthy of their Puritan fathers. Five new churches have been organized. Owing to various causes, the number of missionaries has been reduced from 28 to 24. Interesting seasons of revival were enjoyed at two stations, in which Christians were quickened in hope and activity, backsliders reclaimed, and souls hopefully won to God. There has been, however, less of spiritual refreshing in these churches than in former years. Among the causes of this may, perhaps, be included the unprecedented sickness, which, for a time, interfered with attendance on the public means of grace, besides afflicting, in their own persons or in their families, no less than fifteen of the missionaries. One of the oldest of them has been laid aside for most of the year, by disease contracted in the exhausting labors of pioneer life. Another has been compelled to be absent for several months by the illness of his companion, now happily restored to health. But the event which most deeply marks the year now closed, on the tablet of the heart, is the death of Rev. HORACE HUTCHINSON, the Society's missionary at Burlington. This beloved brother was one of the band who gave themselves to the work of the Lord in Iowa, in 1843, and is the first of that company who has finished his work and entered into rest. Gathering to himself the hearts of his people and his brethren by his amiable qualities, and honored for his intellectual endowments, he gave uncommon promise of a long and bright career of usefulness in the West. But such was not the will of the Master. A constitutional tendency to consumption was developed, several months before his decease, against which he struggled for a time, in hope of living to build up the spiritual temple, whose foundations had begun to rise under his hands. Early in the winter, it became evident that he must cease from the service of the Church on earth, and go up higher. Accordingly, he proceeded to set his house in order, and with calm and confiding faith, wore out the months of lingering decay, until the 7th of March, when he obtained his release. A missionary brother who was with him for the last ten days of his life, regards it as a privilege to have sat by his dying bed. "The anchor of his soul," he remarks, "was both sure and steadfast. We thought it hard that he should die so young—that he should be removed in his prime from his bright prospects of usefulness and happiness among us; but his own heart rested in a calm acquiescence in the will of God. He was asked, if in view of his sickness and early death, he ever regretted having come to Iowa? 'O no,' he replied, 'I have never had one such feeling.' His great desire was that he might honor with his death the Gospel he had preached in his life, by resting on it with unfaltering trust. 'O,' said he, 'to preach the Gospel—what a glorious work!' The last sermon which he wrote, and which he never preached, was on 'the glorious Gospel of the blessed God.'"

Fourteen years ago, except a few Indian traders, not a white inhabitant was found north of the Missouri line, in what is now about to become the state of Iowa. The settlements began in 1833. In 1840, the population was 42,000; in two years it rose to 82,500, and now it has gone above 100,000, but how much is not definitely known. In three counties of the New Purchase, the increase of each for twenty-six months after it was opened for settlement, was 200 per month; and that rate has probably continued until the present time. In October last, the most recent purchase of lands was vacated by the Sac and Fox Indians, throwing open from six to eight millions of acres for settlement; and already the immigration has penetrated fifty miles into this new tract, and counties have been organized and towns laid out.

Much, then, as missionary labor has accomplished, and much as eastern benevolence has done for Iowa, it is scarcely to be named in comparison with what will hereafter be needed. Our Agent writes, "We fear the impression has gone abroad, that our churches are supplied. There are at least thirteen counties in the territory, which, so far as I can learn, are destitute of Congregational and every kind of Presbyterian preaching, and three more that enjoy it only rarely and irregularly. We need, at this moment, twenty additional missionaries to supply the wants of our denomination."

THE WORK TO BE DONE.

Such is a cursory view of the portions of the missionary field, which the Society has endeavored to cultivate during the past year. But it will be asked, What is to be gathered from all this as bearing on the future? What is the work that remains to be done; and how much of it forms the appropriate enterprise of the year which now begins? These are inquiries which justly claim the earnest attention of the Society, and of all who love our country and our race. There is such a convergency of the lines of Providence to this land,—events fraught with mighty results so mark its recent history,—that the most careless are moved with solicitude. It begins to be seen, that the keeping of our domestic and foreign relations, the interests of peace and our national progress, have been, every year, passing more and more into the hands of the people beyond the mountains. Men of trade and men of politics, as well as the thoughtful Christian, feel that something must be done; and thousands of pious hearts are swelling with the prayer, "Lord, what wilt thou have us to do?" We turn, then, from the narrative of the past year, to consider what response the voice of Providence is making to this inquiry—what openings are before us, and what necessity is laid upon us to enter them.

It is the duty of the Executive Committee, therefore, to announce to the Society, that the missionary work is increasing on their hands. This arises, partly, from the weakening of churches by emigration; partly, from the filling up of large districts of the older portions of the West, which the stream of early emigration had passed by; and partly, by the continued extension of settlements upon our frontiers. To each of these causes of increased demand for the action of the Society, the Committee request distinct attention.

Scarcely any fact is more forcibly presented to the notice of the conductors of Home Missions, than that the emigration from the East to the West, and from the older portions of the latter to the newer, enfeebles numerous congregations, by removing some of their most enterprising members. In this way, many a strong church, able to sustain itself and assist others, is converted into two or more feeble communities. The portion which is left behind, is reduced to a state of dependance on missionary aid; and that which goes forth, swells the number of the destitute to whom the same assistance is indispensable. Hence, the utmost efforts of missionary societies have been unable to prevent an increase of feeble churches in the Middle States, and even in some portions of New England. This state of things is not only to be regretted, but it also demands sympathy and relief. Christian philanthropy may not stand and look coldly on, and see the fires go out on those ancient altars. Every principle of the missionary enterprise bids us strengthen the things that remain, if we would not see the East itself become a waste, and the fountains from which so much blessing has flowed, dried up.

But a still greater demand for Home Missionary labor, comes from the interior, and hitherto neglected portions of the Western States. After the first settlers had occupied the choicest lands, succeeding emigrants became fastidious, and passed on to forestall the possession of the select portions of still newer regions; thus leaving immense tracts to be gradually filled up by a population of inferior enterprise or capital. The remarkable extent to which steam can be employed in the navigation of the western rivers, and its coincidence with the spirit of hasty adventure in the people, has greatly facilitated their dispersion over a large surface. Of course, missionary enterprise could do no otherwise than go where the people went, and to select its first lodgments at the points of the greatest apparent importance, or where some kind of colony had brought together families of similar religious faith. When a state is thus dotted over with churches, at unequal and irregular distances, there still remain hundreds of interstices, where the difficult, but indispensable missionary work must yet be done, if we would gain the whole ground for the Master. Almost every neighborhood has from one to five or ten households, belonging to some division of the great Calvinistic family, with more or less of other creeds, besides half of the whole, uncommitted to any denomination, and ready to receive a bias from the first commanding influence that comes in. And these settlements are to comprise incalculable multitudes of people. At a time when Connecticut contained but 10,000 souls, it was said by one of her governors, "that all the land that was fit for cultivation was taken up, and was fully occupied;" but now that State contains thirty times that population. So, those vast interior portions of the West are going on to attain a degree of populousness far beyond former estimates, and as much surpassing any eastern example, as their soil is endowed with a greater capability of supporting human life. What a field for Home Missions is here—a field clamorous with appeals for our immediate attention! A greater mistake cannot be made by the friends of missions, than to suppose that the occupancy of a few principal points, on important thoroughfares and near the central towns, secures the evangelization of the country; or that the influence of the ministers in these leading positions can do it. Nothing can accomplish this but the arduous details of parochial labor in all those destitutions. Let the Western Prairie be fired on some day at the close of Autumn, and the passing stranger might suppose that the flame must at once extirpate every noxious root, and prepare the ground for easy cultivation; but the dweller there knows, to his cost, that if he would see it covered with the waving harvest, every foot must be turned over by the plough, and worked by the strength of his arm.

But there is also a widening field for Home Missionary enterprise continually forming by the increase of our frontier settlements. On our north western, western and south western borders, we have a line of some 1800 miles, over which the wave of population is constantly breaking. Within a few months, regions, some of which never before attracted attention, have assumed a degree of importance that cannot be overlooked. On the North West, our notice is called to the tract lying on the southern shore of Lake Superior. The recent permits granted by the United States Government for working the mineral lands in that region, and the great success which report ascribes to the undertaking, have attracted, and will continue to attract, a vast amount of capital and labor. In a district which five years ago was coasted only by the Indian, or the occasional voyageur, hundreds of people passed the last Winter, and this Spring are asking for ministers to come and bring to them, and to the thousands of their expected associates, a Sabbath, a sanctuary and the word of God. In the "pineries" of the upper Wisconsin, and on the St. Croix, 350 miles above Galena, settlements are already formed, which for a year past have been asking for missionaries. Emigration is also fast crowding upon the Indians on the western borders of Iowa. In the accession of six millions of acres to the New Iowa purchase, in October last, multitudes of families have gone in from one to three days' journey; and where, but a year ago, was one wide wilderness of natural beauty, the crops of the settler will this season burst through the turf, and the landscape be chequered by his fields. So also on the Missouri frontier, on the waters of the Grand River and the Little Platte. The flow of emigration commences in those rich vallies with early spring, and ceases not until frozen up by winter. Every where, the cry is, "Send us men!" Every missionary pleads for helpers, and tells of two or five or ten settlements around him, which he would, but cannot supply, because his strength is overtasked.

The following is an ENUMERATION OF MISSIONARIES whom the Committee desire to send out the present season. It has been taken from specific appeals made, within a few months, by the Agents and missionaries of the Society, by Auxiliaries, and by the Committees of Missions of various ecclesiastical bodies,—and expresses not the whole demand, but only that which comes from sections looking chiefly to this Society, and calls for the smallest supply that the wants of the respective fields will admit—viz:

For 12 counties and parts of counties in South Eastern Ohio, 4; for the Presbyteries of Tuscarawas and Scioto, 4; for the Maumee Valley, 3; for counties on the west line of Ohio, 2—making 11 for that State.

For Indiana, 3 in the South West; 3 between Indianapolis and the line of Ohio; 2 on the Indian Reserve; and 6 at points upon or north west of the Wabash—14 in all.

In Michigan, 3 in the East; 5 in the counties around Saginaw Bay, and extending westward to the mouth of Grand River; 3 in the Lake counties, between the latter point and the Indiana line; 1 at Sault Ste Marie, and 1 at Copper Harbor—making for the State—13.

In Wisconsin, 2 north west of the Wisconsin River; 4 in the mining region; 2 in Dane county; 1 between Sheboygan and Lake Winnebago; and 2 in the vicinity of Fond du Lac—11 for this Territory.

Illinois must have, in twenty-four counties south of the National Road, 6; in the central portions, 2; in the north eastern counties, 5; in the north western, 3—making 16.

South Western Missouri asks 3; the mineral region in the South East should have 2; the country on the Grand River and in the North West, 4—making 9 for Missouri.

Iowa should have at least 10; viz. 3 to fill recent vacancies; 3 for the New Purchase, and 4 for the older counties.

Thirteen new counties in Georgia, including the late country of the Cherokees, should have 2; Kentucky asks for 4; and Tennessee for 2.

Here is an aggregate of ninety-two missionary laborers, whose selection, appointment and support is sought and implored at our hands. Any thing short of this, would be to fall behind the progress of the country and the activity of errorists. Not a man embraced in this enumeration can be longer spared, without starving the sheep of Christ, and giving up multitudes of precious souls to the rapacity of the destroyer. So strongly do the Committee feel that the will of God requires this enlargement, that they now submit it to the Society, and to the Christian public, as the least extension of the missionary work that should be attempted in the coming year. And they are sure, that when the brethren, who have preferred the appeals from which the foregoing statement is drawn, shall come to examine its details, each one will be disappointed to find so little proposed for the region around him.

But it is also to be remembered, that since the last anniversary, the addition of Texas to our Union, with 300,000 inhabitants, and a territory of 324,000 square miles—capable of forming seven states as large as Pennsylvania—has devolved on American Christians a new responsibility to sow it with the good seed of the kingdom. Besides, caravans of our people are on the way to Oregon, and to the adjacent portions of California. Eight thousand citizens of the United States have gone there in former years, and as many more are expected to start during the present season. More than once, request for missionaries to Oregon have been made to the Committee; and they have resolved to send at least two, as pioneers, at the earliest practicable moment. They cannot doubt, that the Christian public will sustain them in this measure, when it is considered how prompt the enemy is to be first on the ground; that Romanism has there at least sixteen priests; and that Mormonism is sending thither a colony of thousands. To christian philanthropy, it is of little moment who holds the political sovereignty of those regions; or whether the crowds of emigrants are moved by that noble spirit that founds states, and subdues for the use of man uncultivated wilds; or whether they are impelled by a restless discontent with things enjoyed and a rapacious grasping after more. In either case, it is a settled point, that those are going, who are bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh. They are bound to the East by ties of kindred, by association, and by a pride in those national institutions, which, more than the soil they cover, constitute the country of Americans. This is a respect, in which they can never expatriate themselves. They bear with them American hearts and habits, and are already imitating, beyond the Rocky Mountains, the political and social arrangements of the states from which they went out. Our wisdom, perhaps, might regard this movement as ill-advised and premature ; and in view of what is already on our hands, we might shrink from such an addition to the work of evangelization. But we are allowed no choice as to whether the exigency shall exist, but only as to the way in which we shall meet it. Another of those great migrations that mark the history of the Anglo-Saxon race has begun,—another seal is opened, and another voice is heard, announcing the enlarged commission assigned to the American churches. If we are prompt to understand our calling and to discern the signs of the times ; if we have a lively sensibility to the honor of the Redeemer, and our pity goes forth with his, after the souls of men wherever they wander, we shall not lose this epoch, so auspicious for securing the moral welfare of a new empire. A nation is about to be born in a day ; and why shall not the tent of the emigrant, like the cabin of the May Flower, contain elements that shall insure for him, wherever he goes, religion, knowledge, and the rights of man ? Why may not other PILGRIMS plant another PLYMOUTH on the shore of the Pacific, with the germs of institutions, under whose benign operation their sons for ages, shall rejoice in “FREEDOM TO WORSHIP GOD ?”

APPENDIX.

Addresses at the Twentieth Anniversary.

Address of Rev. Samuel W. Fisher, Albany,

In support of the following Resolution :

Resolved, That the fact that this is our country, imposes upon us a peculiar obligation to send the Gospel to every part of it.

Christianity is world-wide in its regards, and a christian heart warms with love as truly for a benighted Hindoo as for a benighted American. Wherever there is a soul perishing for lack of the Gospel—in any clime, on any shore, among my friends, among my foes, and I possess the means to save him, there will Christ bid me carry the water of life. But while this is true, it is equally true that the order of christian effort, must be settled by our relations to the world and the position we occupy in it. A family has superior claims to those of the larger circle of relations ; our state than other states ; our country than other countries. When a stone is flung upon the placid bosom of a lake, the circles spread outward from the centre, and not from the shore inward to the centre. When Christ commissions his disciples to preach repentance and remission of sins among all nations, he commands them to BEGIN AT JERUSALEM,—Jerusalem, to them the centre of the world, the city where the cross was reared ; and more than all, the national city of their own glorious ancestry, and the capital of their country. In giving such a command, he did but act in harmony with those great arrangements of the Creator for the good of our race, by which the world is divided into empires, states, towns and families ; and while he did not impair the obligation of universal benevolence, he yet wisely directed the order of their efforts, and made their patriotism subservient to the spread of his Gospel.

Why is he esteemed peculiarly infamous, who neglects his household—who suffers the gray hairs of a parent to descend with sorrow to the grave, and the children God has given him to grow up ignorant and irreligious, although he may have founded colleges by his wealth, and reared hospitals for the wretched, and contributed his thousands for the support of the Gospel ? Why has “ patriot ” risen to be a title of honor, and “ traitor,” from Cataline to Arnold, been stamped by the world with every feature of infamy ? Simply, because it is the order of nature, of nature’s God and of the Gospel too, that men should do their duty to all men, beginning at Jerusalem ; that whatever other interests an individual may neglect or promote, nothing can atone for the neglect of those peculiar interests, which spring up within the more limited circle of his family or his country.

I am not pleading for a restricted benevolence. I am not arguing for a wall that shall shut out of the circle of our benefactions, one, poor, famishing sinner, however remote in distance, however obscure in condition, whether hiding in a Hot-tentot kennel on the trees, or bowing down beneath the swelling dome of a mosque.

I do not say that home and country are to exhaust the labors of christian benevolence, or that we must wait for the conversion of our families before we shall go forth into the city; or for the regeneration of our country, before we shall speed the angel of salvation to other climes. There is a glorious harmony in the execution of the parts of this great command. The fountain that, springing up near your dwelling, waters your acres, is not exhausted by the process. Rills from other fountains pour into its current as it steals along, until the united volumes of a thousand gushing springs descend from your moist and elevated region, to enrich the dry and level lands that spread out for miles with not a single original fountain of their own. And thus may it be, that while we are guiding the streams of salvation through our own land, we, at the same time, are putting into operation the predestined instrumentalities for the conversion of the world. And no man shall ever say with the Bible before him and say in truth, that God commands him to close his purse against all foreign claims, to fold his arms against all foreign labors, to confine the warm, burning love of his heart to one contracted circle. "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." Here is one command, broad as the world, wide as humanity—a pillar of fire to blaze out upon the night of human selfishness, until the Sun of Righteousness hath risen to disperse forever its darkness. And then "beginning at Jerusalem" is the other command, equally luminous, equally distinct. While you vigorously bear the cross before Greek and Roman and African, yet remember Jerusalem—the land of your sires—the mother, from whose breast you have drawn your life. Here maintain a powerful organization for her evangelization; here see that strong arms ply your battering rams against the fortresses of Satan; here strike the boldest strokes at the heart of the adversary.

Is it true, that my country has a peculiar right to call upon me, foot to foot and hand to hand, by fire—by sword—at the cannon's mouth—at the bayonet's point, to repel the aggressor who cometh to desolate our firesides and give to history our liberties? And is there no peculiar obligation upon me, when that same country is bleeding under the sword of the errorist—when the temples of religion are unbuilt and the foundations of our spiritual prosperity are undermined—when upon my countrymen a thick darkness is gathering, under cover of which forces are mustering and stealing upon the hosts of my brethren, to chain them fast in a bondage, to be burst by no power of theirs—a bondage more terrible than the despotism of a thousand Stuarts; I say when such are the dangers which threaten my country, is there no more obligation to rush to the rescue, than there is to sound the tocsin of alarm in China, although exposed and actually subjected to the same evils? The world is asleep; the world is in darkness. Go, herald the Sun of Righteousness. Go, sound the clarion in the ears of the slumberers. But begin at Jerusalem—the country that bore you, the nurse of your manhood, the generous parent who has sheltered and blest your every day of life.

And when, Sir, I speak of our country, I mean the whole of this broad land over which float the stars and stripes. There is a peculiar unity here, which gives to us the same deep interest in all parts of our land, and which stands out in strong contrast to almost all the nations of antiquity. When Phenicia and Greece sent out their colonies, they crossed the water, they built up Carthage, they dotted over the western shore of Asia Minor and the eastern of the Adriatic, with towns and distinct governments. These colonies, though still retaining for a time a filial feeling for the mother land, were yet not Greece nor Phenicia. A Greek, born in that glorious peninsula, sacred to grace, to philosophy, to poetry and oratory, could never call Ionia—Sicily, his country. It was only when he stepped upon the soil of Greece itself, that he could say, "This is my country." Rome spread by conquest, more than by colonization. But, the Roman nurtured in Italy, might traverse Spain, and Gaul, and Palestine; but not until he reached the soil where the Tiber rolls and the seven hilled city sent up its mighty hum, could he exclaim, "This is my country." It has been so, and still is, with England. An Englishman may enter Canada—may ascend the Ganges—may climb the mountains of Southern Africa; but never, till he touches the soil of Britain, will he exclaim, "This is my own, my native land, my glorious country."

We too are spreading by colonization. We are building towns and cities—organizing states every year. Yet, unlike the states of antiquity, all this new creation of individual governments, so far from destroying our unity, is actually assisting to cement it. The colonies of the old world, were like shoots taken from the parent tree, growing up by a distinct life of its own. But we are like that great eastern tree—the Banyan—whose branches when they have shot out a sufficient length, descend and root in the earth, and gather nourishment to send out other branches, and form one vast, glorious specimen of vegetable life; rooted to the earth by a hundred conductors, and capable of resisting the force of Æolus himself, with all his pent up hurricanes. Not only our state governments thus combine to feed and sustain the mighty bond of union, the general government, but a thousand other influences are weaving the upper branches of our tree together. We are covering the land with a net work of canals, and railroads, and telegraphs, by which state is interlocked with state, and city with country. You may start at Portland on an inland voyage, and, with the exception of a short cut across Wisconsin in stages, you may go, by steam, to the Falls of St. Anthony—up the Missouri hundreds of miles toward the Rocky Mountains—down to New Orleans—back to Philadelphia, and down to Charleston. And all along your route, take your stand where you will, survey this broad world from whatever point, and you can say, with the deep thrill of sublime emotion, "This is my country!" Our fathers were hushed to rest by the surges that beat upon the wild New England shore; their sons and daughters are even now gazing upon the great western main, and listening to the anthems that ever peal along its coast. Yet there is, or we believe will soon be, no spot in this vast compass, where they will not be able to exclaim, "This is my own native land, my own glorious country." And surely, this sublime unity, this oneness of our country, this exposure to common dangers and enjoyment of common blessings, enhances vastly our duty to toil for the West, as well as for the East; for the South, as well as for the North; for all parts of that which is to constitute the inheritance of our children, and by whose character their character and destiny will be decided for this world and that which is to come.

We are sometimes charged with exaggerating the future greatness of our country—with indulging Utopian imaginations of her glory and vastness—with declaiming too much what we are to be, rather than dwelling upon what we are. But to me it seems, that it becomes us to look well to the future—to look at our position, not only in respect to the past, but also in respect to that which we are yet to be. We should be traitors to ourselves, traitors to our country, if we did not take a broad view of the interests, and character, and extent of the population that is yet to swarm on our plains and mountains, and so lay our plans as to give them a vantage ground from which they may realize the brightest visions of the great founders of our republic, and make it true that "The grandest glory of the past,

Is but a beam of promise cast
Like Iris on the cloud, to show
How bright the future day shall glow."

It is not a matter of choice, to indulge in these gorgeous visions of the on-coming millions. We are compelled to do it. We must be blind and stupid not to do it. Every hour reveals something vast, starting ahead of our anticipations. The very politics of government are constantly shaped by this uprising, swelling future. The great national questions have, many of them, sprung out of it. Louisiana, Florida, the Northwestern boundary, Texas, Oregon, all involved national questions, which might have slept for centuries, but for the swell of our population, pouring itself into the valley of the Mississippi, into the ever glades of Florida, along the banks of the Madawaska, beyond the Sabin, and over the Rocky Mountains. He has taken but a narrow view of these questions, some of which are even now threatening to shake our land with the thunder of hostile armies, who imagines that they are the mere creation of politicians for political ends. Corrupt men may wield them for party purposes ; may strive to manage them, so as to advance partial rather than national interests, but they could no more create them than make a world. They are the result of our progress. They are the shadowing forth of our future. We are swelling out north, south, west, with amazing rapidity. And wherever our Saxon, protestant population go, wherever our republican life and energy shows itself, it will not be long before the question will come up and must be settled, shall we rule, or be ruled ? Under what flag do we rally ; and with whom is our political existence identified ? While we are running an even race with the most advanced states, in science, in art, and in all those great improvements which contribute to the physical well being of society, we are beginning to equal and must soon surpass in population, the greatest nations of Europe. And while this is the case, while sober arithmetic, the palpable demonstration of figures, point so distinctly to a greatness gigantic indeed, unless God shall in wrath let some unforeseen blight fall upon us, does it not become each of us, to bestir himself and see what he has to do, in giving direction now to the brook which is soon to swell into a vast river ?

Permit me to present one other thought. There are some things for which nature and necessity make provision. Men must plow, and sow and reap, or die. But it is not so in religion ; and he who trusts to the natural operation of the human passions, to secure the victory of truth commensurate with the swell of our population, will lean upon a broken reed. Men must have some religion, it is true ; but the human mind has vastly more affinity in its native corruption with Romanism, and Universalism, and Unitarianism, and every other ism, than Christ-ism.

And in this land, be it remembered, error has a peculiar freedom, and a soil of surpassing vigor. We are pledged to the world, to carry out the great experiment of self government in the state, and independence in the church. We have no Czar, no Sultan, no Pope, no machinery of a state religious establishment to compress mind into one shape, and we pray God we never may have. Minds, like disintegrated particles, from all the provinces of Europe and all the states of the Union, are thrown together at the West, and partially at the East—all animated with the same ideas of freedom, and, as bodies positively electrified, flying off from each other, because they are free. What a grand, rich soil is this for truth, if rightly cultivated ; for error, if left to itself. Like the Campagna of Rome, under a judicious and vigorous system, it may become a spiritual granary for the world ; but neglected, it will nourish only monstrous weeds, and send forth only noxious exhalations, to poison half a continent and fright the traveller as he passes through it. As now, for scores of miles, beneath the shadow of the eternal city, wild beasts, prowl and miasma holds its annual jubilee of death, so yonder great valley, even in sight of New England and all this machinery for blessing this Eastern world, may yet be the fatal soil where your children shall bow down, under the pressure of a maldy more dreadful than the fever—a malaria, that is death to the immortal soul.

Under the masterly conduct of the arch fiend, and on so open a field, we are to expect that error will assume all forms—all guises to cheat men out of heaven. We shall have the religion of form, desperately struggling to overmaster the religion of the Spirit and the truth, by all the appliances that ingenuity can invent. If you build a church, they will build a cathedral. If you put a spire upon it, they will not only have a taller spire, but a cross on the top. If you put an organ in your churches, and try with music to lift the soul to heaven, they will out sing you, out chant you, and peal a more enrapturing anthem—though it be at the expense of the manhood of their species ! If your clergy dress decently, theirs will dress gorgeously. If you rear an asylum or a college, they will rear one along side of it. In all the externals of religion ; in all things which strike the senses, without changing the heart, they are ready to spend more money, and more time, and more labor, to attract the masses to them, than you will do. From the little shanty of a church a few feet square, to the proud cathedral with its massive walls and gorgeous drapery and painting, they will dot over the length and breadth of our western world. They are in earnest; and they mean to grapple with you, in a struggle for the possession of the whole land.

And then, to amuse the philosophical and refined, error will have her form of Christianity, full of seeming refinement and liberality. She will have her pulpits resounding with the Christless speculations of Plato and Priestley; where Christ crucified, as the Lamb of God slain for the sins of the world, is again saluted with the scornful Aha! of a worse than Roman or Jewish infidelity. Nor will error stop here. For the vulgar throng, she will come crowned with a cheap salvation; heralding a glorious heaven for the victims of licentiousness, intemperance and murderous crime. And when this artifice grows stale; when, too, she can find no more golden revelations to rear costly Egyptian temples to the foul god of Mormonism, then she will complain of the organization of society, and charge all existing misery upon the outward arrangements of life, and hie off into the country to build up a Utopia, and proclaim freedom and peace to the world through the doctrine of "association"—deceiver as she is, knowing that the heart is the great organ of our woe; that the tiger is a tiger still, whether in a parlor or in a forest; and man depraved still, whether in a city or the charmed circle of a Fourierite Eden.

Thus, error is various, active, strong. It is around us; in the water and on the land; speaking to us in newspapers; in tracts; from pulpits; from rostrums; in parlors and log cabins; everywhere struggling for ascendancy. In this conflict, we have some great advantages. The church has great experience. She knows the man of sin and all his arts. Nor is history silent on the baleful character of these other forms of error. Thanks to a noble Puritan ancestry, there is also a strong, pure, religious influence pervading multitudes in our land, sufficient, if rightly put forth, under God, to master every opposing force. If true religion cannot work its way, in these circumstances, then our great experiment fails. This is our probation. These very forms of error; these gigantic abuses and caricatures of religion; these myriads under the domination of priestly superstition; these philosophical infidels in lawn and fustian; these praters of philanthropy and stage actors of Christianity, all constitute the test and the trial through which the church of the living God, is to show herself almighty to renew, to sanctify, and to save.

There are many of us here to-night, who glory in a Puritan ancestry; and there are many others who share in our enthusiasm and reverence for these departed heroes of our heroic age. If spirits immortal are suffered to visit our earth, we may imagine them here to-night. Bradford, and Winslow, and Davenport, and Winthrop, and Cotton, and their glorious compeers, appealing to you to save this land—this brightest jewel in the coronal of nations, from flaming in the forehead of the prince of darkness. By the memory of the oppression from which they fled; by the sufferings of their pilgrim lives; by the temples and the colleges they reared for God; by their heroic virtues and their toil to lay deep the foundations of our spiritual prosperity; by their tears shed for our Zion; by their prayers offered for our peace—they invoke you to come up manfully to the help of this blessed institution; to preach the Gospel throughout our country, in every city with its swarms of life, in every village sleeping in its quiet beauty, in every log cabin of our western wilderness, where men of stalwart form and brawny arm and original genius, will to-morrow have hewn down the forest and reared the queen cities of another generation. And more than all, if you love Him who bled for you; if you love that Bible which has given peace to your perturbed spirit; if you love your smiling babe, and feel for souls that, but for this Gospel, must perish, then resolve that you will be a Puritan—or rather a Christian—in devoting yourself to the work of making our land, in religion, a queen among the nations, and the cluster of her churches, the most resplendent constellation that shall yet bestud the firmament of millennial glory!

Address of Rev. S. W. S. Dutton, New Haven, Conn.

In support of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the thorough evangelization of this country is commended to the prayers and labors of the friends of God and man, by its beneficent and powerful bearing on the conversion of the world.

MR. PRESIDENT—To exaggerate the importance of evangelizing this country, is difficult, if not impossible. Behold successive waves of a hundred, five hundred, a thousand millions of human beings, rolling on as fast as generations come and go! Estimate, if you can, the worth of their freedom, peace and prosperity. Estimate, if you can, the worth of their immortal souls, and then only you will have an adequate idea of the importance of evangelizing this country, in itself considered.

But far more important is the thorough evangelization of this country, as a means to a greater end—the conversion of the world.

The conversion of the world! It is the object for which God gave his Son. It was for this object—for nothing short of it—that the facts which constitute the Gospel were wrought out and recorded. He who wrought them out, by his humiliation and agony, gave command, “Goe ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature.” For this object he taught his church to pray, in the first half of the prayer he instructed them to offer, “Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name; thy kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as in heaven.” The conversion of the world—the ultimate end of the Gospel—is the ultimate end of all true evangelical action. It is the central idea of any system; it is essential to the completeness of any system of christian benevolence. It is related to all plans of evangelical beneficence, as is the sun to the various parts of the solar system. Around it they all revolve. From it they derive light and heat. To it they are all subordinate. And in its accomplishment they will find theirs. The bearing of the full evangelization of this country, on the conversion of the world, is, therefore, the most important aspect in which it can be viewed.

The comparative importance of the evangelization of different nations, is like that of different individuals. How much more important, in one aspect, was the conversion of Paul—the apostle, the evangelizer of the Gentiles—than that of the gaoler at Phillippi. So of nations. Now it will be perceived by a glance, that this nation, if fully evangelized, will have a beneficent influence on the other nations of the globe, far surpassing that of any other—an influence, which we may admire but cannot fully comprehend.

Let us look, for a few moments, at this influence in two aspects—its influence, (1) by its example of civil and religious freedom, and of that religious prosperity which such freedom gives; and (2) by its active and aggressive agency.

Let us consider the influence which this nation, if evangelized, will have on the other nations of the earth, by its example of civil and religious freedom and consequent religious prosperity. If evangelized, I say. For, otherwise, it cannot long hold forth such an example. It needs no proof before this Society, surely, that general intelligence and virtue are the pillars of our freedom, civil and religious; and whenever they decay and fall, as decay and fall they must if they are deprived of their source and strength—evangelical religion, then our freedom itself must fall.

If evangelized, I say. And there is no agency for evangelizing this or any other land, which can, for a moment, be compared to that which it is the sole object of this Society to employ—the agency of a learned and pious ministry of the word. It is God’s chief ordinance, for giving currency and success to his Gospel.

The example of a nation civilly and religiously free—how beneficent that example! Though freedom is a blessing in itself—though there is joy in its bare possession aside from its results, yet it is chiefly to be valued for its results, its effect upon the character, condition and ability of its possessors. The life, the elasticity, the enterprise, the energy of a free people, exceeds that of any other people, as much as that of a free bird flying delighted from flower to flower, from tree to tree, and through the broad heaven, exceeds that of a caged prisoner. All their native force acts unfettered. It acts under the impulse of free choice. It acts with the certainty of possessing, secure from the rapacity of any civil or ecclesiastical despot, the golden fruits it acquires. A free people are far more generally educated than any other; they must be, in order to be, and continue to be, a free people. Among them, therefore, a far greater number of intelligent minds are searching for the truth; more hearts long for it; more eyes are eagerly looking for it; more hands and heads are endeavoring to embody and realize it. And before them, the wide domain of truth is spread out, in all its departments, philosophical, mechanical, moral, religious—spread out all free and open—no bars—no gates—no religious bigotry, armed by civil powers, to force off, to forbid, to threaten, to denounce, to punish. And the result is—the reasonable result is—that in all that contributes to man's industrial, social, moral and religious prosperity, they make great and rapid advances. The result is, that there is no field of human effort where the rewards of enterprise are found, where they are not found; and where ingenuity, industry, sagacity, skill and perseverance do not make them foremost. Especially, is religious prosperity promoted by freedom; for religion thrives by truth, which freedom promotes. And religion shrinks from force. The spirit of religion is a liberty-loving spirit. It grows tame and weak when confined. It will not work, it pines away and dies, when in chains. There is no blessing to the church, except the Holy Spirit, equal to liberty—entire freedom to investigate, think, speak, worship, act. And indeed, this blessing usually secures the other and greater. For it is not only true that where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty; but usually, also, where liberty is, there is the Spirit of the Lord.

And this example of civil and religious freedom, so beneficent, is, however, an example of mighty power. Freedom! Human hearts love it. Christian hearts especially love it. They love it for itself. They love it for its results, particularly for its religious prosperity. The nature of that example, so well fitted to appeal to human reason and to human hearts, declares its power. Its actual effects demonstrate its power. This example of civil and religious freedom—it has been a sun shining in the western heavens, whose light has reached and rejoiced the darkest recesses of Europe! How it has enlightened ignorance respecting freedom, removed prejudices, quickened and confirmed hopes, and kindled desires. These changes in governments, both civil and ecclesiastical—these changes by the spirit of freedom, elevating individual man, socially, politically, morally, religiously—this triumph of the social over the feudal principle—this fast running vindication of man's right to think, act, speak, worship according to conscience, un-trammelled by the restrictions of civil power, or the edicts of church establishments—these beneficent changes, greater since the experiment of civil and religious liberty in this new world began, than for centuries before; surely it is not our national vanity, but sober verity, which ascribes them in a great degree to this very experiment—to the light shining from this western sun—to the spirit of rational, well balanced and intelligent liberty, which has flown hence, on the wings of the wind, over all the earth. We do not say too much, when we say, that the quiet enjoyment of civil freedom by our people, and especially its happy result in their great civil prosperity, has done more than any other cause, for the progress of civil freedom in Europe. We do not say too much, when we say, that the happy working of the church here, separated from the state, untrammelled and uncorrupted by the state, and depending entirely on voluntary support, has done more for religious freedom in the old world, than all other causes. Had it not been for our successful experiment, the noble band who constitute the Free Church of Scotland, had never made their sublime exodus from the Egypt of state patronage and state bondage, into the light and strength and enterprise of religious freedom and independence. It was for them a pillar of cloud by day—of fire by night. Thus, our example has mighty power. A book, like that prepared by our friend Dr. Baird, giving an account of the prosperous working of our free

American churches, could be it generally read and pondered by the people of Europe, would shake down every ecclesiastical despotism, and every cumbrous and crushing church establishment.

And this example is becoming more and more powerful, as our nation grows in strength, and as the channels of intelligence are rendered more numerous and rapid. By every new rail-way, by every new steam route, and by every additional million of our citizens, the influence of this example reaches farther, and wider and with greater power. O, what will be the force of this example, when we are, (as ere long we shall be,) a nation of a hundred, of five hundred millions, if we continue, and perfect and rescue from blots, our civil and religious freedom! Such a sun shining in these western heavens! What tyrant's throne, what hoary system of religious abuse, what ecclesiastical establishment, must not melt beneath it? If this nation should do nothing else for the evangelization of the world, than to show forth, from age to age, what civil freedom can do for man, and especially what religion, un-oppressed and un-corrupted by state bondage or patronage, can do for man, it would fulfil a beneficent and glorious mission.

In view of such a beneficent and mighty and growing influence emanating from the example of our civil and religious freedom and prosperity, who will not do what in him lies, to continue this example by the chief means of its continuance—the evangelization of the whole country? Who will not do what he can to improve that example, and increase its brightness and power by the full evangelization of the whole country? Who will not do what he can, to remove any blots which obscure the brightness of that example? O, that great and foul blot on our civil freedom, which partially and disastrously eclipses its brightness, and makes the name of republican liberty a by-word with many among the nations—the slavery of three millions of men, under a flag which proudly floats on high, the declaration that all men are created free and equal in rights! O, what a blot on our religious freedom, the withholding from three millions of people, the word of God, and the prohibition, by pains and penalties, of teaching them to read that word! Who does not mourn over it, for the world's sake? Who will not pray and strive that it may speedily be removed, in the only way it can be peacefully and happily removed—by the full evangelization of our land—by the complete prevalence and power of the benevolent spirit, and just precepts, and wholesome discipline of the Gospel of Him, who came to preach deliverance to the captives, and the opening of the prison doors to them that are bound.

Permit me, Sir, to allude, in a few words, to a very peculiar work which is to be accomplished, mainly, by the continued and perfected example of our civil and religious freedom and prosperity. Multitudes are pouring into this land of liberty and plenty from the old world, chiefly from countries where reigns a corrupted Christianity, which has made them either slaves of superstition and priestcraft, or distrustful of all religion. This fact, peculiar in the history of the world, (for this immigration to our land from so many other lands has no precedent, in degree, certainly,) calls us to a peculiar work. It throws upon us a great and anxious responsibility. It really seems as though God, impatient at our delay in sending to them at their homes pure Christianity, is bringing them to us that they may find pure Christianity at our homes; and is forcing us, in self defence, by the instinct of self preservation, to evangelize them. Undoubtedly, God's design in bringing them hither, is, not that they may overthrow our civil and religious institutions, but that they may be gradually influenced, changed and moulded by these institutions—be unchained from their superstition, and delivered from their scepticism, and made free and blessed in the freedom of the sons of God. How important, how necessary to the fulfilment of this design, that these multitudes should find here our civil and religious institutions continued and perfected by an evangelical influence. Much should be done—much more than we are now doing—by direct, and wise and kind effort with them, personally. But our chief reliance must be on the influence of our civil and religious institutions, maintained and strengthened in their purity and simplicity. Let this influence pervade our whole land, so that, wherever they go, they shall breathe it in with our atmosphere, and there is no reason to fear that they will not be gradually enlightened, softened and changed by it. The yoke of Rome will not sit easy on a neck, which has become accustomed to civil freedom; nor will that yoke appear otherwise than odious, to eyes accustomed to the sight of religious freedom. Let simple, free, spiritual, beneficent Christianity be kept before their view, in contrast with a dead, superstitious Christianity, and a cheerless and debasing infidelity; and ere long, their bonds and their preferences will be weakened and broken, and they will choose aright. And then they will send back, on the electric ties of friendship and kindred, which unite them across the ocean to their countrymen, a powerful influence to turn them also to a free, pure and healthful religion.

I perceive, Sir, that I have but a few moments left, (for I made a covenant with myself that I will not make a long speech,) in which to refer to the influence of this country, if evangelized, on the salvation of the world, by direct missionary operations. And but a few moments are necessary, so obvious is that influence. What may not a nation of such quality and advantages as ours, one day to number 50—100—500 millions, do, in the way of direct missionary labor, for the evangelization of the world? A nation of such quality as ours—a nation such as we have been made by our origin from earth's most energetic race, and from the best blood of that race—such as we have been made by the history, the inspiring history of our branch of that race, especially in our own land—such as we have been made in life, energy, enterprise, strength, by our civil and religious freedom—and possessing a language like ours—a language which is fast spreading, and is now spoken in more parts of the globe than any other—a language ever heard by the ear of morning as in brightness she circles the earth—a language which contains richer treasures, more that contributes to man's temporal and spiritual welfare than any, perhaps all others. What may not 500,000,000 of such a people, instinct with the spirit of the Gospel, and with such a language—what may they not do, under God, in the missionary work?

The Reports of your Society, show us, on a small scale, what they will do. They tell us of many churches, yea, of whole regions of our country, filled with churches, which, in their beginning were founded, and in their feebleness were sustained by your Society, that have sent freely of their sons and daughters to foreign lands, and now pour their wealth by thousands into the treasuries of Foreign Missions and of all benevolent enterprises. This is the earnest of what will be done, when our population advances to fifties and hundreds of millions—if it is fully evangelized. Ah! if it is fully evangelized. What an alternative! It may well make us tremble. It may well make angels tremble; so infinite are the results of a right or wrong decision. If it shall be fully evangelized! O, it must be fully evangelized. Say, friends of God, and of the world's salvation, shall it not be fully evangelized? To neglect this work—to neglect Home Missions in this nation, rushing up to such a pre-eminence among the nations, capable, by example, by missionary agency, of accomplishing so much for earth's salvation, if evangelized—to neglect its evangelization is to throw away the seed corn of Christianity for the world—is to allow to be choked and filled up, or corrupted, the chiefest fountain, which God, in his providence and grace, has opened for the healing of all the nations!

Address of Rev. Mason Noble, New York,

In support of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the great object of the American Home Missionary Society can be secured, only by the presence and power of the Holy Spirit with their missionaries.

This resolution presents two distinct points to our consideration—the object which this Society has in view, and the means by which that object can be secured.

Together, they constitute a high and holy theme—a subject worthy of this occasion, and which we will endeavor to consider, as in the presence of the God of missions.

The object of the American Home Missionary Society—what is it? Why was this Society organized? What are the designs of its Executive Committee, as they meet from time to time, and look out upon this vast country, and devise their plans, and anxiously wait for results? Why do men of education and talent and enterprise turn aside from other employments, surrender the prospects of wealth, of literary reputation and the elegant and refined pleasures of the well established society of their eastern home, and cheerfully expose themselves to the privations of a life of missionary toil? Why has this vast assembly met, crowding this Tabernacle of God to-night? What is the true answer?

To these questions there is a response from many interested hearts, though that answer may be very different with different individuals, as they have contemplated the influence of Home Missions upon the various interests of man. There can be no doubt in any well informed mind, in relation to the varied as well as extensive and mighty influence for good of Home Missions, upon the most important affairs of the human family. We all know that when the Home Missionary plants his standard in some western village or neighborhood, he becomes a centre of light and blessedness to all men—to all classes and all interests. He is the friend of man, and every thing that can augment human happiness, or establish society on good and permanent foundations, will receive his attention and employ his powers. He will build a temple to the living God, whose spire shall glitter in the sunlight and point to Heaven's brighter glory. The school house will be opened under his auspices and guardianship, and echo with the cheerful voices of children, whose opening minds are met by the pure and ennobling influence of early and faithful instruction. Good morals will find in him an attractive example and an able defender; while every form of vice will meet his withering rebuke, and retire to hide itself in secret places, if it be not destroyed. Civilization will reach a higher point, the arts and sciences flourish in greater vigor, industry itself put on more diligence, and wealth be more abundant, and patriotism more sincere and ardent, and domestic life be characterized by gentler courtesies, and social life be brightened by sweeter charities. Such, doubtless, are the results which will be exhibited, wherever this Society may commission a man of God to plant the standard of the Gospel. And it requires not faith, but an acquaintance with existing facts, to see such effects multiplying all over the field of missionary labor.

But is this the great object of this Society? Are these the fruits in which we most rejoice to-night, as we come up here to shout our "harvest home," and send back our congratulations to our faithful laborers, and offer up our thanksgiving to the Head of the Church? Certainly, such results are anticipated by this Society, and earnestly sought by the missionaries, and we rejoice in them as the fruit of a preached Gospel. But, our joy is like that of the western farmer, who by years of toil has laid prostrate the forests, and let in the sun upon the virgin soil, and broken up the fallow ground, and cast in his seed. As he surveys the rich scene from the door of his western home, here and there stand clusters of beautiful trees, unscathed by the axe, because they were the pride of the forest, and might adorn the cultivated field. Near by is the meadow, arrayed in its mantle of green; and there flows the clear stream, reflecting the brightness of the heavens which had been so long concealed from its view. And as he passes out to the field of his daily toil, his path may be decked by bright flowers, and the vines with the tender grape give a good smell. All this is beautiful and pleasant to his sight, and such enjoyments were not entirely out of view, in his years of toil, or in his original plan. But, this is not his chief joy, as it was not his great object. His eye seizes upon the broad acres waving with the golden wheat, "the pastures clothed with flocks and the vallies covered over with corn." It is the fatness dropped upon the pastures of the wilderness, that makes his little hills rejoice on every side, and swells his bosom with satisfaction and gratitude.

And such, we say is our joy. We look with true pleasure upon every addition made to the temporal blessings of man, by the Gospel of our Savior. We love to see civilization extending, the arts and sciences flourishing, wealth rewarding industry, and a well ordered and stable society following the morality and kindness produced by true religion. This, too, is a part of our plan; but we say this is not our great object.

The idea which is the main-spring of all this work, the moving power in this Society, is the spiritual regeneration of men, and the salvation of lost souls. It was this which gave existence to this Society, which animates and encourages its friends to give liberally of their substance, which stirs the bosoms of its missionaries, nerves their arms for renewed toil, and braces their souls for repeated and protracted self-denials. And if this is not accomplished, nothing, comparatively, is accomplished.

It strikes me that there is the same difference between these indirect temporal blessings springing up in the footsteps of the herald of the cross, and the spiritual renewal of men in the image of God, that there was between the miracles which our Savior wrought upon the bodies of men, and those greater wonders he effected in their hearts. From the time he began his ministry in Galilee till he closed it on the cross in Judea, his pathway was brilliant with displays of his amazing power. In the temple and streets of Jerusalem, in his journeys through Judea and Galilee, among the crowds assembled on the banks of the Galilean sea or with his friends sailing over its tempestuous waters, in the private circle of an afflicted family or in the synagogue on the Sabbath day, by the couch of the dying or by the tomb of the dead—wherever he was, the heavens opened above him, irradiating his path with celestial brightness and enabling us to trace his course by the temporal blessings he left behind him. For at his presence, “all manner of sickness and disease” fled away. The leper found himself cleansed in an instant, his flesh returning again as the flesh of his childhood. The deaf heard when He spoke, and the dumb broke forth in eloquent praises of his power and goodness. The blind opened their eyes as the True Light shone upon them, and for the first object of earthly vision saw their Great Deliverer. The withered hand stretched itself forth with its former vigor, and the maimed man saw the limb of which he had long been deprived, in a moment hanging by his side or supporting his body. The burning fever cooled down as he took the patient by the hand, and the sick arose in perfect health to minister to assembled friends. Death acknowledged that Jesus held the keys of his dark prison house, and hell trembled beneath him, as her baffled fiends fled affrighted and vanquished from their miserable victims. Sublime and glorious displays these of the godhead of Jesus, and irrefragable proofs of the divinity of his mission and the benevolence of his heart!

But great and wonderful as were such effects of his power, they were not the object of his mission. These are merely the indirect and incidental blessings, connected with the great work of expiating our sins and regenerating our nature.

The woman, out of whom he cast seven devils, stands before us a monument and a proof of his omnipotence and goodness, and we rejoice in her deliverance. But, the woman who stood behind him, weeping, washing his feet with her tears and wiping them with the hairs of her head, kissing his feet and anointing them with the precious ointment, expressing in this most affecting manner the penitence and love of her heart, presents to us the grand object for which miracles were wrought and the atonement made. There is more display, more that strikes the senses, more that is visible and tangible in the casting out of the devils. But, in the other case, there is something beautiful and godlike. The heart is touched, the moral nature is renewed, and sins are forgiven. “Her faith hath saved her, and she may go in peace.”

The young man of Nain who was carried out dead from the gate of the city, rises up from his bier when Jesus touches it, and as we see him delivered into the arms of his mother almost frantic with such unexpected joy, we cannot help glorifying God, as the multitude did on that occasion, and shouting with them, “A Great Prophet has risen up among us, and God hath visited his people.” But, when we see the young Pharisee, who had been brought up at the feet of Gamaliel, and who, with the brightest prospects of honorable success "in the Jew's religion," had entered upon the work of exterminating the infant church and blotting out the very name of Jesus—when we see him met by our Savior on the plains of Damascus, and, though breathing out threatenings and slaughter, in an instant subdued by his power, his proud heart humbled, his whole moral nature changed, and his life from that moment consecrated to preaching that faith which he had once destroyed—we see a spectacle as much grander, as the soul of man is superior to his material part, or as triumph over mind is more important and glorious than victory over matter. The miracle of Nain was a means to an end, and one of the incidental blessings of the mission of our Savior. The conversion of Saul of Tarsus, though an unspeakable blessing to unnumbered thousands, was an end of itself. It was a result over which angels rejoiced, and the blessedness of which was to be as enduring as eternity.

And this is the end to which all the plans and labors of this Society tend. And in seeking such an object, first, last, and always, it aims at a spiritual religion as opposed to formalism. It labors for a union of hearts, throughout the vast extent of our beloved American home, in faith, and love, and real holiness; not an external unity, like that of some great overshadowing ecclesiastical despotisms which darken and curse the world. Its missionaries run to and fro, not to build splendid temples, or to arrange the parts of a great hierarchy, but to change the hearts of men into temples of the Holy Ghost, and to send through every portion of the body of Christ the warm current of a spiritual life. It numbers its triumphs, not by its proselytes to a sect, but by the names that are written down by the recording angel in the book of life. It points not to the number of baptisms or confirmations or introductions within the visible church, as demonstrations of its success; but to "souls renewed and sins forgiven," to tears of penitence and acts of faith, to personal holiness, to a living union to the living vine, to the worship of the spiritual God in spirit and in truth!

And with such an object in view the question returns again upon us, how shall it be secured?

To this question we can give only one answer. A spiritual religion is, and can be, only the fruit of the presence and power of the Holy Spirit with the missionaries.

Those who have other and inferior objects before them, may succeed by other means. But we cannot. Wealth, wit, wiles, words and works of men may accomplish results of a certain character. The wafer, or the water may sanctify to the purifying of the flesh; and crowds may rally round a standard, on which are inscribed as the motto, "the pride of life and the lust of the flesh, and heaven with all!" Cathedrals may be erected, without the Holy Ghost; and music may pour its enchanting strains along their broad aisles and fascinate the listening crowds, without the Holy Ghost. The minds of men may be convinced that they are in the direct line of apostolical succession, and that their baptism regenerates them, and that their persons in the church on earth will guarantee their souls a home in heaven, without any special aid of the Holy Spirit. The history of the human heart in all ages is proof, that it is no difficult matter to make converts to a sensual religion; and if zealous sectaries now compass sea and land to make proselytes, they can succeed, as they have done, without the aid of the Holy Spirit, and the converts too will be, as they have been, two fold more the children of hell than before. The missionaries of this Society might indeed, by the charm of human eloquence, by their superiority in knowledge, in talent or in tact, or by the power of the best system of theological truth, not only sustain themselves, but rapidly build up the interests of a sect. They might convert men to Calvinism, for there is powerful logic, and sound philosophy, and vigorous mental aliment in such theology. They may fearlessly enter the lists with rival sects, and, as some have done, draw a large number within the enclosure of their particular denomination, by the convenience and elegance of external arrangements, or by the surrender of what is distinctive, or by a weak conformity to a perverted, if not a sinful taste. But we ask, what do they really gain by such a course? or rather, what do they not lose?

But, God forbid, that this Society or its beloved missionaries, should ever forget their own principles. They cannot seek such objects, or be satisfied with such results. They cannot turn away their eyes from the great object, which has heretofore been their chief glory, as well as their means of success—the renewal of men in the image of God. And with such an object, may they never forget that the presence and power of the Holy Spirit are indispensable! Without the Holy Spirit, they may build altars like the prophets of Baal, and call upon God from morning until noon, and cut themselves with knives and lancets till the blood gushes out upon them, and prophecy until the time of the evening sacrifice, but there will be no voice, none to answer and none to regard. With the Holy Spirit dwelling with them and attending their ministrations, they shall be like Elijah, when the fire of the Lord fell upon his altar and consumed the burnt sacrifice and the wood and the stones and the dust, and licked up the water that was in the trench, and all the people fell on their faces shouting, “Jehovah, He is the God—Jehovah, He is the God!”

The Holy Spirit! O, how shall our lips, polluted with sin, speak worthily of his person, or the glory of his presence and power! He is the pillar of cloud by day and of fire by night, to the advancing hosts of this Society. He is the cloud of glory, which rests upon the tabernacle we have set up in the western wilderness! From his presence, error retires into its native darkness! Where he is, truth shines in its undimmed brightness! Clothed in his power, our missionaries are mighty in pulling down the strong holds of sin, and our Redeemer is glorified by the subjection of a people to himself!

We conclude as we began—The great object of the American Home Missionary Society can be secured, only by the presence and power of the Holy Spirit with their missionaries.

Address of Rev. J. J. Miter, Milwaukee, Wisconsin,

In support of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Home Missions are the grand agency by which the West CAN and MUST be saved.

From my field of labor in the “Far West,” I have travelled more than 1,600 miles to meet the friends of Domestic Missions in this eastern metropolis. If my journey has not been as adventurous and stormy, as that of the tenants of the May Flower, it has been more than half as long. But in one marked particular, I have been more highly favored than they. Throughout the whole of my delightful route, I have had before me the grand realization of what they, in their richest fancy could not have anticipated. They had no moral or political calculus, from which they could discover even the approaching shadow of this nation’s greatness.

Two centuries ago, Wouter Van Twiller, occupied in this city the executive chair of the New Netherlands. Then, there were but a few buildings about Whitehall and Broad street. The dark forests, on the banks of the Hudson and the Mohawk, formed the supposed boundaries of European enterprise for ages to come. The greatest minds—minds of the highest impulse and the clearest intuition—could catch but faint, prophetic glimpses of the future destiny of the New World. Little did the mass think that, in so short a time, their own beautiful river would become the eastern terminus of a water communication, extending, 1,700 miles into the heart of a wild continent.

On the western banks of Lake Michigan stands Milwaukee, the commercial capital of Wisconsin, which I have the honor to represent. Eleven years ago, there was but one log cabin within the limits of the corporation. Now, we have 10,000 inhabitants, a city charter, common council, and two daily papers, which, in respect to size, number of advertisements and neatness of mechanical execution, will not suffer in comparison with similar prints in any of our second class of cities in the Union. We have also five substantial and inviting church edifices, which are supplied with a stated, evangelical ministry. But I add, with sincere regret, we have other edifices which were erected to destroy the distinguishing doctrines, which cheered and sustained the Puritan in his perilous voyage across the ocean. Here, is the astonishing result of eleven years of Anglo-Saxon enterprise. The population of this city, seventy-six years after the founding of the colony by the Deutch, was but 4,300. Fifty-nine years later, it only amounted to 13,040—but 2,000 more than the population of Milwaukie, in the eleventh year of her age. I present this as a single, and yet a fair illustration of the stupendous augmentation of our western population.

With such facts yearly multiplying before the eyes of this generation, the American people are comparatively insensible of their immediate and solemn connection with the future fortunes of our race. From the moment the star of empire took its westward course, the actual occupancy of the immense domain which has been stretched out towards the setting sun, has outstripped the boldest calculation. Had the kingdoms of Spain and Great Britain looked upon the discoveries of Columbus and Sebastian Cabot with a truly prophetic eye, who can believe that they would have been so tardy in linking the destinies of the New, with the despotic thrones of the Old World? They lost the best portion of the globe by not anticipating the mighty march of mind. I fear the same spell is yet resting upon the men of this generation, with regard to the rapid settlement of this continent from ocean to ocean. Who, for example, believed the representations of this Society, twenty years ago, that the controlling, political influence of the nation would be so soon lodged in the western states? Now mark—who has not been watching, with intense solicitude, the movements of three leading western Senators on the floor of the present Congress? The youthful giant is already assuming the voice and authority of mature manhood; and where shall we look for a limit to the increase of this power? Within the short space of eleven years, Wisconsin and Iowa have acquired the constitutional qualifications for admission to the Federal Union. With this ratio of increase, how long will it take for our adventurous population to spread from the banks of the Mississippi to the Pacific? Depend upon it, a few more swelling surges of emigration, and the work is done. Yet who, with a clear, open eye, and an earnest soul, has contemplated this approaching event in its real magnitude, grandeur and solemnity? The great Carolinian Senator will not be mistaken in his calculation, that our title to a part of Oregon will soon be made good by actual occupancy. If the speaker lives to the ordinary age of man, he expects to see a railroad connecting the commerce of the Western Ocean with the Mississippi; and thence intersecting, by lateral roads, the whole luxuriant valley stretching to the Gulf on the south, and the copper mines on the north. Indeed, he expects to meet the missionaries sent to Oregon by this truly American Institution, on this platform.

This is no idle speculation. To one who witnesses the daily arrival of hundreds of emigrants on the western shore of Michigan, it is a great reality which is advancing upon us with gigantic strides. It is, therefore, high time the churches represented in this Society took this extended survey of the field before them. It is time they looked upon the moral cultivation of this immense territory, as pre-eminently the work for the next quarter of a century. It is time they, now, settled the solemn question whether the American church has a healthful heart—pulse, strong enough to send salvation over the continent. For, believe me, the grand crisis is bearing down upon us, when we must respond affirmatively, or ALL is lost! We should then meet it, face to face,—like men in sacred earnest, resolve to make our institutions and holy altars co-extensive with our widening domain. Let not this pass for western declamation. To my mind it is clear, omnipresent, awful conviction!

But, have we the means to accomplish a work of such vast, intrinsic dimensions,—a work which involves the forthcoming destinies of both hemispheres? I should blush, if I did not feel the fires of confident assurance burning in my heart. My tongue would betray the deep, matured convictions of my soul, if I did not say, with the divine co-operation, we can and will do it. We will do it, by making the spirit of “Home Missions” the great central force in all our moral enterprises.

The spirit of Missions is emphatically the spirit of Jesus. Look where we will, and its mighty workings and stupendous results are before us. This spacious Tabernacle—this assembled multitude, and all the temples of our land, are its enduring monuments. This Society with its comprehensive name, its twenty years of toil, and its wonderful achievements, is my standing witness, that the spirit of Missions is the life-pulse of the church. It enlists the living minister, armed with “the Greek and Hebrew of the Holy Ghost,” and sends him forth as the advanced guard of Zion. Nothing in the economy of grace is to take precedence of this. The press, with all its powerful auxiliary influences is to follow, as the minister—the constituted standard-bearer—prepares the way. In confirmation of this, I point you to the present aspect of our country. Who have laid the broad foundations, on which institutions of learning are rising in the West, to bless generation after generation through all coming time? Who aids the colporteur in the formation of associations, which are to co-operate with him in his self-denying work? Who introduces the agents of affiliated societies to the people of the West? The true answer is short and emphatic—the missionaries of this Society. This statement is no relative of that “one idealism,” which is so noisy and troublesome in our country. If our moral machinery possesses the attributes of strength, symmetry and power, there must be a central influence somewhere—a great spiritual water-wheel, which originates and sustains the activities of the subordinate parts. And from a nine years’ residence in the West, I am fully persuaded that the “American Home Missionary Society” sustains that important relation.

The question, then, which our eastern churches should decide without a moments delay, is this—Will they make it their first, their highest aim to supply this Society with all the men and the money, necessary to take possession of this continent, as fast as the tide of emigration rises and rolls over the Rocky Mountains? Will they engrave the motto over every pulpit—“Whatever else we fail to do, THE SALVATION OF OUR OWN COUNTRY, UNDER GOD, IS DECREED”? This will be a wise step in moral finance. For, however prodigious the work may appear, and however princely the expenditures must be to accomplish it, rivers of golden treasure will roll back in return. But, if they now slumber—if they are now stinted in their home contributions, the gigantic wealth which will soon flow from western fields, manufactories and commerce, instead of blessing Asia, Africa and the islands of the sea, will be sent to prop up and repair the tottering Cathedral of St. Peter. In this event, our fall will not “be the riches of the world.” It will involve its moral bankruptcy.

Mr. President, I never felt my whole soul transformed into one strong and continued patriotic emotion, until the rolling prairies of the West burst upon my view. The first sight inspired me with a kind of patriotic ecstasy, which, trance-like, has continued to this hour. Romance is not the food of my mind. Neither is enthusiasm the predominating ingredient of my intellectual nature. But I never contemplate the Father of Rivers, with its confluent streams, watering a region which, in respect to its unparalleled extent and varied luxuriance, is a literal paradise—I never ride, day after day, over its native meadows and inhale the aroma which flows from its gorgeous and innumerable wild flowers, without feeling that such a country must be held in sacred trust, for freedom and for God. This is the feeling of this Society. It is the strongest, purest impulse of enlightened patriotism. If I had a little more of the marvellous, I might think that Hesiod had turned a prophetic eye to this country, when he located the gardens of Hesperides “in an Island of the Ocean, at the West.” But, if we have not the fabled gardens, we have the golden fruit in richer abundance than ever glittered before the eye of oriental fancy. No wonder, therefore, that a determined strife should have commenced, already, between the Roman and the Anglo-Saxon, for the control of such a territory. That conflict will yet deepen. Who shall be loaded with the spoils of the victory?

To aid you in catching a distant glimpse of the responsibility of our position, let me fix your eye upon that western steam packet. It is the beautiful Niagara, leaving the port of Buffalo. She has on board 700 emigrants for the "Far West." Two hundred of them are direct from the Old World. The remainder are from New England and the Middle States. After a passage of four days, the boat makes the shore of Wisconsin in a terrible storm. The news runs through our city, that "the Niagara is coming." A hundred anxious hearts, fearing she cannot make the harbor, rush to the high bluff to witness her conflict with the storm. The gallant vessel labors with the wild waves, dashing them on either side, like "a thing of life." They watch her with deepening solicitude, until, by consummate skill, she is guided within the piers in safety. The citizens go on board, to congratulate the "newly arrived" on their escape from danger, and to welcome 400 of them to their new home in our territory. But, in this scene, there is matter for solemn reflection to the Christian, the patriot, and the political economist. Three hundred are in blind league with a foreign prince. The great question is, "Will they live and labor for Rome, or for Freedom?" Seventy, of the remaining one hundred, are attracted there by the hope of political distinction or worldly gain. And but thirty, out of the whole number, are governed by the same inspiration which guided that little band to the memorable Rock. They are all safe from the perils of the storm-tossed lake, but will Wisconsin be as safe under their future influence? Here, we come to a painful hiatus in our conjectures. For, in connexion with such arrivals, the citizen of the West sees too clearly the increased action of a powerful engine, whose main-spring is within the walls of the Vatican. This illustration shows the nature of the work, which is accumulating upon the hand of Protestants.

Nevertheless, alarming as this picture is, I fear not the Papal power even in the West, provided always, that the treasury of this Society continues full, and it has a standing army of well trained missionaries in the field. Rome may set up her "pre-emption claim" to the whole country, by virtue of the discovery of Columbus, and the early explorations of fathers Hennepin and Joliet. It is our high duty to keep possession of it, in the name of the great Jehovah, and the heroic Puritans, and the Protestant exiles of Scotland, Ireland, Germany and France,—those daring men, who prostrated its huge forests and planted its cities. Shall decrepit Popery, with her galvanic life, conquer the sons of American Puritanism? She will, most certainly, if we are found sleeping at our posts. But, with an open field, with our moral armament in battle array, and with a loaded treasury to pay the expenses of the war, before she triumphs, the mighty God will command "the stars in their courses to fight against the crafty apostate." If, as the true friends of Home Missions, we possess but one half of the spiritual heroism of the men of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, this thrifty germ of ecclesiastical despotism in our free soil, will be up-rooted. If, in the language of Everett, "Luther grasped the iron trumpet of his mother tongue and blew a blast that shook the nations from Rome to the Orkneys,"—if Calvin, almost single handed, made Geneva the great fertile seed-plot of democratic principles,—if Milton and his associates trampled down the King, Nobility, and Bishops of England,—shall we, occupying the high vantage ground on which their valor has placed us,—with all our own munitions of war,—shall we fall under the power of their vanquished foe? For one, I will not believe it. Give to this Society the means necessary to respond, promptly, to all the calls which may be made upon it, and in thirty years it will fill the land with such fortifications, as the enemies of the cross can never storm. And such is my strong confidence in the God who guided the Pilgrim to our shores, and bid him take possession of the loveliest heritage under the whole heavens, that I feel prepared to give to the world the sacred pledge, that the American church will honor all the drafts which "Home Missions" may make upon her.

I feel sure the Fathers of the New World, with their descendants, will not have fulfilled their noble destiny, until they have planted the world-emancipating principles of the Reformation on the shores of the Pacific. Then, and not till then, will the sun which illumined "Plymouth Rock" with its morning beams, reach its culminant point, and shine in splendor over a free, happy, Protestant Continent.

Before I sit down, permit me to bear my testimony to the worth of our western missionaries. On this point, I am unable to give full utterance to the feelings of my heart. If I had the power, I would stamp on all enduring brass a single sentence, and place it in the study of every eastern pastor. It would be this—"These missionaries, as a class, are worthy of your highest confidence, your warmest support." I should delight also to breathe into these words eloquent articulation, that they might plead day by day for those self-denying young men, who are so devoted to their work, and so happy in their labors of love among the waste places of our land. It gives me pleasure to watch their unostentatious, noiseless, and yet sublime movements. They are doing for the great West, what Sherman, Eaton, Davenport and other colonial divines did for New England. They are laying the foundations for an endless succession of churches without a bishop, and a perpetual state without a king. The Almighty has placed them there—

"To exercise them in the wilderness;
There they shall lay down the rudiments
Of their great warfare, ere He sends them forth
To conquer."

The high compliment paid to the American ministry, by the distinguished Senator of Massachusetts, (Mr. Webster,) is most applicable to the youthful missionaries sent to Wisconsin and Iowa. They are silently prosecuting their noble work, with an ability and devotion, which reflects peculiar honor upon the Society which sent them, and the churches that sustain them. Said an intelligent gentleman to me, "These are the men for the West." "If the friends of Missions save us," he added, "they must keep the dullard in the East, and send us the men who have intellectual power, and warm hearts to give a practical and sanctified direction to it." This is a great truth, which needs an annual reiteration. I rejoice to know that there is one great man in the nation, who has not only felt the force of this truth, but has acted upon it, with a high, holy purpose. This venerable man did a great work in the old Puritan city, which cherished the spirit of the Revolution. But he is doing a greater, a more sublime work on the banks of the Ohio. He has planted himself in a central position, where he can rake the enemy in all directions, with his "Logic set on fire." It was a true, great, American heart which guided him there in his old age. Indeed, the aims of Lyman Beecher, throughout his brilliant career, have been as truly patriotic as Christian. Who, of the distinguished men in the ministry, now, will follow in his illustrious footsteps. Let his mantle fall on all our young Elishas, and the Pope may call home his Jesuit soldiers, in sullen despair.

With the West I have united my destiny. From love to Christ, I trust, and the institutions of my country, hallowed by ten thousand sacred associations, I have consecrated myself to the moral cultivation of that natural Eden. This consecration, I solemnly renew on this platform. In consequence of the wise, liberal and highly successful efforts of this Society to take possession of Wisconsin in its infancy, I expect to see that rich territory become the New England of the West. And with the same prompt and judicious outlay upon the opening field west of us, we may see a continuation of the magnificent, moral scenery of New England, extending from the Penobscot to the Columbia River. To accomplish a work of such imperishable grandeur, constitutes the God-like aim of the American Home Missionary Society. For this I love it. And to bear a humble part in carrying out a purpose so lofty and patriotic, I shall return to live, labor and die in the West. I expect a long, final conflict with the determined spirit of Popery. But in God's sacred name, with the shield of faith in my hand, I mean to test the p er of truth and the omnipotence of prayer. Acting in union with my ministerial brethren, the friends of Missions in the East, shall yearly hear the sound of "tidings" from beyond the Lakes. Our language will be—

"Messiah here hath spoils—
Yet, ampler, richer shall be won ;
For these unfainting sons of toil
Have but one watchword, and 'tis On !
Till this broad land shall cultivated be
From Alleghany to the sea."

Relation of Auxiliary Societies, Agencies and Committees of Missions to the A. H. M. S. ; Applications, &c.

State and other large Auxiliaries.

MOST of the state Missionary Societies were in existence before the formation of the National Society, and some of them—as the Missionary Societies of Connecticut and Massachusetts—were among the earliest organized efforts in our country for sending the Gospel to the destitute. They have voluntarily connected themselves with the A. H. M. S., from a conviction that greater unity of plan and efficiency in action would thereby be promoted.

The terms by which the Auxiliaries are connected with the parent Society, are such as to secure the following objects, viz :

First—The Auxiliary is not superseded or overshadowed by the National Institution, but, on the contrary, is invigorated and sustained by connexion with it. This is secured by the provision that the Auxiliary is the sole agency for this cause that operates on its field. It controls all appointments in the state to which it belongs. From it alone, so far as its means will allow, the feeble churches receive assistance. Thus a direct relation and strong attachment is cherished towards it, in the hearts of the ministers and churches.

Again—While the local operations of the Auxiliary are thus encouraged and sustained, its connexion with the Parent Society is such as to awaken an interest in the destitute beyond its own limits, and afford facilities for reaching them. It is not only a Society for local purposes, but it is also a branch of the National Society, and as such, has the control of all agencies for the collection of funds within its own field, and can direct the manner in which its surplus resources shall be expended beyond its own limits. Thus, the state and other large Auxiliaries are not merely organizations to help the Parent Society ; they are integral parts of it, bound together in one whole by a common interest in, and free access, through the Parent Society, to the great field to be occupied, and governed by the same general principles and rules in carrying on their work.

Agents and Agencies.

Besides taking up contributions for Home Missions, the Agents of the A. H. M. S. exercise a general superintendence of the operations of the Society within their respective fields. By correspondence and personal visitation, they ascertain the wants of the destitute ; assist them to obtain the preaching of the Gospel ; and instruct and encourage them to develop their own means for its support. They receive applications for aid, and make such preliminary examination as may be necessary before submitting them for the action of the Executive Committee ; and in other ways, labor to insure a judicious and economical application of the Society's funds. At present, the Society has in its employ no merely collecting Agents, nor any whose services are not required for other purposes in the regions where they labor. The Secretaries of several of the larger Auxiliaries, are also the Agents for this cause in their respective bounds.

In certain districts, where the duties of an Agent are likely to be peculiarly responsible, there is associated with him a board of counsellors selected from the region of his labors, called an Agency. These Boards of Agency differ from Auxiliary Societies, in that they have no independent existence, but are appointed by the Executive Committee from year to year, and are governed by rules which the Committee prescribe. Their office is to counsel and direct the Agent in carrying out the principles of the Society, and to give advice in relation to such local matters as may be submitted to them by the Executive Committee. The persons composing a Board of Agency, are selected for their intelligence and interest in this cause, and their influence in promoting it; and are so distributed over the field as to secure a personal acquaintance with its condition. The Agent of the Society is also the Secretary of the Agency with which he is associated.

These boards of counsel might have not been necessary, had the ecclesiastical bodies on the ground been able and disposed to pay sufficient attention to the missionary work, and to act as its directors in their respective bounds. But the ministers composing them are usually scattered over a wide extent of territory, and meet but seldom, and only at seasons when they are much occupied with other business; and accordingly, it has been necessary in some cases to organize agencies for this specific work. But in other cases, Synods, Presbyteries and Associations have chosen to act as Auxiliaries to the Society, examining into the condition of the destitute within their bounds, and recommending the appropriate action for their relief. Ecclesiastical bodies thus related to the A. H. M. S. act through

Committees of Missions.

The A. H. M. S. has ever regarded the ecclesiastical bodies as the appropriate judges of the standing of their own ministers, and of the wants of the churches in their connexion. Accordingly, the commission issued to every missionary requires that his credentials be acceptable to that ministerial body of his denomination, within whose bounds he is appointed to labor. And the various Presbyteries, Associations, &c., are invited to appoint, each, a Committee of Missions from its own members, to receive applications from its churches, and suggest to the Society the action proper in each case. Such a Committee constitutes the official source to which reference can be had for information and advice, in all matters pertaining to missions in the connexion to which it belongs. This mode of co-operation has been preferred by numerous ecclesiastical bodies, from the first formation of the Society. It guaranties to the churches of each denomination represented in the Society, that their respective claims shall be fairly considered, with all the advantage of having the endorsement of the body to which they belong. The advice of such a Committee, acting in the name and by the direction of the ecclesiastical body to which they belong, is regarded as the highest authority in matters pertaining to the standing of ministers and churches in their connexion, and has the same influence with the Society, as that of a Board of Agency appointed by itself.

There is one limitation to this influence, however, which ought to be stated. Should any ecclesiastical body so far swerve from the principles of truth and Gospel order, as not to retain the fellowship and confidence of the great body of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches in our land, that fact would cause its recommendations not to be respected, as a basis of action, by the Executive Committee.

As cases may occur in which the feeble churches may not be aware of the existence of any board of Agency, or Committee of Missions, through whom to apply for aid, a general provision is made, that applications may be vouched by any two ministers of known and approved standing, who can certify to the facts of the case. If the information thus given is not sufficient, other facts are sought by the Executive Committee, with as little delay as practicable, from the most authentic sources from which they can be obtained.

Such, briefly, are the relations of the American Home Missionary Society to the various organs, through which the community seeks to act out its missionary feeling. It will be seen that this plan secures the united action, in the missionary work, of those whose views of doctrine and church order admit of co-operation, and whose interests in the great field are essentially the same. This combination insures a homogeneous policy as to the manner and amount of appropriations, and the qualifications of missionaries; it has discouraged sectional feelings, and diffused throughout each part an interest in all the rest; and thus has formed ties between the West and the East, along which have passed, from the latter to the former, a silent and invisible current of moral influences, more valuable, if possible, than all pecuniary grants. At the same time, the connexion of the Parent Society with the various Associations that act with it, is such as to secure to them entire freedom in the missionary work, in their respective spheres, and an influence beyond them, in cultivating the waste places of our common country.

Applications for aid.

Feeble congregations, applying for aid in supporting the Gospel, are requested to embody in their applications the following particulars, viz :

The name of the church, or congregation; the number of communicants, and the average number of attendants on public worship; the denomination and size of congregations immediately contiguous, with the distance to their places of worship; the total amount of salary which the applicants propose to make up; the largest portion of that salary which they can raise for the given time, and the least amount that will suffice from the Society; whether the minister for whom a commission is desired, is the pastor of the church, or, if not, whether any arrangements are made, or contemplated in the course of the year, with reference to his installment. These statements should be signed by the trustees and elders or deacons, or by a committee of the congregation, and confirmed by the certificate of two or more clergymen of good standing, acquainted with the facts. Also—

The name and post-office address of the minister whose services they desire to secure; his credentials; and the certificate of two or more ministers of known standing, as to his general character for piety, zeal and acceptableness as a minister of the Gospel, and his adaptedness to this particular field of labor.

Where the ecclesiastical body with which a church is connected has a "Committee of Missions" to act in their behalf, this Committee are the proper persons to certify the statements of the church, the standing of the minister and his prospects of usefulness in the place where his services are desired; and the application should, in all cases, be sent to them for their endorsement and recommendation.

As a general rule, the appropriations of the A. H. M. S. are for twelve months from the date of the application; at the end of which, if further aid be needed, a new application must be made, containing all the particulars above stated, and endorsed and recommended in like manner. And each congregation applying for renewed aid, should furnish, in addition to other testimonials, the certificate of the Missionary, that they have fulfilled their previous pledges for his support.

It is desirable that applications should be addressed to the care of the Agent, Agency or Auxiliary Society of the A. H. M. S., for the region where the applicants reside; but in case of doubt as to the name or residence of such Agent, or the existence of such Agency or Auxiliary, applications may be sent directly to the office of the Parent Society, addressed to one of the Secretaries.

EXTRACTS FROM THE MONTHLY PUBLICATIONS AND CORRESPONDENCE OF THE A. H. M. S.

Our Country.

Elements of American prosperity and influence.

Survey our natural resources. If the world now lay vacant, and "all before us where to choose," what part of the globe, of equal extent, would you prefer to the United States? Our territory is of great extent, capable of sustaining a population several times as large as that of all Europe; and yet without being crowded together as they often are there, in dense, overgrown, festering masses. There is ample room in our country for the industry, enterprise and thrift of our spreading population. In the old world, multitudes are unemployed; there is no field spread out to call forth their energies; either there is a want of territory, or a want of encouragement for industry and effort; and idleness, poverty, and mendicancy are the consequences; and with these, discontents, crimes and frequent revolts. Here we know but little of these evils. Industry finds ready employment and ample reward; and intelligent enterprise, a boundless field for activity and effort.

Our position in reference to other nations, is one of great and very distinguishing advantage. Removed at a distance from the involved, jealous, expensive, and easily disturbed policy of the European states, we are left, unchecked and unrestrained, to pursue our own system of government, to mature and perfect our own institutions, and work out our own destiny. The three united continents of the old world do not contain a single spot where any grand scheme of human improvement, like that which is going forward in this country, could be attempted with any prospect of success, because there is no spot safe from foreign interference.

You may find, in many parts of the old world, a more quiet and settled state of public affairs than is enjoyed in your own country; but with this advantage, if it be one, you must take despotism in all its haughtiness, oppression and crimes; and church establishments with all practicable degrees of intolerance and other abuses, from Rome down to the Church of England and the Scotch Kirk—all sufficiently illiberal and oppressive towards dissenters. And with these no slight inconveniences you must live where there is no system of common schools, as in your own country—this applies especially to England—and no colleges accessible to all the people, but only to certain privileged classes; and no broad open field of enterprise, where talents of every grade and every calling may find free scope and full employment.

We are here trammelled with no hereditary, prescriptive, time-hallowed abuses. We have no arrogant nobility; no entailments; no hereditary law-makers; no established church; no privileged class of clergy or laity; in fine, none of the feudalism of by-gone, barbarous ages. The world has not outlived the genius of our institutions, as it has in Europe. The frame of our government is simple. It did not grow up from tradition; it is not the product of feudalism or of the dark ages. It was formed by intelligent, far-reaching, patriotic men, chosen for the purpose by the people, and acting for the people in the whole process of their deliberations and decisions.

Responsibilities.

The eyes of the world are upon us. We are as a city set upon a hill. Other nations behold and wonder and imitate. The influence of our great example of popular institutions and free government, is felt to the ends of the earth; and if successful in time to come, as it has been in time past, it will rapidly wake up a spirit of reform among all nations, and hasten on the reign of universal freedom and justice and right. Never did the desire for the growing prosperity of my country beat so strong in my bosom as when I was travelling in foreign lands. There I saw and felt by contrast the value of free institutions, and the blessings of a pure, unfettered christianity. [Rev. Joel Hawes, D. D.]

Our great work, I had almost said our one work—that to which God calls us above every other—is to cultivate our own vineyard.

This we have to do in view of the existing millions of our actual population, and of an innumerable posterity—a great and pressing work, the greatest to be done on earth, were we to stop at this view of the matter.

But we have more than our own to provide for. Europe is casting her myriads upon us. They are coming in countless numbers, with characters as unformed, habits as unsuited to us, as though they came from another planet. And this is to have no end. Emigration—tremendous as the fact is for us—will continue, and will increase, till this land affords no room for more. This is as certain as that the waves of the Atlantic will continue to roll in upon our shore, or as that a channel opened from one water to another, will not cease to flow till the two are at a level. There is no stopping this: we must meet it as we can; we must forestall and neutralize its natural consequences, or must suffer them. [Rev. John Múchell.]

Comparative views.

The United States have a frontier line of over 10,000 miles, a sea-coast of nearly 4,000 miles, a lake coast of 1,200 miles. One of its rivers is twice as long as the Danube, the largest river in Europe. The Ohio is 600 miles longer than the Rhine, and the noble river of the Hudson has a navigation in the "Empire State," one hundred and twenty miles longer than the Thames. Within Louisiana are bayous and creeks, that are almost unknown, that would shame by comparison the Tiber or Seine. The state of Virginia alone is one-third larger than England. The state of Ohio contains 8,000 square miles more than Scotland. The harbor of New York receives the vessels that navigate rivers, canals and lakes, to the extent of 3,000 miles, the distance from America to Europe. From the capital of Maine to the "Crescent City," is 200 miles further than from London to Constantinople, a route that would cross England, Belgium, a part of Prussia, Germany, Austria and Turkey.

Obligation to pray and contribute for Home Missions.

The state of the country demands it. On all hands causes are at work corrupting the public morals; rail-roads, steam-boats and stages, violating the Lord's day; the press teeming with frivolous and licentious books and pamphlets; intemperance rolling back over districts which were thought to be redeemed from its deadly wave; political agitation pervading the land, and enlisting every species of instrumentality, and appealing to all passions, good and bad. Strange elements from foreign lands, mingle in the current of our national life; the numbers of the people grow with greater rapidity than the means of grace, and spread fast and far beyond their influence. Ministers and laymen, from the newer and most exposed parts of my country, plead with a thousand voices, but all to the same effect, that help is indispensable, that it must be generous, and that there must be no delay.

Romanists.

Jesuits in the United States.

The province of Maryland includes the establishments of the society in the District of Columbia, Maryland, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. The province contained 109 Jesuits in 1841, against 121 in the year 1844. The vice province of Missouri includes the establishments in Louisiana, Missouri, Ohio, the Rocky Mountains, and adjoining countries. There are in four establishments, 107 Jesuits, of whom 29 are priests, 37 novices, and 41 brothers. The remaining establishment consists, for the most part, of missions composed of one or two fathers; the most considerable is the mission of the Rocky Mountains, which is composed of 5 priests and 6 brothers. The number of Jesuits, which amounted, in 1841, to 94, has increased, in 1844, to 139, in the Missouri.

What shall be done against Romanism?

Its predominance cannot be prevented by legislation, either by the Federal or the State Legislatures. "The weapons of this warfare must be spiritual," and intellectual. In the first place, we must receive the Catholics in christian love. In love—in the bowels of Jesus Christ, we must long for their souls, and labor to convert them. It cannot be the design of Providence, that the Catholics should subvert our free institutions, the result of the sufferings and toils, the faith and prayers of our Puritan forefathers. Instead of this, we believe the God of salvation is sending the Catholics here, that they may be converted and saved. If we are true to them, to God, and to ourselves, it will be done.

But in the next place, we must have schools and seminaries, which shall not only equal, but greatly excel theirs. These seminaries must be immediately set into operation. In the last place, we must have a MINISTRY that shall be competent to meet the struggle which must come. It would be most desirable, if possible, to avoid a controversy with the Catholics, but this cannot be. The controversy will come. It is essential then that we have a ministry prepared for it. We must have a pious, devoted, active, laborious ministry; and we must have a learned ministry.

Such a ministry the East must send to the West. The course above indicated, undertaken and pursued in the fear of God, and a prayerful reliance upon His blessing, will succeed. Our country will be saved and the Catholics will be converted.

The West.

Difficulties of evangelization.

The first difficulty, arises from the mixture of the population. It is made up of such heterogeneous materials and from such different nations, that it is next to impossible to act upon it and bring its parts into harmonious action among themselves.

Another difficulty, arises from the numerous sects into which the American population is divided. In a village of 600 or 700 people, there may often be found churches of all the evangelical denominations, besides errorists of every grade and name, old and new. In fact, the West seems to be considered the great theatre, on which to try every conceivable experiment in religion.

Many are openly immoral, and professed infidels; and the vast majority have come to the West, for the sole object of bettering their worldly condition; and to this they are unceasingly devoted—their circumstances, often, as well as their inclination, prompting them to such a course. The amount of moral and religious influence, then, exerted upon any given community, is very small, and left to itself would, in many cases, soon entirely cease.

And finally, the influence of Popery is one of the greatest difficulties to be encountered, in some parts of the West. It is impossible to reach those under its influence, while its advocates, backed up by the wealth and the surplus population of Europe, are sparing no efforts or expenditure to propagate it, and to bring all ages and sexes and conditions in this land, consecrated no less to religious than to civil liberty, under its iron sway.

Positive character.

The two prominent characteristics of the inhabitant of the Valley are vigor of mind and generosity of feeling. He has not indeed the slow and calculating wisdom, the steadiness, the taste and refinement, which men possess in older countries. But he has a fearless energy and a kindness of heart which are unknown to them. He has the foundation, at least, of a nobler character, the elements for exerting a wider and better influence. In seeking to bring him under the influence of the Gospel, we have ample encouragement. He will not hide his light. He will not be ashamed to bear his cross. He will be willing to endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. He will not neutralize his influence by his parsimony, nor degrade his religion by his meanness. He will give a more attractive example of what Christianity can do in enlarging the mind, invigorating the affections, and in overcoming the grasping selfishness so common in older communities. In evangelizing the Western States, therefore, we are contributing effectually to enlarge the Redeemer's kingdom. This immense region, larger than half of Europe, once illuminated, may become the favored seat of Christianity, the central earthly source of its life-giving beams. [Rev. A. Barnes.]

Building Meeting-houses.

"Where there's a will, there's a way."

Asking counsel of the Lord, we determined to go forward, and that without foreign aid. But it was plain, if we did so, it could only be after the Sandwich Island fashion. We adopted that fashion. An elder gave an old warehouse. We begged a site for it; we moved it, by inviting the aid of the neighbors; we re-weatherboarded it, re-roofed it, plastered it; and now it makes a very, very comfortable house, 32 feet by 20; which comfortably and compactly seated, holds our audience at the present. But I am in hopes we may be crowded out of it. In building this temple, I worked with my hands as well as head. I put on more than half of the siding, and laid most of the floor. We have on hand another church edifice, in the eastern part of the county.

The writer afterwards reported concerning this other house—

I am now happy to state to you, that I had the pleasure of dedicating it about three weeks since. Let me state some of the particulars. This little church numbers now about thirty members. The house which they have built cost upwards of six hundred dollars; all of which is paid, one of the members told me, with the exception of about fifty dollars. They sold their cattle and horses, and every thing they could sell, in order to erect this neat meeting-house, where they and their dear children could worship God. One man sold a part of his farm, in order to raise money to pay his share. They did it within themselves—and now they know the value of it.

There is a good prospect of building up a large church in that place. After we had dedicated the house, we administered the sacrament to them on Monday, and held a meeting with them, to see what could be raised towards supporting a minister among them. Two hundred dollars was within two days subscribed. They now expect to have a minister to preach stately to them. I have seldom found a people who were so willing to make sacrifices for the cause of Christ. The church in this place are now satisfied that a stated ministry is the one for them. Preaching on the Sabbath is much better attended this year, than upon any former year. I trust that before the winter is over, many will be gathered into the fold of Christ here.

“There is a good prospect of building up a large church.” We have no doubt of it; the process through which this people put themselves, by their sacrifices, has called out just the qualities requisite to build up good society. Would the prospect have been as good, if they had begged half the amount from the eastern churches?

Another writes from Tennessee:—

This church was organized under circumstances peculiarly painful and trying. That interesting community of Christians erected a neat framed building, painted it, neatly furnished it with comfortable seats and a fine pulpit, finished it with the exception of ceiling, meeting together and doing the work with their own hands, and had it in readiness to receive the Presbytery which held its sessions in this newly erected building. And the opening sermon of the Presbytery, was the dedication sermon of the newly-built house of God.

Another meeting-house built in Indiana without foreign aid.

You may be interested to know that we have erected a hewed log house, 25 feet by 18 feet, in the eastern part of the county. This was erected without foreign aid, among as indigent a community I presume, as will be found in the West; a community also which has very little homogeneity of character. A great part of the work, also, was done in the middle of harvest. Notwithstanding, they even now do not miss the time or the expense bestowed on the house; and so far as the cause is concerned, I believe it is now, and will be, more advanced, than if I had received $500 to erect a house, from abroad.

A similar case in one of the newest districts, is thus related:—

Our house is small (25 by 35) but neatly finished, costing between 5 and $600, built without foreign aid. It is needless for me to say that my church have exerted every nerve, and they now enjoy the result of their labors.

This, substantially, is what we call the true plan of “Church Extension”—so far as the church can be extended, by brick and boards and mortar. “Erected WITHOUT FOREIGN AID”—let it be written upon the lintel and the door posts of every sanctuary in our new settlements, that the passing traveller may know where to look for christian enterprise and spiritual prosperity. From the first blow to the last, a house thus erected, is a precious means of grace to those that build it. They will need far less aid in the support of the ministry, than if this house had been built with funds solicited from abroad; and they will be more likely to be blessed by that ministry, and to put up a better house in the place of this, when one shall be needed.

Our counsel to all missionary churches is, do not come, nor send your minister to the East, to solicit funds for building a house of worship. Better put your trust, for power to gather the people around your standard and to triumph over all error and delusion, in the faithful preaching of the Gospel and in the power of the eternal Spirit, and keep your minister at home, preaching that Gospel from house to house, and helping you devise ways and means for building of yourselves. We have seen so much time wasted, and money wasted, and ministerial strength and influence wasted—so many good enterprises hindered—so much disappointment, strife, division and sad disaster, in connexion with efforts to build a more costly house of worship than the means of a people could secure, that we cannot—as those who are studying the best interests of these churches, as christian friends, as honest men—give other counsel.

Miscellaneous.

Who shall guard the Young against Infidelity?

A missionary in Indiana has written as follows:—"The influence of sceptics imparts a deep shade to the picture of our condition. They treat me with personal respect; and some of them with even marked kindness. But it seemed to be on the supposition that "their goods" could be easily "kept in peace." One of them, in a very familiar manner, proposed to me the following question: "Don't you think, if electricity could be advanced to perfection, and some other fluid substituted for blood, that human life could be prolonged indefinitely, or restored if it should become extinct?" Another one of the same class asked me if I would not read the "theological works of Thomas Paine?" Another remarked that he could "perceive no difference between the Catholic and Protestant priests." Another said, "if I were sure there was an hereafter, I would look into the christian system." I mention these things as illustrations of the entire renunciation of the light of revealed truth; at least, so they would have it appear. If science has not already begun to shine with such splendor as to cause the feeble light of superstition to fade entirely away, the day is near when its overpowering effulgence shall cause the last shadow to disappear!

Shall these lambs of the flock have no shepherd to protect them—to feed them—to console them amid such dangers, and the afflictions common to mankind? And who shall afford them aid?"

A missionary in Illinois reports:—"There are occasionally lecturers who go from place to place, in this community, deifying the ministers of the Gospel and the institutions of religion, denying the immortality of the soul and the future punishment of the wicked. Strange as it may seem, the writings of Thomas Paine are read by many, both male and female, with much apparent interest: and his sentiments furnish topics of conversation in the social circle. There are some phrenological lecturers who attempt to engraft those errors on phrenology."

A missionary in Wisconsin says of the place where he is stationed:—"This has always been a stronghold of infidelity from its first settlement; and a large share of the influence is still on that side of the question. Paine's Age of Reason is read with avidity in many families, and its doctrines are strenuously advocated by men of influence. Not a few mothers drink in this poison."

How far gone from the tone of virtue and principle which characterize intelligent and well ordered society must that community be, where even the MOTHERS become the advocates and teachers of the most blasphemous infidelity!

A missionary on the Mississippi writes:—"Many of the immigrants from Europe are the disciples of Hume and Voltaire. The free habits of our western population give them great boldness, and they become at once not only the advocates, but the apostles of infidelity. Clubs and associations are formed in almost all our towns on the rivers, and often elsewhere, zealous and active, and so well skilled in the arts of delusion as to lead many unwary and foolish youth astray."

In a communication published in a late number of the Home Missionary, the writer stated, concerning the infidelity propagated in Iowa by Kneeland, that there are a great number who firmly hold the doctrines of materialism. They have an Anti-Theistical Catechism, and other works, filled with vile quibbles, falsehoods, and scurrilous wit, as well as works of more pretension by Hume, Taylor, Paine, Volney, &c.

The important moment.

The country around us is fast filling up. Miles of new fence have gone up this season, upon all the roads leading into town. As the spring opens, the whole country assumes a richness and luxuriance that leaves little to be desired for man's earthly dwelling. The myriads that must find a home in this region, in future years, no one can compute. How unspeakably important to plant early among this people the institutions of religion. To anticipate the many evil influences which are here, and, if unchecked, will flourish with all the luxuriance of prairie vegetation. May God strengthen the friends of Home Missions, and enable them to do more in this blessed work!

A large field.

A few weeks since, I was cheered and refreshed by a visit from two brethren of our Synod who came near 300 miles to survey our ample field, and catch a glimpse of scenes that affect a pious heart. It was pleasant to accompany them 40 miles, to the residence of a Home Missionary, and there, in sweet fellowship, dedicate ourselves anew to our Great Master at His own table. Such seasons are of rare occurrence here; and who will blame us if we prize them? These brethren have returned to their own field; and, as I was returning to mine, the question would frequently be on my lips, When will some of my eastern brethren come and set up half way houses, at which I may call and rest, while enduring the fatigue of a hard day's ride, to visit my now nearest neighbor of the mission family.

Fruits of Home Missions.

O, what a change has been wrought in this place ! Good order, general attendance at worship, general regard (not universal however) for the Lord's day, and very general sobriety and industry, where, but a few years ago, drinking, gambling, rioting, were common and characteristic. One of the members, in walking with me to the house of God, a few Sabbaths since, and directly in front of it, remarked, that but two years before (I think) he had seen the whole space covered with groups of men, on the Sabbath day, engaged in gambling with cards, and other devices—concealed from the road, a few rods distant, by the bushes and trees that there intervened ; guns and rifles then customarily filled the woods with their reports, not only in killing game, but firing at marks for liquor. Seldom, now, is that sound heard, except at a distance. Bless the Lord, O my soul, for the good which has been accomplished in this, among other places, by the American Home Missionary Society ! For I speak the sober truth in saying that, whatever other agencies have been employed in the case, (and there have been such,) that of the Home Missionary has been the main instrumentality in accomplishing the change.

Good accomplished.

Casting my eye over portions of this state where I am acquainted, and marking the changes which have taken place within a few years, I find that the scattered sheep in the wilderness have been searched out, churches organized and built up in the faith and order of the Gospel ; religious societies formed for sustaining the ministry ; meeting-houses erected and dedicated to the solemn service of the triune God ; souls converted ; Sabbath schools established and continued in successful operation ; temperance societies commenced and sustained, and poor inebriated by scores, hundreds and thousands, made sober, and many of them religious ; and thousands of other happy influences exerted,—and all mainly through the agency of the A. H. M. S.—It is a thought which fills my heart with emotions of gratitude and courage.

Hope amidst discouragement.

I find this people ready to listen to the word of life. My congregations have been as large as I could expect, considering the newness of the country, and the great variety of opinions among the people.

We have every sect and party here that can be named, from the Atheist up to our own. The powers of darkness have a mighty host in this field, who are throwing their chilling influence, like the miasma of death, over the minds of the young ; blasting every moral prospect, and blighting the hopes of every christian heart. After doing the best we can in so large a field, there are many who do not hear a Gospel sermon, from the beginning to the close of the year. I preached a sermon not long since in the presence of a lady, who said it was the first she had heard in eight years.

A few days ago, I rode up to the door of a dwelling and handed a man a few tracts ; after looking at them for a moment, he looked at me very earnestly, and inquired what they were.

Hundreds of children are growing up here without any mental or moral culture. Parents have gone back in the woods, some three, some five miles ; there, in the midst of the forest, erected their log cabins ; and there, like the wild deer, their children bound over the flowery lawn and seldom hear of the God that made them.

When I look at these children and reflect, how soon the rising generation will sway our nation, I am constrained to cry out—My country ! Oh ! my country !

I do not design to draw too dark a picture, for there are many sunny spots in these deep shades. School houses are springing up, and many are doing all they can to educate their children. We frequently hear parents lament over the mental and moral desolations of the land. Many take their oxen, and draw their families miles through the woods and mud, to hear a sermon, and attend the prayer meeting or Sabbath school.

We have five union schools now in this field. They number from fifteen to fifty each. All our meetings are well attended, and there appears to be some little improvement of religious feeling among the members ; but we have had no special out-pouring of the Spirit. We are praying and looking for brighter days.

Toil and Pleasure.

There has been more sickness than usual the past Autumn in this county, and much of my time for several weeks was spent in visiting the sick. And I have evidence that these visits have not been wholly in vain. In many instances they have been comforting to the children of God, and in some I hope they have been beneficial to those "having no hope and without God in the world." Once I was sent for twenty miles to visit a "mother in Israel" upon her sick bed, far removed from the means of grace and the society of christian friends. And, I assure you, I felt richly rewarded for my forty miles travel on horseback, over a muddy road, by the joy and consolation my visit afforded that child of God, and the pleasure it gave to the family. Besides, I felt my own heart benefitted. At another time, an impenitent sinner sent seven miles to have me come and talk and pray with him. I obeyed the summons, rode the whole distance in the night, spent the night with him, and visited him afterwards. He professed to receive benefit from my instructions.
